CONVENTION PAYS BELLEVILLE MAN HIGHEST HONOR

President Johnson of Jewellers Succeeded By J. E. Logan

BUSINESS CAREER

New Head of Association Prominent in Local Organization

At the election of officers to the executive of the Ontario Jewellers Association Convention to be held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, Mr. J. Ed. Logan of the Angus and Logan Jewelry Store was elected president for the coming year. This is a signal honor in the jewelry trade and Mr. Logan is to be congratulated for getting this appointment. He is also to be congratulated on the fact that the business men of this city are becoming to be so progressive an any other group in the country.

Mr. Logan has been associated with the McFee store ever since the latter 6'90 when he came here from Toronto. He was with the Kent and Irvine Co. for a time and with Reid and Tisdales for one year. He has been an active worker in the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association holding the position of Treasurer and is also, prominent in the Kiwanis Club being a director of that group.

The election of a Belleville man to this post brings honor to this city and Mr. Logan's many friends will be glad to know that his executive ability is recognized by his confreres in the jewelry trade.

Inflation Ahead, Declares Babson

"Old worries, forget Washington," he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Boston Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"Our dollar now is worth only 60 cents abroad. It is only a question of time when it will be worth only 50 cents or much less in the United States."

The very practical hedge against inflation is to put your money into real property and protect it," he said.

PEACE PACT SIGNED

Buenos Aires, June 12—(CP—Havas)—The Bolivian-Paraguayan peace treaty, signed at the settlement of peace in the Gran Chaco was signed at 12.35 E. D. T. here today.

JAPAN THREATENS

MAP OF THREATENED AREA

Drastic action by Japanese military forces in North China was threatened in an ultimatum demanding that issues must be settled quickly in accordance with Japanese views. Opinion prevailed in Shanghai that the Japanese armies would occupy Tientsin and Peiping as a result of Chinese official failure to conduct affairs in the Peiping and Tientsin areas in a manner satisfactory to Japan.

EXHUME BODY OF SECOND HUSBAND

Orders Given by Attorney General in Tilford Murder Charge

Toronto, June 12—(CP)—With Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Tilford under arrest for the murder of her third husband, Crystal Tilford, the Crown was going ahead today with the plans to exhume the body of her second husband who died in 1929.

A few hours after Mrs. Tilford had declared: "I'm not afraid of anything. I'm going out of this a free woman," Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck gave the order to exhume the body of her second husband, William Walker.

Mrs. Tilford, then Mrs. F. Yaxley, married Walker in Lanchester, England in 1911. Together they came to Canada and settled in the Woodstock district. In 1928 a year later Walker died. The death certificate gave cause of the death as a brain tumor and cerebral hemorrhage.

Her third husband, Tilford, took his own life in April. A coroner's jury found he died from "arsenic poisoning administered by some person or persons unknown."

Arraigned on the murder charge Wednesday, Mrs. Tilford was remanded until Monday.

KING GEORGE V GOES FOR RIDE DESPITE CATARRH

Doctors Have Ordered Two Weeks' Rest to Recover

ILLNESS SLIGHT

Queen Mary Will Attend Functions As Planned

Sandringham, June 12—(AP)—A slight attack of bronchial catarrh that led his physician to order two weeks' rest for him failed to keep King George indoors this afternoon.

The monarch went automobile riding over his Sandringham estate, offering further evidence his illness was not serious.

The King is suffering from bronchial catarrh which is now in diagnosing because His Majesty is fatigued by his efforts of the last few days. A period of not less than two weeks rest will be required in order that His Majesty may recover his usual health. The King is remaining at Sandringham for the present.

King George and Queen Mary had planned to return to London today and attend Covent Garden tonight to hear Grace Moore in La Boheme. The Queen will keep the opera engagement and also appear at the court ball in Buckingham Palace tomorrow night.

Court Pleas Unchanged

She also plans to drive to Ripon and Windsor Saturday, remaining at Windsor throughout Ascot week. In addition she will not originally scheduled program.

The only change Queen Mary is making no alterations in her plans is taken as an assurance the King's condition is not serious.

Their Majesties came to Sandringham for the weekend after the King spent a busy day at Buckingham Palace Friday, receiving former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in connection with the recent cabinet reconstruction.

Eleven days ago His Majesty cancelled plans to attend a reception by the London county council, but later he suffered a slight chill. He later resumed his normal activities, including the inspection of the colors ceremony on his birthday.

Postmasters of This Province Open Convention on Monday

T. P. Murphy of Ottawa Will Represent Department

3 DAY MEETINGS

The Postmaster has received definite assurance that Mr. T. P. Murphy, Superintendent, Equipment and Supply Department, Ottawa, will be delegated to represent the Department at the Ontario Postmasters' Convention which opens next Monday and will end Wednesday night with a reception and dance at the Golf Club.

Mayor Frederick D. McMullin, K.C., is expected here on Sunday accompanied by Mrs. McMullin, Mrs. Charles D. Griffith of Eaglewood, Chicago, all at present visiting the Maritimes.

The forefathers of Wilfred Mc Guire came to this County of Oxford in 1825, founding the Town of Tillsonburg. Mr. McGuire obtained this education in the Public and High Schools of Tillsonburg later starting as a "printer's devil" and finally rising to be owner of the paper, and at the same time acted as correspondent for St. Thomas and London papers.

In 1916 Mr. McGuire joined the Masonic Fraternity and from the day of his arrival in Prance was drafted to the Base Printing Office, where he was a battalion runner during the rest of the war. On returning to Canada in 1919 he was awarded the Military Medal, and later received the decoration from the Prince of Wales during his visit to Canada in 1920.

Upon returning to overseas Mr. McGuire entered the Insurance field in Tillsonburg, where he worked up an enviable reputation and large business. He was a member of the Board of Education for several years, and has given freely

STREET OILING SOON TO START

Oiling operations on the city streets will begin about the first week in July according to city engineer Charles Mallett. This oil is put on the streets to keep them in good condition and save them from the destruction that is caused by water soaking in and breaking the top. If oil is applied for a few years a thick crust is formed making a weather proof surface.

Child is Bruised When Knocked Down

Little "Bud" Dorey, aged eleven of St. Paul street, was knocked down and slightly bruised, when he ran in front of a motor car being driven southward by Clarence Cook, of this city, yesterday. Mr. Cook was proceeding along Dundas street and had sounded his horn when approaching a group of boys playing on the street. Suddenly little "Buddie" darted out from the curb, not observing the oncoming automobile, and ran into the right front fender. Mr. Cook took the little fellow to the surgery of Dr. J. J. Mackenzie nearby. When it was disclosed, that only minor injuries and bruises had been sustained Mr. Cook reported the incident to the police.

should have the very best consideration.

Keenly interested in all phases of school work, cadet training, athletics, commercial, technical, academic, literary work and music, Col. Ponton had been instrumental in introducing musical study in the school. It was a great pleasure, he said, to have Col. Ponton address the graduates.

Graduates of this school, said Col. Ponton, in his address, do not go into the world prepared, their training has given them a clear objective, a definite object in life, the school in company with other even good work has as their motto which has developed their personality and character as well as training them.

School and Native Land

Just twenty years ago students of the school, in company with other gallant Canadians had shown the spirit de corps developed in school life by their achievements in the field of battle, at Ypres.

Col. Ponton had with him a number of London newspaper bulletins which announced the victory of the day. He urged the youth to be proud of the memories of the bravery of these Canadian boys, of the dug under which they fought and of the ideal of peace with honor.

In conclusion the scholars on the platform sang "O Canada" and the singing was led by Miss Ethel Kerr.

The awards, prizes and diplomas were then given out.

Offers Solution for Problem

Editor of Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Sir:

A few weeks ago I cut from the columns of your editorial page an article on "The Crazy World" which went on to point out that while millions of people lacked food and clothing, nations were destroying millions of dollars worth of goods. You said Holland had in 1934 destroyed 100,000 pigs, 15,000,000 flower bulbs, United States had destroyed 2,000,000 sows and 4,000,000 little pigs and had "plowed in" every third row of cotton. Denmark incinerated 26,000 cattle. New Zealand had driven 25,000 rams into the sea and Brazil had destroyed 26,000,000 bags of coffee, the latter a world record.

Then the question comes to every thinking person "why is this so?" And we are forced to realize that through the crazy handling of the world's finance by the money barons the people have not the money to buy the necessities of life therefore they are in want and the stuff is destroyed.

About the same time Mr. Editor I cut from your paper an article telling us that the Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, former Minister of Finance had told a meeting of bankers that it was time bankers should set aside the veil of mystery and let the public know what the fundamental factors of...banking really are and, I have been looking anxiously for that revelation, because I have always wondered how a bank could take money in at three per cent as of old and reloan at seven percent in small lots and at five or six in governmental and still meet the necessary expenses on that margin of profit. So after reading these items I have been doing thinking and figuring and some your permission dear sir, I would like to submit the conclusions to the public through your paper.

Now to begin-I believe you will be agreed that ninety-five percent of bank business is done through bank clearings and no money actually changes hands. For example I borrow $100 at a bank and sign a note they mark it on my account and issue a cheque for same to some one else and the take it to the bank and it is marked on his bank book without any actual handling of money and we are told that 95 percent of the business is done this way so that a bank with $100 in cash is prepared to do $1000 worth of business. This $100 cost them say 2 percent today, $2 for a year and a thousand dollar business at 6 percent would bring them $60 in returns. As I understand it what a bank actually does instead of really loaning the money it backs your credit to the amount of the note. Oh yes, they will give you the cash if you ask for it, but I understand that only in about 5 percent of the cases does any one ask for it and if so how long will it be before it is again locked in their vaults.

Now Mr. Editor if this is correct what a racket it is when dealing in large loans to governments whether Dominion, Provincial or Municipal. This bond collateral backing the credit of our governments has reached such enormous sums that it has made such inroads on the government's returns that they can't collect enough revenue to meet these charges and carry on the ordinary business of the year consequently it is get some more backing from the money barons or else borrow from the unfortunate to them and so on the vicious circle goes and the people are bogged with every conceivable form of taxation till business is murdered and unemployment is rampant and unrest is growing by leaps and bounds.

I understand Mr. Hepburn is looking for a way out and that Mr. Bennett says that Hepburn's scrap on the Bond contracts has hurt Canada's credit and what a fine thing it would be if some financier would so that our credit till this crazy borrowing would have to cease.

I don't need to tell you dear sir that when our income in private business will not meet the running expenses and interest charges and we have to borrow to pay interest that we are getting in pretty low water and that usually the day of the will say "Why we know all of you and what's going on in this very serious problem. Well who has a solution, Mr. Editor? Has Bennett? Will his social reform program meet these conditions? Certainly not and the public know it. Can King solve these problems with his program? Can he a program? If so the general public don't know anything about it. No he can't solve these problems as long as he keeps the reins in his party rule same as in Bennett's party. And I would like to say right here that out here on these side hills rubbing shoulders with the rich and the poor, the people and the ground-hogs, the rust and worry of the poor does not get to get behind this man Stevens and if he would lay the cat down a servative party he would lead them to a great victory. But the money will not allow any man to be or to be is a pessimist fellow."

Now when the government borrows from these fellows what security do they give? I understand they sign a bond and back of that signature is the entire wealth of the Dominion or Province or Municipality as the case might be and the integrity of all its people backed up with a backing of that sort why should our Dominion have to go to banks or anywhere else to get backing. Bennett says the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal debts of this country amount to about 16,000,000,000. Millions collect and bonds have been issued as security. The municipal debts amount to $1,400,000,000 and last year they defaulted $400,000,000 so things are serious although that is small in order of the day as England is again defaulting on her war debt payments to United States and likewise most other countries.

Now Mr. Editor my object in writing this letter is to submit a solution to this perplexing problem, a solution that will heal our financial disease, right our social balance and make us all happy and content and make us as a nation the envy of the world and in a short few month's time would bring other nations to adopt our plan.

This is the plan. Let the Dominion government print five billion dollars new currency and clear the Dominion, the Province and the Municipalities of their burdens of indebtness; thus stopping all this interest charge that legislature bodies can't cope with. Taxes would be cut in two, a flood of money would be issued for business purposes. Yes but you say this new currency would not have a sufficient backing according to the gold standard What of that. We are not on the gold standard anyway and hardly any nation on earth is. Would not this currency have the same backing our bonds have and would not this currency bearing the signature of the Dominion government be better security than Provincial or Municipal bonds that are being defaulted. You say our creditors in foreign countries would not accept this money in payment of their bonds. Alright let them hold their bonds without interest then or better we will redeem them in goods, but when they see in a few months how this plan will work here they will be glad to take our money. Naturally you will ask will all these debts be paid and the Provinces and Municipalities be asked to pay nothing! Certainly not. This will be a plan to refund these debts and stop this unjust usury. Let them pay this back to the Dominion at the rate of two percent annually without interest and in 25 years it will be paid in full fast as this money is paid back to the Dominion Treasury (cancel) it till we have found our proper balance again according to the gold standard I am with you. Then during this plan would be to refund the farm mortgages amount to about $750,000,000. Pay it off with this currency and have it returned at say 2 percent without interest, all paid in 25 years.

What right Mr. Editor has a bunch of men who have incorporated themselves into a boarding concern have control of the issuing or binding of the nation's currency. Surely this has come about from the veil of mystery should be torn aside and let the public know what the fundamental factors of banking really are. This plan would stabilize business, it would put our mighty railroad problem would be solved and the men who would need the assistance of the trucks to handle our freight would not be tormented cheaply for carrying on all worthwhile business and the unemployment problem would be a thing of the past.

Why should it be seen in this country be holding over half the wealth and handling it in such a way that it has a certain relationship to an ounce of gold even if that relationship exists. Why should the people be clothing so worthless as to be reduced to starvation when there is no better way. A way in which the problem according to Michael would be fulfilled when he "And all nations shall call you blessed, for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of Hosts."

I am writing you for your space Mr. Editor. I remain as ever. A follower of Him who was a friend of publicity and sinner.

—Side Hill Sam.

AUXILIARY MAIN ON BRIDGE USED

Break Occurs in Large Main on Bridge Street

A unique event occurred in the Bridge street section of the Water Works Department were obliged to use the 4 inch auxiliary main when the new 12 inch auxiliary main over the new bridge for the first time since the bridge has been built.

Shortly after 1 p.m. a break in a bad break in the water main on Bridge street between the lower bridge and Front street. "The break had to occur in one of the worst possible locations" commented Mr. Austin, water works engineer. The auxiliary main had to be used to determined from the fact, that a hole almost as big as a man's head in the water pressure by the time it was discovered. So great was the pressure exerted that approximately 150,000 gallons of water was being thrown into the air in an ever increasing coming from the pump house had to be closed down and the 8 in. main shut off. The break had to be put into use to supply the East Hill district with water.

An estimate of the amount of work incurred when a break of this kind occurs is shown, when the water works department had to shut down two 8 inch valves, one 12 inch valve and two 16 inch valves. They also had to open two 8 inch valves.

He was a life member of the United Church. In politics was a staunch Liberal and was born in the very house in which he died. Besides his widow, who was formerly Ellen Osborn of Port Hope, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. David Durran and one son, Howard and Walter, all of Seymour.

BOYS ARE FOUND WHO FIRED PISTOL

Police Round up Six Who Admit Theft of Boats

Following concerted police efforts by local and Provincial police and 16 years, were apprehended yesterday and taken in the police station for questioning following complaints of breaking, entering and theft of a fishing gear from boathouses situated along the bay above, east of the city limits. The police investigation led to the belief that the youths had not only stolen fishing equipment but also two punts which had been removed from their moorings and were being used it was charged by the boys during their escapades. They were also found in possession of a loaded revolver.

When taken to the police station the youths admitted the breaking, entering and thefts, all goods being eventually restored to the owners. The lads admitted using the revolver to shoot at city street lights and breaking many lights in East Belleville. The gun was confiscated by the authorities and the youths were released in charge of their homes, but will be summoned to appear in a subsequent Juvenile Court.

The boys had stolen the two punts and were using them to paddle around the bay with. Later they broke into the boathouses and stole fishing tackle to use in the punts during their escapades on the bay in the vicinity of the general hospital.

CEASE TRUCKLING TO WEALTHY MEN

Statement Applauded at Toronto Conference Today

London, June 12 (CP) — With applause for the statement "we should cease truckling to men because they are rich" the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada today approved the report of the committee on Evangelism and Social Service.

The report declared the present economic system based on competition and the profit motive should be replaced by a system of co-operation with a service motive.

Rev. A. E. Smith, Secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, who described himself as a Communist, addressed the conference during the debate on the question. He challenged the church to grapple with the social problem in reality and made a comparison between the pay of Communists in the service of the party and the salaries paid even in the ministry.

"I am a Communist candidate in Port Arthur," Rev. Smith said, "there will be about 15 other candidates; should we be elected we will not touch a penny of the $4,000a year indemnity to which we would be entitled as members of parliament, we would turn it into the party fund and draw our $30 a week."

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

JEWELLERS ARE WELCOME

Belleville today welcomes the Ontario Jewellers, members of that honored craft which had its origin among the merchant guilds of the Middle Ages, when the crafts and arts flourished.

The jewellers have chosen Belleville for the scene of their annual gathering with the Bay of Quinte Country Club as the immediate centre of their meetings, no finer spot could have been selected for the day's program.

Jewellers are craftsmen in that great class of man who add beauty to life and have all through the ages played a very great part in the social life of the world. Today the jewellery trade still stands at the top for the world cannot do without the jeweller. His work and business touch every one of the most important occasions in life as well as in the times of ordinary affairs.

Belleville welcomes the Ontario Jewellers and wishes them the most successful and happy of assemblies. Citizens of Belleville feel that this city and the immediate district form an ideal setting for conventions and thank the Ontario Jewellers for selecting this place.

To President G. S. Johnson of Toronto, Vice-President J. E. Logan of Belleville, O. M. Ross, Secretary-Treasurer and all the members of the Association the greetings of the city and district are extended.

DESTRUCTION OF FLOWERS

Many a man and many a woman have planted flowers, nursed them with the aid of kindly nature to bring them to bloom. And their gardens have been an admiration to everyone who passed by. And some persons come by, just to see the beauty of these gardens.

But there is some one who seemingly does not admire a flower in a garden, some one who would rather snap the flower from its stem to look at it for a moment and then toss it away. That type lives in most communities. Belleville has some of that class—flower destroyers. Under cover of darkness or at least when no one is looking the deed of destruction is done. Were it not so there would be prosecution in the courts, for the authorities are determined to bring vandals to the bar of justice.

It seems strange that whilst appeal to the law the finer senses of the vandal cannot be cultivated so that he will spare what is the ornament of the home, the pride of the owner and his friends and all right-thinking citizens. Surely even the destroyer of flowers should listen to a little advice or appeal on behalf of the flower-lover.

The flower vandal is not a child in most cases. He or she is a sane person in full possession of faculties which would make defence or excuse of the reprehensive act impossible in a court.

Do those who wantonly deface a flower garden or destroy a cherished plant which is someone's pride so anxious to bring to seed in order to increase the total of plants, realize that much that pleases mankind in the city is because some one has decided that the city should have beautiful streets and that the citizens should pay and were willing to pay for them. Everything of beauty has a purpose (and it is this which makes life so pleasant) comes to us because some persons have wanted beauty and sacrificed themselves for the sake of beauty. A beautiful home, a beautiful tree on a street or on a lawn, a beautiful boulevard, a well-kept garden lawn, mowed at sacrifice of time and labor, are all the result of the human willingness to pay for beauty.

And yet there are some who do not think they are committing a wrong when they despoil this beauty for others.

It would be a sad thing if growers became so disappointed and saddened by the loss of their flowers that they decided to give up growing flowers. But even if the vandal lives next door or comes a distance to do the deed of destruction, the flower lover should continue the fight against the evil influence for he makes the city more beautiful and through beauty he is affecting the lives of the thousands who pass his door.

There is not one wise man among twenty will praise himself.—Shakespeare.

It is equally a mistake to hold one's self too high or to rate one's self too cheap.—Goethe.

God helps those that help themselves.—Benjamin Franklin.

God made man to go by motives, and he will not go without them, any more than a boat without steam, or a balloon without gas.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Acts are nothing except as they are the fruits of a state, except as they indicate what the man is; words are nothing except they express a mind or purpose.—F. D. Maurice.

God could not be everywhere and therefore He made mothers.—Jewish Saying.

LILACS

O lovely lilacs, mauve and purple, white,
Of magic perfume fragrance half divine,
I scarce can bear your beauty this bright morn.
It dims my eyes with tears, I know not why.
Whence come your sweetness, only for a day?
What is your spell..... this glory o'er the land?
Breathe you some message from the world of Spring?
Sometimes I've wondered if, long, long ago,
Some essence exquisite, of flowers unknown—
Pure blossoms scented, in God's garden grown—
Came drifting down through silver haze and gold,
Through shadowy cloud, and sunlit depths of blue,
To where, in clusters fair, the lilacs grew;
And seeking, found in them a place to stay?
And breathe to us, on earth, the air of Heaven.

—Miriam Suckling.

NEWSPAPERS—GOLD MINES—some folks seem to think. Far be it from so, a newspaper is a philanthropic institution created for the purpose of giving free publicity to clever folks who can chisel a chunk out of the Front Page, editorial page, or otherwise—an institution for promoting free of charge all manner of community betterments, to make the community or the nation a better place to live in. Also is the newspaper a medium to promote sports of all sorts, incidentally helping to build big gates for professional sports. The newspaper took a licking during the depression, greater than anyone can imagine, but did not whimper, and helped to keep the morale of the nation at high level during the dark days, as it did in the war—besides many other acts of benefit to the community and the nation. However, the newspaper is taken as a matter of course—folks grumble when paying subscriptions, but kick like blazes if the paper fails to arrive one single day. But the newspaper man don't give a hoot, as a rule, isn't making much money, but his outlook on life is so wide and comprehensive that he gets a continuous thrill just out of living, and going also in the idiosyncrasies of mankind and the consequences thereof, in the paper, besides getting a big kick out of the news that is ever coming in, but is big, large and juicy just the same. Yes, a newspaper is a gold mine—of information and genuine interest, and the satisfaction of performing a service in the world which has become indispensable, and a leader in the march of world progress.

WHILE ON THE SUBJECT OF NEWSPAPERS might we add that it is a whole lot of fun getting out a daily newspaper—also considerable grief, especially for the brains which have to do with the financing. Payrolls just don't grow on mulberry bushes.

x x x

NEWSPAPERMEN WERE ONCE NOTED for their supposed capacity to absorb strong drink and still produce brilliant thoughts in black and white. That happy sappy state has long since vanished, if it ever existed as pictured in the imagination of latter day romanticists, and it is generally accepted now that alcohol and printers' ink will not mix nohow, although some leading lights in the craft still insist that a little wine is good for the stomach's sake—but not in working hours.

MOST ANYONE can be an editor, sez one of them. All an editor has to do is to sit at his desk six days in the week, four weeks in the month and twelve months in the year, and "edit" such stuff as this: "Mrs. Jones of Lost Creek let a can-opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry." "Josh Smith wants to sell a good cow that gives two gallons of milk at every milking and a lot of household and kitchen furniture."

"Can we play at keeping store in here mamma?"

"Yes, but I have a headache, so if you do you must be very, very quiet."

"Oh, all right, mamma. We'll pretend we don't advertise."

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

There came a warning pattar from the drums and the pomp of the night wing burst into strident song, a single-invented couplet, of Feisal and the pleasures he would inherit us at Wejh. The right wing listened to the verse intently, took it up and sang it together once, twice and three times, with pride and self-satisfaction and decision. Then before they could brandish it a fourth time the poet of the wing broke out in extempore reply, in the same metre, in answering rhyme, and capping the sentiment. The left wing cheered it in a roar of triumph, the drums tapped again, the standard-bearers rose, and out their great crimson banners, and the whole guard, right, left, and centre, broke together into the rousing regimental chorus.

I've lost Britain and I've lost Gaul,
I've lost Rome, and, worst of all

only it was Nejd they had lost, and the women of the Mutaha, and their future lay from Jidda towards Suez. Yet it was a good song, with a rhythmical beat, which the men loved, so that they put down their heads, stretched their necks more far and with lengthened pace shuffled forward mustingly while it lasted.

Our road to-day was easy for them, since it was now firm sand on slopes, long, slowly-rising waves of dunes, bare-backed, set for scrub in the folds or barren palm-trees solitary in the moist depressions. Afterwards, in a hollow, two horsemen came cantering across from the left to greet Feisal. I knew the first one, dirty old bizar-eyed Mohammed Ali el Beidawi, Emir of the Juheina: but the second look-ed strange. When he came nearer I saw that he was Nasir, clothed with a cloak to cover it and a silk headcloth and head-rope, much awry. He looked up, and there was Newcombe's red and peeling face, with its shining eyes and vehement mouth, a strong, humorous grin between the two. So he had arrived at Um Lejj this morning, and hearing we were only just off, had seized Sheikh Thuefi's fastest horse and galloped after us.

I offered him my spare camel and an introduction to Feisal, whom he greeted like an old school-friend; and sat once they plunged into the midst of things, suggesting, debating, planning at lightning speed. Newcombe's initial velocity was enormous and the freshness of the night and the life and happiness of the army gave inspiration to the march and bound the future bubbling out of us without pain.

The route was not easy to decide with the poor help of the Wadi Juheina, our informants. They seemed to have no idea of time smaller than the half-day, or of distance between the span and the stage: and a stage might be from six to sixteen hours according to the men's will and camel. Intercommunication between our units was hindered because often there was no one who could read or write, in either. Delay, confusion, hunger and thirst marred this expedition. These might have been avoided had time let us examine the route beforehand. The animals were without food for nearly three days, and the men lived on but fifty rallies on half a gallon of water, with nothing to eat. It did not in any way dim their spirit, and they trotted into Wejh gaily enough, hoarsely singing, and executing most choice but Feisal said that another hot and barren day-ride would have broken both their speed and their energy.

When business ended, Newcombe and I went off to sleep in the tent Feisal had lent us as a special luxury. Meagre conditions were so hard and important for us that we felt took pride in faring like the men, who could not transport unnecessary things: and never before had I had a tent of my own. We pitched it at the very edge of a bluff of the foot-hills: a bluff no wider than the tent; and rounded, so that the slope went straight down from the pegs of the door flap. There we found silting and waiting for us Abd el Kerim, the young Beidawi Sherif, wrapped up to the eyes in his brat-cloth and cloak: since the evening was chill and threatened rain. He had come to ask me for a mule, with saddle and bridle. The smart appearance of our M.I. company in breeches and puttees, and their fine new animals had roused his desire.

I played with his eagerness, and put him off, advancing a condition that he should ask me after our successful arrival at Wejh; and with this he was content. We hungered for sleep, and all that he came to get, but, chancing to look across the valley, saw the boliders beneath and about us winking with the faint camp-fires of the scattered contingents. He called me out to look, and swept his arm round, saying half-sadly, "We are no longer Arabs but a People."

During the morning it rained persistently; and were very glad to see more water coming to us, and so comfortable in the tents at Semma that we delayed our start till the rain stone again in the early afternoon. Then we rode westward down the valley in the fresh light. First behind us came the Agayl. After them Abd el Kerim led his Gufa men, about seven hundred of them mounted with more than that number following afoot. They were dressed in white, with large head-shawls of red and black striped cotton, and they carried green palm branches instead of banners.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 12TH, 1915.

The presentation of colors to the 39th Battalion which is mobilized in this city and is composed of recruits from Hastings, Prince Edward, Peterboro, Northumberland, Durham, and Victoria and Addington counties, took place yesterday. The colors were the gift of the members of the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville. The ceremony took place on the parade ground in front of the armouries and hundreds of citizens were present to witness the presentation. Major Reynolds, the 8-cm Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence was present. Shortly after two o'clock the 39th Battalion headed by the Battalion Band marched from the headquarters on Pinnacle street and took up position on the parade ground. The battalion was in command of Col. Preston. After the regimental carris had been arranged, the colors carried by Mrs. T. P. Wills and Mrs. J. Dowsley were escorted by Lieut. and Col. Smart, second in command, and Major Hughes, who was for the purpose of receiving the colors. The address of presentation was made by Mrs. J. W. Johnson, the president of the club. At the conclusion of the address the colors were consecrated by the Rev. Mr. Spencer, the padre of the battalion, assisted by other clergymen present. Mrs. Percival Hughes presented the colors on behalf of the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville to Col. Smart and Major Bywater. At the conclusion of this ceremony a beautiful silk flag was presented to the High School cadets by Major General Hughes on behalf of the Argyll Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Mrs. (Col.) Marsh, the donor, presented the flag to Major General Hughes for presentation by him to the cadets. At the conclusion of Major General Hughes' address two little girls of the high school, Miss Ethel Brea and Viola McConnell, came forward and presented General Hughes with a bouquet of Acadian flowers. The General kissed the little girl and the people, cheered, after which the General waived over and shook hands with Miss Gutzi who was in charge of the pupils. Miss Anna Fleming with very clear enunciation "Never let the Old Flag Fall" and was loudly applauded. Speeches were made also by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Col. Peyton, Col. Hennessy and Col. W. N. Poston. General Hughes invited the past Colonels of Regiments to join with him in viewing the march past.

Mr. Walter Dodds of Montreal, is passing a two weeks' vacation in the city visiting his cousin.

Times must be good in Belleville if the collection of taxes is any criterion—and it should be. The total amount collected up to today is $38,000.00, which is about $5,000.00 in excess of the collection at the same period last year.

The street car rails are to be removed from Front street. The street will be much safer and more sightly without them.

A disgrace to the Harbor Commissioners is the disreputable looking state of the north end of the harbor where brush, tin cans, and refuse abound. Why don't the Harbor Commissioners put on a little style about them and clean up their premises? They are said to have many dollars to their credit in the bank. Why don't they spend some of it in removing an eye sore?

HON. MR. RHODES SOON TO RETIRE

Ill Health Forcing The Minister of Finance to Take Step

Glace Bay, N.S., June 12—(CP)—Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, has informed D. R. Cameron, President of the Nova Scotia Conservative Association, that ill health is forcing him to retire from public life and he will not be able to accept a nomination for the forthcoming Federal elections.

"You will recall my personal letter to you of March 26, in which I confidentially advised you that the state of my health would not permit me to continue in active public life," the Minister stated in a letter from Ottawa dated June 8.

"Since that date, as you are aware, I have had a further illness and breakdown of so serious a character as to keep me out of my office for over a month, and my physician advises me that it is imperative that I should have some months of complete rest. Indeed, I do not require the advice of my physician in this respect, as I am well aware that my reserves of physical strength have been completely used up, and nothing but complete rest and relaxation for a prolonged period will enable me to attain normal health and strength.

"As we are nearing the end of the session, I shall endeavor, as best I can, to carry on the duties of my office until the end of the session, and, if possible, until the end of Parliament, but it is my regretful duty to have to advise you that in no circumstances can I contemplate further active participation in public affairs. It follows that I cannot accept a nomination for the House of Commons. It is somewhat difficult for me to express my feelings in announcing this decision.

"While I have never felt any great attraction for public affairs, and it would be a very great relief to me to be able to enjoy a quiet and more orderly life, it is with real regret that I must sever all connection with many friends dating as far back as the year 1911, when I became Secretary of the Conservative Party for the County of Cumberland.

Obituary

WILLIAM THORNBURY

William Thornbury of Lindsay, died suddenly at his home Sunday night at the age of 82 years. He was ill but two days. Born at Glenarm, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thornbury, he lived in that village for years following the position of license inspector for Victoria, having been appointed by the Whitney administration. Later he became inspector for the whole of Victoria and Haliburton, a post which he held until ten years ago. He was also a bailiff of the county as well as inspector at the same time.

Fifty years ago he was married to Annie Morgan who survives him. He was a Conservative and member of Wesley Church, a Past County Master of the Orange Order, Past Grand Chancellor of the same organization and a member of the Independent Order of Foresters.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Etta, at home, and Gertrude, of Stanley, Ontario.

Mr. Harry W. Morgan of this city is a brother-in-law of the late Mr. Thornbury. Mr. Morgan left today to attend the funeral which takes place on Thursday to Mariposa cemetery.

ALEXANDER S. FARGEY

Stirling, June 12 (Special)— On Monday, June 10th, there passed away very suddenly at his home in Stirling Alexander S. Fargey in his seventy-second year after an illness of only a few short hours. The late Mr. Fargey who was well known throughout the County of Hastings, came to Stirling about 15 years ago from his farm on the Ridge Road. The deceased was honored by his fellow citizens in municipal affairs and until a few hours before his death showed no signs of failure in strength or weakness. Returning to his home on Monday evening after attending a meeting in the Methodist Church he was taken suddenly ill and failed to recover.

The late Mr. Fargey was a veteran member of the Stirling I.O.O.F. No. 329, Member of the Session, and Chairman of the Board of Managers at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling.

Left to mourn his passing are, the widow, Mrs. Alice (Miller) Fargey, three daughters, Mrs. K. C. Sirouis, Shreve Highlands, Texas; Helena Fargey, Brantford, Ontario; Christina Fargey at home, and four sons, Everet Fargey, Niagara Falls; Fred A. Fargey, Detroit, Mich.; Charles Fargey, Rawdon Township; and John Fargey at home. He also leaves one sister, Matilda Fargey of Belleville and one brother, Mr. Thos. L. Fargey of Manitoba.

The funeral will take place at his late residence on Saturday afternoon at 2.30, Rev. J. A. Koffend of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will conduct the service, and interment will be made in the West Huntingdon cemetery.

Returns to Throne

HENRY PU YI

Four and a half years after her seizure of Manchuria and little more than a year since Henry Pu Yi was proclaimed emperor of Manchukuo, Japan appears ready to put the former "boy emperor" of China back on the dragon throne in Peiping. Accounts of Japanese military moves south of the great wall seem to conform with a long-anticipated program which may add all of eastern Mongolia to the emperor of Manchukuo's domain.

NON-JURY CASES ARE LAID OVER

18 Applying For Their Naturalization Papers Were Accepted

All non-jury cases to have been presented before His Honor Judge MacLean in the Jury Sittings of the County Court opened in Belleville yesterday afternoon were laid over by mutual consent of the representative solicitors. Fourteen of the eighteen applicants for naturalization appeared before His Honor and their applications were duly accepted in open court. His Honor pointed out the duties of a Canadian citizen and especial of those newly naturalized Canadians, when they receive their naturalization papers. Mr. S. C. Donnan, K.C., local Crown Attorney, personally presented the eighteen applicants and recommended them insofar as his jurisdiction was concerned.

Only two jury cases, both being out-of-town matters concerning damages are continuing today. The court adjourned at a late hour yesterday. One of the cases to be heard was adjourned, a damage action brought on by Mrs. Annie Taylor for the sum of $500.00, arising out of an accident, when Mrs. Taylor was injured after falling on West Bridge Street last February, the plaintiff alleging icy sidewalks being the cause of her injury. The case will be heard in a subsequent court.

Asks for Ban On Catapults

London, Ont., June 12 (CP)—"I have eaten mice on occasion and they are just a little better than lamb." So said W. E. Saunders, naturalist, addressing the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals held in this city.

Attacking the wanton destruction of wild life by rifles and sling shots in the hands of juveniles, the member then said all weapons to be denied youngsters, including catapults, bow and arrows and sling shots.

The possible effect of toy pistols in the hands of young children was discussed and the matter of restricting the production of these toys will be dealt with by the society later.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make your liver pour out two pounds of bile juice into your bowels daily.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels. And when movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling may be that not enough bile juice (two pounds of liquid bile) flows into your bowels daily.

If your liver doesn't pour out this bile and it doesn't digest, then your food decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and punk. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They gently but thoroughly start more bile to flow. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse substitutes. Only 25¢ at all druggists. ©1935 C. M. Co.

Weddings

ROSE-McCONNELL

Rawdon, June 13—A very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized at Rawdon United Church parsonage at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 8th when Miss Olive Aleta McConnell only daughter of the late Conger McConnell and Maude Hallett of Mount Pleasant, became the bride of George Donald Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rose of Halloway.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a white crepe frock fashioned with yoke effect, puffed sleeves and hand embroidered French frylets, with matching white accessories and picture hat of braided straw.

Rev. T. O. Joslin officiated and the witnesses were the bride's brother Mr. Norman McConnell of Mount Pleasant and the groom's sister, Miss Vera Rose of Halloway.

VENDOR SHORT WEIGHT BUTTER PROSECUTED

Inspector Hoping Example Will Act As Deterrent

Before Magistrate Campbell of Port Hope on Tuesday, June 11th, Mr. M. E. Challice, retail merchant of Millbrook was found guilty for having illegally in his possession for sale, butter in the shape of blocks or prints, purporting to contain one pound "16 oz." net weight. A fine of $15 and costs was imposed the object particularly in view is that this case may act as a warning or deterrent to others, who may not be giving the matter of short weight butter the attention that it merits.

A close check on retail stores is being conducted by the Dairy Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for any infraction of the Act.

The charge was laid by J. L. Irwin, Inspector of Dairy Products, Belleville, Ontario, who is devoting part of his time to the enforcement of this Act as well as his other duties as Dairy Produce Grader.

SIDNEY B.Y.P.U.

The meeting was held in the church and in charge of Aletia Anderson. The president opened the meeting with hymn 6 and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison Bertha Smith read the Scripture Lesson taken from John 3rd chapter 14 to 21 verses.

The secretary called the roll with about fifteen members and a few visitors present. She also read the minutes of the last meeting. The business was discussed and new officers were elected for this year. Bertha Smith was re-elected as president, Luella Wannamaker was elected as vice-president; Aletia Storms was elected as secretary, Charlie Irvin was elected as treasurer and Doris Carter was re-elected as press secretary.

Aletia Storms took charge then and hymn 13 was sung. Myrtle Reid gave a reading and Charlie Brenton also gave some music on an accordion. Eunice Carter gave the "Temperance Pledge" and hymn 17 was sung and Mr. Armstrong closed in prayer. A contest was held and Charlie Rose and Charlie Irvin chose sides, Charlie Irvin's side winning.

CENTRE AND VICTORIA W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Centre and Victoria met at the home of Mrs. Frank Townsend on June 5, and eight members present. The subject for the day was Temperance. The meeting opened with quiet music followed by the call to worship read by the President, after which all joined in singing a hymn. After the period of devotion, the minutes of the last meeting were read and a solo "An Evening Prayer" was given by Miss A. Rickman. Mrs. H. Pulver read Matthew 16, and Mrs. F. Young a Temperance leaflet "A Challenge to Youth". Mrs. Roy Rickman read a poem, "The Two Glasses". Miss A. Rickman then gave a Temperance solo, and a one pound "16 oz." net weight. A fine of $15 and costs was imposed the object particularly in view is that this case may act as a warning or deterrent to others, who may not be giving the matter of short weight butter the attention that it merits.

A close check on retail stores is being conducted by the Dairy Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for any infraction of the Act.

"Wedding Night"

Gary Cooper and Anna Sten Co-Star In New Drama

The love story of a famous New York author, played by Gary Cooper, and a New England farm girl, played by Anna Sten, is told in "The Wedding Night", the Samuel Goldwyn production which comes to the Belle Theatre, Tomorrow and Friday, matinee and evening, also featured are Ralph Bellamy, Helen Vinson and Siegfriend Rumann. King Vidor directed the picture.

Cooper, as the author, suddenly learns that high living and luxury has ruined his literary ability and, with his wife, he goes to his country home in Connecticut. There he finds fresh inspiration in the strange habits and customs of his foreign-born neighbors and he decides to write a book about them, with his farm girl neighbor as the heroine.

After his wife departs to return to the comforts of the city life, the author and the girl realize they love each other. But her father, in keeping with tradition, has commanded that she marry a man of his choice, although she does not love him. She decides finally to rebel against parental dictation, to live as she chooses, but she meets with tragedy while Helen Vinson, as the wife, fights with a woman's weapons to keep her husband.

Miss Sten's part is in sharp contrast to her previous performances in "Nana" and "We Live Again". In the first she was an exotic, lascivious woman of Paris, and in the second a simple peasant of Russia. In "The Wedding Night" she emerges thoroughly American in her characterization of a lifetime; appointment as a judge. What would you do?

That is the situation in which Gene Raymond finds himself in the new, fast-moving film, "Transient Lady", which opens tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre, with a brilliant cast which includes Raymond, Henry Hull, Frances Drake, June Clayworth, Edward Ellis, Clark Williams and many others.

This picture was made from the famous Liberty magazine story by Octavus Roy Cohen and is said to be the most powerful story that brilliant author has ever written. It is laid in a sleepy little southern town, and deals with a trio of wandering roller-skating rink promoters, a crooked politician and two innocent girls.

Frances Drake, Edward Ellis and Clark Williams are an itchy-heeled trio who come to the town of Karnak to open a roller skating rink. The deal for the rink is handled by Gene Raymond and Frederick Burton, who play the roles of the town's outstanding lawyers. The town is agog over the new venture and certain straight-laced ladies are a bit shocked over the pictures of Miss Drake, showing her in a more than abbreviated skating costume, which have been placed around the town.

Because of her costume, members of a boodlum gang that hangs out at a honkytonk think they can be slightly more than free with their attentions to the girl. Trouble arises and they are thrown out of the rink by Williams and Ellis. Later that evening, a real trouble with Ellis who sleeps in the hall where the rink is located, and the mixup one of the hoodlums is shot. Just what does take place would be spoiled if told in advance.

"Transient Lady"

Famous Liberty Magazine Story Vividly Portrayed

If you were a young lawyer, anxious to acquire a reputation.

And, if you were asked to defend an innocent man, who is charged with murder—but by defending the man you would prevent your old father from attaining the ambition of a lifetime; would you do it?

That is the situation in which Gene Raymond finds himself in the new, fast-moving film, "Transient Lady", which opens tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre, with a brilliant cast which includes Raymond, Henry Hull, Frances Drake, June Clayworth, Edward Ellis, Clark Williams and many others.

"Behind the Evidence"

Tense, breathless drama merges with romantic situations of no little intensity throughout the unfolding of the fast-moving plot of "Behind The Evidence".

From the very outset the picture exerts a powerful sway over the audience's emotions. Tony Sheridan, millionaire sportsman, is suddenly confronted by the evidence of a trust company. Convincing a skeptical city editor that he will make a hang-up reporter, he gets the job.

Assigned to cover the engagement party of Ruth Allen, wealthy debutante and his former fiancee, Tony "Tramp" Sheridan finds a clue that meets the man in question, Ford Cameron. Cameron's background and life are shrouded in mystery. While there Tony finds a cigarette case with a paper on it marked "Aztec 10".

Having forgotten to return it to its owner, Cameron, Tony is on the verge of doing so when a mysterious story breaks in the city room of the paper. Later the contents of the safe has been robbed—at 19 o'clock. Recalling the paper, Tony sets off for Cameron's office determined to get to the bottom of the mystery.

Though treated none too cordially, he returns the case and during the few minutes he remains, overhears a conversation which gives him reason to be certain that Cameron is the man who has the loot that have been preying on the city for months.

Taking the story to the police Tony goes with them to a "stake out" on another proposed robbery, from that point on, Tony encounters many hair-breadth escapes from assassination, with a final dramatic punch that is an entertainment knock-out.

Norman Foster, does a great job as Tony Sheridan. He's deserving of a lot of credit. In support of him as "Ruth Allen" is Sheila Mantaine, relatively a newcomer in the featured field, but showing promise of a speedy rise to stellar heights.

The rest of the cast have turned out telling performances as well, notably Donald Cook as the villain, Ward Cameron, Geneva Mitchell as the letter's sweetheart secretary and Frank Darien, and Pat O'Malley.

TANGLED LIVES

By ANN FORESTER

"Joyce, you're a fool! You're mad—to— give up all this!" he swung an arm at the room, "for this man."

"Then I'm a happy fool!" she answered serenely.

Norman stopped and regarded her angrily, tried lowness and she found a fairly worthy answer in her heart that she had ever angry laugh. man handsome.

He gave a short, angry laugh. "Come, Joyce, you're not a love-sick girl any more! It should be from the shadows.

"Do you think it necessary, Norman?" she asked mildly, "Perhaps I know what I'm doing."

Perhaps there is no call for any one else to —to step in—"

"You can say that to me after all we've meant to each other!"

"What have we meant to each other, Norman? When I was a girl I used to dream about you—you was a fool about you. But—I was very young. Life teaches us many things. Norman—among them—that life also has value."

"And so you're going to let this man ruin your life in a marriage which means that you lose your inheritance! A selfish love, I call it!"

For a moment a gleam of mild chief was kindled in her eyes. "But not calculating. Even you must concede that, Norman! He wants me—not the fourteen money!"

Norman was restlessly pacing the rug, but at that he stopped and turned. His face was red. "That is a hit at me!" he said hotly, "And as a lawyer I was merely looking out for your interests when I asked you to be engaged to me for five years!"

He was still, his eyes roving over her. As though for the first time, he saw how sweet and slim and altogether lovely she was standing there watching him from deep violet eyes. Like an aristocratic portrait come to life everything from her shining brown hair to her slender feet speaking of exquisite care. He laughed—and it was rough like a sneer.

"You—giving up all this—" again the tone of his term at the room. "Giving up all the things you're come to care about, to go out on a rough western ranch. You'd be mad!"

Joyce's narrow, dark brows went up curiously. She held out her hands, white and smooth and bare, save for the jade and gold ring Jim had given her so long ago.

"They look pretty useless, don't they, Norman? But you know how they can work— how they have worked. They can do it again."

"Heroics!"

Joyce shrugged. Dropped her hands. "I didn't mean it that way. It doesn't call for heroics. You see — I'm perfectly happy. You can't understand—well, that's the trouble, you can't understand— but I've been unhappy— she spoke slowly, gently, as one would reason with a child. "Very unhappy, Norman. It didn't seem that life was worth living. And then—Jim came and—and everything was all right."

The mildness of her words was counteracted by the light in her eyes by the sudden tender smile which touched her lips. Norman Weaver saw it and was stung to a sudden jealous fury.

In that moment, had she only known it, Joyce had her revenge for the old dreams—for the old tears she had wasted on Norman. Now that he saw her receding from him—now that he saw her face slight with love for another man, Norman suffered as she had once suffering over him.

"Joyce— Joyce, this is perfectly mad of you!" his voice broke. He grasped her, shaking her in his frenzy. "I love you! I'm crazy about you! I always have been—you've always had me, you know that! I tried to use my head! There was a time when the money seemed to count. But now—Oh, Joyce, don't do this! If you want to let it all go, hang—well I will! You loved me once, Joy—all those long summer evenings in the car when we were kids—I can make you care again, Joy— I can! Wait—let me have a chance! I want you, Joy, as much as I've ever wanted anything in life!"

A chance! Joyce sighed and bitter moment when Joyce's mind flew back to the distracted young thing she had been—remembering the grey round of the Commercial House, and a girl who looked down with all her dreams on this same spoiled young fellow. Remembering a girl who had waited long ago in the dark. A girl who had hidden like a thief behind some shrubs, waiting for only a breaking heart while he made love to Natalie Carrington.

How strange life was! Joyce found herself shrinking, and then pity, and fear in her heart Her own happiness was too complete for her to cause pain.

She soothed Norman. She tried to heal his pride. She comforted him—and promptly forgot him as he passed out of her closed mind.

That night, Joyce stood for long moments alone in the darkness of her own room. A weak, watery moon had at last broken through the clouds. Resting her head against the window frame, Joyce watched patches of light chase themselves across the wet lawn, and in the same manner flitting thoughts passed through her mind.

This lawn—this dark, silent house —tonight they were her own. They belonged to Joyce Carrington. The widow of the old man who had married Jim Carrington for his money—snatching her in the cobwebs of his mind.

Tomorrow night at this time there would be no lonely, unhappy woman dreaming here. The sullen, bewildered Joyce Allen, who had run away from Riverton years ago . . .

Joyce Cameron, the poised young lady, surrounded by the splendid shell of an empty existence, would be gone. Their places have come into being Joyce Keith, a happy, busy wife. Jim's wife. The world beside her husband . . .

The peacefulness which Joyce had placed on her proud, lonely heart melted. She felt very young, very humble. She closed her eyes and lifted her face in the pale moonlight.

"Make me good—" she whispered as a child might pray. . . "Please make me good for Jim . . ."

WARDEN THANKS PROVIDENCE FOR FINE PROSPECTS

Hastings County to Have Excellent Crops This Year

ROAD QUESTION

Message to be Drafted by Hon. Peter Heenan on Matter

A spirit of optimism prevailed among the members of Hastings County Council, who assembled at the council chamber, Shire Hall in this city on Tuesday afternoon, for the June session. This feeling was owing to the prospects of excellent crops this year. The great majority of the members were in attendance.

Warden's Remarks

In opening the session Warden James Brenton said: "I am pleased to see so many representatives present. A kind Providence had spared all the members there being no demise of any person since the last any session. There were great prospects of good crops in the County this year for which we should be thankful to a king Providence who has done His part in this respect. He commended the members that as there was considerable business to be transacted at this session his remarks would be purposely be brief.

Committees Named

At the conclusion of the Warden's remarks he named the personnel of the two standing committees of the session, namely on equalization and estimates. Those named are as follows:

Equalization— Wm. West, A. L. Wannamaker, J. Grey, J. Clarke, Geo. Thompson, J. A. Gunter, Jas. Nickle, Wesley J. J. Brunton and Clerk E. Denyes.

Estimates— Wm. West, J. A. Moore, C. Wallbridge, Wm. Davis, J. L. Churcher, H. Larkin, H. Sayers, Warden J. J. Bronson, Clerk E. Denyes and Treasurer J. W. Haggerty.

Communications

A number of communications were read and referred to various committees for discussion and disposition.

Northern Roads

Considerable discussion took place in regard to what definite action the Provincial Department of road development was going to take on certain roads in the northern part of the County.

Mr. H. Larkin, Reeve of Tyendinaga stated that the committee, from the Council which went to Toronto in regard to this matter had definite assurance from Hon. Peter Heenan who is head of the northern development scheme, that certain roads would be taken over by the department, but from a communication there appears nothing to be definite as yet.

Warden Bronson—Bancroft had made but small estimates in regard to roads owing to the fact that it was thought that certain roads would be taken over by the department.

Mr. J. A. Gunter, Reeve of Bancroft village, said it was desirous that we have definite assurance as to the Government's attitude in regard to these roads. He as a member of the committee, which interviewed Hon. Peter Heenan endorsed what Mr. Larkin's had stated.

Mr. L. E. Neal, Reeve of Marmora Township wished to know if the government is going to take over certain roads what was the meaning of the intimation, that these roads would go back to the municipalities.

Mr. Larkin—The Northern development is going to take over these roads not the government.

Mr. J. Reeve of Limerick, said we should have definite information in writing as to what is going to be done about the roads in question.

Mr. J. A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir—We have only $74,000 to spend on roads this year as against a much larger grant in former years.

A motion moved by Mr. G. Bush, deputy reeve of Sydney, was adopted, that a committee composed of the Warden, Clerk, Moore, Burke and Gunter prepare a telegram to be sent to Hon. Peter Heenan to get a definite statement as regards the government's action on the roads in question. Previous to the council adjourning until Wednesday morning.

Warden Bronson stated that the House of Refuge committee has made some improvements as recommended by the inspector, but it would cost upwards of $2,000 to complete what was recommended and the committee would not treat that expenditure without the sanction of the council.

SOUTH END TOPS KIWANIS LEAGUE

Bawden Stops College Hill Nine With One Hit

The South End baseball team moved into first place in the Kiwanis Junior baseball League last night by downing the College Hill nine by the score of 12 to 1 at the Alemite grounds.

Johnnie Bawden was on the hill-top for the Foster Ward boys and pitched one hit ball, allowing only a scratch single over third in the third inning. The College Hill gang used three hurlers in their frantic efforts to stem the barrage of hits coming from the bats of the South Enders. Moon started on the hilltop for the losers, being derricked in favour of Flagler, who subsequently gave way to Andy Knott, who finished the pastime.

Bawden was in rare form literally mowing the College Hill batters down with a fast breaking curve. An error and a scratch hit gave the College Hill nine their only counter.

South End—A. C. Foster, c; Whalen as; Knott 3b; Henn 2b; Semark, rf; Gordon, lf; Griffin cf; Sager lf, and Bawden, p.

ALEMITES RALLY TO WIN FIXTURE

Defeat Young Canada Club to Hold Third Place

Behind steady pitching by Vic Ehler the Alemites came from behind to down the Young Canada Club by the score of 10 to 8 in a regular schedule Senior Softball league game played at Central Park last night. The Alemites batters tagged their entire eight counters in the first three frames, but were unable to locate the mystery of White's slants thereafter, White being the hero of the Alemites with superb pitching and fielding in the pinches. The Alemites' batters were the offerings of George Jenkinson, when he weakened slightly in the sixth and seventh frames, the score with Little's four base clout to deep centre, scoring one of Miller in the next frame gave the Alemited crew victory as they played stellar defensive ball in the wind frames. The losers outhit the Alemites 11 to 10, but failed to come in the pinches.

Little and Morgan hit for the circuit for the Alemites as Ehler gathered two safeties and Henn banged out a timely single in the fourth frame to score two. Reid and Lenkinson also hit safely but weakened slightly in the sixth and was subsequently relieved by Tom Miller.

The line-ups— Alemites—Flagler, McCabe, Little, Ehler, Henn, Boyle Lupenette, Dickey, Morgan and White. Young Canada Club—Galbraith, T. Miller, F. Murray, Reid, Cy Barriage, J. Murray, Robinson, J. Barriage, Len Jenkinson, Miller and Geo. Jenkinson.

Cheque Artists Given 2 Years After Conviction in Trenton

The Criminal Records of Both Men Are Lengthy

Trenton, June 12—(Special)—James Baker and Charles Mayhew, who were arrested by the Trenton police on May 28th last in Belleville on after passing two worthless cheques on local merchants, were each sentenced to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in Trenton court Monday afternoon. The men are wanted in several other places including Belleville, Port Hope and Napanee. Both men have long prison records with Baker serving sentences in the U.S.A. and Mayhew having done a two and four year stretch as St. Vincent de Paul in the Province of Quebec. Names mean nothing to the pair as they have used so many that they hardly know their own name at present. They will appear in Belleville on Thursday.

Many other minor cases were heard, mostly for highway violations.

Brought From Toronto

Chief Bain returned from Toronto yesterday afternoon with Peter McMahon, who was arrested by the Toronto police on information supplied by the local force. McMahon is wanted on the charges of breaking and entering of a Canadian National Rys. car and stealing from it clothing including much clothing.

Rotarian Society Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Trenton Rotarian Society was held last night in the Town Hall with the president, N. J. McNair in the chair. On Tuesday, V.E. presented his monthly report which showed the fine work being carried on in Trenton and the surrounding counties. Many suffering animals were destroyed during the month. Mrs. J. Stark the secretary-treasurer also gave her report. The annual picnic was discussed, getting near the zero mark so it was decide to ask the council for permission to hold a tag day on June 29. The tag day committee will arrange the details for the day. The committee is composed of James F. Day, convener, Mrs. W. B. Wilson, Mrs. R. G. Maile, Mrs. A. J. Brown and Mrs. J. Stark

Mrs. Brown suggested that a junior branch of the Humane Society should be formed among the school children. With the schools at the height of their examinations it was decided to lay the matter over to a later date.

A pet parade was discussed but more will be done on the matter after the tag day.

The Late Mrs. Henry Barrett

Attended by many of her friends and relatives the funeral of the late Mrs. Henry Burtt was held yesterday afternoon from Mr. Peter-Hinchahins church. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Hanley with Rev. Dean J. J. O'Reilly administering the last rites at the graveside in the Catholic cemetery where interment was made. The abundance of floral and spiritual offerings clearly showed the high esteem held by the late Mrs. Burtt in the community. The bearers were Messrs Frank Delisle; John McHenry; R. Minor; H. LaFleur; Thomas McConville and H. Desjardine.

Downs-Coulter 9; R.C.A.F. 7

After trailing 7-3 until the sixth then tying the game, the R.C.A.F. fell before the Downs-Coulter softball team to lose 9-7. Errors again caused the downfall of the fliers who are playing a better brand of ball each game. Staples started for the R.C.A.F. but was benched at the end of the fifth in favour of Niddery. This game was the fourth straight loss for the airmen.

The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar, but on the 1913 basis farm product prices have never been as low as gasoline. Between 1913 and 1920 gasoline did not rise in price as much as farm products, yet since 1920 its price has almost continuously declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A DYING WAGE

WHEN we started business in 1880 our first rule was to pay a fair living wage.

In 1919 we decided a living wage was not enough. We should pay a dying wage, too. We knew how hard it is for the worker to make provision for his old age and for his dependents in the event of his death.

So we introduced benefits and pensions plans. Sickness benefits—the incapacitated employee to continue drawing pay according to his term of service; pensions—a fair living allowance for the worker who reaches old age; death benefits—a cheque immediately for the deceased worker's family.

These things lifted a burden of care from our employees' shoulders—made them happier, more enterprising and more efficient. They lifted a burden from the shoulders of the Canadian taxpayer, too.

We are proud of these plans which have helped so much to build up a loyal organization of thousands of Canadian workers. Their devotion to their work has made it possible for us to serve Canada with quality products at lower and lower prices.

Stop Rheumatism At its Source

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Drive, a blood impurity, should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and work remains, it changes to uric acid which in minute crystals lodges in joints or between muscles causing excruciating pains. "Lefty" Grove Shows Stuff In Downing Detroit Tigers Boston Winning Twin Bill

Allows Only Five Hits And Uncovers Real Fast Ball

REDS WIN TWICE

Defeat Giants at Polo Grounds to Upset Dope

By ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob "Lefty" Grove the costly darling of the Red Sox whose sore arm was a sadder blow than the depression to Boston fandom, is riding his fire ball back into favor. His record gives him four games in the win column and an equal number on the darker side, but in the last three games, two of which he won, he has shown some of the stuff that once made him the outstanding pitcher in baseball.

Yesterday the Red Sox won both ends of a double header from Detroit, 3-1 and 5-2, yanking Mickey Cochrane's boys out of fourth position and moving in there themselves. The double win brought them within one point of the third-place Cleveland Indians.

Grove was in there in the first encounter, allowing only five hits to beat Lefty Joe Sullivan. Wes Ferrell pitched another five-hitter for the Sox in the second game but he gave up six walks.

The lowly Cincinnati Reds drubbed the Giants twice in a doubleheader, in full sight of the home folk. They scored a total of two runs; one in each game as the fighting Reds scored 4 and 7 respectively. One has to reach back into the time-honored records 16 years to find another instance when the Reds won a doubleheader in the Polo Grounds.

Clydell Castleman was handed his second defeat of the season as Tony Freitas let the league leaders down with seven safe blows in the first game and Leroy Herrmann, making his first big league start, dropped the vaunted Giants attack at five hits in the second.

In other National League games the Phillies defeated Chicago Cubs 10-4 and Pittsburgh Pirates opened their series with Brooklyn with a 4-0 shutout to go into a tie with St. Louis for second place.

In the American League, the White Sox divided a doubleheader with Washington, losing the opener 9-8 and winning the after piece 8-3.

Jack "Chief" Williams

The local port-sider who is being groomed in pitch against the Oshawa "Brewers" on Thursday night when the Motor City crew make their initial C.O.B.L. appearance in Bellville during a twilight fixture. Doubtlessly Williams will be opposed by Dicey Ogden, Oshawa's fire-ball hurler.

Al Simmons, the White Sox star outfielder who was batting for an .350, found his batting eye to collect five safe blows, including a homer with the bases loaded in the first game and a homer with two aboard in the second.

The Yankees widened their league lead by winning both games of their twin bill with the St. Louis Browns, 7-4 and 8-2. At Cleveland the Athletics walked off with both games of a doubleheader, 4-3 and 5-1.

The St. Louis-Browns game at Boston was postponed.

LONDON LUNCH TEAM ON TOP

Defeats C.D.S. 14-4 to Move Into Leadership of The Loop

George Kilne' London Lunch softball nine moved into first position in the local Intermediate League when they downed the O.D.S. aggregation by the score of 14 to 4 at the Tecumseh St. grounds last night. Art Cole was on the hillock for the victors and hurled seven hit ball, belaval Cronsberry defence by his infield. Cole fanned the O.D.S. to seven scattered hits.

Brown, on the mound for the losers, was hit profusely and yielded 19 singles. Cromlish, Cole and Hughes all hit clutch blows for the London Lunch nine.

The line-ups:

O.D.S.—Cook; McLean; Culhane, Sandys, Jones; Childs; Lingsbee; Thompson and Brown.

Score by innings:

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Guy Bush, Pirates: Blanked Dodgers with seven singles and struck out seven.

Bill Dickey and Vito Tamulis, Yankees: Former drove in four runs in the opening game of double header and homer. Latter pitched eight-hit ball and scored all both runs in night cap.

Tony Freitas, Leroy Harrmann, Adam Comorosky, Reds: Freitas and Herrmann set back Giants with five hits while Comorosky drove in runs in nightcap with home run.

Al Simmons, White Sox and Heimach, Tigers: Simmons hit three drives in eight runs with two homers, pair of doubles and single as Sox split with Senators. Maunah got two doubles and single in first game.

Myer Cramer, Paul Richards and Red Johnson, Athletics: First two hit three hits each in first game; Johnson pounded out 15th homer of season.

RED WINGS AND BEARS DRAINED OF BALL PLAYERS

Relegated to Positions Quite Unfamiliar to Them

TORONTO WINS

(By the Associated Press)

The annual drainage of their outstanding players this year is making itself felt on the Rochester Red Wings and Newark Bears of the International League.

With about one third of the season gone, the slambanging Red and Bears, offspring of the New York Yankees, and the Red Wings, chief farm of the St. Louis Cardinals, relegated to positions unfamiliar to them.

The Bears, who are now in sixth place, are not far behind the leaders and a consistent drive would place them up among the pace-setters. The Red Wings, however, are pretty well imbedded in the lower division. Only a long stretch of victories can pull them out.

The greatest players of the calibre of Bill Lewis, Ray Harrell, Val Constan, Charlie Wilson, et al, didn't help the Wings any, with capable replacements aware. The Bears would appreciate the services of some of last year's stars, especially the portly Walter Brown, who led the League's pitchers with 20 wins against seven losses. Vito Tamulis, who is going great guns with the Yankee now, and the fleet Jess Hill, also with the Yanks, are other notable shortages.

The Red Wings meet another game to the Albany Senators, 5 to 1 and 8 to 7 (Sunday). Albany Slinger, let them down with six hits, while the Reds hit a 2-1 (ad alib away) to lose to the Montreal Royals 7-6. Punishing the whole Newark pitching corps saw action, with Larocca, Wicker, Spittler, Mahaffey and Hutchinson all unable to stem the tide.

The first place Buffalo Bisons kept off the threatening Toronto Maple Leafs when they pounded out a 10-3 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs. Ken Ash won his third straight with the battery mate, Link Wasem leading the defensive, yielding a home run in the first inning.

Toronto made it six victories in a row as they continued their slugging duel with the Baltimore Orioles, this time winning by the score of 13-9. Lee Handley hit for the circuit for the Leafs while Orsatti scored three homers, Vince Barton, Eddie Allen and Walt Case doing the clouting.

Seven Wrestlers In Three Bouts

Seven wrestlers are scheduled to appear in the Arena ring during the three Kiwanis wrestling bouts on Friday night. Two main bouts are on the card during which five wrestlers are slated to appear in each bout. The feature bout of the night brings together Johnnie Gyrofty, the 205 pound Hungarian, in the same ring with the Masked Marvel of Buffalo. Incidentally the Marvel is noted as being a slow methodical grappler and will doubtlessly give the Hungarian considerable opposition. The semi-final bout of the night sees a giant 230 pounder named Bob (Big Bear) Snidere of Pueblo, Col., matched to meet two opponents. Snidere agreed to win over both Jack Pearl of Toronto and Wallace Babvich, the Jewish grappler. Inside of one hour or forfeit his purse. This bout will naturally attract considerable attention as its procedure is something new in local wrestling circles. The preliminary bout of the night is a main bout attraction also as Bill McDougall is slated to meet Al Dunlop of Cleveland. McDougall having previously won over Findlay, is second.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Some bad news was received in the camp of the Stewart-Warners last night, when it was learned that Alex Weir had been moved from Belleville in connection with the baseball affairs. Alex, who has been appointed to look after the re-organizing of all railway squads following the extra gang that is putting in new rails on the main line of the C.N.R. between Belleville and Segworo. Whether Alex will be a total loss to Sq. Radio or not cannot be determined as yet, as he does not exactly know where and where his work will lead him. Should he be lost to the Radios it will be a severe blow, as the locals today boast of the best fielding outfield in the C.O.B.L. with Weir being flanked by Gerry Jones in left and Ken Dunlop in the management that arrangements for the relief pitching duties can be arranged, as Alex is playing his best ball in quite some time.

The Radios will be out to their usual practice this evening before their important tilt with the Oshawa "Brewers" on Thursday evening. Doubtlessly Jack "Chief" Williams will get the pitching assignment for the day with Frank Smith and Art Calhoun being mentioned for relief duties if they are needed. If Williams hurls tomorrow and is afforded the usual fielding and hitting by his team mates and wins, then Smith and Calhoun will be available for the Belleville at Peterboro game on Saturday. With the dizzy pace that is being set in the C.O.B.L. the Radios have a tough nut to crack in the Oshawa nine as the league leadership is at stake. Incidentally if Alex Weir is moved away from Belleville Thursday's game will see the last appearance for Alex on home diamond for some time to come. Alex has given us local baseball plenty of thrills, so let's get behind the boy when he gets a royal send-off on Thursday, by his promotion goes through.

Two games of ball are on the schedule in the Bay of Quinte League today. Napanee Cibberds are playing Jack Doyle's league-leading Picionists in the Prince Edward County park, while the local R.A.S.A. Intermediates are entertaining the Gananoque nine at the Exhibition Park. Both games have a decided bearing on the league standing.

Desiring to give the fans the best wrestling card possible the Kiwanis promoters have changed their proposed Friday night's card entirely and we find Johnnie Gyrofty, the local favorite matched with the Masked Marvel. Gyrofty promised to try and unmask the hooded one if given a bout with him. Then again it was announced that if Gyrofty could not unmask him in the ring, but managed to win the bout, the Marvel will be required to unmask in defeat. The general consensus of the fans was that Al Dunlop should by rights be the local wrestling wizard, so we find Dunlop appearing as a main events with Billie McDougall, who won over Bob Findlay here a few weeks ago. Of course the bout, that should please will be the second main bout of the night when Elmer "The great" Snidere, weight 230 pounds, will take on Jack Pearl and Wallace Babvich, a Jewish grappler. Now it seems that Snidere must pin both opponents absolutely to look mad inside of one hour, or lose his purse. Knowing that last week's card was not up to standard, the Kiwanis promoters have endeavored to make up for this by presenting their premier show of the year on Friday night at the Arena.

The sympathy of the sporting public of this district, and more especially in Trenton, goes out to Ross Burtt, Trenton hockey referee, in the death of his best friend, his mother.

When the Cobourg and Peterboro intermediates clashed last Saturday, with the former winning, there were no set-backs in the athletics opposing each other. Roy Covert, is playing second base for the Liftlock City intermediates, while Vinny Utroski is covering ground in right field for the Cobourg Ponies this year. Incidentally Knotty Lee has unearthed a new moundsman in Gordon (Bing) Smoke, a full-blooded Indian righthander from Alderville. Smoke was used versus a negro team in an exhibition game played in Peterboro last Saturday as were Big Russ Kitchen and Frankie Whitehouse, the latter two being veteran hurlers in the O.B.L. While the Radios are making merry these past few days, the Kingston, Peterboro and Oshawa sport scribes are wrangling among themselves in relationship to final everything except the most vital point, why their clubs cannot get like while opposing Belleville mounderers. "Carry on the good work boys."

When Clem Allen's Alamites downed the Young Canada Club last night, the "lubricants" moved into sole possession of third place in the local senior softball loop. Incidentally considerable of the credit of last night's Alamite victory can be laid to the door of Vic White, who not only hurled a steady game for the victors, but fielded superbly. The loss sustained by the Barriggeld club drops them into a tie for sixth position, a tie with the St. Pauls A.) C. Incidentally little damage to the league standing will follow tonight's Redneeville-Aalmas game at Central Park, although a big scrap is in the offing for them.

Today's baseball question readiScore is tied in the ninth inning with runners on second and third and one out. Batter hits a long fly to left field. Runner on third holds until ball is caught, then scores easily. However, runner on second is doubled off his base for the third out. Does run count?

Run counts if it scored before doubleplay is completed.

The local soccer football team is back in our midst once again and will hold forth at the Cricket Field, Thursday evening when they tangle with the fast R.C.A.F. team. The Belleville United eleven have met with considerable success this season and are looking more than the usual attention. Both clubs have some tried and proven Old Country players on their roster and a tidy battle can be looked for. The kick-off is called for 6.15 p.m.

Daily Short Story

Proposal of Marriage

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

If you were to ask Jeanne Wilber how long she and Jack Smiley had been going together, she would have wrinkled up her forehead, pouted a moment, and answered: "Why just about always I suppose."

"That's was one of those childhood courtships that go on and on.

Of course, there was an "understanding"....an understanding that had been arrived at about the time they both were entering their "teens." But, since then.....nearly fifteen years ago.....there had been no further action, or, rather, words.

Now, these "understandings" are really terrible things as any girl will tell you. They....the understandings....often result in nothing but wasted years, and always result in a general stand-offish attitude on the part of the rest of the male sex. Jeanne felt, as the years rolled by, without Jack doing anything about it, that perhaps he was just waiting until the "right" girl came along. That pained her, when you are twenty-four, and nearly twenty-five, you think of such things.

"I wish he'd make up his mind one way or another," Jeanne once confided in a girl-friend. "Here I am, growing older all the time, and he just treats me as a matter-of-course."

"But, don't you love him? Are you just marrying him because he's handy?" the girl-friend asked in one big breath.

Jeanne nodded her head.

"Love him? Of course I do," she said. "But I don't want to marry a man who doesn't love me."

Girl-Friend Surprised

The girl-friend's eyes opened wide.

"Doesn't he love you?" she asked in a hushed whisper.

Jeanne Wilber laughed at that.

"Don't act so tragic," she said. "It isn't that at all. But he's got a good job, and he's been going with me so long that you'd think he would be content to marry and settle down. At least it seems to me that if he truly loved me, he would want to marry me."

That was a little over the head of the girl-friend. She lapsed into silence, a silence that was punctuated only by shakes of the head. She couldn't comprehend the exact basis of fact of Jeanne's words, and she was trying to think it out.

The truth was Jeanne did not know, herself, how completely Jack Smiley dominated her life. Now, after a score of years almost, she took him as a matter of course, just his attitude toward her. In fact, as she considered the matter, she began to feel that the time was best to have a sudden showdown that would determine whether she was going to be Mrs. Jack Smiley or whether she would go out and find someone she could love.

As for the domination of love in woman's life, Jeanne Wilber wasn't so sure, but read history.....read about the Babin women, for instance. Hading tiger captors at first, these women had learned to love them.... and had suffered a war or a battle between their husbands and their own people. Conquered women often learned to love their conquerors, history said. So, Jeanne, figuring intelligently, decided that she, too, could learn to love someone who took her away from Jack Smiley. The reasoning wasn't perfect, but Jeanne was satisfied. She looked upon Jack as first choice and anyone—or rather someone—as second choice.

Plans a Showdown

Because she left that way, she decided for the "showdown," which was to be the simplest in woman's catalog of tricks. She would tell Jack, casually, that she would not be able to see him anymore because she had promised to marry someone else. She wouldn't name that someone "because he doesn't want it made public until after we elope" .....that was what she would say.

Then, if Jack arose to the bait as young men often do, and lay his heart at her feet, she would accept. If he didn't she would hand him his hat. Frankly, in her heart she hoped he wouldn't "fall" for the story. She had grown, with the years, more than a little bored with Jack. She knew him too well, and that was that.

So, that evening, when Jack came sauntering up the path to the front steps, she was waiting, her lines letter perfect. She caused him a two-minute wait outside the door...something most unusual. Jack wondered what she had in him into the living room.

"What's a matter, Jeanne?" he asked.

Her heart leaped. That was her cue.

She shook her head silently. But he protested that there must be something wrong. At last she spoke:

"I don't know how to tell you, Jack," she said. "We've been going together so long."

"Yes?" Jack said.

"We've been going together so long that we've taken each other for granted....I thought I loved you....but....but....."

"But I didn't....I love someone else....and we're going to be married." She put a long face on those words and was pleased with herself. She should have been an actress, she thought.

For a moment, Jack appeared thunderstruck.

Jack is Radical

"You...." he began....and then stopped....stopped and smiled.

Jeanne looked up in surprise. Jack was positively radiant now.

"Honey," he said, "You've taken a load off my mind. I'm going to be married too.....and I didn't know how to break the news to you."

With a gasp Jeanne looked at him with fear-struck eyes. Suddenly she saw the entire plot. Jack, to her....saw that life without him would be an empty waste....Robin Hood of the old days....He was her life.....

And then abruptly, she burst into tears.

"What's the matter honey," Jack asked.

She shook her shoulders, threw Jack's hands from them and sobbed. She wept unrestrainedly. Finally, with dirtroed eyes, she looked up.

"I was just....just.....fooling," she cried, "I don't love anyone else....never will be....never can be....."

Jack laughed.

"I was fooling too, honey," eh said. "My, you're an awful bluffer."

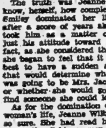
"You're right at that, it is time we got married," he said.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was sewing on her sewing machine and I went in her room starting. Here's little present for you, ma. I've had it up in my room for a long while but I dont seem to have much use for it.

Meaning what was left in the bottom of a bottle of glue, and ma said, That's very nice of you, what is it, my goodness there's nothing in it.



Sure there is, ma, dont you see all a ways at the bottom, it's a little stiff, but I'll all I said, and ma said, Stiff, hee hee it's as solid as a rock, the tiny bit there is of it. I'm sure it's very considerate of you and shows a noble spirit of self sacrifice, but after having it such a long time you must feel very much attached to it, so perhaps you'd better keep it a little longer, hee hee, she said.

I said, nowhere, ma, gosh, is that any way to accept a present? I said, and she said, O, excuse me I'm sure, I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Just put it on my dressing table and thank you very much.

You're welcome, ma, why dont you try it and see how it works? I said. It says on the label to add hot water to make it gets thick, and it seems to of got thick all rite, I said, and ma said, There's not enough left to get thick, it's simply cried; that's all, in other words there's nothing to add hot water to if I expect to have anything but hot water, and furthermore I have nothing that needs glueing.

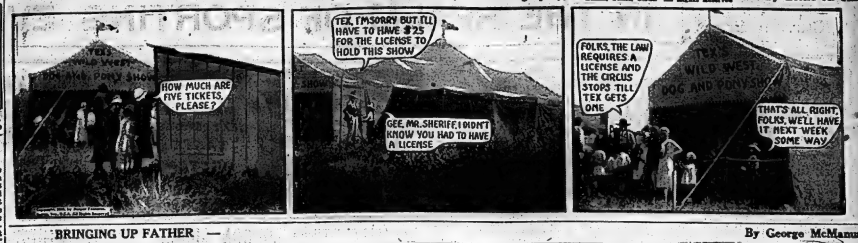
Here you have ma, that's just the very point, I said. Do you know that pink thing you put flowers in when you have flowers? Well my elbow axsidently happened to nock against it, I said, and ma said, That vase was on the mantelpiece in the dining room, how could your elbow get up there?

I happened to be standing on a chair, I said. Anyways it cny broke in 2 nice even peeces, so I bet that you will fit it perfect as good as there wasn't any flowers in it, aint it, ma? I said.

How many days of your life are lost in feeling under par? How many hours which might be bright are dull and frightful?

Half-hearted days are frequently due to constipation, neglected or slender your waking hours, take the sensible cue of living. Yet it can be corrected easily and safely by a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. All-Bran is also a fine source of iron.



The "bulk" in All-Bran is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this "cereal" better than taking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve All-Bran as a cereal or use in cooking—in muffins, omelets, etc. In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED— (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan deluged the cannibals with the second cauldron of boiling water. There was no need for a third to send them shrieking in every direction to their huts. By this time the ape-man had recovered his weapons.

The girl had freed the young Englishman, and with the remaining apes they retreated slowly toward the gates, the aviator arming himself with a discarded spear. Numabo was unable to rally his warriors, so that rescued and rescurers could pass.

They left the village, into the jungle's blackness without hindrance. The ape-man stood in silence beside Zu-lag. Following the other apes came the girl and a now thoroughly astonished and mystified young Englishman.

In all his life Tarzan had been obliged to admit defeat but few obligations. But tonight, the greatest of all obligations had been placed upon him. Tarzan shook his head and growled, for his life had been saved by a girl—his hated enemy!

STOPGAP PLAN NOW APPROVED

Filibuster by Long Fails to Materialize in Chamber

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Smashing a filibuster which saw Senator Huey P. Long keep the United States Senate awake all night, Democratic leaders succeeded early today in gaining the Chamber's approval of the stopgap plan to extend a shadow NRA until next April.

The resolution, which now goes to the House of Representatives for final action, would permit business men to make agreements governing labor conditions and unfair trade practices already prohibited by law.

The rule for the resolution was of no 19.

Ontario Bank Branches Retort by Hepburn To Investment Houses

"NO SURRENDER"

Denial of Collusion Made by Bankers, Bond Dealers

Toronto, June 13—(CP)—Faced with what he claimed was an effort to "discipline" the Ontario Government by financial interests, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today laid plans to raise the $15,000,000 loans, unmentioned yesterday—plans which included extension of the Ontario Savings Bank—and a threat that "if necessary" Ontario would "market its own bonds directly.

"There will be no surrender," he declared, jarming the fact there were no bids an effort of financial interests to "discipline" the Government of Ontario because of its stand on the power purchase question.

And in those plans, he said, would be a certain taxation sources. "It is not difficult to raise money by taxation and it will be the duty of the legislature very soon to find where the surplus money is and to tax it," he said, "for worthwhile initiated possible taxes on surplus revenues and larger incomes. Sufficient short-term borrowings from the New York market to meet immediate obligations might be negotiated.

Charges Bluff

From financial interests came denials of any collusion or agreement to discipline the government. One and all they said they could not sell the bonds and therefore did not bid.

But the fact there were no bids was "not disconcerting to the government, we are aware of the reasons," said an official statement by Ontario's Premier.

"They tried to bluff us today," he said, referring to financial interests, "and they found out we can't be bluffed. The Province of Ontario is too big to be bluffed out by them. We are going through with this business—all the way through with it."

With the announcement of Premier Hepburn's plans—and with them came the intimation 30 new branches of the Ontario Bank would be opened at strategic points through out the province—came the assurance to bondholders that "under no contractual obligations with them will they be met in their entirety and the government will undertake to provide necessary money to maintain public services and to pay unemployment relief costs."

Hydro Case

"The challenge" Premier Hepburn did not take to his administration "but to popular government and to the people themselves."

"The people and the future of Ontario are paramount, and it will be the people's institute government must be taught that the power of money stops somewhere."

The statement occurred after "Nellie Flag", entry of Peter Campbell of Kerrwood, fell on the track His rider Bobbie Geary, 16, was knocked unconscious. Coming down the stretch the pair passed Miss "Rusty Tan" owned by Miss Deadman of Toronto. Nellie Flag was clear the other horse and Miss Deadman was thrown heavily to the ground.

Harvard Reddick Wins Singing Contest

Harvard Reddick of Omemee, won the Wrigley Amateur Contest by radio in Toronto last Thursday evening. He is now entitled to a trip to New York and an audition there. When Mr. Reddick lived in Bloomfield he studied singing in Belleville, a pupil of Mr. Anglin. He is a son of the Rev. Dr. Reddick, formerly of Bloomfield.

THIRTY TREASURY BANKS TO OPEN STATES HEPBURN

Premier Says Financial Interests "Lied" in Statement

PLAN ANNOUNCED

Union Withdrawn as Funds From Chartered Bank

Toronto, June 13 (CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today threatened his plan of campaign, which the financial interests, which refused to bid for his government's $15,000,000 bond issue, in addition to announcing to make those financial interests "squirm" under pressure, today he revealed a new financial policy by which the government hopes to do much of its financing through the Ontario Government savings offices.

From June 18, interest on deposits in the Savings Offices is to be raised to 2 1-2 per cent, the present is 2 per cent.

Thirty New Branches

Some 30 new Savings Offices, to be called Provincial Treasury Branches, will be opened as soon as possible throughout the province, and over their counters, commencing on June 15, Ontario Government Bonds are to be offered to the public.

In what he called "an orderly system of marketing" the province will offer two year bonds bearing 2.75 per cent interest and five year bonds with interest at 3 per cent.

From this source the Premier expects a steady flow of money by which the government can start on its "pay as you go" policy. The $15,000,000 loans will be withdrawn however, the Premier said, as soon as the bond-dodgers have already had offers from New York for the bonds.

Double Bluff, Says Premier

As the Premier disclosed his plans, he insisted the Province is not hard pressed for money and it will be two months before any real need arises.

The Premier's plans for increased banking deposits in the Government Savings Offices and for the sale of two and five year bonds, fully registered as to principal, across the counter to the public, were formulated at a conference called immediately he reached his office today. Hon. Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary; Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor Welfare, and Hon. Gordon Conningham, Minister of Finance, were summoned early and within two hours the Premier had announced details of his campaign.

Double Bluff, Says Premier

But he paused in his deliberations long enough to administer another kick on the financial shins.

"In their considered statement issued to the press by which they said they refused to bid because they could not get their bonds placed, it was purely an attempt to discipline the government for its stand on the power purchase contracts. They lied deliberately for within an hour of that it was shown that there were no bids for the bonds, that was an eminency up here to tell me if we were going a reasonable course with regard to the power contracts they could handle our financing."

The reference in the banners' statement to the "people on the power contracts" also aroused Mr. Hepburn.

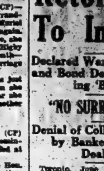
Chance To Laugh

"We'll give the financiers on the back concessions a chance to laugh with the other fellows' squirm. The fellow on the back concessions will get his innings now." he promised. "We propose to use the whole weight of his support in the Province's financing to "tax to the limit some of these very hood houses."

"It will be my pleasant duty to impose a tax on those who make the most money out of this relief effort," he declared.

Maintaining that "we are not worried at all" the Premier insisted the Government will have no trouble in finding the money when the Province needs.

"We are not pressed for money," he said. "We did not need that $15,000,000 immediately. We could have used it to pay some of the treasury bills which are falling due but we are not pressed for it."



The bonds will be issued from the Treasury Branches in denominations of $200, $500 and $1,000.

Premier Hepburn also indicated that Ontario Government deposits would be transferred, wherever possible, from chartered banks to Treasury branches.

Denial Reads Governbaut

Horse Stumbles on Track Over Fallen Horses

LONDON, Ont., June 13—(CP)—Severely injured when her horse fell, Miss Thelma Deadman, 24, of R.R.1 Byron, is still unconscious in the hospital today. Hospital officials report she is suffering serious head injuries.

The accident occurred after "Nellie Flag", entry of Peter Campbell of Kerrwood, fell on the track His rider Bobbie Geary, 16, was knocked unconscious. Coming down the stretch the pair passed Miss "Rusty Tan" owned by Miss Deadman of Toronto. Nellie Flag was clear the other horse and Miss Deadman was thrown heavily to the ground.

Useless Arm is Restored, Doctor Operates on Bone

(By Stephen J. McDonough, Associated Press Science Writer)

Atlantic City, June 13 (AP)—Restoration of a useless arm to practically its normal state through a bone-extension operation was described to the Canadian and American Medical Associations today.

Dr. Joseph M. Murray of Ottawa, Ont., leading physicians how he restored a young man's elbow—one which was useless because of inability to straighten out the arm to function—after it had been injured in an auto accident.

After the removal of 2 1-2 inches of the upper bone of the arm and healing of the original injury, the use of the arm was totally lost.

Four years later Dr. Murray opened the elbow, sawed off the lower end of the shortened humerus and split it slightly. Into the split he inserted the sharp end of a piece of bone he had just sawed off, making a square end and tying it firmly. Next he sawed off the lower end of the upper arm muscles.

PILOT BEATS FOG BUT FINDS SOFT LANDING FIELD

Forced down in a hazy fog just outside Chicago, Pilot Robert Lewy skilfully manoeuvred his big twin-motored monoplane through the blanket of haze and with the aid of flares landed in a marsh. Neither pilot Lewy, his co-pilot nor any of his nine passengers were injured, though soft ground caught the landing gear and turned the big machine on its nose, damaging propellers and undercarriage. The ship was en route from Newark when the fog blanket enveloped it and forced the landing. Here is the machine caught in the muddy swamp-land.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR MAN'S ARREST

Charged With Passing Worthless Cheque in This City

Wanted on a charge of issuing worthless cheque, a man signing his name as J. H. Adams and giving his address as Toronto, is being sought by local police today. Following complaints received from local business men, a warrant for Adams' arrest was issued by local police today, it being established he had passed worthless cheques, not having sufficient funds in the bank to meet the same.

According to information received by the police a man giving his name as J. H. Adams, Toronto, procured room and lodging in the city, representing himself to be a member of the Toronto Police Department. Subsequently Adams purchased a radio and also paid his board by cheque, both of which were returned "N.F.S."

Later today police discovered that Adams was also wanted in Kingston on a similar charge. It is believed, that Adams is at present residing at Harrowsmith. The amount of the cheque issued for the radio was $65.00. The radio was later confiscated by the dealer.

MEMORIAL HELD FOR BARON BYNG

Simple Service With No Military Display as Requested

(By Thomas T. Champion)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, June 13—(CP Cable)—In the historic church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, which looks out on Trafalgar Square and Canada House, a great throng today attended the memorial service for Field Marshal Viscount Byng of Vimy, former commander of the Canadian Corps and Governor-General of Canada.

Viscount Byng died at his home in Thorpe-le-Soken last week and was buried with simple ceremony Saturday.

Representatives of the Royal family, of the diplomatic military and Dominion circles, were present today as they honored the memory of a great soldier and a gallant gentleman. Rev. Pat McCormick, the rector, officiated, assisted by the celebrated "Dick" Sheppard, now canon of St. Paul's, a former rector of St. Martins.

Field Marshal Lord Allenby represented His Majesty, who is at Sandringham, and the Field Marshal was accompanied by Lady Allenby.

Desired Rough Weather is Met

Alameda, Calif., June 13 (AP)—The crew of the American Clipper encountered the rough weather it desired early today as the giant seaplane raced along second half of the 2,400 mile flight to Honolulu. Through strong cross winds and over banks of clouds that sometimes were solid masses obscuring the Pacific Ocean, the flying boat passed the half-way mark at 5 a.m., E.D.T.

Such conditions, it was explained, were desired so tests might be made to determine their effect on regularly scheduled trans-Pacific flights in the future.

Pan-American Airways officials interested Captain Edwin Musick's report of clouds as indicating the plane soon would strike fog, rain and spasmodic squalls predicted for the latter part of the 2,400 mile flight to Honolulu.

No forecasts have been made as to the time the Clipper will arrive in Hawaii, where it is expected to remain for two days before making the 1,273 mile hop to Midway.

HUNGER ARMY IS ASSEMBLING

Plan Laid For 3-Day Congress at Queen's Park

(By The Canadian Press)

From all points of Ontario, unemployed were gathering today and starting on the road to Toronto for the three-day congress of "hunger marchers" in Queen's Park next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

In Toronto next week they hope to interview Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and present to him their claims and their protests against the existing relief measures.

Provincial Secretary Ingersoll reached Woodstock yesterday to be given a free lunch by Woodstock authorities. They were given food only because they were hungry and not because of any sympathy the Council might have for them, Mayor William MacArthur said.

Later the party left for Paris where they had planned to spend the night, Twenty-four of them had homes in the Border Cities and the others in London. They expected to reach Toronto Monday.

Meanwhile at Kitchener 26 from that city and from Waterloo started by truck for Galt. There they were joined by 60 more from Guelph. Together they held a parade to the market square where Guelph unemployed joined them.

Increased cash relief and a request Provincial and Federal Government assume responsibility for relief were among the subjects discussed by the speakers.

Today several truck loads of Stratford marchers are scheduled to reach Galt and with twenty from that city join the marchers on the 25-mile hike to Hamilton and thence to Toronto.

WEATHER

Toronto, June 13 (CP)—Showers have occurred in Northern Ontario and in some parts of Quebec, though in other districts of Eastern Canada the weather has been fair. It has become unsettled and showery in Alberta and Southern Saskatchewan and temperatures is lower in most districts of the West.

Manitoba—Easterly winds; fair and warm; probably followed by light showers chiefly in western portion.

Gallon of Wine in Oven Explodes, Injuring Woman

Goderich, Ont., June 13.—(CP)—The best laid plans of Ernest Craig went astray and a proposed fishing trip ended in almost complete disaster.

Ernest smuggled a gallon of wine into the house and hid it in the oven.

Mrs. Craig, preparing the fishing lunch, lighted a fire in the stove.

"There's a peculiar odor in the kitchen," a neighbor remarked as she entered.

"It's not coming from the stove," said Mrs. Craig, "for their's nothing in it." But she was mistaken. Opening the oven she spied the gallon of wine, boiling briskly. Before she could remove it there was a loud explosion.

Mrs. Craig was thrown headlong against the kitchen table, losing two teeth.

A young brother was cut and bruised by flying debris.

The fishing trip was called off.

MAYOR G.O. TICE BRINGS UP ISSUE OF "NEW" CITIZEN

'Would Set June 1st as Date to Establish Residence

URBAN "HIGHWAYS"

Mayors Urge Gov't. Aid on Roads Through Municipalities

Kitchener, Ont., June 13 (CP)—Mayor G. O. Tice of Belleville asked the Ontario Mayors' Association today for its opinion on getting regulations so people moving into a municipality could not be considered citizens of he new place as long as they are on relief.

Under present regulations the municipality must bear the relief costs 12 months after the family has moved into the place.

"I would set June 1 as the day on which residence should be established. Any person who moves in on June 2 could never become a burden on the municipality," Mayor Tice said.

"I have not had a transient in London for months. And I suppose that's all for a boost, cannot get it unless he "carry" elected provincial highways through the urban centres.

"We should progressively move towards asking the government to contribute towards urban roads passing through these municipalities," Mayor James Simpson of Toronto remarked.

A resolution along the lines suggested by Mayor Simpson was passed without prejudice to the right of the municipalities on the streets, Mayor Bedard of Sarnia seconded the motion.

Mayor Supports Motion

Alderman C. C. Hahn, Kitchener, and Mayor Tice, Belleville, submitted a resolution passed by Kitchener City Council recently urging legislation authorizing a municipal tax on the insurance premiums in places where regular fire departments are paid, the money to be collected direct by the municipality in which the fire occurs.

The insurance companies would pay a tax on these premiums only when the fire department is maintained The exclusion of the municipality in which the insured's apartments in the scheme met with criticism from some delegates.

The committee as appointed consists of Ald. C. C. Hahn, Mayor Tice, Belleville, and Ald. Ryan of Brantford to report at next meeting.

CROP PROSPECT IN DISTRICT BRIGHT

The crops in this district have ranged ahead rapidly during the last few weeks. This is due to the rains of late. The land and crops could still stand plenty more rain declared G. W. Michael, Dominion Seed Inspector. The crops are still a little behind last year due to the rather backward spring, but if the rainfall and warm weather that we have had continues, all prospects for an abundant crop are bright.

BASEBALL FILM TALKIE OF YEAR

Acclaimed by sports writers and the big men of baseball as the "talkie of the year," the film "Play Ball" is scheduled for a showing at the J. J. Kipp Theatre (next week to Belle Theatre), Saturday evening, June 15th at nine o'clock p.m. daylight saving Time. This film brings Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, Lou Gehrig, Mickey Cochrane, Babe Ruth, Hornsby and a score of other stars to the screen, with a remarkable demonstration of "how it is done", and with the aid of slow-motion shots and the celebrated Tyd Husing as narrator, the picture certainly gives thirty minutes of thrills to the baseball-minded. Wherever it has been shown it has won high praise. The picture is being filmed here by courtesy of J. B. Boyce, General Motors Dealer.

Old-timers as well as teen-age members of the diamond will thrill to the sequences which teach in a few feet of film the correct way of batting, bunting, pitching, stealing bases and touching base runners. There is a great temptation to applaud the players, when such topflights as the Ferrell Brothers, Kelly Green, Jimmy Foxx, Charlie Gehringer, Lou Gehrig and the other store-mentioned American League players are found on the home-side in such perfect exhibition fashion. Finally, the filmed sports commentator of the air, explains each vital step, and with his assistance the film becomes "a real science complete in one lesson", or as close as it has been possible to come to that ideal up to date. Sports commentators who have seen previews have been urging beginners and veterans alike not to miss "Play Ball". Added to make a local appearance, it is one of the best educational sports films yet produced.

In addition a selection of other films will be shown to round out a full evening's entertainment.

B. C. I. V. S. Girls Present Play, Fashion Show, Display

SEWING CLASS

Yesterday afternoon an interesting program was presented by girls of the vocational department and the first form commercial at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, including a one act play, a fashion parade, and a display of work. Mothers of the girls as well as scholars of the school attended and were delighted with the varied entertainment.

In all phases of the afternoon's program the skill of the girls was shown. The costumes of the players were made by the girls of I.A. and II.B commercial forms from a design by Miss MacPherson, teacher of sewing at the school. As the setting of the play was in a Quaker home, the quaint costumes in shades of rose, blue, green, grey and mauve, were charming in their crisp white aprons and caps.

The cast of the play was announced by Winnie Stirland and Miss Bunting who directed, explained that Miss Phyrla Reid, in the leading role had taken the part at the last minute owing to the illness of another actress and had had only two days' work and two practices.

In "The Black Horseman", presented by girls of IB, a dutiful who had killed his opponent took refuge in a Quaker home and his manners caused consternation as the members of the neighborhood gather for meeting. He was safely hidden from the constables by the demure Miss Felicity and at first it seemed as though he would reward her kindness by stealing her grandmother's silver. In the end, his generosity led him to return to face the consequence of his illegal dueling.

The cast included girls into the spirit of the play and all players were very good in their roles. The Black Horseman's bravado being very well done.

The fashion parade which followed was different from most affairs of its kind in that instead of five or six mannequins, fifty-eight girls took part, each wearing a dress designed and finished by herself. All were little summer sport dresses and the variety of styles seemed endless. The crisp dresses in pastel shades of cotton material made a fine showing. In smart grills that made a very rainbow of colours the girls displayed their dresses and were rewarded by generous applause from the audience. The collegiate orchestra provided music for the program.

The mothers were then invited to the sewing room on the third floor where a display of work by the girls was arranged. Here the exquisite and painstaking work of the sewing classes astonished the visitors. The sewing ranged from daintily made, and beautifully embroidered lingerie, and fine Italian hemstitching of linen place mats by the first year girls to blouses with a professional air by second year girls. The fashion blouses shown included a Marina blue satin by Dorothy Carr with cross stitch in matching tones of blue, rose, mauve and green, a fine silk blouse finished with smocking by Margaret Griffin and a tailored blouse in white silk with fagotting, the work of Jean Taylor.

As a result of their study of art in connection with sewing the girls had designed, stamped and painted silk scarfs with matching handkerchiefs, designed, tinted and painted parchment lamp shades while the leather work included purses, pencil holders, book covers was splendidly done.

The sewing room, beautifully decorated with bowls of summer flowers, had a "frieze" of charts painted by Phyllis Weese and Jean Dickend depicting the history of costume. The work of these talented artists showed careful study and training.

Seventy-eight girls take sewing at the school. Of these twenty-four are in first year vocational, eleven in second year, eight are taking the nursing course, and thirty-five are in first year commercial. Miss MacPherson is in charge of the sewing and Miss Hudgins the art work.

The completion of the term the girls served refreshments to the visitors and demonstrated the progress they had made in household science under Miss Grout.

POLICE COURT

Three cases were heard in the special Thursday traffic court held before Magistrate F. J. Challer, K.C., today. Charges of speeding as well as operating motor vehicles with defective brakes fetched the accused operators pleading guilty. The minimum fine was imposed in each case.

Sixteen transients were given a night's lodging at the police station last night. Activities were at a lower low level in local police circles today, no serious matters being reported.

Police Court Inspector Polson of the Provincial Department was in the city today and commended very favourably on the manner in which the local police court is being conducted.

Convention Concludes With Dance in The Evening

"We will be back again", chorused delegates to the Ontario Jewellers' Convention who met at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Wednesday and which closed with a dance in the evening after a day completely filled with amusements and entertainment. The event was a delightful, the setting was all that could be desired and the hospitality was more than expected", said a prominent jeweller as he looked out over the Country Club from the spacious verandahs of the Country Club. The newly elected president, Eddie Logan of this city, with his energetic committee can be congratulated for the splendid program arranged and to say that everyone had a good time would be putting it mildly.

Sports Program

Concluding the business session at an early hour yesterday a luncheon was held and then the delegates proceeded to prepare for the afternoon and evening's fun. The golfers lined up for their games, the horse shoe pitchers repaired to the pits, the tennis enthusiasts warmed their way to the courts, while the ladies, who enjoy bridge made ready for the tables. Everything was arranged and every event passed off speedily and successfully.

Those ladies, who did not play bridge were taken for a motor trip through the country to be shown the delightful beauty spots of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties arriving back at the Club House in time for dinner.

After a half hour of social nature all repaired to the spacious dining hall, where, Willies Little, pro at the club had prepared a delicious chicken dinner. The dinner was a delight, good natured banter being heard from table to table, while the whole company entertained themselves with community singing and the jewellers can really sing. Quartettes sprang up from nowhere, while solos, very much appreciated were given. Dinner being concluded, the whole party repaired their way to the lawns outside the Club House and from the verandah, adjoining back at the Club House in time for dinner.

Beautiful Prizes

Beautiful gold watches, cameo brooches, silver dishes of all sizes and shapes, clocks of every description, pencil and pen sets of latest design, lorgnettes for golf and delighted the eye and it is safe in saying no finer prizes ever were awarded for any event in this city, than those given to the winning contestants. Golf prizes were donated by wholesale jewellers and certain manufacturers. The Hopper of Cobourg and second rink, E. Studholme of Oshawa, G. Hamble, Dr. Johnston of Toronto and Frank Kinnear of Kingston. Tennis, Mrs. Woodley of Toronto and J. Davis of Napanee. The golf winners were: Low Net, F. Woodley, Toronto; Low Net, F. W. Haywood, Toronto; Second Low Gross, Stewart Lees, Hamilton; Second Low Net, M. T. Ellis, Toronto; Low Gross, Fourscore, Toronto; London; J. Craigg, Ingersoll; H. Hardill, Toronto; and G. Scmellie, Toronto; Hidden Hole Competition, Toronto; Low Net for salesmen, N. D. Scott, Toronto and Low Net for travellers, Ivan Blad, Toronto. Mr. Bliss and Mrs. Proctor the only ladies who played golf were each given a prize.

Presentation of Cup

J. A. McPee on behalf of the directors of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, accepted from the Jewellers a beautiful trophy to be used in any way the Country Club sees fit. The Cup is a splendid example of the silversmith's art and will be a distinct acquisition to the many trophies already housed at the club. The directors have not decided the competition for which the trophy will be used. William Little pro at the club was not forgotten and he was presented with a loving cup in appreciation of his help to the jewellers. Although taken by surprise Mr. Little thanked the jewellers for their kind thought.

Soon the guests who had been invited to the dance arranged by the convention committee began to arrive and to the strains of the Confederate orchestra, the happy throng danced the night away. Many prizes were also given in lucky ticket holders during the evening. At an early hour on Thursday morning the party broke up and the delegates left for their several homes firm in the belief, that Wellerillians were delightful people to know and that a real day of enjoyment from the cares of business had been their good fortune. The convention will be held at Oak next year.

IMPROVE ROAD AT BAD CORNER

Ameliasburg— Mr. A. W. Adams has been busy the past week putting a coat of oil on the floor of the town hall, and brightening the wood work and platform with a coat of paint.

The picturesque village boasts of the finest and largest park in proportion to population of any village or town in Ontario. The well kept church grounds and the symmetrical hedges and evergreens intruding the unique tennis court are the beauty spots of our county.

The township council has purchased the blacksmith shop at the west end, formerly owned by Mr. Grant Crosby, which will be removed, and this dangerous corner will be thereby rendered safe for motorists. The council are to be commended in remedying this danger hazard before an accident occurs.

Mr. J. H. Hillon, principal of the public school has been re-engaged by the trustees for another year, in recognition of his splendid services rendered to the school during the past year.

Last Sunday the 9th inst. being Whit Sunday or Pentecost, the Rector, Rev. Arthur Strothers delivered an appropriate discourse.

Mrs. John Tafet and daughters Beverley of Kingston are enjoying the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dillon for a few days.

The county road oiler was in this village on Wednesday and treated the streets to a coating, which we trust will eliminate all dust in the future.

Mr. E. T. Carson is busy laying a new walk in front of his residence on Main St.

Mr. H. E. Fairfield of Belleville had a number of men repairing the Marsden House this week.

AGAINST THE RAINY DAY

Should the individual citizen be taught sound economics? is a natural question in these days when there has been so much discussion of money problems. The Parkhill Gazette comes out strongly in favor of sound economic training for the individual. It says, "Investments in unsound ventures and lack of foresight in spending money have been coupled with depleted incomes as well as long periods of unemployment to produce serious economic problems in countless homes. Probably little can be done to reform the habits of adults—many seem to return to their old methods as soon as opportunity presents itself, only to be reburned at an old fire—but much can be done to inculcate sounder economic principles in the minds of boys and girls, and thus save many of them from floundering on the same rocks on which their elders suffered."

One can understand this viewpoint and see benefits should more individuals put by money for purpose of reserve or resource in case of emergency. Even today many persons wonder why so many others give indications of being on the happy side of a bank account and prosperity by the evidences of independence which they show. No one should begrudge them that estate because many of these fortunate persons did not hazard their happiness by rash investments, by "trying to keep up with the Joneses" or by spending the last dollar. Others who might have been just as well placed today go about bearing a load from which they will extricate themselves only by long and sacrificing effort.

Were there more level-headed persons, the depression would not be so great. That is clear to anyone.

Employers and elders could do much to this end were they to advise the younger to take ordinary measures of protection against the "rainy day."

People cannot expect governments to do all the thinking for them by legislation. It is not in the nature of governments or of human nature that man should be protected from everything. He must use his experience and that of others as the basis of his judgment. Laws to prevent fraudulent sale of stocks are meritorious and will check a great evil but the individual must also do a little prevention himself in making as certain as he can that he is safe in his investments.

SUPPORTS CLASSICS

"I began my studies just at the time when Latin was buried in the Chilean schools. As a schoolboy I participated in the general dislike at the appearance of one more burden. As a man I sincerely lament the loss of that knowledge which is of such high importance for juridical study and synthetic culture. I am sorry to see an increasing tendency to educate children solely with a view to practical and material utility." These words were written by the president of Chile, Senor Alessandri, to Eduardo Correa, author of a book on the Death of Humanism in Chile. They are quoted in the Christian Science Monitor, which explains that the president, in writing to compliment Correa on his book, took occasion to give his own personal views on public education. The tendency which the president deplores is not confined to the South American republic. Here in Ontario we find the study of the classical languages in disfavour also, with Greek practically abandoned and talk of making Latin an optional study in the high schools. Here, as in Chile, are obvious evidences of delight on the part of those pupils who are too lazy or too dull to look on Latin as anything better than a worry and a bore. Here, too, let us hope, there is a solid body of opinion which thinks, as President Alessandri does, that the classics are "of high importance" in a practical as well as a cultural sense.

In another part of his letter, the president declares it to have been a "grave error" to have erased the classics from the Chilean curriculum. If this province should ever go so far as to drop those subjects altogether, it too, will undoubtedly discover that it has made a "grave error." Apart from the "juridical" utility of Latin, to which Senor Alessandri refers, there is its importance in the legal, medical, scientific, theological and allied learned professions. As for "spiritual culture," the classics are invaluable, being as the president affirms, "equivalent to an intellectual exercise, a spiritual training that inculcates sentiments of culture in the juvenile mind, thus promoting ideal human sentiments instead of the devoid of self-interest and utilitarian stimulus."

I pray you bear me henceforth the noise and rumor of the field, where I may think the remnant of my thoughts in peace and part this body and my soul with contemplation and devout desires.—Shakespeare.

I have often said that all the misfortunes of men spring from their not knowing how to live quietly at home in their own rooms.—Pascal.

AMATEUR GOLFER

He pelts the pill,
O'er dale and hill,
And gets a thrill!
Exotic:
Yet should he sink
One in the drink,
He must become aquatic.

By breezes fanned,
Knee-deep in sand,
He takes his stand,
In trouble:
And blasts the ball,
To have it fall
And bounce among the stubble.

By now we gage
He's hit the stage
Of violent rage,
Yet limber:
And wraps his club,
Like any dub,
In frenzy 'round the timber.

THE DARING YOUNG MAN on the flying trapeze did not endanger any life but his own, but these motorist speed merchants who dash about city streets as if they were going somewhere and had to get there in a holy or unholy minute, are menaces to themselves and everybody else in sight.

PULLMAN CONDUCTOR'S DEATH in New Jersey recently resulted in one of the queerest law suits on record. The kick of a blonde flapper in a Pullman car resulted in a suit for $100,000. Million B. Hammell was a Pullman conductor between New York City and Washington on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. On one of his trips he had as passengers one Hans A. Mannhardt, of New York City, and a woman companion, described as "a blonde." Mannshardt gave the woman liquor to drink and she shortly began to entertain the rest of the passengers with high kicking and crawling on her hands and knees down the aisle. Conductor Hammell could not restrain her so he telephoned ahead for reinforcements and at the next stop a station agent and two detectives boarded the train and assisted conductor Hammell to subdue the blonde beastie. In the melee the conductor was kicked in the stomach and shortly afterward was operated on for appendicitis, but his death resulting from pneumonia. He was only thirty-two years of age, with a reasonable expectation of many more years of life, and his widow sued for $100,000 from the man who gave the liquor to the woman who kicked her husband, who died of pneumonia after the doctors had removed his appendix. Judgment was given in favor of the defendant, the learned judge holding that while death came from pneumonia preceded by appendicitis, it was not clearly proved that the appendix directly suffered from the kick of the intoxicated blonde woman.

MAX BAER AND JIMMY BRADDOCK are due to tangle tonight for the pugilistic championship of the world, and the usual flurry of publicity for the scrap is being accorded by the newspapers. Braddock filled several pages of a popular magazine with a "ghost written" yarn as to how he was going to beat the championship out of Baer. Good ballyhoo, eh, what? But should be charged at double advertising rates for posing as current literature. Walter Winchell turned over his column for a day to Max Baer to say what he liked about the great Baer and others. Here's Max's defiance to the columnists:

"I don't think I could whip any of the gorillas Mr. Brisbane writes about, but I figure I'd be a cinch to smack out at least a dozen columnists in one night, which is about the same thing."

Now, Max, was that nice?

Here's another piquant paragraph from Max's pen:

"The first girl I ever courted sued me for breach of promise—and won. The next girl in my lifetime became my wife. She sued me for divorce and won. After that I was sued by another girl for breach of promise, but I don't remember meeting the girl. Could it be that I am a sleep walker?"

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

beard and an upright carriage of himself. His three hundred riders were Ashraf, of the Ajaimi (Jubeina) stock, Ir-wn Sherifs, but only acknowledged in the mass, since they had not hereditary pedigrees. They wore rusty-red tunics beneath their cloaks, and carried long curved swords. Nasir had a slave crouched behind him on the croup per to help him with rifle and dagger in the fight, and to watch his camel and cook for him on the road. The slaves, as befitted slaves of poor masters, were very little dressed. Their strong, black legs gripped the camels' woolly sides as in a vice, between the shoulo hvertlaids of their bony pelvises, while they had knotted up their rags of shirts into the plaited thong about their loins to save them from the fouling of the camels and their scaling on the march. Semna water was medicinal, and our animals' dung flowed like green soup down their hocks that day.

Behind the Ashraf came the crimson banner of our last tribal detachment, the Rifas, under Owdi ibn Ezweid, the old wheedling sea-pirate who had robbed the Bedouin of Akaba and thrown their wives and their Indian servants into the sea at Yenbo. The sharifs presumably refused the wireless, but we had spent fifteen hours already tugging for it in the harbour. Owdi still wore a long, rich, fur-lined German officer's greatcoat as a garment little suited to the climate but, as he insisted, magnificent booty. He had about a thousand men, three-quarters of them on foot and neat him marched Nasim, the gunner commandant, with his four old Krupp guns under the package, but as we had lifted them from the Egyptian Army.

Nasim was a sardonic Damascene, who rose laughing to every crisis and slunk about gnawing his nails in schelon of sub-tribes. Nasim looked over the new-washed under-wood, where raindrops glistened in the light of the sun setting redly across the waves below a ceiling of clouds, and looked too at the wild mob of Beduins racing here and there on foot after wolves and rabbits and giant lizards and jerboas and one another: and assembled society, saying that he too would shortly become a sub-tribe, and schelon himself half a day on one side or other, and be quit of flies.

At first, starting a man in the crowd had shot a hare from the saddle, but because of the risk of wild shooting Feisal had then forbidden it, and those later put up by our camels' feet were chased with sticks. We laughed at the sudden commotion in the marching companies, riders and camels swerving violently, their riders leaping off and laying about wildly with their canes to kill or be pickers-up of a kill. Feisal was happy to see the army so full afield that, but disgusted at the shameless Jubeina sopetting of hare and jerboas.

We rode over the flat sand, among the thorn trees, which here were plentiful and large, till we came out on the sea-beach and turned northward along a broad, well-beaten track, the Egyptian pilgrim road. It ran within fifty yards of the sea, but we could see it only in short patches, rarely singing files abreast. An old lava bed had driven the road inland, out from the hills four or five miles inland, and made a promontory. The track cut across that, but at the near side were some mud flats, on which shallow rectangular pools were turned in the last light of the west. This was our expected stage, and Feisal signalled the halt. We got off our camels and stretched ourselves, sat down or walked before supper to the sea and bathed by hundreds. Splashing, screaming, full of fish-like abandon in the earth's colours.

Supper was to look forward to, as Jubeil that afternoon had shot a gazelle for Feisal. Gazelle meat was found better to eat than other in the desert, because this beast, however barren the land and dry the season, seemed to own always a fat juicy body.

Next day we rode leisurely. The journey was pleasant, for it was cool; there were a lot of us, and we had forgotten had a tent in which we could shut ourselves up and be free. A weariness of the desert was

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 13th, 1915.

Preparations for the camp in connection with the 15th Regt. are going merrily on. The camp will probably open July 6th and will be in charge of Major Faulkner and Gifford.

At a social gathering which was held last night at the West Belleville Methodist church, Mr. Allison's Sunday School class presented him with a beautiful umbrella as a slight token of their appreciation of his services as teacher during the past year. Max Hartzy, president of the class, in making the presentation, expressed the regret of the class in losing Mr. Allison as their teacher.

Mr. Robert Elliott and family will leave shortly to reside in Chicago.

Yesterday afternoon about six o'clock fire was discovered in the hay loft of Dr. Foster's, (V. S.,) barn, and before it could be controlled it spread to the Prince Edward House stables to the south and to the Queen's Hotel stables to the north, the roof and kitchen of the Prince Edward House also took fire. In about three quarters of an hour the fire was under control, but not until nearly nine o'clock that work was stopped on the ruins. The buildings burned were: Prince Edward House stables, Judge Hall's barn, Dr. Foster's barn and badly wrecked, Dr. Foster's stables total loss; roof of dwelling and kitchen badly burnt torn up. Queen's Hotel stables all burned. Rear of the Carman Block occupied by John Cockran as sleeping apartments for his hotel, and Gardner north Moore's livery were all badly scorched. Mr. John Grant, the proprietor of the Queen's Hotel and Mr. Deacon in the occupant of the Prince Edward House. During the fire Geo. Moxam, a member of No. 1 brigade, was overcome by heat and smoke and had to be carried home. Several of the horses had narrow escapes from suffocation and some were quite severely burned.

WALEYS SPENT ONLY $300 OF $200,000 RANSOM

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Waley

This trapped them

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Waley, ar-rested in Salt Lake City, say they spent only $300 of the $200,000 Weyerhaeuser kidnap money. Government agents accounted for $11,000 with the finding of $90,700 in a cache five miles from Salt Lake City. The Waleys were trapped when Mrs. Waley bought the cigaret case above and paid for it with a ransom note. Waley said he was "short-changed" in the division of money by William Mahan, who led "G" men a chase when he abandoned his car in Butte, Mont., in the car was $16,000 of the ransom money.

Sharp-Eyed Sleuths Capture Kidnappers

Here are the two Salt Lake City police officers who get the credit for the first major break in the hunt for the kidnappers of little George Weyerhaeuser of Tacoma, Wash. They are W. M. Rogers, right, a detective and Patrolman L. B. Gifford, left. They were detailed to a big Salt Lake City department store with orders to watch for the blood money. When Mrs. Harmon M. Waley passed a $5 ransom bill in purchasing a twenty cent cigarette case, the bill was quickly checked by Rogers, who signaled to Gifford. Both men sauntered toward Mrs. Waley, seized her by either arm and said "we want to talk to you." A few hours later she broke down and confessed, naming four other men, beside her husband, as the perpetrators of the kidnapping.

5 AND 10 GIRLS TRAP KIDNAP MOLL

It was a twenty cent cigarette case which led to the breakdown of the Weyerhaeuser kidnappers' "air-tight" scheme for getting rid of the blood money. Photo shows Miss Edythe Morley, 24, left, and Miss Marion Samuel, 18, right, clerks in the chain store in Salt Lake City where Margaret Von Metz (Mrs. Harmon M. Waley) was trapped and arrested, subsequently confessing her role in the sensational kidnap plot. Miss Morley made the sale of a twenty cent cigarette case to the woman and received a $5 bill. Without arousing her customer's curiosity Miss Morley summoned the cash girl and gave it to her to make change. Miss Samuel took the bill to the cash window, where it was quickly checked. Mrs. Waley's arrest followed immediately.

TENNIS

The Bay of Quinte Tennis Club held its initial tennis tournament of the season at the Country Club yesterday afternoon at which time they defeated the Point Anne Club five matches to one. The visiting club won the men's doubles, but were defeated in all other games. Following the matches, which were keenly contested, refreshments were served by the members of the Bay of Quinte Tennis Club. Other inter-club games are being planned by the local tennis organization.

The results:

Men's Singles

W. G. Johnstone, Belleville, defeated "Bud" Roseberry, Point Anne 6-1, 6-4.

Ladies' Singles

Mrs. Hanna, Belleville, defeated Mrs. Abbott, Point Anne 6-0, 6-1.

Men's Doubles

F. Fisher and E. Moger, Belleville, were defeated by Tom Bowler and Bud Roseberry, Point Anne 6-4 and 6-3.

R. Hart and M. Mitchell, Belleville defeated A. Genereaux and J. Hart, Point Anne 6-4, 6-2 and 8-2.

Ladies' Doubles

Eugenia May and Esther Moncrief, Belleville, defeated Mrs. Murphy and Miss Bell, Point Anne, 6-2 and 6-1.

Mixed Doubles

Mrs. D. Hanna and E. Morse, Belleville, defeated A. Genereaux and Mrs. Roseberry, Point Anne, 6-2 and 6-3.

CAR THAT MAHAN ABANDONED

This is the car that William Mahan abandoned in Butte, Mont., when police closed in on him in the roundup of the kidnappers of George Weyerhaeuser, of Tacoma, Wash.

CONFESSED KIDNAPPER ATTENDED HAUPTMANN TRIAL

Here are two views of Harmon M. Waley, 34, who with his wife, Margaret, 22, was arrested in Salt Lake City, and confessed the perpetration of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping at Tacoma, Wash. Waley was seized following his wife's capture in a five-and-ten store as she was attempting to pass some of the $200,000 ransom money. Breaking down under severe grilling, she confessed and told the authorities where to find her husband. Waley subsequently broke down also and confessed. Between them they got only $17,500 of the ransom money, they said. Under the laws of Washington, both face the death penalty. It was learned that the pair attended several sessions of the Bruno Hauptmann trial in Flemington, N. J. Their home was in Salt Lake City, where they lived under the name of Metz. Waley has a long criminal record, his crime career beginning in Hoquiam, Wash.

Four Contesting Boats Capsize During Races

Four of the contesting boats in yesterday's weekly punt races sponsored by the South End A. C. capsized under the stiff wind during the races which were held directly off the Bay of Quinte Country Club yesterday. A heavy choppy sea welcomed the craft with a new course being laid out. The contesting punts in all cases sailed southeast from the club house, tacking across the bay hence returning to the club dock. Six handsome silver trophies were donated by the officers of the Ontario Jewellers' Association under whose auspices the day's races were conducted. The winners of each class were presented with the cups following the races.

Seventeen craft faced Starter Wm. "King" Rogers' starting line, with only about one-half that number finishing. The Annie C dropped out during the race to go to the assistance of some of the more unfortunate punts that capsized. The special dinghy class was won by the Swan.

The result of the races in classes were:

"A" Class—Atlanta, Joker, the remaining craft not finishing.

"C" Class—Imp; Ron Wallace.

Snipes— Eagle, Rommick, Toots, Wanda and Flame.

Timekeeper, W. Haslip, starter, W. Rogers.

General Proficiency Medal Won by Miss Lineker

Picton, June 13—(Special)—Picton United Church was filled to its capacity on Tuesday evening, June 11th for Prince Edward County Hospital Nurses' Graduation.

The platform, where the doctors and nurses were seated, was banked with baskets of flowers, potted plants and ferns, and many others facilitated the seating of the large crowd.

The Invocation was given by Rev. David Wren. The chairman of the Board, Mr. A. E. Calnan gave a very encouraging report of hospital affairs for the past eight months. During that time 895 patients were admitted to the hospital, while only 303 were admitted in the same period of the previous year. At times the hospital accommodation was taxed to capacity. An increase of $1,280.00 in fees for the same period, with operating expenses for the same time reduced $622.71 had improved the financial condition of the hospital. A class was graduated at a cost of $800.00, had saved more than enough to fuel during the past winter. The Women's Hospital Auxiliary were commending for raising several hundred dollars, that was spent in mattresses and bedding and for the clothing of the long supplies last Fall. The County grant of $1,000.00 had greatly helped, as had donations from the I.O.D.E. and Women's Institutes. The Hospital now owns $18000.00 in debentures issued when the new addition was built, and a bank overdraft of $2,500.00, $12,000 in liabilities all on which $700.00 is paid yearly in interest. Assets include investments now valued at $7,000 and fifty shares of Canadian Canning Stock, the gift of the late G. E. Boulter. The Superintendent, Miss Carson, her staff, the doctors and members of the board were all commended.

Reception Held

A reception held for the graduates afterwards, in the S.S. Room of the church, which was beautifully decorated with baskets of flowers.

The long buffet table was arranged with pastel candles in silver holders and centred with a silver basket of spring blooms. Members of the Auxiliary and their friends, the doctors and their wives —members of the Hospital Board and their wives, and the nurses and their friends were guests at this delightful affair. The graduating nurses were:—Miss Edith J. Linker, Miss Ola A. Hicks, Miss Evelyn M. Weir.

Weddings

BAILEY—MUNROE

Rev. J. D. F. Knox of 30 Bridge Street West, returned home Tuesday night from the town of Perth, where he had gone to officiate at the marriage of an intimate friend, Mr. Cornwall Bailey, of Toronto, the bride being Miss Myra Blanche Munroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Munroe of Perth.

Mr. Bailey is the younger son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bailey of the Township of Rawdon, and is a well known and popular business, professional and public school man of Belleville.

The marriage was celebrated in the home of the bride's parents, amidst a profusion of flowers and beneath a beautiful bell and in the presence of the near relatives of the bride and groom. Rev. Dr. Morden of Perth assisted in the very beautiful and impressive service, performing the signing of the register Miss Vivian Bailey, sister of the groom, sang in fine voice, "I Love You Truly."

After partaking of a sumptuous banquet at the hotel Revere and the toast to the bride proposed by the officiating minister and ably responded to by the groom, the company entrained for Montreal where they embarked for Bermuda to spend their honeymoon. On returning, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will reside in Toronto where Mr. Bailey holds a lucrative position as manager for the Dack Shoe Company.

McLEOD—MacDONALD

The marriage took place quietly in Frankford on Saturday, June 8th, of Gladys MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. MacDonald, Carnilton Road, Thurlow Township, to Mr. Allan McLeod of Belleville. Rev. Mr. Lane officiated.

CULLIN—GAUTHIER

Trenton, June 13 (Special)—A quiet wedding took place in Trenton on Saturday, June 8th, when Rosemary Winifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Gauthier became the bride of Leslie A. Cullin, son of Mr. A. A. Cullin and the late Mrs. Cullin. The knot was attended by her sister, Miss Helena Gauthier and the groom by his brother Victor Auger. The ceremony was performed by Very Rev. Dean J. J. O'Reilly after which was followed by a luncheon at Fithurst Manor at which only immediate relatives were present.

DIVING TOWER ERECTED BY "Y"

Use at Own Risk And Privileges Must Not be Abused

During the past few days a very substantial diving platform was constructed at the Y.M.C.A. and yesterday evening this was transported to Rossmore through the courtesy of Mr. Frank Labelle and erected on the dock there belonging to Mr. G. F. Ormsby, with his kind permission. The tower carries a ten foot spring board of unusual strength and fourteen inches wide and is treated with sand in order to prevent the diver from slipping. The drop from the spring board to the water is approximately the regulation three metres. Shortly after Physical Director Morden and Mr. Labelle, two members finished with the erecting of the tower, a number of the boys had it out and pronounced it very satisfactory.

It is anticipated too that the dock for a dip in the Bay of Quinte waters are welcome to the use of the diving tower but at the same time they see it at their own risk. The Life Guard on duty at the village and refrain from causing any annoyance to the cottagers residential at Rossmore, the tower will be left in charge of Caretaker Hunt this summer. On the other hand if complaints are made by the owners of cottages in Rossmore to the Y.M.C.A., resulting from misconduct by parties using the Association equipment, the officers of the Y.M.C.A. will of necessity have to remove their whole equipment. Trusting to their regard, consequently the Association ask the hearty cooperation of the general public and feel confident they will not be let down.

At The Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL
"Behind the Evidence"

A Tense, Well Acted Mystery Drama

What is the meaning of the cryptic phrase "Aster 16?"

Upon the solution of this question and the discovery of its origin and destination rests the highly involved and fascinating plot of "Behind the Evidence," which opens today at the Capitol theatre.

When the wealthy playboy, Tony Sheridan, loses his fortune in one fell swoop of Fate, he joins the ranks of the Fourth Estate as a society reporter. From an innocent and unimportant society assignment evolve facts that threaten to shake the town's 400 to its foundations.

Tony's chance discovery of a slip of paper bearing the mystic "Aster 16" starts things humming. In the process of investigation he finds that a pillar of society is the man genius behind a marauding gang of crooks, his life is endangered three separate times; and he becomes a nationally known hero. It's fast, clever and not a dull moment, so be ferreted out of the entire showing. See it, it's good."

Norman Foster, well-known and popular leading man, is featured as Tony Sheridan. He fits so well that the part might have been written with him in mind.

The romantic interest is centered in Sheila Manners, petite, vivacious, red-haired and dimpled. She has more than her share of that quality described as "It." Donald Cook ably plies his trade as the heavy, and prominent roles are nicely handled by Genera Mitchell, Frank Darien, and Pat O'Malley.

"Transient Lady"

One of the fastest moving melodramas of the year, "Transient Lady" is shown as a special attraction on this same bill. Four brilliant players have the leading parts in this film. They are Gene Raymond, Henry Hull, Frances Drake and Otto Chayworth.

"Transient Lady" was filmed from the popular Saturday Evening Post story of the same name which was serially in demand because, and is ideal entertainment for every member of the family. It is packed with action, has plenty of fast action and delightful romance, punctuated with sparkling comedy.

The story centres round a trio of wandering promoters, two men and a girl, who come to a sleepy Southern town to open a roller-skating rink. They run afoul of an evil crowd of relatives of a political magnetician. One of this gang is killed and they try to pin the guilt on one of the skating rink owners. A brilliant young lawyer of the town, come to the defence of the innocent man, and out of it all grows a love story hard to parallel for sweetness and appeal.

Gene Raymond, who will long be remembered for his work in "Flying Down to Rio," is the young lawyer, and Frances Drake is the girl. Henry Hull, distinguished stage star makes his second appearance in "Transient Lady" as Hamp Harris, the crooked politician.

Capitol News Reel will be shown at each performance. Complete shows 2.30, 7.30, 9.30.

AT THE BELLE
"The Wedding Night"

Dramatic Story of Poland's Revolt

Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Wedding Night," starring the new romantic team of Gary Cooper and Anna Sten, began a two days engagement at the Belle Theatre today (Thursday) with complete performances daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.10 P. M. (Please Note) starting times of feature both matinee and evening as follows, 2.50, 7.30, 9.50 P. M.

Directed by King Vidor from an original story by Edwin Knopf and adapted to the screen by Edith Fitzgerald, the film depicts in dramatic and vivid manner the experiences of a modern American artist, who revolt against the dictates and restrictions of tradition and strict parental rule.

The girl, living in the rolling farm country of northern Connecticut, seeks to live in conformity with the liberal social order of America, but her father, clinging tenaciously to the habits of the old world, decided that she wed a man of his choice, whom she does not love.

Anna Sten emerges in this her first picture for Samuel Goldwyn, as a girl typically American in dress, talk and manner. Gary Cooper plays the role of a famous New York author with whom she falls in love.

Siegfried Rumann sets out to be a hated character as the stern, cruel father of Miss Sten and succeeds admirably. Helen Vinson shines with swift, easy steps through the role of Cooper's luxury-loving fashionable wife, and Ralph Morgan contributes every inch the sturdy plowman and young farmer he is supposed to be.

King Vidor again displays his genius at taking a simple story, one dealing with every-day men and women, and creating from it a dramatic, emotional and logical before-remembered motion picture. It is significant that he recently was awarded the League of Nations' gold medal for "Our Daily Bread," named as the best motion picture made in the world during the past year.

Arranged on the same program with "The Wedding Night," as an added hour of entertainment is a clever moving and screen scream comedy with Thelma Todd and Patsy Kelly entitled "Treasure Hounds," a clever and snappy all-color Happy Harmony cartoon "The Chain Letter" and a sports subject entirely new to the screen and entitled "Good Badminton." Interest throughout, "Good Badminton" showing fancy and trick throws of some of America's outstanding Badminton players, will be exhibited at each performance.

Starts Saturday

Belle Theatre patrons on Saturday and Monday have in store for them a real treat in their dramatic and action film fare when Mr. George Arliss the Aristocrat of screendom, returns in his latest and one of his finest historic roles of his career, "Cardinal Richelieu" with an excellent supporting cast including Maureen O'Sullivan, Edward Arnold and Kathryn Alexander.

Extra Added Attractions in addition to "Cardinal Richelieu" Saturday and Monday the official flight pictures, round the world flight of the Graf Zeppelin. Now in, jimmy McLarnin, with Jack Dempsey, Referee. See him from the master boxer, out-sling McLarnin the punisher. See all rounds of flying flats and furious fighting. See Ross regain his welterweight championship. See every round.... Every blow! Every thrill! Better than a ringside seat. Don't miss it.

No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Does The Work

Few Pile sufferers know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—that is why ointments, spray salves and suppositories so often will not give lasting relief and why operations sometimes remove the pile tumor but leave the exciting cause which may create a recurrence.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will quickly and when you actually remove the cause. For this an internal remedy should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, and aids to relieve congestion.

So isn't it better, when salves fail and before considering operation, to try this internal remedy when J. S. Hemroid invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with money-back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

Suds like these—rich, lively, lasting —make all cleaning easier

For the wash—for the dishes—for all cleaning—you can't beat Rinso suds! On washboard or boiler. And no matter how long you soak your clothes in Rinso can rest assured they'll be whiter, sweeter, more beautiful. Rinso's the "no-scrub" way last 2 or 3 times longer. You'll see results the first time!

Use Rinso, say washing machine experts — hardest waters. They need no soap or lots of creamy, active, lasting suds—even in almost every household cleaning task quicker and easier. Kind to your hands. Recommended by the makers of 24 famous Canadian washers. Most women buy the BIG Rinso package.

QUINTE BRANCH W. I.

The Quinte Branch W. I. were entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, 2nd concession of Thurlow. There was a good attendance and all enjoy a good afternoon.

The President, Mrs. Ketcheson, had her usual pleasing manner presided, and the meeting opened with singing the Institute Ode, and repeating the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. After business discussions and correspondence had been dealt with, Mrs. Harry Orlis, leader for June capably took charge. The roll call "Use for common salt and soda" was well responded to and many helpful ideas exchanged in for a lunch. "We'll never let the old flag fall" in keeping with jubilee year was sung as well as many other familiar airs. Mrs. Geo. Connors, who always delights the ladies with her most instructive papers, again added to the programme with a paper entitled "Living 4 Life is more than making a living". Mrs. Connors related that "life" crosses its temptations, but it was ours to hold till death. It was for us to make the best of the gift God had given us as God is our life. A guitar solo "Lamp lighting time in the valley" by Miss Virginia Grills was a change of subject, and enjoyed by all. Misses Helen Brown and Mary Donaldson, who recently attended a meeting at Queen's in connection with the girls' work under the supervision of Miss Hopkins, brought back some interesting facts. It is the intension of these girls to start coaching classes immediately.

A real treat unveiled us when Mr. Frank Tull, Point Anne, sang three beautiful solos entitled "An Evening Prayer", "Open the Gates of the Temple" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere". Mr. Tull was heartily applauded.

The singing of the National Anthem and grace brought to a close an afternoon well spent.

Mrs. Mitchell and the conveners served a dainty lunch.

DEPOSITS DECREASE

Ottawa, June 13 (CP)—A drop of more than $3,000,000 was shown in the total deposits of the Bank of Canada during the week ended June 12, according to the statement Canada statement issued today. The reserve in the United States funds for the same period declined by more than $3,225,000.

THIRTY TREASURY BANKS TO OPEN STATES HEPBURN

bond issue, that "the plain issue is whether the country is to be governed by elected representatives or by the dictators in control of the machinery of money."

The financial institutions of the Dominion are not trying to govern the country, said Mr. Phipps. "Further, the banks had nothing to do with the fact that the Ontario Government will receive a single bid for its $15,000,000 bond issue. The plain fact is the securities were not saleable at the interest rates quoted. If the chartered bankers had thought them they would have have to resell them, and they felt low enough to take the risk that the interest rate the bonds were announced."

Compromised Suggested

"The question of the standing of the province's credit is not involved. It was merely that, in the opinion of those who normally tender on such an issue, the public would not invest at the rates announced. The issue is whether Premier Hepburn can carry out successfully his plan to sell provincial securities direct, I don't know. It has never been tried before in Canada," Sir John Aird, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, suggested a compromise whereby the Quebec power contract situation as well as the current labor and investment dealers and other financial institutions.

"I do not think Ontario's credit is bad," he said, "but there is no doubt it has been somewhat affected by the repudiation plans of the government with regard to Quebec power contracts. I would suggest the power companies postpone deliveries of some of the power called for under present contracts and the government make some concessions to effect a sane settlement."

"I do not believe Mr. Hepburn will do anything that will permanently injure Ontario's credit," added Sir John. "In the interests of his own party, as well as of the people of Ontario generally, I don't think he will follow such a course. Ontario's credit has been built up over the years. Surely we won't see to maintain it so."

Labor Party's View

Toronto, June 13—(CP)— R. E. Woolton, President of the Toronto Typographical Union, and head of the Photo-Engravers' Union had threatened to withdraw even a chartered bank to the Provincial Savings Bank following failure of financial institutions to take the province's $15,000,000 loan.

"Your organizations were in my office today," he added, "seeking my co-operation in withdrawing their funds out of the chartered banks and turning the money to the Provincial Bank. I have taken a chartered bank to the Provincial Savings Bank following failure of financial institutions to take the province's $15,000,000 loan.

I have taken a chartered bank to the Provincial Savings Bank following failure of financial institutions to take the province's $15,000,000 loan.

"The Premier," he continued, "are considering taking the same action. Personally I think it is a correct move throughout the province by organized labor units to transfer all their funds from the chartered banks.

WHEAT SITUATION FULLY EXPLAINED

Premier Gives Many Details Moving Second Reading

Ottawa, June 13 (CP)—Canada's wheat situation for the past and the future were thrown into the beat of party debate in the House of Commons today as battle sentiment over the government's bill to establish a grain board that will thereafter marketing in inter-provincial and export trade.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett moved second reading of the grain board bill yesterday in a fighting speech, his first long oratorical effort since his illness. He returned to the House to a statistical survey of the wheat situation and an outline of the stabilization operations carried on by John I. McFarland through the Canadian wheat pools with government backing.

Sharp attacks on Liberal members and challenges to them to write their stand were interwoven in the Prime Minister's speech. He called them to stand up like men and say whether they were opposed to the government's policies or not. "I do not sit in their seats and "sneer" or talk on the hustings, where there was "no one to answer."

Mr. Bennett declared that after the market stabilization operations were begun the quantity of wheat held by Mr. McFarland in the government-backed account was revealed. Mr. Bennett said it was over between 220,000,000 and 236,000,000 bushels.

The speech provoked a sharp reply from Hon. C. G. (Chubby) Power, Quebec-Yarmouth Liberal, who took his seat without indicating whether the Liberals would vote for or against the bill.

He declared no Liberal member had ever opposed government wheat stabilization plans or any action to help the farmer. He described Mr. Bennett's attack as wholly gratuitous and an assault on a grave issue. Liberals criticized the method adopted but not the actual measure.

ALARM SYSTEM WILL BE PLACED IN CITY HOSPITAL

Fire Alarm Signal Given in Hospital Office And in Fire Hall

BUILDING ZONED

Automatic fire alarm system will be installed in the General Hospital, Belleville, by the Dominion Automatic Fire Alarms Limited, Toronto, and a private line will connect the hospital system with the Belleville Fire Department at the fire hall, Mr. Ley Sprague, secretary of the Hospital Board announced today.

The board yesterday signed a contract with the company, whose president, George H. Carson, was in the city yesterday and today, meeting members of the board. He also met members of the Hospital Building Zoning Council in regard to fire alarm protection at the County House of Refuge.

Zones in Hospital

In the Belleville General Hospital the entire basement, the entire attic and other places such as the linen ray room which constitute special fire hazards will be protected by the automatic system and also the main corridors or that portion of the hospital which is under the supervision of the nurses for twenty-four hours a day, leaving the installed manual ally-operated fire boxes.

There will be a number of regions or zones in the hospital and each zone will record on the annunciator in the hospital office any unusual rise in the temperature. Alarm of outbreak of fire will be carried through direct line from the zone of fire to the fire hall without human agency.

The question of adding this fire alarm system to the present protection the nurses' home has not been decided.

New Fireplace Work

Under the system through an intricate system of wiring fireplaces are installed in any parts of the building that constitute a fire hazard. The fireplace is set to actuate at any predetermined temperature with the result that any abnormal temperature, such as would be caused by even an incipient blaze causes the firestat to operate automatically by sending an alarm to the annunciator located in the office and annunciators designating the exact location of the fire and at the same time giving the fire hall the alarm automatically. In addition the manually operated fire stations in the corridors are placed in the corridors in that part of the building not protected by the automatic system. These also register in the office and at the fire station at the same instant.

Connection With Fire Station.

Every firestat and all manuals located in the hospital will be connected direct to the municipal fire station Mr. Carson explained to a reporter.

The purpose of the system is to cut off fire in each compartment through saving valuable time and thus to protect helpless patients.

The systems are ch duty every instant of day and night giving protection to patients and staff.

Hospitals in eastern Ontario equipped with the fire alarm system include the House of Providence, Kingston, St. Mary's-on-the-Lake

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, June 13 (AP)—Scattered firm spots in today's Stock Market tended to check profit-taking in various issues, but the list, on the whole, was unable to establish a definite trend.

In the Canadian division of the list, McKinnon Industrials Preferred and Canadian Pacific were slightly lower. On the curb, Lake Shore also added a point. Dominion Government bonds were inactive. Canadian funds improved 1-32 of a cent at 99 37-32 cents.

Small advances were registered by shares of McAlcort Tin Plate, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Consolidated Gas, Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Smelting.

Postal Telegraph Preferred lost more than 3 points as it was reported a recapitalization plan might be considered by the postal directors at tomorrow's meeting.

Others, off fractionally to around a point or more were Allied Chemical, U.S. Steel, Safeway Stores, Corn Products and U.S. Rubber.

Test At Refuge.

Last evening at the County House of Refuge, a test was made by the Dominion Automatic Fire Alarms Company, using two leads of hose, each one hundred feet long, from the four-inch water main which connect some two thousand feet away with the city main. According to firemen the water when turned on from the hydrant reached the roof and floor windows of the building. The demonstration was made in the presence of some members of the County Council and others.

While the test was being made in the Refuge was only "domestic pressure" of 40 pounds, and there were then three pressure, sigeans and valves were opened to flush the building's upper floors. The test was made with a view to indicating the thoroughness of the alarm system within the building in order to control conditions.

The Belleville Hospital is supplied for a six inch main.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, June 13 (CP)—Industrial shares sold lower on the Toronto Exchange today, reflecting a feeling of nervousness with the part of traders over international developments and the unsettled commodity price level. Base metals, golds and Consolidated Smelters lost about 4 points while Bell, distillery issues, foods and steels leaned to the down side. Volume was light however.

The trade made some headway in paring down prices on the industrial section during the morning session but early afternoon brought more opposition to the decline and a general firming of quotations set in. Volume continued small however, only 24,000 shares. Trade was dull in some of the Oils and Nickel changing hands in quantity.

Recessions of ¼ to ¾ were showing for the oils, miners and foods. Nickel erased a morning dip and Smelters was off 3/4 to 1 5/4% this afternoon while lighter sales were the order of the day for the industrial issues.

Golds were off 1/4 to 1/2 and Base Metals 1/4 to 1/2 with the exception of Noranda which was off 1 1/4 to 1 3/4. Papers were off 1/4 to 1/2 and Banks 1/4 to 1/2 with the exception of Commerce which was off 1 1/4 to 1 3/4. Utilities were off 1/4 to 1/2 and Rails 1/4 to 1/2 with the exception of Canadian Pacific which was off 1 1/4 to 1 3/4. Phil Loft Stems Tide With Fine Brand of Relief Hurling

Belleville Intermediates Down Gananoque 10 to 7

Stepping into the breach and displaying a fine brand of relief pitching, Phil Loft steered the tide of battle for the best B.A.R.A. intermediate honors this season when it came from behind to nail the coffin lings of two Gananoque pitchers and win their completely scheduled Bay of Quinte League fixture by the score of 10 to 7 at the local Fair Grounds.

The Inland Town aggregation opened the game pushing across the stanza of Bill Hammett with a barrage of hits, four singles, and three runs in the initial frame. The Punishing-ed aggregation, however, and forged to the front in the third. Pounding on the offerings of Hammett in the fourth stanza, the Gananoque nine pounded out four lusty singles, and considerable slam, and the greater part of the locals, with Hammett still going strong, and used effectively in relief for Phil Loft in the home stanza, Loft going on to finish the visitation in fine style for the next five frames. Belleville scored their runs in the fifth to assure victory.

Latchford and Hammett were the long distance hitters of the day, both collecting doubles. Latchford got two singles; Hammett in each. Smith, Amo and Carmichael also went for the long clouts, each getting two singles. Mid Little, local second baseman, was the only player without a hit in the game and Amo had five each. Little and Wright formed Chuck Santiago was of the opposition in the fifth. The Belleville victory leaves the locals nine second position in the Bay of Quinte League, with Gananoque in third place.

RIVAL MILERS GO THROUGH THEIR PACES

Two star milers from different countries are seen during a practice jog in Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N.J., where they will soon meet in active competition. They are Jan Smolenski, of Princeton (LEFT) and Jack Lovelock, Oxford and New Zealand (RIGHT). Along with Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas tornado, and with possibly Glenn Dawson and Gene Venzke to give keen competition, they will race over a mile event June 15. A new world record may be set as the world's best milers are included here. This pair are bitter running rivals though close friends off the track.

DAY BY DAY

All local sport highways and by-ways lead to the local Fair Grounds this evening where the Oshawa "Generals" clash with the Stewart-Warners in a regular O.B.J.A. fixture. Decks have been cleared and both squads will be at full strength for this game as the league leadership is at stake. The Oshawa are in full stride and expect to take the measure of the Chicago outfit, thereby eliminating the sting of their 1-0 defeat at the hands of the Stewart-Warners on Monday last. Manager Teddy Saunders announced yesterday he would use either Dorr Ogden the elongated righthander who stopped the locals in their tracks in Oshawa or Lyall Wile, the portsider, who pinned the Petes' earn back a week prior to the local loss. Coach Mills would not definitely state who was to ascend the local pitching box and said only that three hurlers are ready to go and I have confidence that any one of them can tame the Oshawa team, providing their team mates continue to hit in the same manner they welcomed Scriver's deliveries last week." The umpire's cry of "play ball" will be heard at the Fair Grounds at precisely 8.15 p.m. this evening.

Although Elmo Snidere (sic), the 220 pound Pueblo, Colo., wrestler agreed to meet both Jack Pearl and Wallace Babvitch at one time in a local ring during Friday nights attraction, Manager Pearl, of the local promotogs made it clearly understood that there must would not be allowed in the ring at one time, Referee Bert Wells having sufficient work on his hands to look after two. At any rate Snidere has attained quite a complex and says he can beat any two Canadian wrestlers inside of one hour or two. Hoopiah his evening's pay envelope. So determined were the local Kiwanis promoters in procuring an outstanding card, that Al Dunlop, the locally hated Cleveland south-paw villain, has been matched to meet the conqueror of Bull Findlay, Billie McDougall at the same time. So confident is needed for the two main-bouters, however, as both are well known in local wrestling circles. Johnny Gyroffy, local favorite, personally requested the local promoters to match him with the hated Masked Marvel. Incidentally Johnny Gyroffy was the only Marvel must doff his hood and expose his features in the local ring. The entire card has all of the markings of a natural.

Neatly attired in his new baseball uniform little Jimmie Mills, ten-year-old son of Coach "Peeper" Mills, made a personal visit to our humble sanctorium the other day. "Say there mister, do you want some real good baseball news?" asked Jimmie. "Most certainly Jim, what's the low-down?" says we. "Well we're playing the "Starlights" up at the Alemite grounds on Saturday afternoon and will take up a silver collecting, how much will it cost to put that in your paper?" came back the mascot of the local senior club. Becoming more interested we asked Jimmie if he meant baseball or softball. "Say, I want you to know my team doesn't play that slow game, softball, we've got a good baseball team," says Jim. Suddenly we found out, that Jimmie manages the East Hill "Cardinals". This team has uniforms and all players must be under 15 years of age. They practice faithfully three times a week and their big moment will be reflized on Saturday, when they meet on the baseball diamond in the West Hill on Saturday afternoon at the Alemite grounds.

B. A. Panning's local intermediates moved up a notch in the Bay of Quinte League after taking the Gananoque nine into camp yesterday afternoon. The local squad coasted along nicely in every frame except the fourth, when the visitors scored four of their runs. Jimmy Loft's relief hurling was one of the features of the pastime. While the locals were winning on the home lot, the Napanee Gibbards went to town and moved up into a tie with Picton by defeating the latter team in Picton yesterday. The Gibbard-Gerow squad started off with a bang as they pounded out six runs in the initial frame, but also saw the exodus of Vern "Lefty" Bishop, big Bon Accord mainstay, and a good job of his relief hurling but he was subsequently forced to accept the day's loss as the Gibbards rallied in the tenth to win by the score of 13 to 11. The Picton team knotted the count in the ninth, when we find Gerow and Napanee tied for the leadership of the Bay of Quinte, along with Belleville second and Gananoque last.

Christ Church softballists made merry last night, when they romped home to a 31 to 8 victory over the Baptists in a regular church league fixture. Four innes during the pastime the winning club batted around, to mount the score. Rogers and Lunberg were the features for the Christ Church squad while Warren Lodge and Yerrow laboured for the losers.

Glen Bowler's Aajmaas added another victory to their long list of wins last night at the expense of the Rednecrville squad. The score of 13 to 8 in no way indicates the play as the Prince Edward County squad played from-top form and well served a better fate. Timely hitting by the Aajmaas saved the situation as Skipper Bowler was forced to use two hurlers, Sager and Farraro. Wannamaker starred at the bat for the losers.

Another tie game was played in Kingston last night when the Peterboro squad rallied in the ninth to knot the count and force the fray into overtime. Darkness terminated the pastime in the tenth, with the score standing three all. The Tonies are having a lot of luck these days, but it all seems to be the

ORIOLES BUILD TEAM TO FIT BASEBALL PARK

BEARS SPLIT

Toronto Defeated, When Baltimore Hits Four Homers

(By the Associated Press)

The policy of the Baltimore baseball officials to put together a team to fit the park has proved successful as evidenced by the fourth place standing of the Orioles in the International League Pennant race. The Orioles have not been especially effective on foreign fields but at home, where the fences are not far away, their home run slugging has kept them in the thick of the scramble.

They reduced the margin of the second place Toronto Maple Leafs yesterday to two games by the simple method of hitting home runs when they were needed. Earl Cook held the birds to nine hits but three of them were four-ply clouts, two by Bob Gilbert and the other by Irvin Jeffries. All of the circuit blows came in the fifth and sixth innings, when the Orioles did their scoring.

Newark Bears, struggling to get back into the pennant race, could do no better than an even break with Montreal Royals. The Bears won the opener 3 to 1 in 13 innings but dropped the scheduled seven-inning nightcap 7-3 after being forced to an extra frame.

George McQuinn's home run off Walter Stroud decided the opening contest after the Bears had tied the score in the ninth of a thrilling duel between Marvin Duke and Leo Mangum. Ben Sankey's seventh inning triple paved the way for the Royals' victory. The blow got Moncreal away to a three-run rally which tied the score and then in the eighth they pounded four times at the expense of Relief Hurler, Frank Mulcay.

Wraps In Winning Stride

Rochester Red Wings got back into a winning stride by trouncing Albany Senators twice in a double header staged under the lights. They paraded through the first encounter 16-1 with Tim Curry cracking out a home run with the bases loaded in the first inning when they pounded nine times. While the mates were pounding the ball, Tony Cardinal held the Senators to four hits. The nightcap was a little closer, 7-5, with home runs by Crabtree, Mize and Flowers deciding the issue.

The league leading Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs split two hard fought battles. Buffalo won both the seven-inning opener 3-2 behind a five-hit pitching of Ben Kline, who shut off a Syracuse rally one run short of a tie in the last inning in the nightcap the Chiefs were forced to go 13 innings before they won 4-3 after tying the scoring with a two-run attack in the ninth. Manager Ray Schalk of Buffalo was ejected from the second game of the day afternoon, for disputing a decision of the umpire.

Giant Outfielder Now Has Eleven Homers to Credit

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It appears unlikely the Athletics will cut much of a figure in the American League pennant race but if they can keep going at anything like their current pace it will be hard to hold them down in the second division.

Since Connie Mack abandoned his efforts to keep Jimmie Foxx back of the plate in favor of Cy Perkins star slugger's steadying influence rack into the infield, the A's have struck a stride that contrasts sharply with their previous efforts. When Jimmie shed his mask and pads May 28, the A's had a .308 average. Since then they've marked up 11 victories against seven—a .622 clip —raised their average to .444 after yesterday's third straight triumph over the Indians and cut Washington's sixth-place margin to a half game.

The A's had to overcome a bad start yesterday when Al Benton gave the Indians three runs in the first inning as Hal Trosky belted his ninth homer of the season but they chased Mel Harder to the showers in the seventh and won 7-5. Earl Averill and O'Dell Hale of the Indians and Wally Moses of the A's also contributed homers to the slugging bee.

Senators Take Drubbing

Washington meanwhile took a 7-3 drubbing from the White Sox, who did some heavy stickwork behind Ted Lyons' five-hit filloguing. The Sox gained a half game on the league-leading Yankees, who could get no better than an even break with the home-run hitting Browns. The Yanks won the opener 11-6 for Letty Gomes despite his circuit swats by Julius Solters, but his third four-ply blow plus one by Ed Coleman and two aboard proved too much in the 8Interpiece and St. Louis pulled out a 7-6 decision.

The "Dizzy"—formerly schoolboy— Rowe celebrating the increase in his family by pitching a five-hit game, the Tigers registered the day's biggest gain. They hopped from fifth place past the Indians to Cleveland into third with a 4-1 triumph over the Red Sox.

National League

The Cardinals produced the day's only change in the National League standing regaining their undisputed hold on second place by winning two games from the Braves while the Pirates were taking one from Brooklyn.

The cellar dwellers put up a perfect good struggle before they went down 8-6 to 5-4. Dizzy Dean delivered a hurry call to rescue after the Braves had knotted the count in the eighth inning of the opener and got credit for his eighth victory when Terry Moore singled with the bases full in the ninth. A four-run assault upon Fred Frankhouse in the sixth settled the second game.

The Pirates won in the similar fashion, plastering Emil Leonard and Johnny Babich for five counters in the seventh to come from behind and beat the Dodgers 7-3.

With Carl Hubbell pitching a steady game and Mel Ott belting his 11th homer to recapture the National League lead, the leaguewise Giants had little trouble pronouncing Cincinnati 11-4.

The Cubs and Phillies hit cop another with everything in sight and wound up with an even break in a twin bill, Chicago taking the opener 13-9 behind Larry French's five-hit elbowing and Philadelphia the nightcap 12-4. Chuck Klein copped individual honors with two home runs, two in the second game.

BASKET PICNIC AT THOMASBURG MUCH ENJOYED

THOMASBURG.—The regular monthly meeting of Thomasburg Stephenson Mission Band was held on Saturday afternoon, June 8th in the form of a basket picnic.

The Mission Band members gathered at the home and after partaking of the corn, pepper hash and baskets of various delicacies they marched to Mr. Harold McGroarty's field where was held under the trees. Mrs. Thomas McTaggart was in charge of the meeting and opened by singing "The Land of Maple", Mrs. Brown Thrush-Turton taking the lead. Scripture lesson was found in St. John 3, Loras McTaggart read a prayer for boys, Mrs. Merton a prayer for girls and Mrs. Dorothy McTaggart one for the children.

Reports were given by the Secretary and Treasurer and some business was discussed. The meeting was then brought to a close and all the children enjoyed a baseball game between the "Reds" and "Blues" with the latter passing. At five o'clock the children enjoyed a delicious lunch on the grass, each one bringing a fancy basket. All returned to the church for calling they had had a very enjoyable time.

The June meeting of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary will be held on Friday evening last at Miss Dorothy Thomas' in a shower and tea-meeting. The meeting was opened by singing an appropriate hymn and the Scripture reading by Mrs. Ira Horton. The President then took the business part of the meeting, the membership prayer and Lord's prayer being repeated in unison. Reports were given by the Secretary and Treasurer and the roll call was responded to by one of God's promises.

At the conclusion of the business period the programme consisted of a splendid reading by Mrs. Horton, a chorus "A Previous Engagement", two solos, one by Miss Dorothy Thomas, by Amy Macnab on Dorcas work. Mrs. Thomas contributed a duet "When the World Forgets". The meeting was brought to a close with a hymn and the Benediction.

LADIES' READY-TO-WEAR

WARDEN BRONSON KIWANIS SPEAKER

Heartily in Favor of Developing County For Tourists

Warden James Bronson was the guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday and gave a most interesting address on conditions of the day and what he would like to see developed in the county to make it a better place to live in. The Warden is a most forceful speaker, being quite sincere in his beliefs and not afraid to call a spade a spade. He was introduced by Herb Fox and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Eddie Shapiro.

The members of the club will entertain the inmates of the Hastings County Home and Home for the aged to a drive on Monday night next and will also assist in entertaining the visiting delegates to the jewellers' convention in this city. Ernie Finkle was the booster for the day and Joe Imlah and George Perham were the lucky winners. Ernie gave an account of his business stating his firm was ready to do any kind of electrical work and would go any place to do it. The club members with their wives will journey to Oak Lake for a chicken dinner on Tuesday night next finishing up with a weiner roast and dance. Plantation of the celebration for the first of July is well under way and some interesting facts will be announced in the near future.

Warden Bronson told his listeners he was behind any movement for the advancement of the county and that the rural dweller could not get along without the city of Belleville and the residents in the city depended a great deal on the rural residents. He congratulated the Kiwanis Club for the work being done and now would take more interest after being invited to a luncheon. The warden traced the developments he would like to see forwarded, one being better roads as they supply the main arteries of travel. His Honor was much in favor of the formation of a Tourist Association for the district and the County was happy to make a grant for the purpose. "I have noticed a great chance to improve the lakes and streams of the county believing that the above lines should be cleared of brush and that trout streams should be cleared of brush also," said the warden.

Developing of the young people was advocated by the Warden as that they could take their rightful place in the community and be ready to govern, when the time comes. He could not see why with a country like Canada any man, who wanted to work should be left without at a fair rate of pay for a fair day's labor. Mr. Bronson cited cases where men were taking out pulpwood for $2.00 a cord, while duties and other restrictions had been taken off the industry to the amount of $1.18 per cord. He stated that money was in too few hands. The warden is one of the youngest members of the County Council and has been since his entry into that body eight years ago.

2 Pairs of Lambs Born in Three Months

On March 15th, a ewe belonging to Fred Anderson, R.R. No. 2, Frankford, gave birth to a pair of lambs which she raised. On June 10th, the same ewe gave birth to another pair of fine, healthy lambs.

Farmers say this is very unusual.

WORLD WIDE COMMUNION

VATICAN CITY, June 13.—(AP).—Pope Pius today decreed a world-wide communion of Roman Catholic children August 15th, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the decree of Pope Pius X. permitting children seven years of age and older to make their first communion.

GUARD BEZANT ACTED AS ESCORT

This Information Secured at Probe Being Held in Kingston

Kingston, Ont., June 13.—(CP)—The name of guard Wilfred Bezant had been given to him by Inspector J. D. Dawson, as an official from whom a statement should be obtained relative to Dr. A. G. Hall, Warden R. M. Allen of Kingston penitentiary told J. C. McIlraer today during the Macphail investigation.

Indications were this would probably be the last day of the hearing into the charges that, in an interview with Hall, then a convict in the penitentiary, Dawson had used abusive language in reference to Miss Agnes Macphail M. P.

Hall has stated this interview took place April 9, 1934, in the Administration Building of the penitentiary and he had been taken there under escort by guard W. J. Sands. Efforts have been made to break down Hall's evidence in this respect, and yesterday Dawson called guard Sands who swore it was not he, who had been Hall's escort.

Immediately after, guard Bezant took the stand and testified he was the official who had acted as escort Bezant's evidence was supported by guard W. H. Godwin, in a statement which, last week, corrected a previous statement made by the same official.

HYDRO
GUARDIAN OF YOUR SAFETY

Illustrated are two of the numerous codings used on electrical devices that have passed inspection by the H.E.P.C.

Hydro's Seal of Approval is Your Seal of Safety

DID you know that every electrical appliance or device must be approved by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission Testing and Inspection Department before it may be offered for sale in Ontario? This Department is not concerned with the quality or price of a product but it is concerned with making every piece of electrical equipment as free of hazard as scientific knowledge and highly-trained technicians can make them.

For instance, the common switch socket with which you turn on your light, is set in a machine which works the switch 6,000 times. Then if it's still in perfect condition, it is given the H.E.P.C. Seal of Approval. This is just one of hundreds of tests to which all kinds of electrical devices are subjected. Precision and thoroughness are part of every operation in Hydro's Testing and Inspection Department, whose laboratory is one of the best in the world.

Whether you are at home or on the street, whether in street cars or church or theatre—wherever you may be in a zone of electricity—Hydro's Seal of Approval is protecting you.

HOT WATER instantly

Safety is a feature of the "Hot-Water-Instantly" Water Heater. The reliability of her vessels are so obvious they need only be mentioned to create the desire for one. And when you see an Electric water heater, you can learn why Hydro Electric Power Commission has no accident toll beside it. Ask your dealer about the "Hot-Water-Instantly" Heater. It means you of safety. Hydro's seal plan for all of your electrical equipment.

THE WEDDING

CHAPTER FIFTY-NINE

The promise of the moon had grown. The sky was clear when Joyce awoke the next day. Red maple leaves falling against a soft blue sky. Early morning sunlight turning the raindrops to rainbow prisms as they hung quivering on the shrubs. All of the world seemed glad today.

As she dressed in a broadcloth suit—a severely expensive thing of last browns and deep creams, Joyce studied her reflection anxiously—so anxious was she to appear her best for Jim! Out of the depths of the glass a downcast, silent girl looked back at her—her eyes—her face, but with something more added. A sweeter, tremulous curve to that full mouth—a warm, happy light, turning her eyes to dark violet. Happiness had touched her like a magic wand. She was vital, alert as she had not been for years.

For a moment her mind went back to that other impetuous marriage she had made. . . . The grey hotel—the stuffy red plush chairs and musty hangings. The grey room and the three grey old men. . . .

Her hand went out and lingered for a moment on the silver frame which held a photograph of Roger Cameron. It had been taken at Nice—a snapshot, enlarged, for he had an aversion to smiling for his portrait. The steel-sharp eyes in the picture looked deep into her own and the girl stood for a long moment talking to him in her mind.

"Please understand, Roger. You—Money isn't so much, after all . . . If you could look in my heart, you'd be glad for me! . . ."

She walked out of the door, knowing that she did so for the last time. Kitty would attend to the last of the packing and would follow them out west in a few days.

Down the stairs to the lower hall for the last time! For the last time! Her heart was singing. This great grey house, dropping away like a stone, leaving her strangely light, happily buoyant. She stepped out on the porch into the sunshine—and into Jim's arms as he came up the outer stairs.

"Hah, wench! I've caught you! Trying to run away from me, aren't you—" He held her fast, his dark eyes burning down into her own, belying his laughing words. "Hah! So my hunch was right. You'd take the altar today and make an honest man of me!"

Her laugh matched his own, but she closed here eyes so that he would not see the sudden fast rising of tears.

"They were married in the white frame church standing behind the row of shaggy yew trees. And Joyce knew she would remember that day years ago, when shabby little Joyce Jones had watched Nadine Farrell on in white voile ruffles and patent leather slippers go hand in hand here.

Maddy was unexpectedly discovered waiting among the dusty pews all the glory of her best velour coat and a new hat. The Hunday Hall had been parted at neighbor's for safe keeping. Maddy looked pale and damply romantic, who whispered distractedly through her tears as she kissed her cousin, "I just had to come and see you married—and thank you for all those lovely clothes you sent down yesterday—and oh, Joy, I don't know what to do with you away—but isn't he the most goodlooking thing you ever saw—and so think it was you all the time, and Nadine Cameron like we thought.

Maddy wept happily all through the simple ceremony and hugged Joyce vigorously immediately after. "You were the most beautiful thing—but I wanted you to wear white satin and a veil and look like a bride-y."

Over Maddy's thin shoulder Joyce's eyes met Jim's gaze, and there was a tender mischief dancing in them which should have pleased her cousin.

"I don't need white satin, Maddy." There was a little shake through the words. . . . "Broadcloth feels soft when you've been wearing sackcloth so long!"

"An' do you know—" Maddy was on that night across the dinner table to her bodifferently interested husband, "I don't believe the thought ever crept into about all the money she was giving up. Why, just the way she looked at him . . . Gee!"

Through busy cities and tree smothered towns—each astonishing-ly like Riverton—the train roared on its way. . . .

Through the green cozy berth Joyce lay in a dreary fog, her head that stretched on all sides to the shimmering horizon. Powerful as a flood dust crept through apparently airtight windows, accidental its gray pall indiscriminately over pleasant-faced strangers. The cities gave way to small wooden towns, treeless and dusty. From the high platforms of the stations, long dust covered men stared through sun squinted eyes at the passengers.

"Think you can stand it, Joyy?" asked Jim, and the dark eyes were very serious as he watched her through the smoke of his cigarette.

She did the answer to that. Her lips smiled, but there was that in her eyes which showed the man to cover her hands with his own, caressingly. "My wife might ask you!"

At one such unlovely town they left the train, Joyce and Jim lovers looking almost superciliously aloof and alien where the porter had placed it on the wooden platform.

But there was nothing superciliously aloof in the eager way the Joyce turned on her surroundings. Like a frontier town, Jim. I bet it's like the herding in a western melo-drama! I love it!"

"And I love you, you good kid!" he whispered. "Have Benik—don't turn the poor man's head! that hard crust of his severe a writer of sentimentality!"

Cunningsby Bemis himself, grinning healthily from behind the wheel of a rusty flivver touring car.

"And this is Little Aspen," Jim went on, laying one hand on the rusty radiator. "We've named her that because she trembles so. Your new town car—Joyce! Anytime you feel a hankering for fat fleshpots you may drive Aspen to town—always providing she is of the same mind, of course . . ."

Jim was smiling, but there was a covert anxiety in his gaze.

Little Aspen shivered her way through the town. The station—The Rockwell—Garage—The Rockwell Emporium which was at the same time the post office and the real estate office—The Rockwell Dress store and Barber Shop. Evidently this was the town of Rockwell.

"We have movies twice a week—some weeks. Also ice cream, on all but the hottest days. The public library is upstairs over the grocery store—they have nearly all of Harold Bell Wright and some of Edgar Wallace."

Jim's playful words had a bitter edge. Joyce was looking around with wide eyes; displaying more animation than she had given to Shanghai or to the ship, although she missed the sharp way he was eyeing her.

It was getting toward sundown. Bemis seemed driving the many little machine straight into the western sky. The straggling streets of the town, the squat houses throwing long wavering shadows, fell behind. Before them stretched the country bisected by the dusty road. Long, rolling, grassy stretches as solitary as though they were on another planet.

Perched on the back seat with Jim, jammed in among her expensive luggage which seemed to sneer at the shabby leather cushions, Joyce watched as eagerly as a child for the first glimpse of the farmhouse.

She saw it—bulking against the sky—a two story frame house gaunt and weather beaten. The sun curtained windows looking like so many black eyes watching her approach.

"Well . . ." Jim ran his tongue over his lips, his face seemed sharp cut; his eyes had narrowed as one who expects a blow. "Well . . . we're here."

Joyce turned her face to him, vivid—alive. She gave his arm an ecstatic squeeze as he started to get out of the car. "Isn't it fun, getting home!" she whispered.

THE LAST CRUCKLE

CHAPTER SIXTY

The porch of the ranch house was high and unrailed. A rustic board affair that looked across miles of hard brown plain to the sharp blue-canyoned mountains on the horizon. A ragged wall of mountains . . . Joyce never grew tired of looking at them. In early dawn they swam in opal and pearl mists. At noon they were hard and blue. At night they took on every tone of azure and rose madder.

Just now they were almost artificially clear in the sharp afternoon light. Joyce had dropped in the high-backed, unpainted rocker to rest for a moment, and as she did her gaze had gone out to the horizon.

She could see a solitary rider come along the road that led to town, first a small figure moving against the brown plain and the hard light of the sky. Long before he came in hailing distance she knew, by the way he rode, that it was Jim.

He waved at her as he rode through the gate, and she saw that he had brought the mail out from the town. He flung it to her lap as he bent and kissed her. "Two letters and three papers. Well—" a knowing look at her pallid and fed-up face, "how is my calico bride? Is this the mournful and stylish Mrs. Cameron of Park and Shanghai?"

"Don't be catty!" she wrinkled her nose at him happily. "This is poor Mrs. Keith, the overworked grudge of a western ranch. I've been helping her clean out the preserve closet. Kitty started to help us, and Cunningsby Bemis, called her away—to show her there was a lesser blazing light! Who doesn't know a horse saddle from a hole in the ground! And who wouldn't get on a horse's back for God nor man! Now, I ask you what could be more touching than young love?"

Jim's face showed white in his dark face. "It looks like a hard case, those two, doesn't it? You know Kitty knocked old Con for a goal the first time he saw her. Seems she was lying Mrs. Cameron out cold, and it made a hit with Kitty. She's a sucker for a woman with spirit. When these old bachelors get it they take it bad, don't they?"

"You should know," his wife said meaningfully.

"Yep. I guess Con and I are marking men! You got your man and it looks like Kitty's on her way. I'm not sure what we should have engraved announcements, Joyy! Kitty Cameron to Cunningsby Arthur — Lord Bemis—"

"Jim! He'll really!"

He nodded carelessly. "Sure, didn't you know that? He dropped his little title here in Alberta. Claims here to live and because naturalists in Jim Bill Bemis, Mrs. Cameron would be the same I trust!"

"Kitty—Lady Bemis. . . ." Joyce tried it dreamily and rejoiced. "It's Arthurian! You think of Kitty outranking her socially . . . Dear old Kitty! She'll be quite blooming into a belated but robust rose of romance."

Joyce sat for a moment, rocking in the sun, smiling faintly, flushed, lit sitting here, lazily admiring Jim's tall, slim figure sitting on the top step at her feet.

Then she picked up the letters in her lap.

One from Maddy—she recognized the round, childlike handwriting. At the sight of the other, a little exclamation burst from her. A Riverton postmark, and in the top return address of Lloyd Weaver, Esq. The old attorney himself had written a short note.

"The enclosed letter was left by Roger Cameron to be given you in the event of your marriage. Personal illness has delayed its being sent before."

Wonderingly she looked at the enclosed sealed envelope, addressed in the writing she remembering so well. . . .

"From Roger . . . " there was a breathless catch in her voice. Upsetting to get a letter from the dead. Unattractive. . . . She slipped from the rocker and sat down on the top step with the letter resting slowly against him, as though she drew comfort from the contact.

"Dear Joyce— " A strange and conventional way to hail one from beyond the dead. . . .

"As I sit and write this it strikes me that your eyes may never see it. More strange than that, is the thought that I will hang ceased to be, if you do see it. . . .

Hard to think that—on a day like this . . . with the blue water, and the hot sunshine, and the white sand of the Lido . . . You and Kitty and Jim just come from a swim. I can see you down there on the beach, a lovely, slim thing in blue, with your wonderful hair hanging loose about your shoulders. I wonder if you know how much your beauty has meant to me, Joyce? I can write it, but I can't tell you——I used to dream of some beautiful, gentle being like you when I was a very young boy. You have looked around just here, as though you felt my eyes upon you, and waved.

I smiled and waved, and I have gone on writing. Strange that I should be writing this . . .

Today I made my will and sent it on to my old friend, Lloyd Weaver, in Riverton. You see, I know I won't last much longer. The engine is wearing out. It has been travel—the interest and youth that you brought me, which has kept me this long.

I made my will perhaps think a strange will—and an unfair one. I left you my estate only (providing you do not marry for five years.

I did this for you, my dear. Your beauty and my money would be a direct lure to attract every fortune hunter in the country. I am a farmer who erects a scarecrow to guard his choicest fruit. I want to frighten them away . . . But if there should be a man who loves you for yourself—as you deserve to be loved, a man big enough to fling over the money for the greater treasure of your love—then, my dear, you know that I am conscioussness beyond the grave—that I am happy in your happiness.

And this letter—which will never be sent to you unless you have flung over the money and married, comes to tell you that I have made another and a later will than the one Lloyd Weaver will have on file. I enclose this will — duly witnessed. It gives you all my estate, all the estate except the small portion which which I left to Dora and Natalie.

If you are unhappy in this outrageous marriage of yours — this will help you to get free. If you are happy it will help you both to further your plans. In either of these events —and it is difficult to try to plan the ruins of the future — you will know that love and my blessing go with this letter.

The sudden handwriting—showing the feebleness which was creeping upon the old man when then, swam into a blur through the tears which thus miraculously came back to her. Jim thought of that tenderly later on, and he was glad that it was so.

"Poor dear . . . poor dear . . . he really loved me . . . He'd be glad—oh, I'm so glad!"

In that first moment this thought outweighing the fact of the money in Joyce's eyes.

She looked around into Jim's deep gaze. . . .

"Jim . . . Jim, he really loved me. . . . It wasn't just to spite Cora Cameron, I . . . He really loved me—oh, I'm so glad!"

Joyce was whispering it softly under her breath, and her eyes had looked far out to the mountains, that were beginning to take on the opalescent tints of evening.

And if—as Roger Cameron had said in his letter—love was compassion beyond the grave, there was the shade of an old man who must have been normally happy.

ASK FOR Kellogg's

Every package of Corn Flakes we have ever made had the name Kellogg's on the package

THERE is no such thing as a package of corn flakes made by Kellogg and sold under another name. If you are ever told that a substitute brand is "the same as Kellogg's" or "made in the Kellogg factory," the statement is false—a deliberate attempt to palm off an inferior product.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes have won their undisputed place as the world's leading ready-to-eat cereal because they are the best corn flakes made.

From the selection of the fine white corn and other ingredients that produce Kellogg's matchless flavor—straight through the immaculate kitchens and great, shining ovens to the final packaging —purity and quality are the first considerations.

If you are ever in the vicinity of London, Ontario, we cordially invite you to visit the Kellogg factory. After such a visit you will appreciate—as thousands of other housewives have—the extra value that makes Kellogg's Corn Flakes outstanding.

Ask your grocer for Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—in the red-and-green package. Quality guaranteed. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

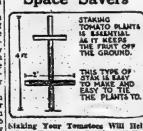
WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

You must have noticed how often rich salad dressings, sugary desserts and other fattening foods have been served to you at dinner parties or afternoon bridge sessions. Hostesses seem to think it obligatory to serve rich meals where guests are concerned, although they might be a bit stricter at other times. Not when preparing their own meals.

The hostess if she be thoughtful, will prepare the meal for her guests with as much care as for herself, be calories are, after all, a bugaboo to almost every woman and if she has to think of her figure you can't expect her to enjoy your dinner or luncheon if it's packed with sugar, butter and cream.

The gardener has the edge on other women when this question of calories comes up, for she has the materials to make excellent "thinking" meals, and usually knows how to do so. Growing these meals in the home garden is, of course, the better way, because they are always available, and never wilted or tasteless.

A whole meal may be served with a minimum of calories, and never a thing will be missed. Here is an example, and if you sit down to figure it out, you will find many like it:



Bouillon
Celery Radishes
Chicken Croquets with Fried Apples
Combination Salad
Strawberry Fluff
Black Coffee

If you figure out the number of calories in the above meal you will find them surprisingly few. A large portion of cream and sugar in the coffee, and a rich salad dressing will add considerable, but coffee is just as well taken black, and but a little dressing is needed.

Celery, radishes, lettuce, cabbage, tomatoes, and many other garden foods are extremely low in calories, and should be eaten in quantities, without too much fat or starch in the dressing. For the leaf vegetables, such as celery and cabbage, use a vinegar or lemon dressing. Eat tomatoes with nothing but a little salt; they are best that way, and are one of the most healthy foods.

Toasted crackers make a good substitute for hot rolls. Asparagus is a good hot vegetable with a small amount of calories. Rich soups can be substituted with bouillon, or a thin soup can be filled with vegetables and little fat meat.

INCENDIARISM SUSPECTED

Brockville, Ont., June 12 (CP)—Incendiarism is suspected in connection with an outbreak of fire early today in a vacant house in the north end of the town owned by Mrs. Alice Flaro. Fire Chief John Hartley said the odor of coal oil was obvious when firemen entered the building, damage to which was small.

DIAMOND JUBILEE IS OBSERVED

The diamond jubilee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was filled with meaning when the Foxboro Presbyterian church Sunday morning. There was a large attendance. Special music was given by the choir, including a solo by Miss Verna Pearcock. The minister Rev. D. O. Hill reviewed the sixty years which the church had passed through and declared it was now entering on a period of greater usefulness than it had ever known in the past. Both by its doctrine, which set forth God in His Majesty as the only sufficient help for men and women and by its form of government, based on scripture and appealing to people brought up in traditions of ordered freedom it was peculiarly fitted to meet the needs of Canada.

Monday evening, under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Society a Diamond Jubilee birthday party was held. A cake with sixty candles was at the head of the table. Three charter members of the congregation, Mrs. John Jaques, Mrs. James Lake and Mrs. Isaac Cey, lit the candles and the gathering sang a verse of "Faith of Our Father."

Then the main part of the programme was a debate between the Young Peoples' Society of the Foxboro Church and the Sons of the Kirk of St. Peter's Church, Madoc. Upholding the affirmative of "Resolved that Canada should contribute to the cost of Imperial defense," Madoc, represented by Mr. Burris and Mr. Edwards gained the victory. The Foxboro debaters were Messrs Grant Longwell and Colin Donald. The judges were Mrs. Robson, Miss Mac-Inroy and Miss Ketcheson. This birthday party wound up the active Young Peoples' Society for the season of the Foxboro Presbyterian son.

Blossom Queen of The Annapolis Valley

When it's Apple Blossom time in Annapolis Valley, then the happy residents of this beautiful Nova Scotian district, choose themselves a queen. This year it is Miss Margaret Messenger of Bridgetown, N. S., shown above, wearing her regal crown. Miss Messenger ruled the annual Apple Blossom carnival at Kentville, N.S., and she will represent Canada at the Imperial Fruit Show in Cardiff, Wales, next October.

Daily Short Story

Eyes That See

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Her arm was in the arm of another girl, and she was standing smilingly as if she was having a jolly good time. Ben Honiger noticed her from the other end of the ballroom. He looked at her intently.

"Sweet," he thought to himself, "that describes her. Sweet, Gentle and refined and charming and — great."

So he went round the ballroom to get close to her. He saw an acquaintance of his approach the two girls, exchange a few words and pass on. He acted him.

"Introduce me to them," he asked. The acquaintance conversed. "Grace Hanson and Evelyn Mooregan." "Miss Mooregan." All three shook hands. There was a set of angular man-ner in which Evelyn Mooregan stretched her hand forth. But Ben Honiger grasped it as eagerly. That smile of hers was positively divine!

"That name of yours is a bit difficult to remember," smoked Ben. "Guess I'll have to call you Goodnight. At least that's how you impress me."

Evelyn laughed and her tone was musical and endearing. "If your memory is that bad—maybe you ought to stick to Evelyn," she replied.

The music started and Ben and Evelyn set out. It was an ordinary dance band that was playing. But strangely to Ben it seemed as if it had been inspired with a new mood. The music was languorous, dulcet, catching. It seemed to him as if he had never enjoyed a dance so much. She was like a swaying reed, supple and rhythmic.

At the close of the dance, she placed her arm in his and leaned gently against him. It was something unusual in the way she had done—something dependent. Ben could not exactly explain it. He walked and she followed still clinging to his arm. They sat down and began to talk.

Beauty and Brains

He was in for more surprises. Beauty and brains—he had had the experience before—do not mix. But Evelyn showed an adept in conversation as on the dance floor. She was bright and gay and seemed to know what was going on in the wide world.

The music started forth and he led her out again. He felt the same dependence leaning against him. He knew that he had been utterly swept away by her. Love at first sight—and growing every minute.

The numbers wound up—much too soon for both of them—and they sat down and the music approached.

"I dated up the next dance for you," she said to Evelyn. Evelyn smiled the same enchanting smile. "You will excuse me," she said to Ben. "Certainly," replied Ben with a bang. Then he turned to Grace. "How about you?"

"Oh, I'm not fancy free—for the next number," she replied.

Before the number was on, he found another opportunity to talk with Evelyn. He asked her for her address and phone. She gave it to him with the usual flirtatious remark: "Oh, but you don't know anything about me yet." Later she remembered that it did not sound quite as glib coming out of her mouth.

But the thing that hurt him most as he recollected the evening's proceedings in his home later that night was that she apparently thought little of him and had not asked him for his address or where he lived or what he did.....

Cupid's Mark

But close upon Cupid's arrow finds a mark—so logic prevails. Ben Honiger swallowed his pride easily. Within two days, he phoned her. She greeted him with the same charming voice. He repeated the invitation and she agreed. But she invited him to dinner at her home first.

He found there a semi-invalid mother and a younger brother and sister. The father, she explained, was away for several months. He was an engineer and had been sent out West by the company to supervise the construction of a new dam. Soon Evelyn was in the kitchen bending over the pots. She was apparently doing the cooking.

He stepped into the living room and talked to the family. They seemed to be treating him with unusual cordiality. He took this unanimosity as a good sign. Soon Evelyn called out that dinner was ready and they rose in and sat down. The younger children ate the olives and cleared the table.

Not once did they step into the street when she again took his arm. He felt a rush of warmth through his body when she did so—a dependant leaning. He summoned a text call and she stumbled across what getting into it.

In the lobby of the theatre she again held his arm. For a moment he slipped out and he noticed her standing alone, as if waiting for him to come back. She clung to him until they sat down in their seats and during the intermissions preferred to remain seated.

It was during the intermission that he got a chance to speak about himself. She let him, or, perhaps led him on. But he felt she was interested. Besides, she ought to be—he reasoned—because of what he planned later. He had made up his mind to propose to her on the way back.....

It was not quite so simple a thing to do on so short an acquaintance. However, her manner of holding his arm with ever so light a pressure eased his burden. For she did it even in the taxicab.

But when he whispered finally the burden of his heart, she did not respond. He was surprised at her silence. He whispered—as is the way of all vocal men in love. She still kept silent. He pressed her for a reply.

"Love may be blind," she said coquettishly. Then—"Wait till we reach home, at least."

Although the trip was only a matter of minutes, it appeared endless to him. Finally they reached their destination. He led him into the house, switched the lights on, and then led him into her bedroom.

"Look about," she said.

He looked about. There were books on a nearby table. He looked closer. They were in braille. In a corner of the room was some basket weaving work.

"What does it mean," he asked.

"It means," she replied, "that you have proposed to a girl who, while somewhat different from the rest of humanity, is a girl who lacks one of the faculties considered necessary to existence—although personally do not feel it so badly, as you have learned by now. It means that I am—blind."

Tears welled in her sightless eyes. He took her hands in his.

"You are the gamest girl I ever met. As to what you think you gain—no one can tell it from the way you act, I suppose the proper thing for me to say is that I am glad of your guide. But it won't be true, my life will still be guided by yours—if you agree."

She put her arms around him. "I must call my mother at once," she laughed between tears. "You are compromising me here."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was lighting his cigar with a satisfied expression, and ma said, Now, William, I hope you are going to report itself as far as I am concerned. I mean I always make last nite long scarcely closing consecutive days listening to the water dripping from the faucet in the bathroom. So you'd better get busy before you're forced to live in dreadfully comfortable and go and lighten it or homes is or whatever it needs to stop leaking, she said.

It seems to me there's something homelike and comforting about the sound of a faucet cheerfully drip drip dripping, poo said. Why don't you give it one more trial? It will be an excellent chance to practice that Hindoo fillosophy you were telling me about. For looking at it mite imagine that the dripping is the genits patter of rain on the window panes. What could be more sooging, and you know what the poet says: Pitter patter genits rain, so each and every window pane. You make my cares and troubles fly, you are my favorite lullaby pop said.

You could of had it done by this time, and the paneful future would now be the happy present, ma said, and pop said, Or you mite imagine that each separate drip is a shiep following mother sheep over a hill everybody knows that's an infallible way of counting shiep.

All rite, I will, I'll try it, ma said. I'll know what I'm about it's nasking the gassly sound without going to the trouble if imagining anything else but I'll try to imagine it's rain and I'll try to imagine it's sheep, and I'll let you be informed to repay you for your intrist. I'll wake you up regularly every half hour to tell you I'm still trying, if it takes till 8 in the morning, which it proberly no doubt will she said, and pop said, I'll fix it, yes goda, I'll fix it.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED—

Throughout the night, Tarzan led the way back to the hut in the apes' country. Soon after escaping the cannibals, Tu-lag and the other apes swung into the trees and vanished. Tarzan was disturbed. How he was to get rid of the man and girl, he could not imagine.

A freak of fate had thrown these three radically different types together. One was a savage, almost naked beast-man, one an English army officer, and the woman was she whom the ape-man knew and hated as a Red spy. Through the jungle Tarzan made his way easily.

More and more difficult it became for Lieutenant Cecil and Olga to keep up with him. At last Impatiently, without speaking, Tarzan picked up the girl and Cecil, astonished, saw him climb high, swing lightly through the branches, and disappear, leaving the white man puzzled and deserted.

"The night's strange happenings left Roger Cecil thoroughly mystified. In the excitement of this rescue from the cannibals, he had not seen the woman closely. "Doubtless she belonged to the wild man," he thought, "and neither of them cares now what becomes of me!"

Equalization Remains Same as Last Year for Hastings County

Council Accepts Report of Committee on The Matter

At the opening of Wednesday afternoon session of the County Council Mrs. T. Hilliard, wife of a member of the Victorian Order of Nurses in this city and county, was introduced by the members relative to a grant to the Order.

Miss Bronson in opening remarks said she came to Belleville years ago as a nurse for the Order, and she appreciated the opportunity of addressing the Council briefly the workings of the Victorian Order of Nurses. The service in Canada, she said, is praiseworthy, lacking other many who are ill. The nurses go into the home to help those who are ill. Many, where services are necessary, are unable to pay. The object of their visit to the council was to make a request for a grant. The nurses make visits two miles outside of the city of Belleville. Miss Bronson cited a case where a patient left the hospital and declined to go home. Then physicians urged and allowed the patient to go home, when it was ascertained, that a nurse of the Victorian Order of Nurses would pay a visit to the home daily during the convalescence of the patient. In concluding her remarks the speaker made another appeal for a grant.

Mrs. T. Hilliard said if the council would give any assistance it would be much appreciated by the Order.

Warden Bronson stated the request for a grant would be referred to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration.

Fire Sprague

Mr. J. Carson asked the Council relative to the placing of an electric fire sprague in the Hastings County Jail. The appliance could be connected with the fire hose bells in the city. It was also anticipated such an alarm system would be installed in the city hospital at the same time. It had been recommended by the inspector's report.

Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

Hillcrest at Airport

A resolution was read from Mr. W. H. Thompson, M.P., for South Hastings relative to the proposed Hillcrest along the airport on Highway No. 2, Sidney Township. The Department of Defence would provide all labor for same and also bear a portion of other expenses. The Provincial Government would bear the expense of 3,500 barrels of cement and the National Department of Defence would also provide the remainder of the cement if it was needed.

On motion received and filed.

A letter of thanks was tendered to the Council for a grant to the Salvation Army of the city.

Road Reports

After the reading of a communication from the Provincial Department of Education as to entrance to Victoria and coat of arms, Mr. H. J. Chevrier, School Inspector for South Hastings, was requested to speak to the council.

Mr. Clarke stated that under new regulations the cost to the County would be approximately $100 as against $280 and $300 in former years. The presiding officer and secretary, neither do the examiners. Cost is negligible to many pupils in the county as they will receive it on the recommendation of the teacher. The examiners scrutinize the papers and pass judgment on same.

Reports

The Grand Jury's report presented at the June session of the County Court held this week was read. It recommended a few improvements to be made about the court house. Ordered to be filed.

The agricultural and advisory committee of the Council presented a report of a meeting held along the January session, which recommended the grant of $50 be made to Belleville Agricultural Society, a grant of $100 to each fall fair held in the County and a grant of $15 to the Junior Club of the County, said grant to be under the supervision of Mr. J. Wilson of Stirling, the County's agricultural representative.

This report was referred to the Ways and means committee.

A report was presented by Mr. Geo. W. Rush, Deputy Reeve of Sidney and Chairman of the House of Refuge committee. It gave in detail the expenditures since the January session of the Council, referred to the ways and means committee. It showed an expenditure of $4,831.57.

Report on Equalization

The report of the special committee appointed on equalization was presented by Mr. T. A. Weir. It was anticipated there might have been some discussion on the report, but it was unanimously adopted at the conclusion of its presentation. The equalization of the various municipalities in the County is the same as last year, being as follows:

A by-law to establish the assessment of the local municipalities in the county for 1935.

A by-law to establish the village of Bancroft a High School district.

Council adjourned until Thursday morning.

SPECIAL MUSIC AT STIRLING CHURCH

Stirling—On Sunday evening, June 9th, a large congregation of members and friends gathered in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for a service of unusual interest. Preceding the regular hour of worship, special musical concert of selected selections was given by the Salvation Army Band of Belleville. The Church was well filled with music lovers from many parts of the district who heartily enjoyed the fine manner in which each number was rendered. The various vocal and instrumental numbers given by the visitors were announced by Sgt. Maj. Hart who also read the scripture lesson for the service. Each number given was either composed or arranged by some member of the Salvation Army in different parts of the world. The forty-five minute concert began at 7.30 and the following numbers given in their respective order:

Montreal Citadel March—By the entire Band.

Vocal Chorus—By the Male Voices.

Selection (Joyous Echoes)—Band and Vocal Chorus.

Vocal selection—Male chorus of the band.

Cornet Duet—Deputy Bandmaster and Band Secretary.

Meditation (For You I Am Praying)—The entire Band.

Hymn tune (Abide With Me)—Played by the band with the congregation joining.

Rev. J. A. Koffend delivered an excellent sermon on the subject, "Clouds about rains", "Like the prodigal son of old we need only to admit our guilt and we may enter into the joy of the greatest companionship in the life of man," stated Mr. Koffend. "This is a day when the spirit of adventure prevails, great projects about to be put into some exciting venture are besieged with letters from young folks pleading for the opportunity to have a part in it. To live a truly Christian life is the greatest adventure of all. It provides the thrill of opposition and accomplishment which is far beyond that to be gained through material fame. Success is not easily attained which makes it all the more worth the while."

This very fine service was attended by the largest congregation that has gathered in St. Andrew's church for sometime and the fine music provided by the band under the capable direction of its leader and the message brought by Rev. J. A. Koffend were both helpful and inspiring.

Miss Gladys Yorke of Corbyville is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith of Toronto spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Smith's parents Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Chambers. Mrs. Chambers who has been visiting at Toronto for the past month returned home with them.

TWO STUDENTS' CRITICISM STIRS

Professor Tells Assembly Movement May Split Church

(By Harold J. Fair)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Montreal, June 13 (CP)— Threat of the Presbyterian Church being split from coast to coast unless action was taken to stop a movement he alleged two former students started in criticism of teaching in Presbyterian College was held out to the General Assembly Wednesday, by Prof. Harvey-Jellie of the college staff.

Following Rev. W. G. Brown of Saskatoon, Sask., who pressed for re-examination of the college's teaching in the light of modern conditions, Prof. Harvey-Jellie labelled the address as "specious" and calculated to mislead.

Called Obstructionists

Branding the students, whose names he did not reveal, as "obscurantists" and "obstructionists" participating in the debate on the Board of Education report which found no reason for recommending an inquiry into teaching in the colleges.

The Saskatoon Presbytery's proposal involved closing Knox College, Toronto and Presbyterian College, Montreal, for one month or taking other action which would terminate private agreements. It asked for a special board in college appointments to supervise staffs pending approval by the church's assembly of the teaching staff.

"I resent displacement and examination by an inquisition," said the professor.

Spies on Orthodoxy

"Three years ago, he said, two boys came to the college "as spies on our orthodoxy."

He charged they extracted pieces from lectures of professors and "hurled these together in a document which he termed "disgraceful."

In committee of the whole, the assembly heard the report of the special committee investigating a proposal to increase powers of presbyteries.

Debate was over the proposal to allow synods to collect funds for fallen synods or to collect funds themselves in the bounds of the synod collecting the money as a supplement to the grants made by the home boards.

The motion contemplated no creation of new machinery for or field offices, declared Rev. Dr. Stuart Parker, of Toronto, chairman of the committee.

After considerable argument the recommendation allowing synod collection of funds was passed.

FEAR 1000 DEAD IN MUNITIONS EXPLOSION

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Sioux Falls, S.D. June 14 (CP) — An unemployed Canadian farmer with a razor blade inherited from a cigar shaper was charged with saving the life of Patrick Lee Fleege, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fleege.

Apparently shocked on a foreign assignment, the girl was rescued unless when Dr. Gregory J. W. Urbahn examined her yesterday. The cigar stopper was the only instrument available.

Des Moines, Ia., June 4 (CP) — The motion on the witness stand produced Judge Ralph L. Fowler, Dowell planned all his suicide and said:

"I really must go now."

"Without another word the Judge 'obliged'.

Bang, bang and dide wail for no man. And the dark, it seems, wails for no man—or woman."

Pittsburgh, June 14 (CP)—The police have been "tagging" for many years Twaffle Raffenbeak Fred C. Bear, with some 50,000 "dicks" on his hands, is shooting for help. He asked city council yesterday to tell the police to "leave Fred alone" so he can get the necessary clerks to handle the tags, some of which have been piling up since last year.

Smith's Falls, Ont., June 14 — (CP)—Supply of bricks and boards here is rapidly diminishing. The latest to succumb to have the hardest head in the world is daily observing friends to splinter two-inch boards on his head. For the past week he has been by diving head first to the pavement and running full speed at brick walls.

Oshawa, June 14 (CP)—Minister of National Defence Mackenzie is receiving congratulations and telegraphic messages on his 60th birthday. He was born at Lindsay, Ont., in 1871.

Westport Mass., June 14 (CP) — Three year old Henry F. Whalen was killed Thursday by a pet, a German shepherd dog.

Windsor, June 14 — The magistrate went to a chicken yard where the animal was tied. The dog escaped by sinking and tearing his throat. Henry's mother was unable to reason on used to his father shot the dog. Henry died before a doctor arrived.

Norwich, June 14 (CP)—While digging in a field a farmer unearthed the leg and knee bones of what is believed to be a human prehistoric man. The bone bone is 30 inches in circumference. The knee cap is where the knee to the foot is 21 inches long. It is expected the remainder under his direction will begin in the next few days in an effort to find remainder of the skeleton if it is there.

Three Forks, Mont. June 14 — (CP) — Ten-year-old Jeanette, "rode the cowboy" to town today as he mounted his homeward trip to Chicago. For saving the lives of two children marooned by flood waters by riding a tow salt and free transportation to his home was the reward.

When a Northern Pacific freight train rolled off a flood-undermined trestle near Kappleton, Mont., and dislodged him from his perch "on the rods," Whitney Jerard Hiveness, William Jerard and hood brakeman Martin Johnson were trapped by mud and water in the submerged cab. With his bare hands, he dug furiously in the mud and cold water and he pulled out the imprisoned trainmen.

Mid-Air Accident Injures 3 Badly

Washington, June 14—(U. P.)—Airline officials today described a mid-air accident in which three persons were injured, two seriously, as one of the most unusual in aviation history.

A Chicago-bound Pennsylvania airliner with nine passengers and two pilots struck an air "pocket" near Hagerstown, Ferry, Va., 75 miles west of here, at a height of 2,000 feet. The air "pocket" flipped the plane on its side.

The pilots, Jack Rides and F. J. Ulatzwuller, both of Cleveland, narrowly averted a crash. They brought the plane back to Washington. An ambulance carried the injured to emergency hospital.

George F. Zimmel, Washington attorney, was reported in a critical condition. Homer Byrd, 27, of Arlington Heights, Ill., suffered a serious spine injury. W. S. Stern, 43, of Chicago, was released after treatment for bruises.

SUICIDE MOTIVE SEEN IN DEATH OF THOS. V. DACK

Shoe-Repairer Found in Basement Dead of Head Wound

BULLET IN CHEST

Spell of Despondency Believed to Blame For Rash Act

Thomas V. Dack, shoe repairer, 43, Sinclair Street, was found lying dead in a pool of blood on the floor in the basement of his home today with a .38 calibre revolver not far from his right hand. A bullet which had pierced the head had caused paralysis and death, according to Coroner Dr. F. O. Wallbridge who investigated and declared an inquest unnecessary as all evidence pointed to suicide.

Two bullets had entered the body. The first had been fired into the chest evidently taking little effect, and the second was fired through the right temple.

Neighbor's Discovery

This gruesome discovery was made about 8 o'clock by Mrs. Dack's next-door neighbour, George Hilarcy of 97 Catharine Street, who had entered the Dack home, where Dack conducted a shoe repairing shop in the basement, to have a shoe repaired. Mr. Hilarcy walked in a side door and proceeded downstairs to the Dack's shoe shop, but was met with the sight of finding the body of his neighbor slouched over lying on his right side and in a pool of blood.

Police and Coroner Dr. F. O. Wallbridge were notified and upon investigation the coroner expressed the opinion that suicide had been the cause of death. The bullet which entered Mr. Dack's head just over the right temple penetrated through the skull and emerging on the opposite side of the head embedding in an empty barrel nearby. The bullet that was apparently fired into the chest had embedded in the barrel by Detective Fred Izard, who was assisted in the investigation by P. C. Taylor.

Two Shells Found

Two shells had been exploded from the revolver found lying near the body. One of the bullets, the one which pierced the brain, was found imbedded in the barrel nearby, having passed through one of the staves and dropping to the bottom of the vessel. The other bullet was found after when Dr. Wallbridge examined the body of the deceased man at the Bellville General Hospital where the body was first discovered that Mr. Dack had shot himself in the first bullet being directed at the heart, but having apparently missed and was discharged in the back. The second bullet, fired through the head, caused instant death, Dr. Wallbridge stated. Death is believed to have taken place about one hour before the body was found.

Mr. Dack is believed to have gone down into the basement and seated himself on a small block of wood while he placed the revolver in position at vital points, pulling the trigger. The body was discovered by the boy right on the floor. Ill-health is believed to have been the cause of the act, as relatives have stated he had been acting rather queerly of late. On only yesterday he experienced a severe attack of melancholia and remained alone for considerable periods.

No One At Home

Mr. Dack was a married man with four children. There live to mourn him, a widow, one daughter Ethel, and three sons, Edward, Robert and William.

None of the family was at home at the time of the tragedy.

The late Mr. Dack was a veteran of the Great War, having been seriously injured overseas while serving with the First Division of the C.E.F. He had many affections in his health to such a degree he has seen himself unable to earn from dependency for some time past.

URGE REPRIEVE

London, June 14 (CP)—A petition bearing more than 300,000 signatures was presented to parliament today urging a reprieve for George Stoner, 19-year-old chauffeur sentenced to die Tuesday, was presented today to Sir John Simon, Home Secretary. The general impression was that Sir John will advise acceptance.

Regina, June 14 (CP)—A rainbow at midnight was the unique sight witnessed here last night. A heavy rain cloud had passed over, and a rainbow was blazoned across the eastern sky.

50 BRANCH BANKS WILL BE OPENED EARLY IN WEEK

Investment Dealers Deny Overture to Hepburn

SOME OF BRANCHES

Sale of Smaller Bonds Will be Begun as Banks Open

Toronto, June 14—(CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn continued today to extend his plans to raise money in the face of lack of support from financial interests, plans which will allow no constitutionality to halt their advance.

Coupled with the report upwards of 50 new branches of the Ontario provincial bank would be opened, principally on strategic border points to the United States, was the claim came the definite statement present bonds would be amended, if necessary, to allow use of funds on deposit.

By tomorrow, when the new interests rate on deposits, raised from two to three and a half per cent, will into effect, or in any event early next week, the government will begin the sale of small denomination bonds over the counters of the savings banks, it was added, to forestall any other obstacles that might be raised until amendments could be made retroactive.

Windsor, London, Peterborough, Oneida, Dunnville, Niagara Falls, Oshawa and Welland are among the points where offices of the savings bank are to be opened next week.

Dealers' Association

Toronto, June 14—(CP)—J. A. Carrington, president of the Canadian Investment Dealers Association, today said "neither our association or any group of dealers" will hold Premier Hepburn if the government changed its position on the Ontario power contracts the dealers would handle the $18,000,000 bond issue for which no bids were received."

Premier Hepburn yesterday said within an hour after it was learned that there were no bids for the bonds they (financial interests) sent an emissary up here to tell me that if we would take a reasonable course with regard to the power contracts they could handle our financing."

"It is actually happened," said Mr. Kingsmill, "that any individual acting on his own initiative, in charging that bond dealers are in a conspiracy to refuse us, Mr. Hepburn is either wrongly informed or misinformed. Every investment dealers advised him against the tender method of floating his securities."

Cornwall Pair To Stand Trial On Murder Count

Cornwall, Ont., June 14 (CP)—Mrs. Viney Belle Volvey, 26-year-old wife of Louis Volvey, 30, and Clarence Cameron, 28, both laborers, today committed for trial on the charge of the murder of the woman's husband April 19.

The two defendants offered no evidence and their counsel did not attempt to hold the committal. The couple will appear for trial at the autumn sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario here in September or October.

Fifteen witnesses, most of them neighbors of the Volvey's gave the evidence, which ended in committal. Priests by defence counsel, George Ogle, K.C., of Ottawa. The main evidence tended to show a close friendship between Mrs. Volvey and Cameron were answered by Crown Attorney J. G. Harkness, K.C., with the words: "You will see the significance later."

WEATHER

TORONTO June 14—(CP)—Synopsis—The weather has been fair and warm in southern districts of Ontario and Quebec and unsettled in some parts of Quebec and East Ontario. Local thunderstorms have been fairly general in the Lake Superior region and in the Prairies Tuesday, was presented today to Sir John Simon, Home Secretary. The general impression was that Sir John will advise acceptance.

Kenora and Rainy River—Easterly winds; unsettled and showery.

DO HONOR TO THE 'GREAT EMANCIPATOR'

Road is Blamed For Fatal Crash

Peterborough, Ont., June 14—(CP)—Charles F. Pearce of Norwood today was exonerated of all blame in connection with the automobile accident in which his sister Miss Helen Pearce was fatally injured. The coroner's jury found the accident was due to faulty construction of the road by the Ontario Provincial Police. The jury recommended authorities be asked to take immediate steps to improve the road.

TAKE CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Belleville Men to Seek Authority of Highest Court

Quebec, June 14—(CP)—Two members of the self-styled witnesses of Jehovah group, G. R. Brown and P. F. Barrett, both of Belleville, Ont., convicted last fall on charges of being parties to a seditious conspiracy and whose appeal the Court of Appeals recently dismissed, plan to take their case to the Supreme court of Canada, it was learned today. Petition for permission to appeal to the higher court will be sought by counsel on the grounds that the decision of the Court of Appeals is in contradiction with the jurisprudence handed down by the appeal courts in other provinces.

The Ontario men were arrested here in the fall of 1933 for distributing pamphlets in the streets.

5 MILES ADDED COUNTY SYSTEM, REPORT STATES

James Moore, Chairman of Committee Tables Report

3 CRUSHERS OPERATE

30,000 Gallons of Oil Dust Layer Used on The Roads

At the Thursday's session of the County Council, Mr. James A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, and Chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, presented the following report which was unanimously adopted:

Gentlemen:

Your Committee on Roads and Bridges herewith present their report on the progress of the work up to June 1, 1935:

The County roads mileage has been increased by five miles now been added to the system, from Springbrook to Harrison Corners, with the County Roads in the adjoining County. Arrangements are being made for the purchase of 15 acres of gravel pit at a price of $250.00. This will be used for gravelling the new County road. Notice of the old Marmora road, before reverting back to the county will be received soon and this will add 12 miles more to the County system. As this road serves many residents in Rawdon, Marmora, Madoc and Huntingdon Townships, and the Village of Deloro, it will receive proper maintenance although it is left in good condition by the Provincial Government before being taken over and will not require much maintenance during this year.

We find a large expenditure has to be used for bridge maintenance in this work has been neglected in the past 4 years, more particularly the bridge situation. We recently appointed in that the arrangements with the Department of Northern Development for the maintenance of the northern roads, were not carried out, as we had hoped to receive the tax rate this year.

30,000 gallons of oil dust layer and 26 tons of calcium-chloride has been purchased and the cost of spreading will be completed by the end of this week. On March 12, a letter was received giving the County the privilege of continuing with the balance of the relief work left from 1934. We immediately organized the work and had 180 men working the following day. We hope to be able to continue until the end of March; but this work has been neglected and 241 labourers during the period of 1934. Labor relief subsidy has been refused.

There are three crushers operating in close proximity to the work at the present time with 271 men on the pay rolls. We have contracted for 34,000 yds. of stone and gravel to be put on the roads this season. No provision is made for the construction of any new bridges. Although the bridge at Big Island Station, as it is at present, is very dangerous, and also the approaches of gravel roads between the pavements. An additional 1-3 mill rate would do little more than to enable us to ask that the Council express themselves as to what they would like to be done.

The expenditures for the past six months have been $37,340.90, which exceeds 50 percent, of the amount budgeted for the year. The subsidy on the 1934 work was received a short time ago for $17,000.00. Claims for damages on the County roads have increased considerably this year. Now, with this year's advantage, a large appropriation on the County roads this year with the widening of grades and cutting down sharp hills, which would reduce the accidents on our roads, but we are agreed that the tax payers should provide certain taxes for that purpose this year, as the Government cannot be relied upon by the motorist and thereby reduce the accidents on our roads.

Jas. A. Moore, Chairman.
Jas. J. Bronson, Warden.
Wesley Gray.
Henry Larkin.
J. A. Gunter.
Geo. W. Thompson.

County Council resumed on Thursday morning, Warden Bronson presiding.

Minutes of Wednesday's session were read and approved of.

Communication

A communication was read from the Board of Governors of the City Hospital, stating that a motion was passed declaring a reduction of 10 percent. on the balance of 1934 indigent accounts provided same be paid in full not later than July 1, 1935.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

Reports

Mr. P. Carr, Deputy Reeve of Rawdon Township presented a further interim report of the annual meeting of the Ontario Education Association held in Toronto from April 22nd to 25th. Mr. Carr attending the meeting with Friends upwards of 5,000 were in attendance. The report minutely outlined the proceedings.

Bylaws

A number of Bylaws were given their first readings and referred to the committee of the whole on bylaws.

Council adjourned until 2 o'clock.

$200,000 DOPE CACHE

A United States government narcotic agent inspects part of a $200,000 cache of heroin and morphine, seized when five men — a woman and a 18-year old girl were arrested in Detroit and Toledo. Agents watching Arthur Calle make a contact on a street corner followed him in his home in Detroit and found an eight-gun arsenal, 400 ounces of heroin, 30 ounces of morphine and a complete cutting plant.

GEO. A. KINGSTON IS DISMISSED

Attorney General Says Workmen's Compensation Board Reorganized

Toronto, June 14 (CP)—Completing promised reorganization of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board, Attorney General A. W. Roebuck today announced dismissal of George A. Kingston and his replacement by Dr. Douglas Galbraith of Dutton, near St. Thomas.

V. A. Sinclair, Chairman of the Board, and H. J. Halford, Vice-Chairman, were dismissed last November and replaced by George Wilkie who became Chairman and Earl Hutchison, former member of the legislature for Kenora who resigned his seat so Hon. Peter Heenan could enter the cabinet.

Mr. Roebuck said dismissal of the third member of the old board "finishes the complete reorganization which we promised."

STRIKERS TOLD TO WIND UP TREK

Trip East Must Not Extend East Of Regina

By SAM G. ROSS

Regina, June 14 (CP)—Pacing police orders their planned trek to Ottawa must not extend beyond Regina, 2,000 striking relief camp workers from British Columbia and Alberta dropped off at 50-car freight train here today. Formed fours and marched to the stadium at the exhibition grounds where they ate lunch and fast paid for by the Saskatchewan government.

Inspector Fred Toop of the Regina city police force was the only police officer in the railway yards where 200 Regina unemployed gathered to shout a loud welcome to the arriving army. Three Canadian Pacific Railway constables were on the train.

While the strikers were permitted to arrive and march to the stadium an estimated 300 Royal Canadian Mounted Police were in barracks here under orders from Ottawa to prevent their departure on freight trains for Ottawa, goal of their strike trek in protest against relief camp labor. There was no disorder of any kind.

STATE RESTS INSULL CASE

Chicago, June 14—(AP)—The United States government rested its bankruptcy law violation case against Samuel Insull, his son, Samuel Insull, Jr., and Harold L. Stuart at 9:45 a.m. (Central Standard Time) today.

SCENE DESCRIBED AS HELL OF HEAT AND EXPLOSIONS

NO SABOTAGE

Shock Felt Over an Area of 675 Square Miles

(By Louis P. Lochner)
(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)

Wittenberg, Germany, June 14—Grimy Nazi dug into the debris of "The hell of heat and explosions" that was indeed today for the victims of a series of devastating munitions explosions, officially estimated at from 8 to 1,000.

Flames, following fast upon the giant explosions added to the destruction. Shocked survivors of the catastrophe, many of them with only their clothes upon their backs, streamed out of the town upon orders that it be evacuated.

A rigid censorship, enforced by machine rifles and bayonets about Reindorf, a suburb of Wittenberg and a factory center, was clamped.

Tight-lipped Nazi officials placed the dead at 1,000. They said 75 were seriously injured and 200 less seriously hurt. But unofficial estimates placed the number killed up to 1-000.

The Burgomaster of Reinsdorf told the Associated Press: "I think was estimated. 800 people is too many, but 1,000 would be more accurate."

Adjacent to the terrifying scenes, he described it as "a hell of heat and explosions" that the shock was felt over an area estimated at 675 square miles.

Firemen, police, storm troopers and workers attempted to get at the 30 bodies reported to be buried in the mussi of ashes where a factory once stood.

Survivors, under strict orders not to talk, refused to comply with outsiders stood anxiously about in this city today awaiting word from their loved ones from the hard bandaged heads and hands.

No Sabotage

Otto He Denreith, Nazi district leader, speaking for the government, said: "It is out of the question for any sort of sabotage to have been committed. It was a simple accident. Our workers have been thoroughly trained. It is quite impossible for any saboteur to have been admitted."

A column of smoke lay over the entire region and minor explosions continued for several hours after the original one. Officials said Reinsdorf was saved from extinction because the factory was some distance from the municipality. Windows were torn off some and windows were smashed.

"At first were many scenes 'that rent my heart," said the Burgomaster. Mothers and children crying and wringing their hands and screaming in fear. Others ran frenzied to try to rescue some loved one.

"They were turned back, of course for to go in would have meant their death. Also the fire department dispatched many scenes of heroism. Among the dead is a fire brigadier and two telephone operators. They stuck to their posts as long as there was any need of summoning help, then they left also."

Officials leading to the factory were closed and telephone service was interrupted. Foreign correspondents who attempted to penetrate the area and secure official information were detained temporarily by secret police.

36 Bodies Recovered.

By 2 p.m. today workmen had recovered 36 bodies from the hot debris.

The factory is so large the laborers in one section were able to return in work hours after the explosion other crews. The factory is about three-quarters mile long and one-

POSTAL CARRIER PAYS WITH LIFE

Rosario Bilodeau, Hanged at Quebec For Murder of Five

Quebec, June 14—(CP)—Rosario Bilodeau, 46-year-old Cowansville postal carrier, was hanged today for the murder of Gerry Pilet, superintendent of letter carriers, who was shot down with a fusillade of revolver bullets in the post office office here last Oct. 29.

Bilodeau was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of Pilet and five of his own close relatives whom he killed in a nearby wood shortly before entering the post office and shooting down the postal superintendent. He was only tried on the one charge however.

The other victims were: Miss Aurore Bilodeau, 62, and Miss Jeanne Bilodeau, 60, sisters; Yvette Gauvin, 31, his niece, and Gaston Gauvin, 20, and Fernand Gauvin, 18, nephews.

Bilodeau was stated in prosecution testimony to have run amok with a pistol, shooting Pilet in the post office after luring the others to the woods where he killed them one by one. Several others in the post office were wounded by bullets from the former postman's gun but they recovered.

Eight Men Are Freed On Smuggling Charge

Montreal, June 14—(CP)—The case against four Bronfman brothers Sam, Allah, Harry and Abe, Dave Cooley, Barney Aaron and F. S. Blair, all of Montreal, and William Vale, of Halifax, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Dominion government of duty through the smuggling of liquor, was dismissed by Judge Jules Desnarais today.

The eight men were all that remained out of the original 61 arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police on the conspiracy charge.

The present charges were mostly based on alleged routing back to Canada of huge stores of liquor shipped to St. Pierre, Miquelon from Canada prior to repeal in the United States. Following repeal, police said the liquor was smuggled back into Canada.

LITTLE DECREASE OF THOSE ON RELIEF

There has been no outstanding falling off in the names on the relief lists according to relief authorities. There has been a slight decrease of relief cases during the last month than has been usual.

ROUTINE BUSINESS ONLY DISCUSSED

At the weekly meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Thursday noon it was decided that no important matters upon which the local board was requested to express an opinion by chambers of commerce in other parts of the province, from whom business was also transacted.

The directors were pleased that Belleville had been selected as a meeting place for the annual convention of the Ontario Jewellers' Association, which has just concluded its session here. It was decided to assist with their power, to make pleasant the stay of the large number of delegates from all over Canada, who will be in Belleville next month. On Wednesday afternoon next the pastmasters will be taken on a golf tournament through the district and the directors will furnish cars and assist in taking the visitors on the trip.

The following were present at the meeting: J. B. Joyce, president; Jas. Bigg, K. Eastman, W. C. Sprague, H. E. Sherrard, W. H. Morton, Mackenzie. Robertson and the secretary manager, J. G. Jones.

Parents of Drowned Child Are Sought

Provincial Police of the local detachment were today notified of the death of a male child found drowned in Lake Ontario directly opposite the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds in Toronto on Wednesday. No identification marks were obtainable by which the child, two prompting them to communicate with all police in the province with a view of ascertaining whether or not a child answering the description is missing from a family from outlying districts. The drowned body was described as five years.

Male, apparent age about two years, height 2 feet 6 inches, weight 35 lbs., light brown hair, fair complexion, blue eyes, teeth normal, two small scars on right cheek about a quarter of an inch each in diameter, probably caused by vaccination. The child had apparently been suffering from measles scars, well nourished; apparently of foreign parentage, chubby Russian polish; stomach contained spinach, potatoes and bean pudding. Death due to drowning.

Toronto police also stated that a woman about the age of 28 years was seen acting suspiciously around the water-front prior to the finding of the body. Authorities also believe, that the persons connected with same, Toronto citizens, first arrangers in the city, therefore prompting the authorities to request the help of communities in an endeavor to locate the possible parents of the dead child.

MILITARY DINNER LARGELY ATTENDED

With many notables among military circles of the surrounding district present the Prince of Wales Regiment, Major Harry Sawyer, commanding officer of the Northumberland Regiment, Lt.-Col. H. Conley, D.S.O., Major A. W. Black, M.C., Lt.-Col. D. B. Thinkwell, D.S.O., and Lt.-Col. G. W. Ponton, D.S.O., Major Sawyer presided at the dinner held in the Belleville Armouries on Thursday night. He spoke on the "Indian Army and Their Work."

SCHOOL CLASSES SOON A MEMORY

Students at the public schools and collegiate institute will soon enjoy their glorious freedom. By the end of this week the classes will be through and the 1934-35 term will be just a memory. The public schools close on the 28th of June. The collegiate officially closes on the same date, when all the exams will be over but many will have received their holidays before then. The students, who get through the exams will be out a day or two earlier than those who have to write until the end of June for the much awaited holidays.

SHAREOT LAKE YOUTH DISAPPEARS

Inspector Frank Gardner in charge of District No. 8 of O.P.P. was today notified of the mysterious disappearance of Russell Bergen aged 17, of Mountain Grove. Young Raymond left home some two weeks ago and has not been heard from since that date. He was wearing khaki dungaree, brown sweater, grey coat and hat when last seen. The information regarding the disappearance of the young man was forwarded to the District office of the Ontario Provincial Police by Constable Patterson, stationed at Shareot Lake.

RED CROSS DRIVE IS PROGRESSING

Efforts of Red Cross workers in the flower and tag campaign have met with splendid success so far although the amount realized is far from the sum needed for the Red Cross programme this year. Six hundred and twenty-five dollars has been collected by the campaign treasurer, J. W. Imlah. A considerable amount of this was the gift of persons who are now subscribers to Red Cross, showing the growth of interest in the work. Those who have not as yet contributed should send their contributions as soon as possible to the treasurer at 27 Campbell street.

Sentences Given Will Run Concurrent

Sentences of two years in Kingston Penitentiary were imposed on Mayhew and James M. Baker both Belleville men, when they pleaded guilty to two charges of issuing worthless cheques in this city. The sentences will run concurrently with the same penalty meted out in the Trenton police court by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., earlier in the week when Mayhew and Baker pleaded guilty to similar charges in a previous court held in the town. The two prisoners entered the court closely guarded by local provincial police. During the court procedure it was announced that similar charges await both Baker and Mayhew from Cobourg and Peterboro and warrants have been issued for their immediate arrest.

Mayhew and Baker, two Quebec transients, issued cheques to local business men to the total of over $33.00 respectively, forging the same by signing the names of Jack Anderson, driver. His Worship Magistrate Butler presided.

MAN HELD WANTED ON SIXTEEN COUNTS

Wanted on 16 different counts of alleged false pretences, charges laid under false pretences, a Picton resident, Percy Hall, was arrested by Constable Bennett, was arrested after noon today by Chief Hayes of Tweed, satisfactory evidence for the warrant for the arrest of the prisoner was given by Chief Hayes on his way southward.

POLICE COURT

Five minor cases were heard in the local police court held this morning. Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today, fined Lawrence Hogan $10.00 and costs or two months in jail, for driving his car while under the influence of liquor. Hogan pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication, one paying the necessary $18.60 and costs, the other took the jail sentence in default of payment. The latter was Chief Hayes' prisoner who became erased and broke two windows in the front of Bill Cook's cigar store on the night of his court today, after pleading guilty. Magistrate Butler fined the prisoner "It was just the after effects", he explained.

A local motorist relinquished his driver's permit for three months after pleading guilty to charges of speeding. "This reckless driving must cease", firmly admitted the Court Bench as he called for the next case, that saw another motor vehicle driver before the court's efficers five dollars, he not being able to produce an individual operator's licence.

Police News

Fourteen transients were afforded sleeping quarters at the police station last night, all being instructed to "move along" upon being liberated today.

John Clarke, 33 Chatham Street, reported to the police that the right rear fender of his automobile had been damaged while parked on Front street, yesterday afternoon. He had parked his car inside the designated white lines, but apparently some other vehicle had struck the car.

Little Wayne O'Hara, aged 19 months of 186 Pinnacle Ave., was bitten twice by a large dog yesterday afternoon. Local police investigated and upon ascertaining the name of the person owning the canine, instructed him to either place it on a leash or have it destroyed. Although the bites sustained by little Wayne were not of a major nature, the parents of the child were worried. Police today stated that similar reports regarding this particular dog in question had been received previously.

BROKE HER LEG AGAINST A STAIR

Whilst Hampered by Rheumatism

"Two years ago," writes a woman, "I was suffering with rheumatism in my legs, and when walking upstairs one day just kicked my right foot against the stairs, and found that it was just below the knee. I was in hospital for four months, and finally came out somewhat advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and now I have no trace of rheumatism. I would not be without my daily dose of Kruschen, which I take every morning—half a teaspoonful in warm water."—Mrs. P. H.

The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action; assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of rheumatic pains, neuralgia, sciatica, uric acid gout—with its deposits of needle-pointed crystals. There's no doubt about those painful pains going too!

Obituary

MRS. BEATRICE BOOMERSWER

After a brief illness Mrs. Beatrice Boomhower, wife of Mr. J. Carey Boomhower, passed away at the family residence 4 Dafoe Street, early this Friday morning.

The late Mrs. Boomhower, who was in her 51st year, was born in Napanee but spent most of her life with Mrs. Herman Assistine. Prior to coming to Belleville about 25 years ago she resided in Napanee. She was a member of the Bridge Street Church, Belleville, and was highly respected by all who knew her.

Left to mourn her death besides her husband are three daughters, Mildred, Frances and Kathleen; three sons: Leo, Hart and Murray, all at home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Assistine of Napanee; two sisters, Misses Bessie and Ethel Assistine of Napanee, and two brothers, Clarence, Wilbert, Douglas, Harry and Jack Assistine, all of Napanee, and Walter Assistine of Belleville.

The funeral will take place on Saturday.

LATE MRS. ANNIE HODKINSON

The funeral of Mrs. Annie Hodkinson, widow of the late Thomas Hodkinson took place Thursday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. H. A. Slinger, Alexander Street, and many friends were present at the service which was conducted in the home by the Rev. Robert Hall, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, who conducted also the service at the graveside in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. W. C. Clarke, Harry Hill, F. G. Deacon, Tilley, J. Buchanan and J. W. Lindsay.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

J. E. WAY—Lindsay

Lindsay, June 13—After an illness of about six weeks John Edwin Way, well known Lindsay citizen, died at the family residence, Albert Street South, Thursday, in his 81st year. Mr. Way was born in Bloomfield. He worked in Port Hope, Toronto and Lindsay as a printer for 52 years and held a jewel for this length of service as Past Grand's jewel. He is survived by three daughters, Eva at home, Mrs. J. F. Hillis at Toronto and Mrs. J. W. Birrell of Lindsay, and one son, Charles, of Belleville.

41 Years Editor of "Canadian" George F. Stewart Leaves Post

Geo. F. Stewart 41 years editor of the Canadian, the monthly publication of the Ontario School for the Deaf, has signed over or finds to his work in this capacity with the June issue. One time editor of Belleville Ontario, Mr. Stewart on his appointment to the teaching staff of the school was placed also in charge of the monthly paper of the institution and for over forty decades through all vicissitudes has guided the Canadian, which has been the chief medium of the aspiration of the school and of the interests of thousands of students who have contributed to and read its pages with their sane outlook on life.

In the last issue which he will send to press Mr. Stewart has penned the valedictory words:

Valedictory

"In not the tale of years men live That count, but how they're spent; What we get, but what we give, Is our fast measurement.

And what we give, we never lose, And what we get, we spend; We live but once, and may not choose The time we way again.

"This is the last issue of The Canadian for this session." Very many issues have penned these words, usually with a sigh of relief; but very different is the sentiment with which I write them now, for they denote not only the close of another year, but the end of a journey too, and I may not pass this way again.

"For forty-one years I have been the editor of The Canadian, and it is with emotion and sincere regret that I now write 'finis' and lay down my pen. But I cherish the gratification that, whatever may have been the shortcomings of my work as teacher and editor so it I have devoted to the interest my every energy and such ability as I possess. At the same time I realize keenly the need for a change, for some of achieving the aims and ideals I tried ever to keep in view.

To the Pupils

"To all the pupils whom it has been my privilege to teach, I say farewell, and throughout the Province, for the spirit of cordial friendship and loyalty which you have always manifested, 'he expressed this number of The Canadian." One of the pleasantest memories I will ever cherish is the assurance that I was regarded by them as their true friend, which I have ever endeavored to be, and I value their confidence and esteem.

"To the Ontario School for the Deaf as an organization I extend the warmest sentiments of my heart, and I say 'God speed.' On behalf has been a labor of love, and whose memory will never be forgotten in Belleville among the members of the staff with whom I have been reached by the army.

Adjutant and Mrs. Martin 1911 to the command of the Salvation Army at Victoria, B.C., as a member of the corps and band and subsequently as master of the citadel band. As the army grew in the west Mr. Martin's name has been stationed in a large number of places, the last two being Danforth, (Toronto), Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Orillia, from which the with the Citadel Corps and then Belleville.

Mrs. P. J. Riches, divisional commander, was in the city yesterday afternoon and evening conducting the citadel and corps.

Adjutant Martin and Mrs. Martin will bid farewell to the Belleville Corps and their friends on Sunday, July 7th, and leave Belleville on Thursday, June 27th.

Adjutant And Mrs. Martin Notified of Transfer to Another Corps

Adjutant A. W. Martin and Mrs. Martin who have been in charge of the Salvation Army Corps will leave Belleville within the next few weeks for the new appointment, the location of which will be announced officially next week, when the name of their successors will also be announced. Notification of the transfer reached Adjutant Martin in yesterday's mail.

It is just two years since Mr. and Mrs. Martin came to this city and in that time they have seen the work of the Army prosper and extended. Both have been painstaking officers

BYLES TAKES OVER THORNHILL BEAT

Popular Traffic Officer Leaves City After 5 Years' Residence

After spending just five years in charge of traffic and adjacent highways as Motorcycle Patrolman, Constable Byles of the O.P.P. was officially notified, that his detail had been changed and he had been given a promotion to one of the most thickly populated motor traffic areas in Ontario. Constable Byles leaves Belleville on June 23rd to ride the detail known as the Yonge Street Patrol Beat, and will reside at Thornhill, outside that city. Constable Byles will be the man riding the Thornhill beat, will take Office Sergeant Ryder's place, the announced Inspector of Motorcycle Police Hunter of Brockville informed Motorcycle Patrolman Byles is well known to Belleville and vicinity motorists and his promotion will be hailed in the highest regard by drivers for his courtesy and thoroughness in performing his duties. During his five years of patrolling the highways through Hastings number of motor accidents have been completed without fatal result and of the work of Constable Byles, as he is known to be a conscientious officer. Patrolman Byles is one of the oldest traffic constables on the Motorcycle Patrol of the Ontario Provincial Police and has been detailed to a new run of great responsibility, stated Inspector Hunter today. "We needed a veteran and proven officer to take over the Thornhill division as there are to be four lanes of traffic reaching north out of Toronto, instead of two as now being used. This highway carries one of the heaviest lines of traffic out of Toronto, people going to their summer camps up north," stated Inspector Hunter he wished Patrolman Byles every success in his new enterprise today.

"Patrolman I have come to like Belleville and its citizens and will take away with me many fine memories and leave behind a host of good friends," was the parting remark made by Constable Byles after he had been notified of his appointment to a post of so great importance.

DECORATION DAY IS SOLEMN EVENT

Women's Institute Hold Memorial at Cemetery at Shannonville

Shannonville, June 14 (Special)—Shannonville was the scene of a memorial, yet solemn event on Wednesday afternoon when the Quinte Branch Women's Institute held its Memorial and Decoration Day. There was a large concourse of relatives and friends, from far and near who came to place flowers on the graves of their loved ones, and to render a splendid work being carried on by the ladies, assisted by a number of gentlemen and an efficient caretaker, Riverview Cemetery is beautifully situated on a knoll along the Salmon River and can be admired from Hwy. 2 Highway and the Montreal intercourse and a general survey of the grounds, a short distance eastward.

Mr. James Hill, M.P.P., acting as chairman for the afternoon, in his opening remarks spoke of the much needed cleaning of the cemetery and of those who had made it possible for this work to be undertaken and carried on. Of later years throughout the country there is a thought and consideration being given to the homes of the silent dead. "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" was then sung and an impressive prayer by Rev. Mr. Farnsworth touched the hearts of all.

Rev. Mr. Clarke addressed the gathering and very feelingly spoke of honouring the dead, as we live in the hearts of those we love, and that death is not a calamity, but a great loving purpose of God. Love, faith and hope were the chief words and we must think of those that are gone with tender memories. In closing, Mr. Clarke expressed regrets that Rev. Mr. Pepper, Anglican clergyman, was unable to be present, owing to recent bereavement. Another hymn was sung, "Stand Up, Stand Up, For Jesus."

Mr. George Gravatt spoke a few words on the splendid work of the ladies and stressed that their effort would stand as a memorian possibly down in generations. Rev. Mr. Farnsworth expressed his gratitude for being present and most reverently spoke of death as Paul defined only spoke of death as Paul defined it as a fallible asleep and in simple words expressing the meaning of the "cemetery" as a resting place. Jesus spoke of the hours that He was going to prepare for us. Mr. Farnsworth urged that we follow the great leader, Lord Jesus.

Mr. Hill tendered a vote of thanks to the ladies for the success of the afternoon's service. Mrs. Gerbell, President Quinte W.I. Branch, thanked the splendid co-operation shown and interest taken in the cemetery work.

The closing hymn, "Rest Ye The Yet Remain" was beautifully rendered and Farnsworth brought to a close an afternoon full of memories.

GRANTS APPROVED IN BUSY SESSION COUNTY COUNCIL

Belleville Fair Board Given $150 After Discussion

IMPROVE ROADS

Northern Townships Are Assisted With Small Outlays

Thursday afternoon session of the County Council proved to be the busiest sitting of that body since the opening on Tuesday. Considerable business was transacted in an expeditious manner. Warden Bronson presided.

Mr. Charles Vanderwaier, a former Reeve of Sidney Township, who was present was invited by the Warden to take a seat within the bar.

Asked For a Grant

The first item of business was hearing a deputation from the Belleville Fair Board, composed of Mr. R. M. Ketcheson, secretary and Mr. A. G. Dafoe, the treasurer. The object of their attendance was to secure a grant.

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson spoke first and in his opening remarks stated that the Belleville Fair was now in a different position than formerly owing to the fact that it had been placed in Class B and in consequence the Board has to put up more money for prizes. In order to get a grant of $1,800 from the Dominion Government, $2,000 in cash prizes has to be paid out for certain classes, namely, cattle and horses. In Hastings County up-

Lord William Peel, who has served the British diplomatic service for 30 years in the east, is in America for a visit along with his wife. They arrived from Hong Kong where Lord Peel has been governor for over five years. Prior to that he served as secretary for India and before that was chief secretary of the Federated Malay States. Hong Kong he says, is rapidly overcoming the depression menace. Lord and Lady Peel are shown above.

HAS SERVED HIS COUNTRY WELL

wards of $2,000 was given in prizes. Last year we had 94 exhibitors and this year there were anticipated. We would like to have the prize money this year to be between $2,000 and $2,500 in prize money. At the fair board there are eleven farmers and nine, who are not farmers and the first and second vice presidents are farmers. Last year the County gave a grant of $100 and the Board also received a grant from the city of Belleville and Ameliasburg Township. He hoped the Council would give the substantial grant.

Mr. O. Dafoe, treasurer of the Belleville Agricultural Society endorsed what Mr. Ketcheson had stated. Any grant given would be well spent. A dining hall was necessary and other buildings. Last year $2,502.10 in prizes and we must give $2,000 this year in prizes in order to get the Dominion Government grant. In reply to a question Mr. Dafoe stated that the city of Belleville gave a grant of $500. Mr. Bronson informed the deputation that the request would be referred to the Warden and seven committees for consideration.

Motions

Moved by Mr. J. Hannock, Reeve of Carlow, seconded by Mr. W. J. Davis, Reeve of Hungerford, at 1:30 a special grant of $200 be given to the Township of Rawdon, at Cloyne and Mayo, same to be expended on township sidereads, payable on or before the 30th day of June, 1935. Referred to Ways and Means Committee, which subsequently endorsed the motion

Mr. R. Anderson, Reeve of Wollaston, seconded by Mr. G. M. Campbell, Reeve of Deseronto, that a grant of $100 be made to the Red Cross hospitals at Bancroft and One Mile Lake.—Carried.

Mr. P. Carr, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow moved seconded by Mr. J. Davis, Reeve of Bezgor, at al, that whereas we understand that a special grant of $200 be given to the Township of Rawdon, at Cloyne and Mayo, same to be expended on township sidereads, payable on or before the 30th day of June, 1935. Referred to Ways and Means Committee, which subsequently endorsed the motion

Mr. R. Anderson, Reeve of Wollaston, seconded by Mr. G. M. Campbell, Reeve of Deseronto, that a grant of $100 be made to the Red Cross hospitals at Bancroft and One Mile Lake.—Carried.

Mr. P. Carr, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow moved seconded by Mr. J. Davis, Reeve of Bezgor, at al, that whereas we understand that the corporation of the County of Hastings here assembled do petition the Department of Education of the Province of Ontario, change this system as to have the public school course terminate at the end of the lower school term of the secondary system thus affecting a large saving in the cost of secondary education and thereby relief for all rural pupils to have the advantages of this extra course, no matter where located with no extra cost. Further we repudiate that the new secondary system be financed by the Province at the expense of the ratepayers of some of this burden.—Carried.

Report of Committee

Council went into committee of the whole on Ways and Means with Mr. O. E. Jordan, Reeve of Hungerford Township in the chair.

Mr. W. Grey Reeve of Thurlow Township, referred to the fact, that the indigent account in the estimates was for $18,000. The hospital at Belleville was overcrowded and not on all accounts and not on account of the sick.

Mr. Wallbridge, Reeve of Madoc Village, thought there were some municipalities who do not pay their share of these accounts.

The communication from the Board of Governors of the city hospital relative to a reduction of ten per cent. of unpaid indigent accounts if paid before July 1st, was referred to the Finance and Public Property committee with power to act.

Belleville Fair Grant

Mr. W. Grey, Reeve of Thurlow Township, moved seconded by Mr. G. M. Campbell that a special grant of $200 be made to the Belleville Fair Board. The mover spoke in support of the grant claiming that everything is being done to build up this fair. The directors do not receive a cent for their work.

Mr. R. Larkin, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township, said we should here to live and make no special grant. We are trying to economize so the ratepayers could pay their taxes.

Mr. R. Ketcheson, Reeve of Frankford village, was of the opinion that the Belleville Fair Board, was getting grants that were equitable.

Mr. A. L. Burke Reeve of Sidney Township, spoke in support of the grant named be given the Board. The Belleville Fair is a fair that is recognized as a good fair.

An amendment was moved that the grant be $100 as the agricultural and advisory committee of the Council had already made a recommendation to give the Fair Board a grant of $50.

It was decided by vote to give $100 in addition to the $50, making a total grant from the county of $150.

Grants Made

Moved by Mr. P. Carr, seconded by Mr. W. J. Davis, that the county become a member of the county section of the C.E.A. convention and the prescribed fee of $5 be paid.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. J. Anderson, Reeve of Monteagle and Herschel Township seconded by Mr. I. McKenzie, Reeve of Faraday, that a special grant of $200 be paid to each of the following municipalities namely, Monteagle and Herschel, Faraday and Dungannon, same to be spent on leading roads and said amount to be paid by July 1st, 1935.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

Victorian Order of Nurses

The request of the Victorian Order of Nurses for a grant caused some discussion.

Mr. C. Wallbridge, Reeve of Madoc Village was of the opinion, that the Township of Thurlow, and adjacent township get all the benefits from the Order of Nurses, which are no doubt doing good work. The County as a whole was not so much benefitted, so why should it pay.

Mr. W. Grey, Reeve of Thurlow after referring to the good done by the nurses, who visit homes who are unable to pay for nurse attendance, moved that a grant of $50 be made to the Order.

Mr. D. Clarke, Deputy Reeve of Hungerford, thought, thought that the Townships that are benefitted by the visit of the nurses should pay a grant.

Mr. H. Larkin, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township endorsed the remarks of Mr. Clarke. The taxpayers had in many cases difficulty in paying their taxes. We should practice economy and not make these special grants.

Mr. A. L. Burke, Reeve of Sidney Township, said the nurses were going about doing a mission that was commendable and the work should be helped.

Mr. J. Hickle, Reeve of Madoc Township, moved an amendment seconded by Mr. P. Clarke, of Hungerford Township that the communication be filed.

Warden Bronson the grant proposed was only $50 and he would favor it accordingly as all over the nurses of the Order were doing.

Mr. R. Reeve of Frankford Village, suggested that a grant of $25 be made and Mr. Larkin, Reeve of Tyendinaga concurred in the suggestion.

Upon a show of hands $50 was granted.

In reply to an inquiry regarding the Northern Developing scheme in which Mr. Peter Heenan, is what the county is interested, Mr. J. A. Gunter, Reeve of Bancroft village stated that the scheme to build certain roads should be improved for travelling.

Mr. A. L. Burke, Reeve of Sidney—Eventually the Northern Development scheme would take over these roads.

The New Roof on Hall

The matter of placing a new roof on Shire Hall was referred to the Finance and Public Property Committee of the Council with power to act.

Fire Alarm System

The proposition to install an electric fire alarm system at the House of Refuge was discussed.

Warden Bronson—The House of Refuge is isolated and had already spent a considerable sum for improvement necessary at the House of Refuge and it does not feel justified in incurring the expense of installing such a system without the consent of the Council.

Mr. Ketcheson—There is no doubt the alarm system is a good thing. It was ascertained that the cost would be about $800. In case of a fire the alarm would be sounded in the village of Frankford.

A motion revealed that the matter of installing the system in the House of Refuge be referred to the Finance and Public Property and the House of Refuge Committee to consider the matter and also other repairs. If found necessary the committee named was given power to act.

A number of accounts were passed in committee of the whole on Ways and Means.

On motion the Committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again.—Leave granted. Council adjourned until Friday morning.

Mrs. Braddock Wants Vacation With "Jimmy"

(By Mary Elizabeth Plummer)
(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

Guttenberg, N.J., June 14— May Braddock, wife of the world's new heavyweight boxing champion, wants to get away for a vacation "with Jim, Jimmy."

"We never had one together," she explained simply after James J. Braddock, comeback King, had reached his goal.

"Now, we shall, maybe we can have a nice one-family house. We've always lived in a little apartment."

It was in the hot, little living room of their third-floor apartment on the Palisades of the Hudson that Braddock's 26-year-old wife huddled by the radio last night and heard how Jimmy was taking a beating from Max Baer—and giving a better one in return.

"Last September," Mrs. Braddock recalled, "our gas was shut off, and there was nothing to eat in the house. Jim went out to see if he could borrow just a few dollars; and that night we went on relief.

"It hurt Jim's pride. After he won the Lesky fight, he paid it all back —$60."

"What are you going to do if Daddy brings home a title?"

"Play with it," said James Jay.

"Pull it on a string," said Howard. (Mrs. Braddock explained that he thought "title meant "turtle.")

Blonde Rose Marie, ordered in her prayers to "ask God to watch over Daddy" unexpectedly said, "Daddy made a come-back."

Asked who won the fight, she replied, "Made Baer!"

DUFFERIN PARK OPENS SATURDAY

Seven Day Meet Begins on June 15th With Many Horses

Dufferin Park will be the next Toronto happy hunting grounds for the racing fraternity, the meeting at that half-mile track getting under way Saturday, June 15th, for a regular seven days. This track, originally located in Toronto, possesses a unique distinction for racing fans. There are many reasons, the chief one probably being the fact that spectators are afforded an excellent opportunity of getting a close-up of the runners and seeing the horses around at least a couple of times. And there are no frills about the Dufferin plant, making it probably the most cosmopolitan place of its kind anywhere.

Owing to the size of the track, fields are limited to eight runners and it is seldom that every race is not filled, also eligible lists being the rule. But despite the fact that handicap horses are usually conspicuous by their absence, the sport of Dufferin Park is unusually formful, and it is nearly always thrilling, as the class of horses that furnish the sport at this half-mile oval are pretty evenly matched. And as they are not, Racing Secretary "Wash" Hagyard weighs them as to what they are.

Within the last few years, Dufferin Park has undergone many changes and has grandstand and private wagering plant. It is still lighting the outstanding, and there are still many needed improvements to come. Preparations have been provided for space the past few weeks getting the plant ready and nothing remains to be done.

Due to the fact that the Orpen's who also control Long Branch in Toronto, Smithwick's Park in Windsor, and Queen's Park in London, have a hook up with the horses from their demands for a governing body, there will be no shortage of horses. The first race will be at 2:30 p.m. sharp.

All the wagering features that have proved so popular will be employed, with the usual special consideration being accorded conservative bettors. Dollar combinations will be used, including the new "Daily

One-One" that made an instant hit at Long Branch. There will also be the three-way and two-way regular combine. The Double Choice will be on the second and third races and will be for the nominal sum of two dollars. Post time 2.30 p.m.

KING GEORGE'S RECOVERING

Reassuring news from London is that His Majesty King George, who has gone through a wearying process of public functions in connection with his silver jubilee and whose vitality has been lowered by many public appearances is making recovery from the slight indisposition from bronchial catarrh which he has suffered.

King George occupies a warm place in the hearts of the millions in his vast Empire and there will be prayers that he be completely restored to his usual health with a brief rest.

Latest word from the Old Country is that he is resting at Sandringham and appears to be his usual form in a few days.

"Uneasy rests the head that wears a crown" is true in only one sense—for the present monarch's love for his people leads him to give up so much of time and energy to their welfare, but in no other sense is that sentence true. The words were spoken of a king of England in the Middle Ages, not of the present ruler, whose rest cannot but be blessed with the prayers of his subjects living at peace. In the Middle Ages monarchs had to safeguard themselves against rival claimants to the throne while today the King of England is surrounded only by a worldwide empire of friends, because his anxiety is for others, not for himself.

RETIREMENT OF HON. E. N. RHODES

Canadians were surprised this week to learn that the Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance in the Federal Government is retiring from public life at the end of the present Parliament because of ill-health. He has decided not to become a candidate for the next Commons.

His undoubted gifts in finance would scope to the Portfolio of Finance and make him a strong member of the Conservative party. He has always enjoyed the esteem of the Liberals.

All will sympathize with him in his enforced retirement from the public service at a time when the Dominion needs outstanding men. It is sincerely hoped that he will find every satisfaction and rest from the onerous duties of the Federal post.

EDITOR OF CANADIAN RETIRES

In the past forty odd years, Mr. George F. Stewart has been the instructor at the School for the Deaf, to edit The Canadian, the official publication of the school, to read widely in the classics of English and also to study and to follow closely the development of Canadian verse and prose, besides taking an abiding and an official interest in the work of his church.

His duties complete as teacher at the School, and his work on The Canadian ended with the present month's issue. Mr. Stewart retires, but not to a life of ease. He still has interest in literature and culture, and in the activities of the church to keep him ever young in spirit.

Mr. Stewart is one of those fortunate men whose spirit the years and labors of teaching have not been able to repress. How much of his contribution is due to those other interests, is a question but there is no hesitation in saying that his wide scholarship and variety of interest have made him a person of pleasant mien, and through him for others. He occupies a niche in the hall of the hearts of students who for a generation and a third have passed through his hands. In being the teacher he has learned from the young a lesson they did not consciously teach and a lesson which has been molded by the very hands he taught his young proteges. The love of God and mankind is all and nothing else matters. A man's good deeds and his noble instruction return to him enriched because they have passed through the minds and hearts of others. Fortunate teacher!

Mr. Stewart has belonged to that great class who give more than they receive, the profession that includes the teacher in the schools, the person who reaches through the medium of classical and the man-like Socrates and other Greeks who want about questioning men in order to make them think for themselves. While hundreds of teachers have been heavy to every one who ever taught, the opportunity of teaching has opened up a way of making an impression on the waxen minds of the children and if one wants to leave a good name and the certainty of good done in the ordinary process of his occupation, he might be teaching. For the influence upon the children in the schools is second only to that of the home.

Titular honours may be admired by most persons but the honour which counts most is when a man is honoured from the heart by those who know him best in all his moods and yet can praise him in all sincerity. In that class stands Mr. Stewart, as a recent fete in his honour at the School bears witness.

The best wishes of those who have come into contact with him will be for the happiest of retirements.

MY FATHER

I like to play close by my father's den,
Where he's at work and every now and then
Ask: "Father, are you there?" He answers back:
"Yes, son." That time I broke my railroad track
All into bits, he stopped his work and came
And wiped my tears, and said: "Boy, boy! Be game!"
And then he showed me how to fix it right,
And I took both my arms and hugged him tight.
Once, when I'd asked him if he still was there,
He called me in and rumpled up my hair,
And said: "How much alike are you and I!
When I feel just as boys feel when they cry.

I call to our Big Father, to make sure,
That He is there, my childish dread to cure.
And always, just as I to you, 'Yes, son,'
Our Father calls, and all my fret is done!"

FATHER'S DAY IS SUNDAY. Willy would claim that father has no right to a whole day to himself as he has the whole night to ramble in. Rather like comparing Father to the old Tom cat which sallies forth at nightfall and dodges empty bottles and sich for the most of the night. Dad the kind of Dad we have in mind, might dodge empty bottles but boy! oh boy! not all bottles are empty. However, this is getting nowhere, Father is entitled to a day occasionally, if for no other reason than to balance the time to his Better Half of Mother's Day. Dad always was a good old scout, so let's rally round and give him a bit more than "the Bronx cheer," which Bailey translated means more or less the "raspberry". It isn't what you give him so much as the thought behind, as the deacon said about the gift of brandied cherries, it was the spirit they came in. Neckties, shirts, sweaters, suspenders, belts, etc., suggest themselves, perhaps an easy chair or a lounge for him to rest on—something from the drug store, or something in the way of fancy eats that he likes but forgoes as extravagant,—in short, give Dad something that you know he will appreciate, something he likes.

There are times when only a dog will do
For a friend—when you're beaten, sick and blue
And the world's all wrong for he won't care
If you break and cry, or grouch and swear,
For he'll let you know as he licks your hand
That he's downright sorry—and understands.—Anon.

BE OF GOOD CHEER, better days will be here, tidings of comfort and joy—(old song). Rather cheering news here. Listen to the news from Montreal where the Presbyterian Assembly is sitting. A resolution was passed limiting the speeches to five minutes each. Good! Let's hemlock! when the pacifist pacifists are held down to five minutes there's hope for the longest winded after-dinner speaker to reform.

A WOODPECKER has drilled him a hole-home in a telegraph pole on Victoria Avenue. The boys who pass that way to school, pause and with a stone knock on the pole. Mr. Woodpecker invariably answers the call, pokes his head out, apparently remarks, "Only those silly boys again," and withdraws from the scene. The boys got a great kick out of calling the woodpecker.

"CRAZY TIME" is a new name for Daylight Saving Time, invented by some one in the great open spaces to whom the thing is an abomination and a snare. Countless Councillors meeting in Belleville this week, found the official office staff of Shire Hall observing Daylight Saving Time in accordance with the rest of the city, while the Council was eating on Eastern Standard Time. Just a bit awkward.

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

Full of expectation we rode down the gravel slopes, on which tufts of green grass were present, till at three o'clock we entered the Wadi Itself, a bed about a mile wide, filled with clumps of tufted bushes, round which clung sandy hillocks each a few feet high. Vegetation was not pure, but seamed with lines of dry and brittle clay, last bottom of old flood levels. These divided them sharply into layers, rotten with salty mud and flaking away, so that our camels sank in, feticklock deep, with a crunching noise like breaking pastry. The dust rose up in thick clouds, thickened yet more by the sunlight held in them; for the dead air of the hollow was stagnant.

The ranks behind could not see where they were going, which set the hillocks came closer together, and the river bed—split into a maze of shallow channels, the work of partial floods year after year. Before we entered the middle of the valley everything was overgrown by brushwood, which seemed address from the sandhills and laced one to another with tangled twigs as dry, dusty, and dead as old bone. We tucked in the streamers of our gaudy saddle-bags to prevent their being jerked off by the bushes, drew cloaks tight over our clothes, bent our heads down to guard our eyes and crashed through like a storm amongst reeds. The dust was blinding and choking, and the snapping of the branches, grumbles of the camels, shouts and laughter of the men, made a rare adventure.

Before we quite reached the far bank the ground suddenly changed to a clay bottom, in which stood a deep brown water pool, eighty yards long and about fifteen yards wide. This was the flood-water of Abu Jerdan, our goal. We swung a few yards farther, through the last scrub, and reached the open north bank where Feisal had appointed the camp. So we halted, and the men and the slaves unloaded them and set up the tents; while we walked back to see the mules, thirsty after their long day's march, rush with flat foot-splashing splosh, splosh, kicking and splashing with pleasure in the grey water. The abundance of fuel was an added happiness, and in whatever place they chose, the camp each group of friends had a roaring fire—very welcome, as a wet evening came on, eight feet out of the ground and our woollen cloaks stiffened and grew cold with the silver beads in their coarse woof.

It was a black night, moonless, but alive on the very brilliant stars. On a little mound near our camp we collected and looked over the rolling white seas of fog. Out of it rose tent-peaks, and tall ghosts of palm-trees, which became luminous undermeath when the flames licked them, but the steam kept it driven by the noises of the unseen army. One of Feisal's men coming on gravely when I said this to him, telling me, "It is not well that a man should talk of things on high." I rejoiced at his intolerance, for it had been to excite this very feeling that we had hampered ourselves with an unwieldy crowd of men, and with camels to feed.

The first school warning or parade, Sherif Nasir of Medina came in. Feisal leaped up, embraced him, kissed him for joy to us. Nasir made a splendid impression, much as we had heard, and such as we were expecting of him. He was the opposite of Feisal's movement, the man who had fired his first shot in Medina, and who had set fire our last shot at Muslimieh beyond Aleppo on the Baghdad railway asked for an armistice: and from beginning to end all that could be told of him was good.

He was a man of services, whose lot had been unwilling to be stout boyhood. He was now about twenty-seven. His low, broad forehead matched his sensitive nose, while his weak pleasant mouth and small chin were clearly seen through a clipped black beard.

We kept this by following day, to brace ourselves for the necessary hours of talk. Feisal carried most of this upon his own shoulders. Nasir supported him as second in command, and the Beduin chiefs came only to help. The day was bright and warm, threatening to be hot later, and November was the time to wonder about looking at the watering, the men, and the camels, and influence the new-comers:

We were already two days behind our promise to the Navy and Newcombe decided to ride ahead this night to Rabbah, there to meet Boyle and explain that we must hurry the Hardings at the rear-dessrous, but would be glad if she could return there on the evening of January its twenty-six, when we should arrive much in need of water. He would also see if the actual attack could not be delayed till the twenty-fifth to preserve the joint scheme.

In the morning, early, we marched in a straight line for six hours down Wadi Mamdh. Then the valley began to be left, and we struck out across a hollow, desolate, rebarbarous region. Today was cold: a wet wind blew in our faces down the grey coast. As we approached Abu el Lissan, however,

Successful Banquet is Held By St. Andrew's Church Stirling

Stirling, June 14—On Monday evening over a hundred members and adherents of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, gathered in the church parlors for a congregational supper. The Ladies' Aid were responsible for the most splendid and appetizing dishes of good food which adorned the tables around which happy gathering chatted happily until it was time for the program to begin. Those who attended the supper were members and adherents only and a true feeling of fellowship prevailed throughout the evening. Directly after the supper Rev. J. A. Kotfend acted as chairman, called the gathering to order and offered the first number on the program, a tenor solo, with Mrs. Kotfend at the piano. The second number was a piano solo by Charles F. Allen, Mr. Arthur Dunean and Mr. Wm. Dermidy then offered a vocal duet, "The Garden," accompanied at the piano by Mr. Charles Allen. Another musical number was a solo "My Task" by Rev. J. A. Kotfend. At this time those present listened with interest to several fine addresses given by Mr. R. W. McMullen, Mrs. Roger Rollins, Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Mr. Harper Rollins, Mr. Chas. R. Allen, Mr. W. L. Anderson and Mrs. Melvida Mathews, Deaconess of the Presbyterian Church in western Canada who is at present at home on furlough. Miss Mathews spoke in glowing terms on the achievements of the church in the west.

Another interesting feature of the evening was the presentation of a fine writing set to Mr. Chas. R. Allen organist who will leave shortly to take up the position of organist in St. Andrew's Church in Campbellford. Rev. J. A. Kotfend addressed Mr. Allen on behalf of all branches of the church where he had so willingly served and with the wish of those present and all other friends in Stirling, that good fortune and prosperity that is best would attend him in his new undertaking. Arthur Duncan then made the presentation, Mr. Allen responded in a fine manner, stating that he was not going very far away, and that often he would find his way back to visit everyone. The latter part of the evening was devoted to fine community singing under the leadership of Rev. J. A. Kotfend and the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" and prayer by the Minister.

Mr. W. H. Conley, of Melfort, Sask., who for the past few weeks has been visiting at the home of his wife's father Mr. and Mrs. J. Bird, in discussing conditions of the agricultural industry in the section of the west where he makes his home, states that conditions there are quite favorable, as compared with other parts of the country. The nature of the province of Saskatchewan is much the same as the northern part of Ontario, and the same type of farming is done there as in this province. But large numbers of settlers are arriving daily from the stricken area in the southern part of the province. Owning there with great machines such as combines, etc., do on many farming on scale that is much too small for their use. These farmers once prosperous citizens are driven from their homes by drought and must start all over again in a new land with fine machinery that is no modern that it is inadequate. But these big strong Canadian farmers take their set-back with a grin of determination and strive ever to make the best of their lot without complaining. "One sees in the Canadian west today a real test of good citizenship," stated Mr. Conley. Apart from the occasional hailstorm they suffer no crop damage as around Melfort where Mr. Conley's parents settled and have lived since nineteen-one.

St. Paul's W.M.S.

The regular meeting of St. Paul's Women's Missionary Society on Tuesday, June 11th, was one of unusual interest when the meeting took the form of Thimble Day with the Hand Across Mission Band providing a large share of the program. The president, Mrs. C. G. Lewis was in charge of the opening exercises and the meeting was opened with the singing of "Jesus Lover of My Soul", after which all joined in the reading of the Aldersgate's Creed. Mrs. Lawlor then led in prayer and the responsive reading was taken from the 119th Psalm and all repeated the Lord's prayer. After the singing of another hymn, the various reports were read by secretaries—Mrs. W. Fox, Mrs. Robt. Christie, Mrs. Earl Bailey and Mrs. Robt. Patterson. Mrs. C. G. Lawlor then gave a very instructive

Last evening the choir of St. Thomas' Church motored to Foxboro to sing evensong at the Presbyterian church there. Their visit was greatly appreciated, the attendance at the service being very large.

At the Belleville Golf Club at noon today the entertainment committee of women members was in charge of a delicious luncheon at which many participants of Field Day contests and club members generally were guests.

Miss Edith Clare, Miss Jean Clare and Miss Mary Logie Schryver were successful in second year examinations in the Faculty of Art, University of Toronto.

During the recent examination held at the Wheatley Studio, Miss Betty Pitner, pupil of Clifford E. Tompter, passed with honors, the preparatory grade of the Canadian College of Music.

Miss May Hobson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hobson, 71 Dundas Street, called today from Liverpool on the Duchess of Athol for home. She has been away nearly three years, visiting in Eastbourne, England, Wales and Scotland. She was in London for the Jubilee.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Y.M.C.A. held their last meeting for the season yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. A. Seymour, newly-elected president, was in the chair and gave an inspiring talk on the work of the Auxiliary, particularly on the program for next year. Mrs. J. F. Sherrit led in the devotional period and after the meeting adjourned she was hostess for afternoon tea.

At Emmanuel Church Rectory yesterday the Ladies' Aid of the Church held a very successful afternoon tea and sale of home-cooking. The many guests were received by Mrs. George Marshall, president, who is president of the society, and Mrs. J. W. Worrell. The rooms were very prettily decorated with cut flowers and pot plants in seasonable blooms. The tea table with its lace-edged cloth and dainty centrepiece of Spring flowers was presided over by Mrs. E. Rowsome. Tea was served by Mrs. Price and Miss Freda Rowsome, Mrs. James Thompson and Mrs. Worrell also assisted. The home-cooking table was in charge of Mrs. Hallam and Miss Warham. The proceeds of the tea were for the building fund.

Rev Major MacConnell and Mrs. MacConnell of Paris, Rev. and Mrs. Walter Patterson of Preston, and Mrs. J. Bradley Smith of Collingwood, who were attending the Presbyterian Assembly in Toronto this week, were guests of Mrs. Francis Carve, Bridge Street, yesterday. Mrs. Waller Patterson is remaining with Mrs. Carve for the week-end.

St. Andrew's Club entertained at afternoon tea yesterday at the home of Mrs. K. H. Allin. Mrs. J. A. Seymour, president of the club, assisted the hostess in receiving the guests. The tea table at which Mrs. W. J. Walker poured was most attractive with its bouquet of colorful Summer flowers. Mrs. Bob Wilson, Mrs. Percy McKeown and Mrs. W. R. McCreary served tea. Although the affair was in the nature of a house party in the garden, with its gay summer furniture and green boscage beckoning the visitors. Here the home-cooking table was arranged and presided over by Mrs. Bateman and Mrs. Naylor. As guest of honor, yesterday Mrs. George A. Reid was warmly welcomed and her friends were delighted to have her back among them again.

On Tuesday evening, June 11th Mount Pleasant Hall was well filled when over one hundred and fifty persons gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howe (nee Agnes Sharpe).

Rev. F. G. Joblin was master of ceremonies and in his usual happy style left everyone in a jolly mood. The opening number was community singing led by Mr. Kenneth Holmes with Miss Isabel Turner presiding at the piano. All joined in "Old folks at home", "Old Black Joe", "Mr. Bones", and "Aunt Dinah's quilting party".

Miss Pearl Holmes rendered a vocal solo "No place like home" with guitar accompaniment and as an encore she gave a number with guitar and harmonica.

Mrs. Percy McMullen gave a humorous reading entitled "Man and woman". Miss Edna Thrasher sang "Daisies won't tell" with Miss Phyllis David as accompanist.

Miss Eva Chambers contributed two musical numbers, guitar and mandolin selections, Misses Clifford and Kenneth Holmes with Miss Holmes as accompanist sang the duet "Lo the Little Girl dressed in blue" and "The wedding of Miss Sharpe".

The newlyweds were then given special seats at the front of the hall and Miss Marguerite White read the following address:

Mount Pleasant, June 11th, 1935

Dear Agnes and Harold:

We the girls of Mrs. Johnson's Sunday School class, with other friends, have met here tonight to honor the happy event of your marriage.

You, Agnes, have been faithful in attendance at our class meetings, and we trust that your promotion to the married class will be marked by as much faithfulness.

You, Harold, we have known for many years, and you have endeared yourself to all. We hope that the associations you have had with us in our Sunday School may be stepping stones to higher things.

We trust that as you establish your new home that you will seek God as your guide and helper and we pray that heaven's richest blessings may rest upon you, and as the years come and go, that you will find time, happiness and joy that comes from true loving united lives.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a token of our friendship and class association.

Signed on behalf of your Sunday School Class: Mrs. Elwood Johnson, Isobel Turner, Marguerite White, Edna Thrasher, Frances McKeown, Mildred Sharp, Olive McConnell, Muriel Milligan.

Both Harold and Agnes suitably replied thanking their friends for the lovely array of gifts, for the pleasing program, and kindness in coming and inviting all to visit them in their future home.

The following is one of the sentiments expressed in the address and hoped it might continue in their voyages through life.

All joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows" and Agnes and Harold then opened the large array of gifts which revealed beautiful silverware, chits, glass ware in both green and amber, a large variety of towels and granite-ware, flannelette sheets, tablecloth and many useful articles.

Braddock Outpoints Champ To Win Heavyweight Title in Most Astounding Ring Upset

STARTS TOO SLOW

Referee Takes 3 Rounds Away From Champ For Unfairness

(By Alan Gould)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 14.—Gloomy-The man who couldn't win, the 10 to 1 shot who didn't have a chance—the 26-year-old James J. Braddock—is the heavyweight champion of the world today in the most astounding upset since John L. Sullivan went down before the thrusts of Jim Corbett back in the gay nineties.

He couldn't win—but he whipped the curly haired "max killer", Max Baer, by a margin that was close but nevertheless convincing in the slow, plodding rounds before an amazed crowd of scarcely 30,000 each customer last night in Madison Square Garden's half empty bowl.

He didn't have a chance to cope with the bigger, stronger, harder hitting Californian—but he kept fighting, punching, piling up points by paying attention to the business of the evening. He earned the unanimous decision of Referee Johnny McAvoy and the two judges, Charley Barrett and Charley Lynch.

Braddock was just another flash "has been" once a year ago, getting up off the floor in a preliminary to the Baer-Carnera slugfest, when fight started to comeback which led straight to the end of the rainbow with his championship belt and the pot of gold, that means no more trips to the relief agency by the Braddock family.

—Jinx Falls Works

Baer was, unable to dispel that jinx that has pursued every chosen plan to stake his title in the sprawling Long Island City Arena, including Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey and Prince Carnera.

Braddock won, not by any spectacular methods or margin, but because he stuck everlastingly to his guns, standing his ground in every exchange at close range and using every resource at his command to the best advantage.

Baer lost, despite a gallant finish, because he started too slowly, clowned too much and found too late that he could not put over anything resembling a finishing blow against an opponent, who gave him few openings.

The Californian fought a bad fight but Braddock made him look bad. Max hurt both hands, he hurt before the fifth round but he didn't do it because of using them too often.

Disconsolate but generous in praising his conqueror, Baer said he was "through" with the ring but one took him seriously.

He probably will fight the winner of the forthcoming Joe Louis-Primo Carnera bout in New York and attempt later to regain the world championship.

Here he crouched, scowling, for the 15th and final round, knowing the crowd was slipping from him. Baer summoned a characteristic grin and whispered to Braddock:

"Good luck to you, kid, if you win this championship."

The gesture was a crowning touch to a fight, that will go down as the most amazing chapter to heavyweight annals. There were no knockdowns, one did either rather exhibit a punch calculated to bring about a sudden turn of events.

The crowd, though strongly partisan to the Californian's favor because he was so much the underdog, frequently booed and yelled for action.

Baer Clowns Plenty

The champion himself seemed to be coasting, if not actually pulling his punches at close quarters and adding his time for tns opening and the "kill".

Baer let five rounds slip past before he landed anything like a solid, jarring punch. He was so far behind after a dozen rounds, indeed even his most desperate efforts could turn the tide.

Baer brought gales of laughter from the crowd with his antics but he damaged his chances by tactics, which violated the rules and resulted in penalties.

When Braddock opened up in the sixth round, Baer feigned grogginess and with a grin swayed in his tracks, hands down, but Referee McAvoy took three rounds away from him—the fifth, ninth, and twelfth—because the champion either hit low or backhanded.

The last penalty came in the twelfth. Up to that point, Braddock had been fairly content to keep his head away. Baer was outpunching him in close quarters, covering the challenger more and looking for the main target.

The champion had taken the two previous rounds. He had blood trickling from Braddock's nose, which had been cut in the sixth. Baer was on top of Braddock near his corner when he let fly a low punch, just before the bell.

Crowds Jeers

The crowd jeered vociferously and Joe Gould, Jimmy's manager, ran half way across the ring to yell a warning at Baer. A policeman leaned in to help restore order but it wasn't necessary. The referee took the round away from Baer and the champion's chances were behind him.

Braddock took everything Baer could muster in the last three rounds. The challenger not only connected briskly to the head and body in every exchange but tried hard for a knockout himself. Once he grazed Baer's chin with a looping right hand that had dynamite in it.

The Associated Press score sheet each man was credited with seven rounds with one even but Braddock's margin was more pronounced in the rounds he won.

At no stage did Baer resemble the "killer" who knocked out Max Schmeling two years ago and who smashed Primo Carnera to defeat in the same battle pit last year.

Regardless of how much he was handicapped by damaged hands Baer undoubtedly paid the penalty for underestimating his challenger beforehand and wasting too much time during the fight in posturing or clowning. He waved at ringsiders, thumbed his nose at boxing specialists and neglected to pay enough punching attention to his challenger.

Windsor, Ont., June 14 (CP)—There was one family in Windsor today the Edward Braddocks which could truly say "I told you so" in connection with the detheroning of heavyweight champion Max Baer by the redoubtable James J. Braddock at New York. Mr. Braddock, along with James Braddock, fireman in the Border Cities Star's composing room, are first cousins to the new titleholder.

CHAMPION

James J. Braddock on relief a year ago pounded out 15 round decision over Maxie Baer in one of the greatest upsets in ring history.

Oshawa "Brewers" Support Ogden in Pinches and Radios Lose Smart, Fast Game 5-3

Locals Unable to Hit With Players on The Runways

LUSTY CLOUTING

Three Triples, And Two Doubles Sandwiched in Pastime

Affording their ace hurler, Doxy Ogden, marvelous support in the field the Donalbain Brewery team from Oshawa downed the local Stewart-Warners 5 to 3 in a regular scheduled O.B.L. game played at the Exhibition Grounds last evening. The visitor's win elevated their league standing to a tie with the local Radiomen. Jack Williams assaulted the mound for the locals and was deserving of a better fate than he was forced to accept, as Williams, supplicated in the matter of strike-outs, but the Brewers solved envitreetz for nine safe blows, including two doubles and a triple, Ogden on the other hand, had the supernatural support by his team mates and limited the local batsmen to five scratchy hits with the exception of Alex Weir's mighty triple that lifted the cover off some 800 local fans for a few moments. The Radios played listless ball, which the Oshawa squad shaved, heads-up baseball all afternoon and deserved the final count.

The home town outfit was afforded a rather soft run in the initial frame, but failed to capitalize on the advantage, as a local error paved the way for the Brewers to knot the count in the second frame. Again in the third Pocock's error placed Williams in an awkward position that saw the visitors score again, Jubenville was the big gun smith of the day with two doubles and a single to his credit. Between the visitor's catcher, drove out a triple, while Peacock helped himself to two safe bingles.

Weir's lusty clout to deep centre for a triple scored two runs after Grey had been called out on a questionable decision at first base by Umpire Meagher. Weir died on third. Dean Ford beat out two hits to the infield to lead the locals offensively. The local loss drops the Radios down a notch in the O.B.L. standing, they now being tied with Oshawa for the top rung of the league ladder.

Williams Whiffs Eight

Williams hurled fairly good ball for the home team striking out eight to Ogden's one, while the local mendsman passed two with three free hits by pitcher base as Ogden walked that first base as Ogden walked that number. Hung in centre field literally raced all over the park to make sensational catches and pull Ogden out of some rather embarrassing positions. His entire five put-outs were all feature plays of the hair-raising nature. Elliott on third, Jubilerville and Jeannette all played stellar ball to give Ogden the much needed support that resulted in victory, as Kitchen handled the slants of his pitcher in a capable manner; Barclay and Williams, the local battery, fielded well, each handling their chances without a bobble, while Roy Smith handled 13 chances without a slip. Green and McIlroy handled all their chances neatly as did Grey and Weir in the outer garden. On the day's play the better team won, but the Stewart-Warners are far from a beaten outfit and look for revenge on Donalbain's high in expectations of a victory.

ST. PAUL'S A. C. LOSES TO TWEED

Gordon Steel Works Rally in 3rd Innings to Finish 7-4

Tweed—(Special)—Coming from behind in the third inning, Gordon Steel Works defeated St. Paul's A. C. by a score of 7 to 4 as a feature of the sport on Wednesday afternoon to raise their total to five wins and two losses. Tweed team, scheduled to start at six o'clock, was delayed three-quarters of an hour by the late arrival of the visitors to put in an appearance at the appointed time, much to the annoyance of the large crowd of spectators who were kept standing.

Cy Barrage on the mound for the St. Paul's A. C. pitched a nice brand of ball, good enough to win most ball games. He struck out four, permitted nine hits, and gave only one free ticket to first. Rigby with a home run and a single was the leading batsman. Bennett and Green connected for doubles, Knott had two singles to account for all of

ORIOLES PUMMEL FOUR PITCHERS

Leafs Defeated 9-6 And Lose Full Game To Bisons

(By The Associated Press)

With the Syracuse Chiefs making desperate efforts to get into the battle and Newark showing signs of a comeback, the path of Buffalo Bisons International League leaders, seems to be growing increasingly rocky. Their series with the Toledo Mudhens ended yesterday showed the Bisons as distinctly vulnerable, when they had to work hard to gain a win in two games with a club, that is hovering around the .500 mark in the standings.

Buffalo took the odd game 4-3 as Bobby Coombs, most consistent of the Syracuse flingers, waged a fine battle with the veteran Owen Carroll, and a home run by Dick Siebert in the sixth proved the winning blow as George Saving repiled with a circuit smash with one aboard in the seventh and Carroll finally had to retire in favor of Ken Ash, when the Chiefs threatened again in the eighth.

The Bees was just enough to return Syracuse to sixth place a half game behind Newark as the Bears slugged out a 4 to 2 decision over Montreal Royals punching their way more effectively although output hit 14-11.

The cruiting Baltimore Orioles pummeled four Toronto pitchers to gain a 9 to 6 triumph over the accomplace Leafs. Buffalo gained a full rome on Toronto, making it a three-game margin, while Baltimore and Montreal again wound up in a deadlock, tied for third place.

George «Pooch» Pussinelli, ace centerfielder of the circuit, sounded the keynote for the Orioles when he belted his 26th and 27th home runs of the season, the first with the bases full and knocked in seven counters. Peacock and Pool hit pinch homers for the Leafs.

Albany and Rochester broke even in their cellar struggle, the Senators taking the seven inning twilight clash 5-3, when Bert Haas's single brought home Dutch Prather with the odd run in the last inning and the Red Wings hammering out a 16-6 triumph under the floodlights.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by

McElheran & Watkin

The ladies section of the Bowling Club arranged a very successful tournament, the mixed rinks which decided on Wednesday afternoon and evening. There were twelve rinks entered, and the play was being perfect and the depression being almost entirely set aside. Over the occasion was a very enjoyable one.

The ladies provided four sets of prizes. The first was won by Mrs. Fred Watkins, Mrs. McElheran, Geo. Watkins and H. McElheran, skip.

The contest was so keen that it was necessary to play off a tie to decide the winner.

Those playing for three wins went to—Mrs. Sandercock, Mrs. Walker, D. O. Walker and Charlie Sulman, skip.

Third prize was won by Mrs. McBride, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. McBride, and Charlie Simmons, skip.

Only one entry from Cobourg for the ladies' tournament! What was the matter with the Clubs we supported last season. Surely there must be some mistake. We would suggest that the officers of both clubs look after matters in the future.

The most exciting incident of the afternoon was possibly the scare Terry Scanlan gave Bob Wray, who was compiled to win with his last shot. Terry had a scratch team that afternoon, Dunnulls, I guess.

In addition to the under tournament four rinks of Jewlers in attendance at their annual convention held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, had a tournament during the afternoon, playing two games each with the rinks of Quinte Lawn Bowling Club.

THE RED TIGER

By ALANSON CROSBY

JUDITH GOES ADVENTURING

CHAPTER ONE

Judith's usually smooth brow puckered in a frown as she picked up her notebook and rose from her typewriter. She had been transcribing a letter dictated to her by young Mr. Stokes the old gentleman's nephew, but that would have to wait. Her uncle came first, and when Hezekiah Stokes had one of his tantrums——

Judith had but a few steps to take to reach the private office of the senior partner, but the puckerish frown had vanished by the time she reached the old Stoke's door. The old man's face was very red and his thin white hair was in a tangle instead of lying down quietly around the bald spot on the top of his head, as it should, and did when he was amiable. But those eyes were not snapping. Funny about those eyes, Judith thought. They were something out of character with the white hair and his pale, lined face. They weren't old eyes at all.

"This is terrible, Miss Bates!" the old man almost shouted. "Why did it?" He was holding a legal paper in one hand and pointing a quivering index finger of the other hand at it.

Miss Bates quickly took the paper from the indignant lawyer and made a current examination of the instrument while the old man glared at her. She was hoping —and was ashamed of herself for hoping—that one of the other girls had done the typewriting. But it was her own work.

"I transcribed it, Mr. Stokes," she said, a little fearfully, as she handed it back. "What is wrong?"

"What is wrong?" he shouted. "Don't you—It's all wrong. Who dictated it?"

"Mr. Harold Stokes, sir. I'm sorry if I messed it up."

The old man's green eyes saw the tears were almost coming. His manner changed suddenly.

"Who said you messed it up, Miss Bates?" It was a growl, but a kindly one. "It isn't your fault. It's not enough—and that's the only mess it's got. Tell that young jackanapes—er, tell Mr. Harold Stokes I want to come in here."

"What's the matter with the old painbiter now?" he snarled.

"Something about that brief you dictated this morning," said Judith coldly. She did not like the disrespectful manner of the younger man toward the senior member of the firm of Stokes, Anderson de Stokes. The old man was a bit difficult and sometimes harsh, but he was just. Harold Stokes was—well, Judith honestly did not like his airs and pretensions. She knew instinctively that he was not a good lawyer and would not be a success. But in the firm but for the misfortune indigence of the old man were he ridiculed.

The murmur of voices raised far above the tone of ordinary conference came through the closed door of Hezekiah Stoke's private office as Judith resumed her typewriting. "They're sure having a bad," she thought.

Then the door opened and slammed shut again, and Harold Stokes strode angrily through the small room where Judith and two other typists worked. His door soon slammed indistinctly as he shut himself in his private office.

The other two girls looked their heads and winked knowingly at Judith.

The one closest to her—Sally Tobin—whispered: "Gee, he hates himself, don't he?"

Presently Judith's bell rang twice —the signal for her to go to Harold Stoke's private office for dictation. Judith frowned again.

"I wish," she said to herself, "he would call one of the other girls once in a while. Why does he always have to pick on me?" She always had her notebook to respond to the call.

Harold Stokes usually dark face was red, and swollen with anger. He was pacing and tearing a clear blotter into small bits and strewing them on the floor.

"The old bell-cat's raring about that Hess brief," he said. "It's got to be done over and it's got to be ready tomorrow morning. We'll have to work on it tonight, Bates."

"May I see it, please?" asked Judith coldly. As the paper lay there on Harold's desk she could see that it was covered with red and blue pencil phrases and made interlinations. Harold folded the paper and put his hand on it.

"Never mind. I'll dictate it over. I think I could copy it with the corrections. I can read Mr. Stokes' writing very well."

"No—can't take any chances. You never could read those hen-tracks. And, anyhow, there are some changes I may want to make in the style, mann's phraseology. I'll dictate it. Bates. It won't take us over an hour or two. It's about quitting time now, so we'll have to do it tonight. Tell your mother, Harold turned what he thought to be an ingratiating smile on Judith—"I'll take you out for a little lunch right now; then we'll get to work on this damned thing, and then I'll blow you to a real dinner, and maybe a night club. What say, Bates?"

Judith was not favorably impressed, but thought it expedient to conceal her displeasure. She all his shortcomings and the old man's explosion this afternoon. Harold Stokes was twenty-six, Judith twenty-five, for the old lawyer thought it good deal of him. Judith wanted to keep her job. It was pleasant in this office—all but young Stokes. And she wondered if she wasn't a bit unreasonable in her dislike of him. Well, whether it was prejudice or intuition that made that dislike, self-interest dominated that she seemed to do so much to deserve it. And a night club would be fun. She didn't like the place as evidence of an occasional movie. But she wished he wouldn't call her "Batesy."

"That's kind of you, Mr. Stokes," she said simply.

And Judith had to confess to herself, a little later, that it was pleasant to eat good food, served daintily in attractive surroundings, instead of hurrying through an unappetizing supper in a cheap lunch-chair restaurant, or dining on tea and toast in her own bedroom.

By the time they had lunched, the lights were on and State Street was gay with ever changing tari-colored electric signs. The crowds were forming queues to the doors of the most popular talkie theatres, the restaurants were filling with motor cars and the air redolent with the strident sounds of the city's night life. Judith experienced a pleasurable thrill. She loved the sights and sounds of the city. She never wanted to go back to sleep old Taylorville —especially now that she had her family ties there.

Dating her first over, though, was no small job. Thank heaven, young Stokes "tended strictly to business" during the process. Judith had feared he might take advantage of their being alone in a cab to thrust obnoxious attentions on her. But when I've undertaken him," she thought as she finished typing the last page, she had typed from his dictation without the intermediary of stenographic notes.

"That's think, Batesy," the devil," said young Stokes tearing the spoiling sheet from her. "Now, make whoopee. What say, Batesy?"

"Whatever you like, Harold," Judith replied coldly.

"It's ten o'clock," she said, "and I'd better go home. My mother——"

"And get your beauty sleep? You don't need any. You're pretty enough, Batesy."

"I wish you wouldn't call me Batesy, Mr. Stokes."

Harold laughed.

"All right, Beauty. There's a name! I'll call you Beauty—Beauty Bates. That's a good one!"

"Don't please."

"Oh, I'm a good fellow." He tried to take her hand. "A high and mighty air with me, eh? Come, make whoopee, What say, Batesy?"

"I don't think that's the right word," Judith replied, with dignity. "I'm tired and I want to go home."

Judith snatched her hand out of his reach.

"I'm not seeking anything, Mr. Stokes," she said coldly. "Thank you for the dinner. I'm going home now."

"The devil you are!" young Mr. Stokes changed his tactics. "I beg your pardon if I've offended you, Miss Bates. But aren't you just a little bit cruel? I'm only a kid who is a later century, you know. Just be a good fellow and I'll act like a gentleman. Come and dine and I'm going to keep that promise. Honest sir."

He had picked up his hat and was starting for the door.

Judith pondered. Was she being unjust again? Was she making too much of offense. Maybe she was just a little bit old-fashioned, as he hinted. She was not of his set, bluestocking—and she would enjoy a night club! She had never been to one. It would be a novel experience.

She followed young Stokes quietly enough. They came down to the main floor from the tenth floor, where the offices of Stokes, Anderson & Stokes were, on the twenty-first. Harold took her arm and led her across the street where his blue roadsters was parked. As he opened the door for her Judith hesitated for a minute. Misgivings assailed her. Perhaps she ought not to go to a night club. She was a particular young man.

"Well," he said. What are you waiting for? Getting Victorian again?"

She hated that word. She got in.

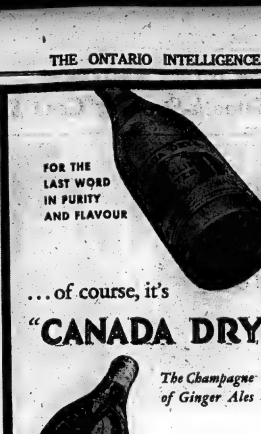
In a minute they were on their way to a night club. Stokes handled his car well. In 20 minutes they were out of the city on a paved road.

"Where are you taking me?" Judith whispered. "Is it a long ride?"

"We'll go out to Jake's place," Harold Stokes replied. "Young Stokes. "It's the hottest roadhouse in these dingbus, Beauty."

Judith shrank further. She had had heard of "the Red Tiger" and knew it was a very low place indeed now she had not come.

"I don't care to go there, Mr. Stokes," she said, and her voice trembled.



"Forget it, Beauty," he said. "I'm going to show you the time of your young life."

THE RED TIGER

CHAPTER TWO

Judith wondered what she should do. She knew instinctively that any attempt to appeal to Harold Stokes to abandon the visit to "The Red Tiger" would be fruitless. The car jump from the car, going nearly 60 miles an hour, would be suicidal. If she demanded that he stop and let her out he would only laugh at her. If she refused if he complied with the demand, a good looking girl on a country road alone at eleven o'clock at night would not be in an enviable position.

Even while she was canvassing the situation with her brain-cells The Red Tiger" loomed up by the roadside ahead of her. She was sure of it by the myriad lights, the automobiles in the yard, the rather strident sound of laughter and high pitched voices, the blare of a dance orchestra and, indubitably, by a huge electrically illuminated sign of a great, springing red animal of the genus cat.

"Here we are," said Harold Stokes inconically as his brakes screeched. Even as he helped her out of the car Judith experienced a revulsion of feeling that strange her a little. "The Red Tiger" might not be a nice place, but she was almost glad she had come after all. Here was life, and she was young. Even if it were vulgar and almost regarding she need not allow herself to be soiled by it. She could take care of herself. Tossed her head and even gave young Stokes a smile.

"That's the stuff, Beauty! Be a sport," he said, encouraged and emboldened by her change of attitude. "We live only once, you know."

He made a move to put an arm around her, but she shook it off. He grinned and led the way to the inn. They passed through a motley crowd of men and women at tables, many of whom stared at them, Judith noted that most of the women were rather hard-faced and overly heavily with their cosmetics. The men, too, had an insolent, appraising way of looking at her that was rather disconcerting. Again she doubted the wisdom of her coming here.

Harold, with a Hard face conducted them to a table. Evidently he knew Stokes well for he called him by name, and the stare with which he regarded Judith for a moment softened on inspection. Several men and women spoke or waved to Harold as they made their way through the room.

"Hullo, Harold, honey!" a peroxide blonde purred, attempting to catch his hand as they passed her table. "Who's your new sweetie?"

"Forget it, May," growled Harold without stopping. "Come on, Beauty."

"Beauty, huh!" Judith could hear the girl speak as they passed on. "Better watch yer step, Beauty, or you may have to change yer name."

Judith flushed and was again overwhelmed with the feeling that she had no business in this place. But it was too late now to turn back. Harold seemed her reeling and said in a low voice:

"Don't pay any attention to that fool. She's a dope!"

The table the hard-faced waiter took them to was well toward the front, facing a small stage on which a tired looking girl in evening dress was singing a sentimental song of which only an occasional word or phrase above the din of conversation and laughter at the tables. Judith felt sorry for the girl on the stage and a sense of shame for the audience so lacking in attention and appreciation.

"She's not blanket," said Harold. "Don't see what Jake's got her for. Well, wait. Here comes some good to come. Red, we want a couple of rare steaks and anything else you've got that's extra good, Cocktails, of course."

"Right," said Red and started off. Judith wanted to say that she did not want a cocktail, but Red had disappeared, and anyhow, she thought, it would be prudish. When it came she need only sip it.

Judith gave out this cigarette case and offered it to her. Judith cared very little for smoking, but took one. If she refused he would bring out that hateful word, "Victorian," again, she thought, and all the women were smoking. She did not like to make herself conspicuous by non-indulgence.

The sentimental balladist had finished to a very mild ripple of applause and the waiters was placing a lively dance tune as an antidote to her song. A blue haze of smoke hung over the tables in the large room as Judith gazed about her. Nearly all the tables had occupants, some in pairs and some in larger parties. The lights were subdued, but voices were not. The garish walls were adorned with a number of paintings, mainly of nude women. The place had an air of cheapness and vulgarity. Again Judith wished she had not come, but nervous fear even within.

A girl came with cigarettes. Her dress was very low in the neck and back and very high in the skirt —so high that more flesh showed above her silk stockings. Judith's men was watching her before she reached their table and felt a sickening feeling of disgust at the familiarities she permitted from her male customers. Evidently though it paid—she was selling plenty of cigarettes at a quarter for ten cent packages. She could not be more than 18 Judith's own age and was pretty in a brazen sort of way. She stared rather strangely at Judith when she reached their table.

"Thanks" she said unconsciously, and passed on. Harold had omitted the customary offer of other cigarettes, and the girl winked surreptitiously at Judith. Judith interpreted the wink to mean that the cigarette was drugged—or thought that. It was in reference to his table partner that Harold had attempted no deception.

Red was back now with the cocktails and Judith was pleased to find that certainly had an appetizing effect on her. The orchestra had finished its jazz tune and a group of scantily clad girls had begun to dance on the stage.

"That's a good cocktail, Beauty," said Harold. "Have another?"

"No, thank you," Judith replied hastily. "Isn't it?"

Judith felt impelled by taste it. Unused to cocktails, she had to admit that it was pleasant to drink. She was tempted to drink it all, but only took a swallow.

"Not used to liquor, I see," said Harold. "Or just being Victorian?"

Judith laughed and she drank the rest defiantly.

The scantily clad girls on the stage had now trooped down on to the floor and were dancing among the customers. The orchestra was playing a piece redolent of jungles and primitive instincts. It was a weird, sensuous and Judith was thoroughly enjoying the effect of the cocktail, too, had sent a glow through her. In spite of the vulgarity and grossness of the place, again she was almost glad she had come. She was seeing a phase of life she had never experienced. She was 20, and no fool either. She was living in a little country town. She could take care of herself again she shook her head with a little defiant nod-smiled across the table at young Stokes.

"Atta boy, Beauty," he said, with a grin. "I like to see you throw back head like that and smile. It's a sign that you've made up your mind to be yourself. Let's dance!"

She rose and joined the throng on the floor dancing between the tables. Young Stokes was a good dancer and Judith was enjoying his company most of all, for she dearly loved dancing.

She thought that, in all this crowd, there was no recognition of her by any one of the men who knew besides Harold Stokes. But soon she realized that this was not the case. She caught a glimpse of a familiar face—that of Bob Harley, a young reporter on the Taylorville Sun, whom she knew quite well because he was a steady "boy friend" of Sally Foster, her roommate and co-worker in the office of Stokes, Anderson & Stokes.

Judith thought she had caught a momentary glimpse of Bob's staring face. He had recognized her, and she took it to mean a look of astonishment and displeasure. It almost spoiled her evening's pleasure at the dance. Thereafter she was conscious of him always following her all over the floor.

The orchestra blared the last note of the dance and Stokes led her back to their table.

"That was great!" he said. Tired?"

"A little," she confessed. It was not the dance, though, that had tired her. It was the feeling that Bob Harley's eyes were on her in surveillance and disapproval.

They were presently seated at their table again before Bob came on. His red hair was standing on end, his face was a mask of anger.

"Meet Beauty, Bob," said Stokes smiling rather facetiously. "Beauty Bates." He seemed to be enjoying Harley's undisguised disapproval.

"I know Miss Bates," Bob said stiffly. The music started again. "I claim this dance, Judith."

Almost without volition, Judith rose and before Stokes fully grasped the situation they were off. Bob went to the other extreme.

"I don't believe you have much

G-Men Hunt Fleeing Kidnapper in Montana

G-men of the Department of Justice, with two of the Weyerhaeuser kidnap gang already captured, swung into action in Montana and Idaho, in an effort to apprehend William Mahan, paroled convict, wanted for two bank robberies and believed to have been the third member of the mob which kidnapped George Weyerhaeuser, Jr. of Tacoma, for a ransom of $200,000. Mahan, recognized on the streets of Butte, Mont. by a police officer who had escaped him seven years ago for a bank robbery, abandoned his car and fled over fences and back alleys, leaving $15,500 of the blood money in his car. Every highway out of the State was blockaded immediately in an effort to capture the desperado. Mahan parted from the Waleys in an Idaho forest

Police Court Hold Driver After Crash

Admits Being Drunk in Charge of Car—Two Taken to Hospital

Pleading guilty to a charge of being drunk in charge of an automobile when arraigned in police court this morning, Mr. [illegible] was remanded in custody to next Monday's session of police court.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS RECEIVE NO MERCY!

THE man who takes a drink when he knows he is going to drive a car is deliberately asking for trouble.

It is time for strict discipline on this . . . on mad speed . . . on all forms of road selfishness that lead to accidents.

Persons convicted of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle will receive no mercy. It is better to drive carefully than to lose your driver's license . . . perhaps permanently . . . in addition to receiving a severe court sentence.

Obituary

WILLIAM A. BATEMAN

Bonarlaw—The death of Wm. A. Bateman at his home on the 10th concession of Rawdon on Monday, June 3rd, came as a shock to his many friends although he had been in poor health for some time. He was born in Rawdon Township fifty one years ago, son of the late Christopher Bateman and Mrs. E. A. Noble and lived in this township all his life. He was a member of Springbrook United Church and served on the Trustee Board and was also a director of Maple Leaf Cheese Co. Ltd., Tweed. He excelled in sports, being a member of the Bonarlaw Hunt Club, and The Rawdon Rifle Association. He was one of the best rifle shots in the latter association having won the championship of Canada. Rifle Association silver plate some years ago.

The funeral service was held in the chapel of McDougall and Brown Ltd., Tweed, Rev. Mr. Jones, Rector of St. Saviours Church taking the service. Interment was made in Prospect Cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs John Wallace, H. A. Caverley, Elden Greenly; John Shepherd; Chris Webb; and John Webb.

His wife predeceased him twelve years ago.

kind of a place this is, Judith," he said.

"Is it as bad as all that?" said Judith, pettish.

"Worse!" said Bob Harley, sentimentally.

Judith tossed her head.

"Then why are you here?" she demanded. "Would Sally like it?"

"A man can go places a decent woman can't," said Bob brutally. "I wouldn't think of bringing Sally here and it happens I'm here on an assignment. There's likely something break loose here tonight."

As though in verification of Bob's statement, the lights suddenly went out. There was the screams of women and curses of men, the staccato barking of an automatic was heard.

Camera Analyzes Drive of Smooth-Stroking Gene Sarazen

This is how a golf champion drives. His action when he steps to the tee and lifts his ball down the course have been carefully caught in their proper sequence by the "magic eye" camera and are reproduced above. The player is stocky Gene Sarazen, one of the best playing a club in pro ranks. Gene is noted for his driving as well as for ability to play tricky shots along the greens, and this is how he gets his distance. FIRST Gene is seen addressing the ball via the slow motion camera. He relaxed cocked slightly to the right and his head is nodded for a firm stance, interlocking grip and head down the fairway. Note his back swing. Notice the hip turn and the position of the head, which is still "on the ball". THIRD from the LEFT is Sarazen starting to caught the ex-Italian caddy as he has hit the ball and sent it on its way down the fairway. Note his weight on the left leg; hips are through nicely and square to the line of flight. Still looking at the spot where the ball was, he is a split second away from start of the follow-through which comes in the next picture. Here we have Sarazen going through with all he has, left arm just breaking from the straight and then finally the finished product. Note that only after the entire stroke is completed does Gene take his eyes from the ball. These photographs were taken at the Oakmount club by slow motion cameras, and are shots of actual action, snapped from off the tee during play of a practice round.

LOUIS PREFERS HIS DOGS LARGE

Training at Pompton Lakes, N.J., for his bout with Primo Carnera, June 25, Joe Louis, Detroit negro, romps with his pet Great Dane, Joe calls the dog Satchrebs. The huge brute is very fond of the colored heavyweight hope, and Joe evidently finds pleasure in the company of his canine friend. He doesn't like lapdogs.

ALABAMA PITTS DENIED CHANCE TO PLAY PRO BALL

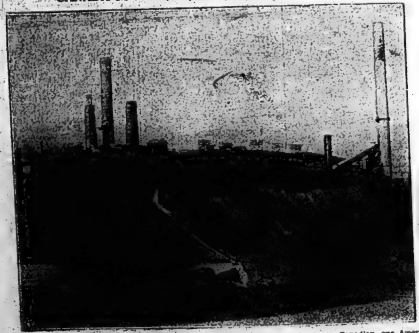
U. S. MINING AND TEXTILE INDUSTRIES FACE STRIKES



With threats of strike following in the wake of the U.S. supreme court's decision invalidating the NRA, attention became focused on the vast coal and textile industries, among the first of the major industries likely to be affected. Union leaders, headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, asserted 450,000 workmen would go on strike on June 17 unless a new coal contract between operators and miners were reached, while Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers, warned that textile workers would strike if wages were cut.

Rain Cannot Damp Winning Ardor of Omaha

Champion three-year-old of the current racing season is not to be daunted by a bit of wet weather. Omaha, William Woodward's crack colt, added to the Derby and Preakness victories he had already captured by winning the important Belmont Stakes in easy fashion over a wet and heavy track. In finishing ahead, Omaha trimmed Rosemont, his conqueror in the one-mile Withers Stakes, over the mile and a half course. Jockey Willie Saunders, ex-Calgary rider, was again aboard. A veritable cloudburst descended just as Owner Woodward went out to lead Omaha and Jockey Saunders to the judges' stand after the race.

CANADA TO PAY $350,000 FOR DAMAGE TO U. S.

Because of the damage done by fumes from the smelter at Trail, B.C. prior to 1932, to nearby points in the state of Washington, Canada will pay the United States $350,000 damages. Premier Bennett announced at Ottawa. The money will be returned to the government by the mining company. A jury of three, one Canadian, one American and one other national will decide what damage has been done since 1932.

WARNED OF ULTIMATUM

Nanking, June 13 (CP-Havas) — The Japanese army high command in North China this evening warned the Chinese War Ministry, that Japan's ultimatum expires at midnight.

Chinese War Minister Gen. Ho Ying-Ching had refused to make an immediate written reply to the ultimatum whose demands would make the Japanese virtual masters of Hopei Province.

CELEBRATE 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF UNITED CHURCH FOUNDING

Celebrating the 10th anniversary of formation of the United Church of Canada, 17,000 people gathered in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, to take part in an impressive service of praise. All parts of Canada were represented in the throng with ministers of the church in all sections of the Dominion attending. Three former moderators, Dr. G. C. Pidgeon, Dr. James Endicott and Dr. T. Albert Moore, along with the present incumbent, Dr. Richard Roberts, and Sir William Hearst were seated on the platform. A choir of 2,000 voices and the Toronto Regimental band rendered music. A pageant depicting the outstanding performances of the church since union, added glamor to the first moderator, (Left) and Dr. Roberts, led the audience in prayer. Below is a view of the worshipping throng which jammed the sports palace for the anniversary celebration.

ABDUCTOR SUSPECT SAID TO BE CANADIAN

While police and federal agents combed the vicinity of Butte, Mont., for William Mahan, EIGHT, ex-convict sought in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping, preparations were being made by United States C-man, to transport Harmon Waley, LEFT, and his wife, Margaret, from Salt Lake City to Toronto to face their nine-year-old victim, George Weyerhaeuser. Waley and his wife both confessed to the $200,000 kidnaping, following arrest in Salt Lake City. Mahan was said by U.S. federal officials to be Canadian-born.

Daily Short Story

The Perfect Secretary

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Before Ralph did the Bachelor's Club dirt by becoming ineligible, he was an up and coming broker with a weakness for mining stocks. He lived a Bohemian life; his sixth-floor apartment was either cluttered with a gay crowd or begging for an occupant.

It was during one of these begging spells that he made his "biggest investment." Golf and a week-end party lured him to Long Island. While happily whacking a ball around the fairways by day and skillfully maneuvering on the dance terrace at night, his apartment debated in the phone's interest ringing. It was a nonsense ring too and Ralph's wandering habits caused his to the neighbors distaste.

The constant ringing disturbed the ladies' sleep and if it rang it would be the landlady, "I rocked the boat down the basement, wore the dark Mr. Chuppets' parties. Why the devil doesn't he tell a body where he gone or get a secretary? That's what she said Ralph when he came back and he decided something had to be done for his wandering habits caused him the loss of a potential profit.

It seems that when President Roosevelt lifted the embargo on foreign gold and millions of dollar stocks was upping, a friendly broker tried to tip Ralph to the "get rich Pirate" gold mine. Trat's why Ralph's phone jangled balmily over the week-end. As a consequence, that stock had gone up as far as it probably would for some time and it would be profitless to buy for a quick turnover.

Looks for Solution.

He strode back and forth in the apartment, fluttering something about paying friends and searched for a solution to fix his problem. The ball interrupted his thoughts and he answered it. Jack Farrell who had tried to tip Ralph in the "Persian Pirate."

"Say, why don't you stop gadding around?" Say said, forgetting the amenities of a greeting. "Here I've had a hot tip and you're out with your silly pleasures."

"Stop it, for Pete's sake, groaned Ralph. "Can't you let me be suffering enough. If there is something I could do—"

"Why don't you stay home, Bozo?" Say docked an imaginary bow.

"Let me see," mused Ralph. "A secretary, No, that won't do. People don't have secretaries in apartments. Least not bachelors."

"I have it Ralph. The telephone operator's hookup. There's the M.S. O. Telephone Service Company. They hook a fine young telephone and connect it with their station. If you get out, no one answers the phone after it rings a few times, an operator in the M. S. O. office picks up the connection, says she's your secretary and takes the message. I know I have used it successfully for quite some time."

"That listens O.K." said Ralph. "But is it confidential?"

"Absolutely so," Ralph answered. "You see, when you're out for a good and come back you call the service and get your operator and she'll tell you all."

"Golf! A good investment. Think of the return." And shortly after, Ralph got a secretary.

Plays Gold Market

Ralph plunged into the market scouting out tips and taking advantage of the rising gold market. He went at it with a zeal that nearly lost him his shirt. Perhaps you remember the venture. It was down in Dupania, one of those typical sunny little Caribbean republics, with over night governments. The country seethed with gold and the mild citizens were constant victims of fake revolutions by revolutionists, who made no bones about their intentions, the gold, and not the citizen's poorly protected welfare, so where gold glittered, Ralph's nose pointed, much the same as Lafayette's nose faced other South American

"Cardinal Richelieu"

George Arliss' Best Film to Date

All once a magnificent spectacle and superb entertainment, "Cardinal Richelieu" coming to the Belle Tuesday and Monday, matinee and evening, surpasses even "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "The Count of Monte Cristo" in power and star, George Arliss.

Based on the famous play by Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton, Cameron Rogers and Maude Howell's screen play shows us the human side of the prelate who stood behind the throne of France.

The story opens with the feudal lords plotting against Richelieu because he has persuaded the young ruler, Louis XIII, to issue a decree confiscating their lands.

Their leader Baradas, the Queen Mother Marie and Lord Holland, Queen Anne, poison the king's mind against Richelieu and he is about to sign the Cardinal's death warrant when the letter slyly appears and frustrates the plan.

Charming Love Story

A charming love story is provided by Lenore, Richelieu's beloved Hilda ward, and Andre deOuse, a young commoner whom the Queen Mother befriends. When Andre is charged with treason and imprisoned in the Bastille, Richelieu wins over and marries the girl to complete his profitable King's scheme to make her one of his confidantes.

When the sly Baradas convinces the youth that Richelieu has tricked him into the marriage for the King's convenience, Andre agrees to join the Cardinal's enemies and do the deed, but Richelieu again wins him over and feigns death when Baradas tries to kill him.

While Baradas rushes to bring the news to the King, Richelieu learns that Queen Marie and Queen Anne are in their rooms again with a secret treaty which will put Marie's weak son, Prince Gaston, on the throne. He overtakes them at Lorion, gets the treaty and rides back post-haste to the palace where he and the King's convenience, Andre agrees to join the Cardinal's enemies and do the deed, but Richelieu again wins him over and feigns death when Baradas tries to kill him.

VARSITY DEGREE WILL BE NEEDED

Educationists Foresee Requirements Raised For Teachers

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—Regarded by educational department officials as a step that would lead eventually to a university degree as the required of all public school teachers, the province's new matriculation substitute for the second year normal course, abolished as the last session of the legislature was before the province today.

Affecting holders of interim first and second class and kindergarten-primary certificates, the plan requires those desiring satisfactory teaching and meeting of specific academic qualifications before a permanent certificate can be obtained. Under the former system a second normal term was required after four years of teaching.

Feature of the new plan is the provision requiring holders of interim first class certificates to have completed a one year's course, approved by the Minister of Education, at an Ontario university. English is a compulsory subject in the course which may be taken at secondary or High school senior matriculation was the former standard. First class teachers must take also a summer course in education.

Senior matriculation will be required of holders of interim second class and kindergarten-primary certificates and the second class certificate holder may advance to the first grade by meeting the necessary conditions.

Expired interim certificates will be extended automatically until July 1936 and thereafter from year to year until 1939 on evidence of satisfactory progress toward the additional standards.

Premier Hepburn Carries on Fight to Secure Funds

SUPPORT FROM U.S.

Municipalities May Place Accounts in Banks Says Report

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn continued his fight to secure funds without the assistance of financial interests today, following announcements from his home in St. Thomas last night all Province of Ontario moneys would be transferred to Ontario Savings Banks.

The statement came when he announced funds of the Workmen's Compensation Board, estimated in the neighborhood of $500,000, would be transferred. The Ontario Liquor Control Board had been instructed to transfer its account.

3 Millions From U.S.

From the south came strong indications of support, climaxed by the notification from the Toronto representative of a United States firm that moneys would be made available for deposit in the Provincial bank $4,000,000 of its funds, in American currency.

Meanwhile Ontario treasury officers in Ottawa were completing arrangements for the sale of bond issues over the counters of the Provincial Banks, starting Monday. The 36 new branches to be opened were not expected to be ready for business until late next week.

Municipal Accounts

The government will arrange for the transfer of municipal accounts to the banks, and has no objection to chartered banks or investment houses handling the issues, if they see fit.

Hundreds of applications for positions in the new branches, to be "located at strategic points throughout the Province, principally in the border areas, were being received it was said.

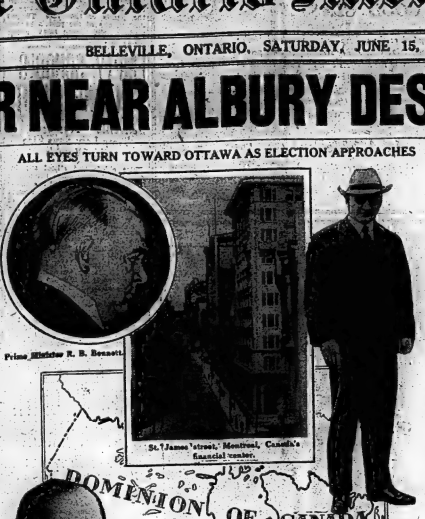
Meanwhile it became clear yesterday municipalities were aligned with the Province in the issue. Premier Hepburn said a large number of them would undoubtedly place their accounts in Savings banks.

"If our source of supply is tampered with they will be the first to suffer. Any way in which they can assist us will tend to our mutual assistance," he said.

Mayor Simpson's View

Mayor James Simpson, Toronto, declared if any evidence was found of a "boycott" by banks of the government," which has been repeatedly and emphatically denied by investment dealers, he would bring before the Board of Control the question of withdrawing not the City of Toronto, should transfer its funds to Ontario banks.

Mayor Simpson endorsed movement to have the province transfer their funds, the latest of which was the Guild of Canadian Commercial Artists, which would start transferring its account as a "protest against the attitude of the banks."



"It would probably be an unpleasant task," he said, "but I am not afraid. $50,000,000 for Ontario obligations, which fast proves their confidence in the province," he said.

"I am quite sure that there is not a vestage of truth in the idea that the banks or any one else is trying to discipline the government," he declared.

Drag Lake St. Clair To Recover Body

Tecumseh, Ont., June 15—(CP)—At daybreak today dragging operations were expected to start afresh in an effort to recover the body of 15-year-old Gino Tozo, drowned in Lake St. Clair late yesterday. The youngster was in a rowboat with two brothers when a strong south wind whirled them up and sent the boat out into the shallow lake.

Joseph Parenti, eldest of the two, jumped overboard and attempted to pull the skiff to shore. Unable to make headway against the wind he set out for land to get help when first his brother, Homer, and then Gino jumped overboard to follow him. Homer reached the shore safely but his companion went to the bottom. It was the first drowning of the year.

With the approaching federal election tentatively scheduled for August, everyone, even the lumbermen of West Ontario, where political turmoil is rife, with the reported retirement of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and conservative leader, rumors fly thick and fast about a new leader. Most prominent for him is Hon. H. H. Stevens and Senator Arthur Meighen, with Dr. J. R. Manion lurking in the background. Sidelines will be taken on the outcome with the governmental issues since he resigned from the cabinet during the session and brought price spreads royal commission. Meanwhile, little or nothing is heard from the camp of the Liberals, though strong rumors persist in Toronto and Montreal, financial centres of the Dominion, that a move is afoot for National or coalition government. Whatever happens the forthcoming federal election will, in all probability, be one of the most significant in Canada's history because of the peculiar nature of the times and the obvious unrest among the people after six years of depression.

CADET BRYANT BEST MARKSMAN

Queen Mary School Cadet Team Wins Marsh Trophy

The annual contest among the Public School Cadets in rifle shooting took place Friday afternoon under the supervision of Inspector Clarke.

This year only two schools took part in the competition, but the contest was none the less keenly contested, good marksmen did some very creditable shooting and have been carefully trained by their instructors.

The cadets of Queen Mary School proved to be the best individual shot, he made a score of 100 out of a possible 50. Cadet Shorts of Queen Alexandra School was close enough to make the contest interesting.

The Merchants' Cup is fifteen team contest, for which seven additional cadets from each competitor and their aggregates are added to the aggregates in the March Cup competition to get the grand aggregate which wins the cup. The individual scores of these cadets competing are as follows:

The Corps at present holding the trophies are authorized to hand them over to Queen Mary Cadet Corps to hold until the next competition.

Whatever prize money is received from the Strathcona Trust for rifle shooting, will take the form of individual prizes to the better shots selected from the above individual scores.

Naval Yardstick Method Will Replace Ratio Plan

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 15 (C.P. Cable)—Great Britain's naval agreement with Germany, expected to be completed during the coming week, it is understood, will introduce the yardstick method of a building program declared in advance.

This differs materially from the method adopted in the London and Washington Naval Treaties. If adopted, it means naval powers would declare their building programs in advance and undertake to adhere to them.

Seven Year Plan

In resumed conversations with Great Britain Joachim von Ribbentrop, Reichsleiter Hitler's personal arms representative, is reported to have submitted the general outline of Germany's building program over the next seven years based on 35 per cent. of the British force determined by categories.

Thirty-five per cent. limited by categories, it is calculated, would give Germany an allowance of 37,-000 tons for battleships, this including already four pocket battleships of 10,000 tons built or building and the question is raised in Anglo-German discussions about their place in the scheme.

New British Program

Hector Bywater, naval correspondent for the Daily Telegraph, forecasts, for the first time, a long-term British naval program since the Naval Defence Act of 1889, which may be laid before parliament early next year. "It is expected to provide," Bywater adds, "for a systematic replacement of obsolete ships in every category from battleships downward, as well as for a steady increase in the personnel and greater facilities for sea training."

Five Battleships

For the financial year 1936-37 the first instalments are asked for preliminary work on five battleships to replace the Warspite and Queen Elizabeth which will then, be over the 20-year limit.

Two further battleships are expected to follow in 1938 and one in the following year to complete the replacement of the Queen Elizabeth group.

French Opposition

Paris, June 15 (C.P.-Havas)—The Parisian press today voiced strong opposition to a German navy with 35 per cent. the tonnage of Britain's.

Referring to the fact France will reply to Britain's note on the question, Tuesday, the Petit Parisien asserted France could not accept such a proposition even though it was far removed from the 60 per cent. accorded France.

The Petit Oeuf, assembled in its entirety in the North Sea, will have obvious superiority over the French fleet which has to be massed on two fronts," the paper said.

Attitude of Italy

Rome, June 15 (C.P.-Havas)—The Italian government is in consultation with the French Government in Paris, Premier Mussolini declared it was stated today. The Rome government has already replied to the British note on the subject and will only do so after examining the problem with France.

Belleville Area Income Tax Collections Up

Ottawa, June 15 (CP)—Considerable increases in income tax collections under the new budget provisions as compared with a year ago are shown in figures released today by the Department of National Revenue. Returns for the first two months of the last fiscal year and the present by districts follow:

Districts	1934-35	1935-36
Ottawa	2,160,267	2,434,101
Kingston	96,564	101,300
Belleville	222,111	245,289
Toronto	10,970,220	13,098,618
Hamilton	2,516,945	3,908,560
London	3,244,989	5,460,990

Slayer Places Evidence on Reporter's Desk

New York, June 15.—(CP)—A bothersome murder in the Sports Department of a Manhattan newspaper today found his tale of having killed his wife and shot her lover received with open skepticism.

But when he dumped a revolver and a cloth-wrapped length of pipe on the desk of Jim Hurley, prominent hockey writer, he won undivided attention.

His revelations led to discovery of the stabbed and beaten body of his wife in a trunk in her apartment and of the reputed lover, Kostes Koularas, 40, in a hospital with a gunshot wound in his leg.

Hurley's caller, turned over to police, identified himself as Peter Christ, 32, accused by the police, he slew his wife, Stella 28, in a quarrel that grew out of his urging for a divorce. His shooting of Koularas, a former lodger in the home, was to punish him as the cause of their five-year estrangement.

He stabbed his wife to death with a kitchen knife, police said, in the presence of their seven-year-old son, Perry.

ANTI - AIRCRAFT DEFENCE PLANNED

8 Battalions Organized Immediately in Britain

London, June 15 (AP)—Great Britain ordered today eight battalions be formed immediately on a war-time basis for anti-aircraft defence, The War Office announcement said the units will be made over into searchlight battalions and three more, including the famous Royal Horse Artillery with anti-aircraft artillery brigades.

The order by the Army Council provided only for the London area, but the plan envisages a similar step for the great midland manufacturing cities was expected.

The announcement emphasized the necessity the new units be "ready for action immediately on the outbreak of war or even earlier."

Strenuous Training

The eight new units, taking up a task described by the War Office as "of the utmost importance," were ordered detached from their old regimental ties at once to enter a strenuous course of training for a first line of defence.

Certain specialist duties were prescribed, to study the London area house and docks, while the anti-aircraft artillery to be set up at vantage points for the first time were undertaken provided.

Turret Equipment

In the process of previously announced re-armament Britain is now ready to go into action at the slightest hint of danger. Already ordered a dozen new turreted gun-planes which it was said would be "superior to anything in the air by a wide margin."

Aircraft equipment similar to that of a battleship was provided for the long-range biplanes, eliminating the danger of machine guns not having marksmanship from a plane flying 200 miles an hour as accurate as from a vessel.

A secret invention taking care of the Belleville pilot's vision, especially heavy guns, capable of destroying enemy craft with a single shot.

FLOODS LEAVING MANY HOMELESS

Eight Lives Lost And Damage Estimated at Millions

San Antonio, Texas, June 5—(AP) —Floods that have claimed at least eight lives rolled down the valleys of the half a dozen central Texas streams today, leaving thousands of persons homeless.

Scores of persons were missing and damage to railroads, highways, crops and homes was unofficially estimated in the millions of dollars.

Of the known dead, five were unidentified Mexicans at Del Rio on the Mexican border; two were unidentified negroes at Kenedy and the other was Lazaro Barrientes, who lived at Yoakum.

The Nueces, Colorado, Llano Rio Grande, Pecos and Guadalupe Rivers swept across the country at record levels.

SENATOR HUEY (FILIBUSTER) LONG

Filibustering against the stop-gap NRA bill, Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana held the U.S. Senate floor for 15 1-2 hours with a rambling discourse on President Roosevelt, the constitution, the Bible, current events, pee likker and the cooking of oysters. Senator Long was especially careful in his advice on the washing of turnip greens, one of the ingredients of pot likker. The Senator's "cooking face" is pictured in the strip above.

TEAMS MAY JOIN INTERPROVINCIAL

Sarnia Imperials And Balmy Beach Teams to be Included

Montreal, June 15—(CP)—Sarnia Imperials and Balmy Beach of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, may join the Interprovincial Football League this year, the Star says today.

The paper said it was whispered among delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the Big Four here that St. Michael's of Toronto, and Hamilton Tigers would drop out of the O. R. F. U. this year, leaving the other two teams to join the Interprovincial. They would come out of it to the big six.

Should such a development occur, the paper says, several night games would probably be included in the schedule.

Sees Normal Span Of Life 150 Years

Moscow, June 15 (AP) — Prof. Peter Lazarefi, member of the Soviet Academy of Science, declared today the normal life span of human beings should be extending over 150 years and revealed he had succeeded in prolonging the lives of Daphnia (minute fresh water crustaceans) to four times the usual existence by the use of rejuvinizen rays.

He will shortly head an expedition to the Georgian Soviet Republic, sponsored by the Institute of Experimental Medicine, in an effort to discover the causes of the longevity of the inhabitants there, many of whom are reported to have lived a century and a half.

The expedition will take a group of the oldest inhabitants under observation and carefully check their living conditions, habits and mental and physical peculiarities, Professor Lazarefi holds the theory injurious habits are largely responsible for early death of human beings.

RESIDENCE, BARN STRUCK, BURNED NEAR CROOKSTON

Two Bad Fires in Different Parts, Result of Storm

FIRE NEAR ALBURY

Heavy Downpour of Rain Prevent Fires From Spreading

Rednersville, June 15 (Special)—The large frame barn situated four miles west of here was struck by lightning and burned to the ground shortly before midnight last night during the most severe electric storm experienced in this section of the province in some time. The evaporator was the property of Mr. Harry Dempsey and was a total loss, as the surrounding houses were endangered because of the heavy winds carrying sparks to nearby houses.

The lightning struck the building shortly after 11.30 p.m. last night and before neighbours could intervene the building was nothing was than a mass of flames, the structure being of old and dry timbers. The neighbours became alarmed as the fire spread, but owing to the heavy downpour of rain at this time fortunately the roofs of surrounding buildings were moistened sufficiently to keep extinguish the firing sparks which were dropping on them.

The evaporator had been vacant for some time and not in use.

The lightning is also believed to have struck at the upper northwest corner of the building, splitting it asunder and igniting the fire. No large amount of insurance was carried on the building.

No other fires in last night's severe electrical storm were reported in this district.

Albury fire department sent five men and a truck to the scene of the fire to assist the residents in saving their home, to prevent possible spread of the flames to other buildings.

Fleming Residence, Buildings Destroyed

Crookston, June 15 (Special)—At the height of the electric storm which was quite severe in the northern part of the county, a house, barn, pig pen and drive house and contents of the home owned by Mrs. Alex Fleming and situated on the Crookston road to Huntingdon was completely destroyed by fire after being struck by lightning shortly after seven o'clock this morning.

The storm was quite severe in that section and accompanied by a heavy rain but it was impossible to save any of the building's contents of the home despite heroic efforts of the neighbors who were quickly on the scene. The members of the household had not retired due to the severity of the storm and it is reported, that apparently the lightning struck the house and barn at the same time, they immediately bursting into flame. It is estimated the loss will be $4,000 which is partially covered by insurance. No damage was done to the cattle and horses were in the pastures.

The first electric storm of the season was very severe throughout Belleville and district as considerable rain fell last night, but no serious damage was reported due to lightning in the immediate vicinity, it was reported this morning. An electric lights in the village of Point Anne were put out of commission for a short space of time due to the storm, but the damage was soon repaired. In the city, electric lights, flashed and flickered as the storm passed overhead, and storm sewers were blocked following the downpour. Basements were overflowed the streets while many tree branches were blown, but caused no damage. The storm raged at intervals for a period of four hours before subsiding shortly after midnight.

Home And School Club Sees Script of "Private Worlds"

An interesting meeting of King George Home and School Club was held last evening in the Teachers' Room with the President, Mrs. W. J. Harrison, in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada." Miss Grills' room won the parents' attendance award. The date for the annual school fair was set and plans for the same were enthusiastically discussed by the members.

The Club was privileged to have as guest speaker, Mr. Walter Alford of the Albert College staff, who gave an enchanted discourse on the movies from a critic's point of view. The speaker was introduced by Miss Boyle.

Mr. Alford who had previously worked as a movie critic, gave his audience an illuminating insight into the technicalities of picture production and helpful pointers as to how the average movie is made. There are over two thousand movie theatres in Canada which show on the average of one picture a week. The speaker told of the salient characteristics of the different media productions and the significance of the credit sheet. Mr. Alford climaxed the director as the guiding genius of the pictures and explained the merits of a good cameraman. The speaker had in his possession a movie script of the current picture "Private Worlds" which he kindly exhibited. An appreciation of Mr. Alford's interesting talk was ably expressed by Mr. Kells on behalf of the Club. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Obituary

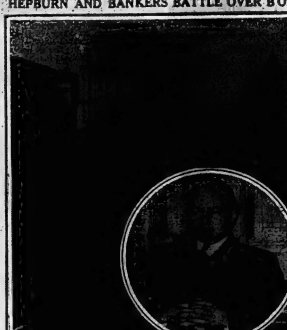
MRS. AGNES S. BROWN

The death of Mrs. Agnes Scarf Brown, 33 Ontario Street, which occurred after a brief illness in the Belleville General Hospital on Friday, June 14th, has brought deep feelings of regret to many friends in Belleville.

The late Mrs. Brown was the widow of William John Brown, who for many years was chief of the Belleville Fire Department. She was born in Woodville, Ont., 78 years ago, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Lloyd. Since childhood she had been a resident of Belleville and by a large circle of friends she was most highly regarded for the many fine qualities of character which she possessed. She was a member of the Church of England being an attendant at Christ Church. She took an interest in the work of the parish and was a member of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Personally Mrs. Brown was a life member of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of Eastern Star, the life membership having been conferred upon her in recognition of her services to the order; member of the White Shrine of Jerusalem since the institution of the shrine in this city some years ago; and of Quinte Rebekah Lodge, No. 113. By the members of these lodges she was most highly esteemed.

Mrs. Brown was also a life member of the Canadian Red Cross Society and a member of the Women's Christian Association of Belleville.



Surviving her are one brother, John W. Lloyd of Erie, Pa.; two nephews, Mr. George Wilder of Belleville and Mr. Charles H. Lloyd of Belleville; one niece, Miss Phoebe Wilder, Belleville.

HEPBURN AND BANKERS BATTLE OVER BOND ISSUE

Because, it is asserted, Ontario banks did not take up the Ontario government's $15,000,000 bond issue, Premier Hepburn is avowedly going to battle the bankers by opening up 30 more branches of the Provincial Savings Bank and counters. Organized labor in Toronto meanwhile has determined it will withdraw their accounts from the banks and place them with the government. Bankers are apparently unconcerned and deny Hepburn's charges they are disposing of his bonds across the "invisible counter" of investments. Layout shows Premier Hepburn waiting for bankers' next move, (TOP) Bay St., Toronto, financial centre of province, and provincial parliament buildings.

W. E. Tummon, Dr. Stanley Discuss Issues of the Day

Member for South Hastings Tells of Money Paid Ontario Gov't.

Trenton, June 15.—(Special)—A thunderstorm failed to discourage Trenton Conservatives last night when a large number turned out to hear the candidate, W. E. Tmmon, M.P., and other speakers, Dr. C. O. D. Stanley, M.P., of Calgary, Alta., and A. M. Edwards, M.P. of Galt. Howard D. Graham, K.C., president of the Trenton Conservative Association introduced Mr. Tumbleon, who received a great ovation. He thanked Trenton Conservatives and also those of South Hastings for their past support and for again choosing him as their candidate for the next federal election. The candidate did not take up much time but impressed his hearers, that the closing of the road camps by the Hepburn government with the statement that "he was getting no support from the Federal House was nothing more than preconditioning propaganda. He said that this statement was preposterous and done for a reason. Mr. Hepburn promised before the election last year, that all work would continue and that he would raise the standard of wages. At that time he never mentioned the aid of the Federal Government but said it would be cared for with the gasoline tax and motor vehicle licence. At a conference last July an agreement was reached between the two governments for the payment of a lump sum each month by the Dominion Government to the Provincial government to spend as they saw fit. Ontario was given $750,000 per month on this agreement to be raised or lowered as to the circumstances. Since July 10, 1934, to May 17, 1935, Ontario has received from the Dominion government the sum of thirteen million, five hundred thousand dollars. In face of this sum the road camps were closed. Mr. Tummon ended with the statement that he did not know of one single piece of work, that was being done by the Hepburn government, that was not receiving aid from Ottawa.

Heeds Friend of Member

Dr. Stanley was the next speaker and he told the gathering that they should be proud to have a member in the House of Commons like Mr. Tummon.

His first question was, "Tell me one single progressive advanced thought or legislation to the government of today by Rt.-Hon. Mackenzie King or his cabinets in the past five years". "Their whole attitude is one of destruction all through, at every turn of the road". He drew laughs when he stated that their whole thought seems to be to let Old Man Depression do his worst and then they will take office. He stated, that the radio addresses of the Premier were acclaiming from coast to coast but met by the opposition with scorn, sneers and bunkum but not a single member of the opposition said a word in the house after voicing their opinion, that way and they voted on every measure of the Premier's platform. He briefly outlined the value of the Marketing Act and the protection it affords the farmer from intrusion. He assured the easterners, that the live stock farmers of the west were all behind it. Several other points of the present government were outlined before the speaker finished. "The government of today has met the social demands of the day and the relief program is on the march," he closed.

Mr. Edwards paid tribute to the fine qualities of Mr. Tumuon and later gave a brief review of the state of affairs in 1930 and the improvement at present. Mr. Edwards is a member of the Price Spread Commission, then gave his listeners a few of the horrible situations, that were found out during the past fourteen months of the investigation. The conditions found sounded almost unbelievable to the many present. He believed that the B.N.A. Act would have to be amended to put a stop to the mass production and what buying, and other faults found at the enquiry. He stated, that the government were putting forth every effort and going as far as the present law allows, to correct the faults found in the evidence of the Price Spreads Commission, enquiry.

It was moved by Sben James and seconded by J. Johnson, that the Trenton Conservative Association convey a message of condolence to the family of the late Thomas Jarrett, one of the party's hardest workers, who passed away a few weeks ago.

EMPTY SCHOOLS IN ONE MINUTE

Belleville Average of Time Low Says Fire Chief Lynch

Fire chiefs and school superintendents of other cities throughout the Dominion are invited to come to Belleville if they want to observe real records in the emptying of schools during regular surprise fire drills, believes Fire Chief Lynch of the local department today.

Attracted by an item in a Toronto morning paper that Victoria School, Kingston, with a total of 695 pupils had been emptied in the time of 1 minute and 25 seconds and that the average time for the larger schools in Toronto for evacuation was reported by Superintendent Dr. C. Goldring, 2 minutes, Chief Lynch of this city consulted his records.

"Our average time for the public and separate schools of this City is from 55 seconds to 1 minute. We have on repeated test, emptied the Collegiate and Vocational School, a three-storey building, with a total population of 500 pupils in the time of 1 minute and 25 seconds."

THRESHING OUTFIT MUST BE CLEANED

Cleaning Must Take Place Before Machines Go on Road

Threshing machine owners of this county are finding the new amendments to the Ontario Weed Act passed at the last session of Parliament which requires the complete cleaning of machines before moving on the road from one farm to another, a strenuous one. They have found that the job entails a goodly amount of work, reported one rural operator today.

Separators as well as the machine itself must be cleaned inside and out, and as it was pointed out, there are many nooks and corners in such machines. Added to this latest demand is a second one that demands all machines be registered with the department of the Minister of Agriculture, so that different machines throughout the county may be able to keep a close check on the machines. Owners of those responsible for the operation of all grain elevators, flour mills and seed cleaning plants, are advised that they must use more care in the disposal of refuse from grains processed.

BIG WEED CROPS UPON CITY LOTS

Residents Must Cut Own Weeds Says City Engineer

Farm crops throughout the rural districts in the vicinity of this city are flourishing, but on the corner lots and along the roadsides in the city weeds are growing rank and fast this year, than ever this season.

"We have one of the most luxuriant weed crops on record in the city this season," stated City Engineer Chas. A. Mott today, now supervising the work of six men employed in the task of cutting the record growth.

Large signs are being prepared by the department to be posted at prominent points throughout the city advising residents to cut their own weeds.

According to regulations under the Weed Control Act of Ontario every property owner found the nasty land is unoccupied, the owner shall be given all reasonable facilities to obnoxious' as often every year as is sufficient to prevent ripening of the seed."

Fish Hawk Drives Terns from River

A low flying fish hawk with mottled wingspread drove all the terns and gulls from the waterfront, this hidden seclusion this morning in search of its breakfast. Every flight in his latest and most aggressive move amongst the feathered finds. Previously the sharp-beaked and strong clawed aerial hi-jacked was content to prey on the slim pickings of minnows and bits of food in the bay waters. But his ambitions grew real ones. During the past day or so he has shifted his attention to the birds themselves, attempting to catch them in mid-air after pouncing unsuspectingly on them from a height. Today there was an absolute scarcity of birds along the waterfront with a hawk slowly circling in distended splendor.

Police News

Last night's electric storm apparently kept all crime in a new ebb in Belleville, not a single arrest or major motor accident was reported in Belleville during the past 24 hours. Transients on the tramp also were forced to seek shelter elsewhere last night, as only eleven appeared at the police station in quest of a night's lodging in out of the wet.

On a warrant issued in Belleville a man giving his name locally as H. Adams, Toronto, was arrested in Kingston yesterday on a charge of forgery. Adams is the man who sent a board bill in Belleville and when taken into custody on charges of forgery are expected to be laid, police stated this morning.

Juvenile Anglers Warned to Take Care

Warning to juvenile anglers that the newly constructed pier at the government dock is an unsafe place from which to fish was given today by Harbormaster Robt. Goody. This morning his attention was attracted by several small children romping on the new concrete work.

"Some of these kids who hang around there are no bigger than reed sized ballplayers and the majority of them can swim like eels. Two of the others can't do either and these are the ones I'm afraid of. You can't keep them off."

REEVE CONSIDERS $2.80 TEAM; MAN PER DAY TOO LOW

County Councillors, However Leave Rate Same For This Year

MOTIONS PASSED

MOTIONS PASSED Representatives on Board of C.A.S. Given to Council

When Friday afternoon's session of the County Council opened special orders of the day were called.

Road Wages

Mr. J. Sprackett, Reeve of Tudor and Cashel, asked what a man and team were getting for work on County roads. He had been told that $2.80 was paid and he considered this too low a figure.

Mr. J. A. Gunter: "The county does not want any person to work at a wage they are running behind on."

Warden Broeson: "The wage is set by bylaw which would have to be repealed."

Mr. Sprackett moved that the wage paid to men be $1.80 per day and for man and team $3.20.

Mr. Larkins, Reeve of Hungerford: "For the balance of this year let the wages remain as they are."

Mr. J. D. Hickle, Reeve of Madoc township, suggested the wage for man and team be $3.00 per day.

Mr. J. A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, thought it would be a mistake to raise wages at the present time.

Mr. Larkin, Reeve of Tyendinaga: "We pay 30c per hour for man and team and 10c hour for men at 10 hours daily. Three days' work are given to one gang and three days to another gang so as to divide the work evenly."

The motion of Mr. Sprackett was withdrawn.

Motion

Moved by Mr. F. Carr, Deputy Reeve of Rawdon, and seconded by Mr. W. L. Wells, Reeve of Sangstel, that whereas at the present time little or no public works are being carried on to relieve unemployment in rural districts, therefore be it resolved that we, the council of Hastings, do petition the Department of Labour, the Dominion and the Provincial Governments to undertake some such measure as once as this problem has reached an acute stage; the measure to be carried by said two governments.

The motion was unanimously adopted without any discussion.

Children's Shelter

Mr. J. A. Gunter, Reeve of Bancroft village, thought the chairman of the finance committee should be a member of the Shelter board.

It was pointed out that the council had two representatives on the Board in addition to the Warden: one of the Warden of the County Clerk and County Treasurer are on the board.

Mr. Gunter moved that Mr. W. R. West, Reeve of Madoc Vil., chairman of the Finance Committee, and Mr. W. H. Sayers, reeve of Tweed village, and the Warden be appointed on the Board of the Children's Shelter.

Mr. R. Henderson, Reeve of Wollaston, seconded the motion, which was adopted.

Indigent Account

Mr. G. Thompson, Reeve of Rawdon, seconded by Mr. W. Gray, Reeve of Thurlow, that on the first day of August an interest charge of 5 per cent. be levied on municipalities who neglect to pay their indigent account.

In a discussion it was shown that some municipalities had not paid their indigent account for a number of years which was not fair to the municipalities who pay.

An amendment prevailed that this matter be referred to the December session and that the clerk and treasurer prepare data on this matter.

The Ways and Means Committee consisted with Mr. O. E. Jordan, Deputy Reeve of Hungerford in the chair.

A motion introduced by Mr. J. McKnight, Reeve of Tudor and Cashel, requested a grant of $300 for Faraday township towards road improvement in that municipality.

Hunter spoke in support of the motion as did also the introducer of the motion.

An amendment that the grant be $300 was adopted.

A number of accounts were passed. The committee rose and reported. Report received and adopted.

A number of bylaws were given their final reading and the council adjourned until the second Tuesday in December.

Agricultural Report

Mr. L. J. Churcher, Reeve of Dungannon Township on Friday afternoon session presented the following report:

The annual convention of the Ontario Agricultural Council took place on the 19th and 20th of February in the Parliament Buildings, Toronto. There was a large representative gathering of delegates from all counties within the province. Many matters of general interest to agriculture were brought before the convention and a great deal of interesting discussion took place regarding most of them. The Minister of Agriculture Hon. Duncan Marshall gave a thoughtful and well prepared address, outlining to some extent measures which would relieve the farmers in the province of some of their present difficulties. He also expressed his appreciation of the efforts of the Ontario Agricultural Council in bringing these matters to the attention of the powers that be, for correction.

Resolutions of interest to this county that were dealt with, in brief are as follows:—A greater appropriation to reforestation be taken up with the proper department.

That more experimental work be done by way of demonstration of the cheapest and best methods of eliminive and building up old worn-out farms.

That the Highway Department be asked for a special license for fruit, vegetables and farm producers, as this class of truck is only used for a short period each year.

A committee of the Ontario Agricultural Council was appointed to meet the Hon. Robt. Weir, with a view of bringing to the attention of the Minister certain improvements that could be made in the marketing of livestock, and also some practical plan whereby Canada would fill the bacon quota of 280,000,000 lbs., by 1937, as granted at the Imperial Economic Conference.

A resolution was passed asking the Ontario government to pass legislation to enable Counties with outstanding debentures to call them in at par, and refund at a lower rate of interest.

On reports that there was a move to change the present system of Municipal Government, a resolution was passed, that no change be made that would interfere with the present status of County Council.

A committee was appointed to investigate the costs of administration of justice, with a view of securing a reduction in costs.

It was also planned that some member of the executive would address many county council, upon invitation.

Hunger marchers from many parts of the province of Ontario are again converging on Toronto to demonstrate and demand higher relief. First contingent is shown ABOVE with Guelph and Kitchener paraders swinging through Hamilton on their way to Toronto where they will join parties from many other centres. It is expected that more than 1,000 will march to the provincial parliament buildings to protest to Premier Hepburn and cabinet. Unlike their confreres in western Canada, the Ontario protesters prefer to walk rather than "ride the rods". No attempt has been made to hinder their march to Toronto.

OLD ENGLISH LAW MAY SAVE WIFE

Lawyers Claim Wife is Mere Chattel of Husband

(By Leland Hannum, Copyright, 1935, By The Associated Press)

Tacoma, Wash., June 15—A principle of old English law—that a wife is the mere chattel of her husband—was cited by Tacoma attorneys today as likely to save Mrs. Harmon M. Waley from a life sentence for kidnapping George Weyerhaeuser.

While the 19-year-old Mrs. Waley and her ex-convict husband remained incommunicado in the county jail at Olympia, Federal agents followed up fresh clues in their intensive search for William Mahan, third suspect in the $200,000 kidnapping.

As Tacomans speculated about the outcome of the Federal kidnap trial, attorneys cited a bit of jurisprudence from the middle ages, an important part of modern Federal law, that a wife has no will of her own.

Operations Upon Nerves Cure Baffling Diseases

New Treatment For Drug Addicts is Reported to American and Canadian Medical Association at Atlantic City

Atlantic City, N.J. June 13.—At the convention of the American Medical Association, delegates were told of how surgical operations upon the sympathetic nervous system have conquered a dozen diseases which heretofore have been baffling and terrifying was revealed today by Dr. Alfred W. Adson, internationally known neuro-surgeon of the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Dr. Adson was one of a number of speakers at a symposium upon the sympathetic nervous system.

He discussed operations which he and colleagues had performed at the Mayo Clinic and revealed that the following conditions were yielding to this new type of surgery:

Essential hyperhidrosis—a condition of excessive sweating of the hands and feet often so severe as to make it impossible for the victim to engage in any occupation.

Thrombo-angiitis obliterans, a form of gangrene due to inflammation of the blood vessels with the formation of clots, often necessitating the amputation of an arm or leg.

Retinitis pigmentosa, a disease in which the retina of the eye becomes hardened and pigmented.

Essential hypertension or high blood pressure.

A number of diseases in which the intestines or the bladder are prevented from functioning properly by hyperactive muscular spasms.

All these conditions, Dr. Adson revealed, have been successfully treated by operations upon the sympathetic nervous system, operations which, while extensive, are no more dangerous, he said, than an operation for simple appendicitis.

In these operations one or more of the sympathetic nerves are cut, which cures disease upon the particular disease and the location of the diseased condition.

The Sympathetic System

The sympathetic nervous system consists of a chain of nerve ganglia of either side of the spinal column. These nerves lie outside the spinal column, and so are not part of the brain or nervous system. However, they connect with the central system.

The important organs of the body such as the heart, lungs, the various glands, the liver, the kidneys, the vessels, make connections with nerves from the sympathetic nervous system.

The sympathetic nervous system tells the controls the size of vessels. Most of the diseases mentioned are characterized by constriction of the blood vessels and the release of this constriction relieves the condition, by severing various sympathetic nerves, Dr. Adson explained.

He also pointed out that before these various operations were tried, the surgeons first made sure that they find out if the blood vessels of the patient still possessed sufficient elasticity to be benefited by it.

This was found by giving the patient an artificial fever by injecting a foreign protein into his skin. This usually consists of a dose of several million dead bacilli in a triple typhoid vaccine. The temperature rise caused by the fever is then measured by a thermometer in the mouth. At the same time, the temperature of the surface of the skin is measured with electric thermo-couples.

In a normal person, the skin temperature will show a rise two or three times as great as the rise in the mouth temperature. Unless this happens also in the patient, showing a dilation of the blood vessels under the skin, there is no use in operating, Dr. Adson said.

Relieve Pain in Arthritis

In addition to curing the conditions mentioned Dr. Adson said that operations on the sympathetic nervous system could be used to relieve pain in a variety of diseases including certain forms of arthritis. This, however, did not cure the arthritis The operation could also be used to relieve pain which continued to occur after the amputation of an arm or leg.

Dr. D. E. Jackson of the University of Cincinnati medical school, addressing the same symposium, pointed out that such drugs as ephedrine nicotine and many other drugs which have such effects as raising the blood pressure, lowering the blood pressure, and otherwise changing general conditions in the body gain their effects by influencing the sympathetic nervous system.

He said that this was one of the most complex and least understood fields of medicine and predicted that additional diseases would be conquered as this new better understood.

He predicted that a complete understanding of the effect of drugs on the sympathetic nervous system would lead to the conquest of a number of unconquered diseases, including bronchial asthma and migraine.

Dr. George E. Hodges of Montreal, told the convention that sinus infections often led to a disease of the chest known as bronchiectasis, in which the bronchial tubes become stretched.

Quick Action In Arthritis

Quick action is essential in diagnosis of acute septic arthritis, if stiff joints are to be avoided, Dr. O. W. Armstrong, Ottawa, Can., advised members of the section on orthopedic surgery.

This type of arthritis is an acute inflammation of a joint caused by pus-forming germs that have reached the joint through pustules, as by a nail, by extension from an adjacent bone infection or through the blood from some distant infected spot, such as tonsils or teeth. It frequently follows infectious diseases. Sometimes it is mild; sometimes a devastating infection by a pus germ practically useless.

Because this kind of arthritis is easily confused with other diseases of bone and because it is important to recognize it before much tissue has been destroyed, Dr. Armstrong strongly urged surgeons to use the aspirating needle to withdraw pus as a means of early diagnosis. Since it has been proved that the cartilage may survive for days bathed in as short a time as three hours, quick diagnosis by this method is the only means of protecting the joint. Another sign by which this disease may be distinguished from other bone diseases is that the slightest movement of the joint causes intense pain.

Treatment as outlined by Dr. Armstrong consists of drainage to remove the infectious material, rest by splint for two or three weeks till the acute stage is over, with active movement as soon as the patient can be encouraged to commence it.

X-Ray For Breast Tumors

Greater use of the X-ray in diagnosis of tumors of the breast was urged upon physicians attending the clinical conference on radiology.

Dr. Max Ritvo, Boston, with two associates, Dr. F. H. Bucholz and R. Everett O'Neil, presented their experience with 230 cases, describing the technic, which requires no special preparation and causes no pain or discomfort. By this method they were able to study various conditions of the breast.

The earliest stages of cancer or early malignant changes in a formerly benign tumor cannot be demonstrated on an X-ray film, in the opinion of Dr. Ritvo. But a film will frequently prove the existence of cancer before it can be diagnosed by other means and in advanced cases the X-ray examination is helpful in showing the extent of the cancer. Serial films are of great value in studying the rate of growth and the effect of radium or X-ray treatment.

The use of this method lessens greatly the time for operative diagnosis and repeated examinations, Dr. Ritvo concluded.

Drug Addicts

A rapid, simplified and non-hazardous treatment for drug addicts was reported to the American and Canadian medical associations by Dr. Theodil Klingman and Dr. William H. Everts of Ann Harbor, Mich.

They stated they had been successful in curing a little more than half a group of 55 addicts by the new method. In the treatment two drugs were used: hyoscine, one of many derivatives of belladonna, and pilocarpine a substance derived from a South American plant called jaborandi which produces among other effects, heavy perspiration.

Dr Klingman and Dr. Everts said they did not originate the use of these drugs in morphine addiction, but had modified the method of giving it.

The course of treatment lasts from six to eight weeks, beginning with an intensive period of 48 hours. Hyoscine causes a mild delirium and has a peculiar effect of washing out of the mind the memory of events during the treatment and, being somewhat hypnotic, tends to allay pain. The pilocarpine is given after the hyoscine and quickly dispels the delirium.

Treatment Saves Life

After the intensive treatment, the patient's mental state and environment are carefully investigated, Dr. Klingman said, and every possible adjustment is made.

Thirty-nine of the 57 were known to be free from the drug habit, two speakers reminded seven relapsed after having been free for from three to ten months. Nineteen could not be located to learn results of the treatment after three and a half years.

Dr. Paul W. Woog of New York, told about it yesterday before the joint meeting of the Canadian and American medical associations.

Use of the new gas in 500 cases has convinced him, he said, that it is "pleasant to inhale". What's more, it causes no choking and produces no fantastic dreams. The patient awakens rapidly, as from a normal sleep.

He said there also is a high margin of safety in the new anaesthetic because the mixture used has a high percentage of oxygen.

HOW THE MOTORIST PAYS

From the Dominion Governmental Bureau of Statistics there has been assembled a valuable body of figures by the Montreal Motorists' League, to indicate very clearly how large a share the motor vehicle owner is forced to bear of the taxes in each of the Provinces. Last year in Ontario the motorists paid 41.4 per cent of the entire revenue — the province, namely $20,786,979 out of $50,190,734. Of this amount the motorist paid in gas taxes $12,961,243 or 25.8 per cent of the province's revenue and the licences $7,825,686 or 15.6 per cent.

It is to be remarked that the burden is increasing year by year on the owner and driver of motor vehicles, while the total revenue has been falling since 1930. In that year gas tax was 18.7 per cent of the revenue which was much larger than in 1934 and the licences amounted to 9.6 per cent. In 1931 motor vehicle operators paid 29.9 per cent of the province's revenue. In 1932 this had jumped to 35.9 per cent and in 1933 to 38.7 per cent.

These startling facts may be faced with this fact that last year in Ontario but 15.2 per cent of the population was reported as owning cars.

Bearing a heavy load, Quebec is a little better off than Ontario. While Ontario's total revenue last year was over fifty millions that of Quebec from all sources was $28,282,503. Of this amount motorists paid $5,204,9992 for licences against Ontario drivers' $7,825,686 and Quebec gas tax brought in $4,822,400 as against Ontario's gas tax of $12,961,243. Quebec's total from motor car operation was 25.4 per cent of the total revenue, Ontario's being 41.4 per cent.

In New Brunswick the motorist paid last year 28.2 per cent of the total provincial revenue in 1934. In Nova Scotia, the rate is 27.3, in Prince Edward Island 21.9, in British Columbia, 19.7, in Saskatchewan 19.7, in Alberta 22.3 and in Manitoba 17.7.

When the gas tax alone is considered the Ontario motor owner pays 25.8 per cent of the provincial total revenue, Manitoba owners pay 11.6 per cent, Alberta 11.4 per cent, Saskatchewan 9.9 per cent, in British Columbia 10.4 per cent, Prince Edward Island 14.5 per cent, Nova Scotia 14.5 per cent, New Brunswick 15.4 per cent, and in Quebec 17 per cent.

In Quebec motorist constitute 5.5 per cent of the population of the province, of New Brunswick 6.8 per cent, in Nova Scotia 8 per cent, in Prince Edward Island 8.4 per cent, in British Columbia 12.7 per cent, in Saskatchewan 9.5 per cent, in Alberta 11.6 per cent, in Manitoba 9.6 per cent, and in Ontario 15.2 per cent.

It is small wonder as the motorists of the various provinces see how the load is being steadily pushed on to the shoulders of the motorists to bear the major share of the government cost, are puzzled as to why this must be.

While the service motorists are being given is good, they do not get such a preponderance of the benefits of government as the taxes they and vehicle owners pay but little short of half the revenue of Ontario for the pleasure and business of driving vehicles over highways. The cost of maintaining highways in Ontario is such as to tax the owners for so large a share of the burden of government. If the motorist is paying so much, even the classifications of efficiency must be escaping their full share of government expenditure. In justice the motorist should after all pay only his share of the cost of the public service.

THE NORMANDIE

The Normandie is the fastest vessel afloat. She has made the voyage to the east across the Atlantic in record time, defeating the Bremen's four days, sixteen hours and twenty-eight minutes crossing by many hours, her time being four days, three hours and twenty-eight minutes. The west trip whose record was held by the Italian Rex was lost to the Normandie in four days, eleven hours and forty-two minutes, which is two hours and sixteen minutes faster.

The Normandie made the fastest one-hour run of 31.39 knots, and the fastest twenty-four hour run of 748 miles. The average speed was 29.64 and the highest 31.39 knots.

The French craft's initial voyage was a success in every respect.

RAIN

Here I watch the ceaseless rain
Pattering down the window-pane,
Making little streams that go
Chasing madly to and fro.

See beyond the blur of glass
Pools that spread across the grass,
Perfumed chalices that brim
Near upon a bending limb.

Like a wraith the hawthorn stands,
Holding out her empty hands,
While their petals, sodden, free,
Strew beneath the dripping tree.

Weeping boughs of maple fall
Soft against the garden wall,
Higher merge and interlay,
Shutting all the world away.

Through the close no movement seen
Save the rhythmic dance of green,
Here no sound except the rain
Pattering down the window-pane.

MAN OF NINETY-FIVE, in a Western State, is accused of the murder of his wife. He admits he killed her, boasts of it rather, says he kept killing her all his life she talked too much and when she wouldn't mend her ways or short-circuit her tongue he could see no way out of it but to hasten her departure from this life. Person'd think he would have got used to it after all those years.

A GOOD CITIZENSHIP FACTORY — that's what the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School is and all the other institutions of like nature. Of course, the home, the church, and the public school have the preliminary work to do in building good citizenship but the Collegiate is a sort of finishing factory where the permanent principles are inculcated, for many of the pupils step right out on the world from the Collegiate. These young folks, thousands of them are gazing out on a world of which they know little beyond that visible on the surface, they gaze through rose vision, or with apprehension, but for the most part the optimism of youth leaves little room for fear and the gay and busy world looks inviting and intriguing. The graduate graduates of today will enter a world much better and brighter than that which faced their fathers at a similar period—a world keyed up to much faster living, calling as never before for speed and efficiency. The young folks of today are tuned up to take these places in a fast-stepping world, and there should be plenty of places for them are long. The world was never more prosperous or efficient, if anything too much so, as the business element has failed to keep pace. That there is something wrong with the system is apparent, the machine must be geared higher, that's all. Successful folks are accused of being selfish and hogging the good things of life, when in reality they are also victims of the system and anxious to see a world adjusted to its capabilities. There is plenty unselfishness in the hearts of men and women—there lacks only the opportunity to put it to the best use. The new generation will find a world which needs readjusting, and they will probably find a way to make the world better for them to live in and for all others. Too much Kindergarten politics and too little co-operation and opportunity for the exercise of Christian charity constitute the world's greatest handicap at the moment, and while many quack remedies are being put forward now to confuse the issue, the real remedy will be discovered sooner or later and brought into being by men and women who believe that "he profits most who serves best." Who will not envy those bright boys and girls looking out at the world through eyes which have not been disillusioned by disappointment or blinded by selfishness.

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

While we were settling in there was a sudden rush. Camels had been seen pasturing away to the East, and the energetic of the Arab hems streamed out, captured them, and drove them in. Feisal was furious, and shouted to them to stop, but they were too excited to hear him. He snatched his rifle, and shot at the nearest man; who in fear, tumbled out of his saddle, so that the others shocked their course. Feisal had them up before him, said to the principals with his camel-stick, and impounded the stolen camels and those of the thieves till the whole tally was complete. Then he handed the beasts back to their Billi owners. Had he not done so it would have involved a private war with the local people, our allies of the morrow, and might have checked extension beyond Weih. Our success lay in bond to such trifles.

Next morning we made for the beach, and up it to Habban at four o'clock. The Hardinge was duly there, in our rebirth, and landing water; although the shallow bay gave little shelter, and the place see rolling in made boat-work hazardous. We reserved first call for the mules, and gave what water was left to the more thirsty of the footmen; but it was a difficult night, and crowds of suffering men lingered jostling about the landing in the rays of the searchlight, hoping for another drink. If the sailors should venture in again.

I went on board, and heard that the naval attack had been carried out as though the land army were present, since Boyle feared the Turks would run away if he waited. As a matter of fact, the day we landed Abu Zerelhat, Ahmed Tewfik Bey, Turkish Governor, had addressed the garrison, saying that Weih must be held to the last drop of blood. Then at dusk he had got on to his camel and ridden off on the railway with the few mounted men (it is for flight, the two hundred infantry determined to do his abandoned duty against the landing party; but they were disheartened three to one, and the naval gun-fire was too heavy to let them make proper use of their positions. So far as the Hardinge knew, the fighting was not ended, but Weih town had been occupied by seamen and Arabs.

Profitable rumours exalted the army, which began to trickle off northward soon after midnight. At dawn we rallied the various contingents, and advanced in order, meeting a few scattered Turks, of whom one party put up a short resistance. They abruptly discounted, to airly off their cloaks, headcloths and shirts; and went on in brown half-naked ease, which they could would ensure clean wounds if they were hit: also their precious clothes would not be damaged.

It was pretty to look at the neat, brown men in the sunlit sandy valley, with the turquoise pool of salt water in the midst in set off the crimson banners which two standard bearers carried in the van. They went along in a steady lope, covering the ground at nearly 4gs miles an hour, dead silent, and reached and climbed the ridge without a shot fired. So, we knew the work had been finished for us by the navy and its landing parties.

(CHAPTER XI)

Tactics and Politics

On Cairo the Arab Bureau authorities promised gold, rifles, mules, more machine-guns, and mountain guns; but these last, of course, we never got. The gun question was an eternal nuisance. It was maddening to be unequal to many enterprises and to fall in others, for the technical reason that we could not keep down the Turkish artillery because its guns outranged ours by three or four thousand yards.

We received a great reinforcement to our army in the Arab Regular, a Bagdadi officer from the Turkish Army. After distinguished service in the Caucasus and Persian cruises, he had been chosen by Enver to organize the forces of the Sanhish el Senussi. He went there by submarine, made a decent force of the wild men, and showed tactical ability against the British in two battles. Then he was captured and lodged in the Citadel at Cairo with the other officer prisoners of war. He escaped one night, slipping down on a blanket-rope towards the moat; but the blankets failed under the strain, and in the fall he hurt his ankle, and was retaken helpless. In hospital he also got a bullet in the arm, enlarged after paying for the torn blanket. But one day he read in an Arabic newspaper of the Sherif's revolt, and set himself to learn the Turks of prominent Arab Nationalists—his friends—and realized that he had been on the wrong side. Feisal had heard of him, of course, and wanted him as commander-in-chief of his regular troops, whose improvement was now our main effort.

In Cairo were Nuri Pasha and George Lloyd, Storrs and Deedes, and many others. Nuri showed them the tactic of Arabian well-wishers was now strangely increased. But Lloyd's history ended with a sudden shock that more Turkish troops were fighting for the Arabs than were fighting in and began to remember how he had always favored the Arab revolt. Admiral Wemyss was as ready to help now as he had been to our hard days round Aqaba. Sir Reginald Wingate, High Commissioner in Egypt, was happy in the success of the work he had advocated for years. I grudged him this compliment, but Clayton took me the actual risk of starting it, had been broken just before prosperity began.

Nurses Alumnae Plan To Mark Golden Jubilee Of General Hospital

Belleville W.C.A. Organized in Days Before City Has Hospital

EARLY HISTORY

First Sod For Institution Turned in the Year 1884

This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of Belleville General Hospital and the jubilee will be commemorated by a garden party arranged by the members of the Nurses' Alumnae on Thursday, June 20.

Many residents cannot recall a time when there was no hospital in Belleville to their needs. Yet it is only a little over fifty years ago that the Women's Christian Association was formed, an organization which was solely responsible for the erection of a hospital in the city. Under the leadership of Mrs. J. H. Jaques whose husband was at that time principal of Albert College, the women of the city had organized to look after the poor, the sick and the friendless of the community, the early officers being Mrs. Jaques, Mrs. Nathan Jones, Mrs. Wm. Ponton, Miss Silbourn, Mrs. J. B. Platt, Mrs. Tannahill, Mrs. J. H. Holden, Miss G. C. Osborne, with directors from each church.

First Board.

John Bell, Q.C., acted as legal adviser granting the charter to the Women's Christian Association for many years from its beginning. Members of the first advisory board were A. S. Hyde, Northrup, M. Sawyer and James St. Charles.

After establishing a Home for the Aged, undertaking Jail and Magdalene work and dispensing the City Poor Fund, the ladies undertook the building of a hospital. And from the "Hospital Site" question there arose a heated argument which during a period of active and discouraging early years of the hospital stood by the ladies and gave them every encouragement in the noble undertaking and who have passed away were Drs. Gibson, Dolan, Farley, Yeoker, Elkins, Tyrrell, McCord and Sprague. Six superintendents have guided the destinies of the hospital in its fifty years of existence. They were Miss Lincke who was a graduate of the first training school for nurses in Canada at St. Catharines, Miss Gordon, Miss de Pencier, Miss Green, Miss Tait and Miss Macdonald. Two hundred and fourteen nurses have received their training at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. R. J. Bell is president of the Women's Christian Association and Mrs. W. C. Mikel who presided so efficiently for sixteen years is the immediate past president.

The Women's Christian Association is co-operating with the Nurses' Alumnae in its jubilee celebration next week and it is hoped that a large number of citizens will join in making the event a success.

RELEASED

Antonio San Miguel, 78-year-old multi-millionaire, poses in the garden of his palatial home in Havana, Cuba, after being released by, nine abductors who seized him and four servants for a stipulated ransom of $286,000. A business associate of the former Cuban land senator said the snatchers did not receive a cent of the demanded ransom, but that the aged Cuban had been released on his promise to pay soon. Government officials believe that the kidnapping was for the purpose of obtaining funds for a revolutionary movement.

SAMUEL INSULL IS AGAIN FREED

Judge Says Innocence is as Great as His Guilt

Chicago, June 14—(AP)—Federal Judge John C. Knox today directed the jury in the bankruptcy law violation of Samuel Insull, Jr., and Samuel Insull, Jr., and Harold L. Stuart to return a verdict of acquittal for all three defendants.

Judge Knox declared: "Under the proof submitted by the government the hypothesis of the defendants' innocence is as great as that of their guilt."

Insull, Jr., who seemed a bit stunned by the suddenness of the decision, smiled happily and said: "All I can say is that I'm happy and I'm through.

Gordon B. Whitfield

Postmaster at Whitby, Ont., Secretary, Ontario Branch of the Canadian Postmasters' Association, which is to meet in Belleville next week, beginning Monday, June 17.

In the year 1837 the forbears of Gordon B. Whitfield settled in the County of Ontario and so, the present Postmaster of Whitby was born in that town. He was educated in the Whitby Public School and further honored the High School until he entered his father's drug business as an apprentice. In 1915 G. B. Whitfield enlisted in the 116th Ontario County" Battalion as a private. He proceeded overseas with his unit and 'Somewhere in France' was transferred to the 2nd Canadian Infantry Battalion, where he was gassed at Passchendaele in 1917. After the Armistice he returned to Canada with his Battalion and was demobilized in April, 1919. He rejoined the Ontario Regiment and served in the Militia until 1931 returning with the rank of Major after 15 years' service.

He is a Mason, a Past President of the Whitby War Veterans' Club and was the predecessor of the present Legion branch, first President of the Whitby Tennis Club, charter member of the Golf and Curling Club and in his younger days he was a sprinter of some ability, he was interested in boating! badminton and hockey, and is an enthusiastic member of the Board of Education on which he has served for several years.

In addition to the very capable management of his office, he is the "man behind the guns" in the administration of the Provincial Association of which he has been Secretary since the reorganization in 1930.

For several years prior to 1930 he represented this Province on the Executive of the Dominion Association, during these years with which there he learned many things to assist him in his duties as Secretary, and in organization work. It is mainly due to his untiring efforts that the Ontario Association has such a splendid membership and has had such success in recent years. In addition he has the confidence and respect of the heads of the Post Office Department at Ottawa.

POETRY

Mr. George Allen Kingston, of Toronto, whose splendid Jubilee Hymn, received Dominion-wide recognition on the occasion of the Jubilee Celebration early in May which was graciously acknowledged by Their Majesties has since composed another beautiful hymn on a timely subject entitled "A Prayer for Peace" which has already been highly commended. It is written in six lines eights and may be sung to any one of a number of tunes, but "Stella" and "St. Christopher" are two tunes suggested as most suitable for this composition. The hymn follows:—

A PRAYER FOR PEACE

Creation's Lord who from the heights,
Doth move the planets in their turn,
And stilled the waves and stayed the Storm.
And set the made fire refuse to burn,
Give ear, O Lord, to this our plea,
And grant the world war's dread decree.

Lord of the Nations who dost know
The world's high Rulers' inmost thought,
Teach them to learn in Thy pure School
The works that only love hath wrought,
Create in them the will for peace
That war may throughout the world may cease.

Forbid, O Lord, that hymns of hate
Should o'er the land and ocean ring,
But love of God and brotherhood
Swell high the note on every tongue.

May man enthrone Thee, Prince of Peace,
That war in all the earth may cease.

Hasten the day when men shall beat
Their swords to plowshares shall be turned,
And spears to pruning-hooks, that
May soon forget the arts of war.
And Peace shall be the sole guiding star.

With the Boy Scouts

In our Scout column during the past year we have been telling you something about Cubs—the junior branch of the Boy Scout organization, which is from 8 to 12 years of age.

So the people of Belleville know that there is not a Cub Pack in the city! Why? Because of lack of interest and leadership. Are the parents interested in receiving assistance in the character training of their boys? If you are interested, we appeal to you for your arrogant support when the time comes for organization.

Word About Uniforms

For the boy a uniform is a big attraction, and when it is a dress such as backwoodsmen wear it takes him in imagination to be directly linked up with those frontiersmen who are heroes to him. This uniform is also makes a brotherhood, since when universally adopted it covers up all differences of rank and society. The Scout uniform, moreover, is simple and hygiene is step now much in fashion) approximating that of our ancestors.

Gaelic

Another insignificant and yet important part of the Scout uniform is the Honi Soit part of it—the Gaelic. These are intended not only to do the useful job of keeping the stockings from slipping down, but being actually sketch of the same wool they supply the mending material for repairing holes as they occur. The tabs at the end are coloured to distinguish the grade of the wearer, Red for Rover Scouts and Green for Scouts.

The Scout's Badge

Years ago, soon after the Boy Scouts were first started, certain critics accused the Movement of being a military one. Whenever anything new is started there are bound to be people who get up on their hind legs to find fault with it, often before they know what it is all about. In this case they said that the Scout Movement was designed to teach the boys to be soldiers and the director of Cavalry sent the crest of the Movement was, as they described it "A spearhead, the emblem of battle and bloodshed." Baden-Powell was asked by cable what he had to say about it. He telegraphed back: "The crest is the fleur-de-lys, a lily, the emblem of peace and purity." But it wasn't for that reason that Scouts took it in the Middle Ages, Charles, King of Naples, owing to his French descent had the fleur-de-lys as his crest. It was in his reign that Prince Otoja, the navigator, made the mariners' compass into a practical and reliable instrument. The compass card had the initial letters of North South East and West upon it. In Italian the North was "Tramontana." So he put a capital T to mark the North point. But in consequence the King he made a combination of the letter T with the King's fleur-de-lys crest. From that time the North point has been universally shown on the maps, charts, and compass cards by that sign. The actual meaning to be read from the fleur-de-lys badge is that it points in the right direction (and upwards) turning neither to the right nor left, since there is no backward again. The stars on the two side arms stand for the two Cubs' laws, the left Cubs having been opened before he became a Scout, when he gained his First Class badge of two Stars. The three points of the fleur-de-lys remind the Scout of the three points of the Scout's Promise—Duty to God and King, Helpfulness to others and Obedience to the Scout Law.

Letters to the Editor

MEMORIAL TO LOYALISTS

Belleville, June 13, 1935.

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

I wish to call attention of the U. E. Loyalists of this District and also of the citizens generally to the improvements made on the U. E. L. monument at the entrance to Queen Victoria Park.

The contracts were Messrs. A. A. Sills, Carmichael and Co., of this city, and the material used was supplied by Sternson Structural Specialties Co. This is the only U. E. L. Monument erected in Quinte District with the exception of the monument at Adolphustown. The foundation of this monument was laid on the 14th of June 1924, by the Grand Lodge of the Masonic Fraternity, during the U. E. L. Celebration and when completed it was unveiled by His Honour Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt on the 8th of Sept. 1926.

The work of cleaning and improving the monument is creditable alike to the above mentioned contractors and also to the firm which supplied the material.

I am sure it will be a matter of gratification to the citizens to know that the contractors for the work and the firm supplied the material free of charge to the citizens of Belleville and the improved appearance of the monument is certainly a tribute to all parties concerned for its renovation.

The method and material will preserve the monument it is expected for at least a century.

WINS BY A FOOT?

Mrs. Yvonne Arvisias, of Rouyn, Quebec, is not the only Canadian who can claim the distinction of winning a sine cure—by doubt a shoe. Mrs. Florence Brown, of Toronto, entrant in the Miller all maternity sweepstakes, is another who challenges Mrs. Arvisias' right to claim award of National Shoe Manufacturers of the United States, Mrs. Brown's foot measures between 7 1-2 inches and she wears children's shoes, size 1. Mrs. Arvisias' foot shown Mrs. Brown and her tiny foot. She has had 27 children.

The Arabian Nights

"Camel-Bells of Baghdad" by Janet Miller. Dr. Miller, a medical missionary from America to Japan, China and the Belgian Congo, tells of her travels in Iraq and Persia. The book exudes the romance of the land of the Thousand and One Arabian Nights and the poet Omar Khayyam; with daft hand she paints in vivid splashes of colour the mosaic of the Orient. She is steeped in the history, the literature and traditions of the country. The mosques and minarets, quaint walled cities and narrow, crowded streets with overhanging houses, the veiled women and camel caravans. She said dust rise up before your eyes. The travel included most of the cities and towns of Persia. She is always entertaining. There is not a dull sentence in the book and it is undoubtedly one of the best pieces of travel literature to appear this season.

Irish Fantasy

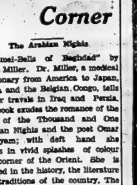
"Things To Live For" by Francis Stuart is as the subtitle suggests 'notes for an autobiography,' by that clever young author of "Women and God" and "The Coloured Dome." Stuart is a mystic, even at times to term himself an obscurantist mystic, as Irish writers often are, with a strong undercurrent of emotional religion. The narrative is disjointed, incomplete and at times does not seem to be chronological. It is more the record of mental growth and experience than a catalogue of every day events and is correspondingly vivid. The story of a robust young man with a zest for life and for the good things of life, very having taken part in the Irish civil war and served a term in the reconstruction camps. He wanders from the life of a convivial follower of race tracks to that of a recluse in his country cottage, meditating and writing novels. A few sentences from his book are probably the best to close its contents: "There is an emptiness within the human being, a hunger for we hardly know what, that is the deepest and wildest of all desires. It is the feeling in love with life, A few have dared to open their arms to it by plunges into it, and always they have been wounded and painfully—but there remains about them a breadth, a spaciousness, a warmth of genius."

Sailing Down to Rio

"While Cayuco" by John Vandervere Duvall is the story of a peaceful scientific expedition on board a privately owned palatial yacht down the Ocean Islands through the Panama Canal to the convict settlement French Guiana. The object of the trip is made to the forbidden Devil's Island and the exciting prisoners' escape to Amazon and back home by way of the Magellan Straits. Enroute they have all manner of unusual experiences of birds, fish, snakes, and the natives of the various ports with many strange and amusing adventures.

Great Days of the Opera

"Jean de Reszke" by Clara Leiter. This first biography of the life of Jean Reszke will prove a veritable feast for all genuine lovers of music and opera. Though dealing principally with the career of Jean, it also includes that of his famous brother Edouard, the bass, and their sister Josephine, who also became famous in an untimely end by her early marriage and divorce. The two brothers reached the greatest tenor of all time, not probably for the greatest voice but as the most intelligent singer and actor the operatic stage has ever known. Originally a singer of ballads and singing as a baritone and won little recognition, but he soon discovered his mistake, studied after a time and in retirement, emerged as a tenor to earn world fame and acclaim. Together the brothers alternated between seasons in London, Paris, St. Petersburg, New York and Chicago and rose to even greater heights of recognition as artistry when they produced the works of the master Wagner in the original German as Bernard Shaw had been admonishing them to do for years. Previously the earlier Wagnerian operas had been done in an Italian version. Delmas has been especially acclaimed unsurpassable. The consummate artistry of Jean as Siegfried and Edouard as Gurnemanz made operatic world by storm. They sang German as they did French and Italian with a purity of phrasing and enunciation which had never been heard before.



The book contains such a vast fund of opera love lore that it is very tempted to write of it much more than space will allow here. Reading will Jean retired from the stage while still in his prime, leaving the glowing memory of his great artistry and not the painful one of a broken down star dragged through personal farewell tours.

High Flying

"First Over Everest" is an account of the Houston-Mount Everest Expedition of 1933 written by five members of the expedition with a foreword by the sponsor himself. It is also one of the company organized and financed by Mr. Lee all of the months of exacting preparation necessary for the flight which in itself consumed only a few hours and the book contains a number of very fine pictures of Everest seen at very close range for the first time. A short account of the previous attempts of other parties is given with the peak on foot and very the breathtaking territory is also included.

KEPT GRAVESIDE VIGIL FOR SEVEN YEARS

For seven years a shaggy collie dog, Buster by name, has maintained a lone vigil beside the grave of his dead master, Jefferson Ohle, James Von Court selected Buster as a puppy 14 years ago; he raised him until he was a full-grown dog; then he died. Day after day since the hour they laid his master beneath the ground, Buster has come to watch beside the grave

But age and rheumatism are taking their toll. Sometimes now the aging dog cannot trot up the path; instead he can only lie on the slope and looking toward the cemetery, bowl mournfully. Buster's strength is ebbing away. He, too, will soon be dead; when that day comes he will be buried beside the cemetery fence—as close as he can get to the master he loved.

HELP EMPLOYMENT TO REPAIR ROAD

Piece in Question Used extensively For Heavy Loads

Friday morning's session of the County Council was rather brief owing to the fact that the Finance and Public Property and House of Refuge Committee was in session for some time. Warden Bronson presided.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of Thursday's sessions the council heard a communication from Messrs Collins and Cushing requesting the council to pay the overdue hospital accounts of Hastings County.—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

Resurfacing Road

Mr. Stewart Pender, representing the Standard Paving Company addressed the Council relative to work being done on 4.17MJ which connects Huntingdon and Thurlow Townships. It is about 3 miles and his company was prepared to do the work. In the employ of the company there are 20 horses and all are from Hastings County. If this work was given the company it would mean continuing the plant for a month or more at the plant being in Huntingdon township. It would be a cold mix with concrete. The road in question is said to be a top dressing. When in operation between $1,000 and $1,200 is paid monthly.

Mr. W. J. Davis, reeve of Bancroft, at 41, was of the opinion that the bridge on the road proposed to be treated could be done something done to it if the road is to be treated.

Mr. J. A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir and Marmora, asked that an estimate of the cost of making improvements to the bridge in question be made of $2,000.

The matter was referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

Minutes for Members

Mr. J. D. Pennock, reeve of Carlow Township, suggested that as the County had a proper machine for making reports that the reeves be furnished with a copy of the minutes of each session of the council. He moved a resolution to that effect.

Mr. J. A. Gunter, reeve of Bancroft, concurred in the suggestion of Mr. Pennock and he seconded the motion.

Mr. P. H. Carr, Deputy Reeve of Rawdon township: "If this was done it might mean the cost of getting out the auditors' report.

Mr. D. Clarke, Deputy Reeve of Hungerford, was of the opinion the minutes of the Council proceedings could well be eliminated from the auditors' report.

The motion was then adopted.

When the council adjourned a motion to intervene on the County Hospital Indigent accounts was being discussed, but not concluded.

WILEY POST FLIES IN STRATOSPHERE

Makes Fourth Effort To Cross Continent to New York City

Burbank, Calif., June 13.—(AP)—Wiley Post roared away from union air terminal here today on his fourth attempt to span the continent in a record-setting stratosphere flight to New York city.

The noted airman, piloting his famed five-year-old "Winnie Mae" at altitudes ranging between six and seven miles above the earth's surface, hoped to reach Floyd Bennett Field in New York in seven or eight hours.

A crowd of high school boys and girls looking over the Airport's Federal Post as he roared away.

The take-off was without incident and Post dropped his detachable landing gear as he neared the end of the runway.

He will land the "Winnie Mae" on a special field forming a part of the plane's belly.

Weather reports from the Middle West, particularly in the Chicago region, were not favorable, but Post was determined to make the trip today without further delay.

He planned to follow the "Great Circle Route" via Omaha and Chicago.

EIGHTY CANINES HAVE BEEN KILLED

Since the city dog pound started the season's activities two months ago, no less than 80 dogs have been destroyed by Dogcatcher Thomas Thorne. Every one of the 80 canines to be destroyed was found roaming at large and not bearing its necessary dog's tag, indicating that the 1935 dog tax had been paid by the owner. Each one was shot by the necessary three days, under law, before the dog was destroyed. Mr. Thorne uses the humane gas system, taking the fumes from the exhaust pipe of his automobile. To date only 445 dog tags or years have been paid in Belleville, against over 5 sold at this time last year. Local police were informed of the names of many delinquents and more drastic measures than the usual are being taken in relationship to the purchase of dog tags will be made in the near future, it was intimated today by police authorities.

RAILWAY LINE MAY PLACATE DUCE

A concession to construct a railroad through Ethiopia (Abyssinia), along the route shown in the map above, to link the Italian colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland, may enable Ethiopia to settle its dispute with Italy without war. Britain, having won concession from Ethiopia in Lake Tana region, to protect the all-important sources of the Blue Nile, is supporting this solution.

Marvel Unmasked by Dunlop As Pair Race Around Outside Ring Among the Spectators

'Al Dunlop Wins Bout and Becomes The Hero

SNIDERE SMART

Throws Two in Less Than Twenty Minutes Without Rest

Al Dunlop, previous villain to all local wrestling fans, proved the village hero last night when he unmasked the Masked Marvel in the main bout of the Kiwanis Club's weekly wrestling show at the Belleville Arena. Dunlop, after each contestant had taken a fall, chased the Marvel around the outside of the ring and tore the hood from the head of the defeated Marvel directly in front of the ringside seats, as some 600 satisfied fans shouted their approval. The contestants were separated at this point by Referee Wells and the wrestling started in earnest to the ring, resume hostilities that saw Dunlop win the third and final fall, thus ending the reign of the hated Masked Marvel in Belleville. The Marvel was announced as being Jack Marvin of West Virginia.

The semi-final main bout of the evening was equally as thrilling as the feature attraction when a brawling, hair-pulling wrestling circus, one corner to hold Snidere of Holland, three opponents in a fifteen minute twenty minutes of a scheduled one hour bout. Snidere finally threw Wallace Babvitch, the Ukranian, in 39 time, but was forced to the limit before he consigned the Indian Deathlock and forced Jack Pearl of Toronto to concede the fall. The grudge bout between Johnnie Gyrorffy and Billie McDougall of Canada ended with Gyrorffy toy with the Californian and win in a canter.

A slight change was made in the night's program as the Masked Marvel refused to meet Johnnie Gyrorffy, as advertised, but was prevailed upon to take on Dunlop, which eventually proved his mistake. The main bout opened with Dunlop and the Marvel, both weighing over 200 pounds, matching strength as they tested fancies in the centre of the ring. At a Dunlop repeatedly tried to unmask the hooded one, the latter took to the ropes and left the squared circle with Dunlop chasing him. Reclaiming an high lister as Dunlop floored the Marvel with a punishing arm-lock and looked like the victor per, but he had with the sock on his head wiggled out and won the first fall rather suddenly. Dunlop was carrying the scrap and had pickled the Marvel to perfection as he have been an aeroplane spin, but Dunlop's hand slipped and the Marvel evaded him to the mat to win with a spectacular reverse body scissors. Dunlop came back strong to mix-masters up during the second round as the combatants were exchanged along with flying fists. After repeated roughness Dunlop floored the Marvel with three successive elbow smashes and fell on the prostrate body to win with a body press.

Makes Complaints.

From the outset of the third round Dunlop endeavored to unmask the Marvel, but each time the latter either complained to Referee Wells or got clear of the ring to de fence. Tirtios this procedure ensued ligt the fourth time Dunlop followed him out of the ring and chased him about, cornering him and tearing the mask from his head exposing the features of a man fully 45 years of age, who later turned out to be Jack Marvin of West Virginia. When the contestants returned to the ring the Marvel kissed Dunlop and suddenly rose to claim victory, but without avail. With a punishing leg lock and toe hold Dunlop applied the pressure and won the third fall later, as the arena resounded with the cheers of the satisfied patrons. The bout was undoubtedly one of the most rousing seen locally in some time.

The semi-final bout of the night, during which Elmo Snidere of Holland, succesfully threw Jack Pearl and Wallace Babvitch, the Ukranian, in less than 30 minutes, was a feature attraction. Snidere is a fine wrestler, well built and of herculean strength. He easily tossed Babvitch in some five minutes after softening him up with a series of body slams and terminated by a body press. The Snidere-Pearl affair proved more interesting, but Pearl was too light for the sturdy Dutchman who forced the Toronto lad to concede the fall when he applied his famous Indian Deathlock hold, from which Pearl had no chance to break loose. In the fire part of this round Pearl displayed a tremendous comeback, much to the distiite of the herculean Snidere, but wrestling science eventually won the day as Snidere tossed both opponents in 19 minutes and 44 seconds, having beaten Babvitch in 5 minutes and nine seconds.

In the curtain-raiser Johnnie Gyrorffy, the Hungarian Adonis, literally carried Billie McDougall, the Glengale, Cal., opponent for eight minutes, before he threw him with a body slam and press. The bouts were by far the best of the season and will be duplicated next week, at which time Frankie Genevese, the ex-featherweight champion boxer of Canada, will appear on the program in a ten round bout with a suitable opponent. Two main bouts of wrestling will follow the professional boxing, the Kiwana Club officials announced.

The Summary.

Main bout (best two falls out of three, one hour limit)—Al Dunlop, 218, Cleveland, won over The Masked Marvel (Jack Marvin) 200 West Virginia, Dunlop winning second fall in 10.30 minutes, the third in 9.10 minutes while the Marvel won the first fall in 19.45 minutes.

Semi-final (one hour limit)—Elmo Snidere, 230, Holland, defeated W. Babvitch, 195, Ukranla, in 5.09 minutes; and also won over Jack Pearl, 218, Toronto, in 14.45 minutes. (Snidere met opponents in succession).

Preliminary (30 minutes, one fall)—Johnnie Gyrorffy, 205, Hungary, won over Billie McDougall, Glendale, Cal., 195, in 8.31 minutes.

Referee—Bert Wells, Belleville.

Announcer — Frank Domenico of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

THE BLOW THAT JARRED THE CROWN LOOSE

Like a shot from the blue flash-ed the word to the wide world that one James Braddock, Irishman, and making a comeback from the relief rolls of New York, had succeeded Max Baer as heavyweight boxing champion of the world. In a dull 15-round bout, Braddock was given the unanimous decision of the judges and the crowd of 30,000. Photo shows Braddock taking tough one so hard he took too many such during the evening with scarcely a return.

Best Hurling Performances Of Still Young Campaign On One Day Results in Losses

Chagnon of Giants Has Two Hitter And Clarke A Three

PIRATES SECOND

Move up, When Cards Split a Double Bill With Boston

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

While it would be impossible to enter all the odd happenings of any major league season in the record books, it seems worthy of note, when two of the best pitching performances of the still-young 1935 campaign are recorded on the same days and neither of the pitchers, who did the work are able to win his game.

On fields separated by only a few miles, Leon Chagnon of the Giants pitched a two-hit game against the Reds yesterday and lost it 2 to 0 and William Watson Clark, veteran Brooklyn southpaw, gave the Pirates only three hits and suffered a 1 to 0 setback.

Chagnon, making his first appearance as a starting hurler in nearly two years, apparently was a victim of circumstances in the second inning, when the Reds did all their stickwork. Jim Bottomley, celebrating his return to action after a three-weeks absence due to lumbago, slashed a vicious liner down to first. Bell Terry stabbed at it with his bare hand and the game was held up while the hand was bandaged. Two possible injuries. Getting back to work after the delay, Chagnon grooved one for Gilly Campbell and the young receiver belted it into the stands for a homer.

Pirates Now Second

Meanwhile Paul Derringer, winning his eighth game of the year, nearly set the Giants down with four hits. It was the same at Brooklyn where Bill Swan, Pittsburgh flinger, granted the Dodgers only five blows and caught his mouth rival cappin in the ninth with a mean double and score the only run on Fergel Slade's fly ball to center.

Pittsburgh's triumph moved the Bucs into second place in the National League as the Cardinals split a hard fought double header with the Braves, Boston took the opener 5 to 4 when Wally Berger smashed a homer with two aboard. After Dizzy Dean had made 13 innings in the nightcap the Cards finally won for him 8 to 7 on Ducky Pick Hayes' rock and Jim Collins plus a sacrifice. Curt Davis of the Phillies, making his first start since the season's opener, showed that he had recovered from his sore arm trouble when he bore down in the clinches and beat the Reds 4 to 3 although touched for eleven hits.

American League

The American League produced a succession of weird slugfests, the oddest of which saw the Athletics beat the White Sox 16 to 11 in eleven innings after Chicago had overcome an 8 to 0 deficit. Al Simmons hit a homer with the bases full and Washington's relief flinger, Ed Linke, knocked one with two aboard in the winning rally.

The league-leading Yankees had to go 12 innings to subdue the last-place Browns 4 to 3 after Joe the count in the ninth when Merrill Chin weakened toward the finish of a well pitched game. Boston's Red Sox moved into a virtual tie with Cleveland for fourth place when they bowled over the Tigers 10 to 8 after blowing an early 7-3 lead while the Indians took a 5-4 setback from the Athletics one largely to Monte Pearson's wildness.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

That old axiom of "thirteenth of the month" took its toll in Belleville on Thursday when the Stewart-Warners dropped a queer sort of a ball game to the Oshawa "Brewers". Despite the fact, that Doxy Ogden did not hurl nearly as good as he did when he blanked the locals in Oshawa ten days prior, the visiting hurler was afforded superior natural support by his team mates, while the Radios played listless ball all evening. Jack Williams deserved a better fate than the one he was forced to accept on Thursday night, but it just seemed as though the locals could not "click". Right in the initial frame the Brewers handed the Radios a soft run, gratis, but just to make good fellows of themselves, they handed the visitors one right back the next innings, knotting the count. Ogden, however, that did the hopes of the fans rise that they might whom Alec Weir crashed his mighty triple to score two runs and make the count 4 to 3.

Although the players like to win in front or the home fans, there really is nothing to worry about in relationship to Thursday's loss. The Radios are equally as good as any club in the league and let their bats break; later on, we hope. There is no red crying over spilled milk. In better thing to do is to step into Peterboro today and hand the Sea Horses a reverse and everything will be hotsy totsy once again. The Millionaire aggregation had been defeated for one full week, prior to Thursday night's tilt, which in itself did the club no good, the locals are a team that thrives on hard work on the diamond and need more games in order to get themselves in proper stride. In the next eight days they have three scheduled games in the C.O.B.L. and are negotiating to play an exhibition game as well. Manager Mills being firmly convinced that these long lay-offs are absolutely a detriment to his club.

Unless the last night's rain interferes the Stewart-Warners are scheduled to clash with the "Sea Horses" at Riverside Park in Peterboro this p.m. when the locals will face Big Russ Kitchen, who was announced yesterday as the potential starting pitcher for the homesters. Doubtlessly Coach Mills will send Art Calhoun right back at the Petes although Ernie Smith is also being groomed for action. Calhoun blanked the Petes a week ago and as the Radios are assuming rather high, 5 to 3 reverse at the hands of the Brewers", something drastic is likely to happen. Twenty odd pitchers, when the local batsmen break out with a vengeance this will never do. With the Brewers and the Ponies idle, the entire week-end honors to elevate themselves back into first position in the league standings.

A number of fans to attend last Thursday's ball game became quite irritated due to the slowness of ticket selling at the gate. The ex-pected were late in the middle stretch following the game and admitted they could not sell and collect five or six hundred tickets in the short space of time allotted, so they have based upon a plan that will relieve the congestion at the Fair Grounds from 6.30 to 6.52 p.m. President Charlie Meagher announced this morning that a pre-game sale of tickets would be open to the public 48 hours prior to each home stand of the Radios. Tickets will be placed on sale at Bill Cook's and Eddie Thomas' cigar stores, where the fans will be able to procure the same in advance. The pre-game sale will terminate at game time, however. In case of rain purchasing tickets and rain intervening, such tickets will be honored at the next home game of the Radios. This new system will be put into effect for Tuesday's home stand versus the Petes when another twilight fixture of C.O.B.L. ball will be the centre of legal sport attraction. Incidentally the gates will be opened at the Fair Grounds to admit traffic in the fans.

Al Dunlop, who always proved the villain in local wrestling circles was the chief hero last night when he unmasked the Masked Marvel and then chased the latter around the hooded gent. It was a treat for those in the ringside seats, as Dunlop chased the Marvel around the outside of the ring to unmask him in front of the fans sitting in the front row. It surely was a feather in Dunlop's cap and he won the admiration of many friends, incidentally this lad Elmo Sidere, of Holland, who defeated two opponents in the semi-final is no wrestling slouch. Sidere is of herculean strength and he demonstrated in winning over two opponents in less than 20 minutes without so much a rest between falls. Snidere forced Jack Pearl in a defaulted fall with the Indian Deathlock hold, a vorcile hold. Announcer Domenico announced of another attraction card for next week when Frankie Genovese, ex-featherweight champion of Canada, will appear in a ten round boxing bout, while two main bouts of wrestling will be included on the card, both being two falls over the hour limit. Last night's show surely made up for the week previous, as all three bouts were top-notchers.

Simpsons moved into a tie for first place with the Glenlee Crafts in the Quinte Athletic Softball loop last night when they downed the Recreations 10 to 5 in a five inning abbreviated game, terminated by rain. Consider-able interest was aroused from both camps in reference to the rain clause, but as five innings were played the game went into the books. The winners used three hurlers in the five frames, Clarke, Pearce and Amo hurling as Rowbotham caught for Simpsons. Carson and Sager did duty for the losers with Art Barrett-led crew. Manager Addison Lloyd started Simpsons on a batting rally that eventually saw them win in the fifth.

The local Belleville United soccer team lost their opening league game of the season when they met "CLAY-Flyers" blanked them 2 to 0 at the Cricket Field yesterday afternoon. Some brilliant football was seen by the largest crowd to witness a soccer game in Belleville in many years.

For those not catching the name of the Montreal Marvel last night, he is Jack Marvin of West Virginia, a man fully 45 years of age.

OUCH! THAT ONE HURT GRUNTS DEAN

The show was billed as a boxing bout, but when Joe K. Brown, the comedian, and "Man Mountain" Dean, round wrestler, got together before the fracas commenced there wasn't much left undone. Joe welcomed the hairy-faced wrestler with a body tackle a la Brown. He had just completed his brawl. At this point a brought a grunt and a surprised look to the face of his powerful ringmate.

Canadian Entry Limited to Five Hits in Night Game

By The Associated Press

Baltimore's combination of heavy hitters and short fences is still counting for wins for the home team.

Yesterday the Orioles went to work in the first inning against Buffalo to load the bases. Then Mr. Abernathy came to bat. He took a look at the fences, then proceeded to belt one over, and four runs crossed the plate. The final score was 6-4, so it can be seen that the Abernathy blow was something to do with the victory over the league leading Bisons, incidentally it was Abernathy's 15th homer of the season.

If John Pomorski, on the mound for Buffalo, thought his worries were over after that first homer, however he was mistaken. Vince Barton then stepped up to run his total up to 16 and boost Baltimore's run total to five.

Pomorski did settle down after that and pitched well until the seventh when he gave way to a pinch hitter.

Fitzgerald of Buffalo also hit one for the circuit.

In a night game, Fred Fussell worked his first full game for the Syracuse Chiefs, limited the Toronto Maple Leafs to five hits and won 5-1.

Fussell pitched great ball, setting the Leafs down for six hitless innings. But his mates apparently tired and double plays to pull him out of tough spots.

Jack Knoca hurled steady ball for Newark Bears as they defeated the Rochester Red-wings 5-3. Mel Leishman clouted one for the circuit in the first inning to give Newark a temporary lead, the Reds came back to tie it up in the fourth and then the Bears came through with three runs to gain a lead they did not relinquish.

Albany scored 10 runs in the sixth inning to overtake Montreal and win the first game of their series 12-8. The 10 runs were made on eight hits, four bases on balls, a sacrifice and an error. The Senators made 20 hits off three Montreal pitchers.

GOLF ... sHgcov ..l ..... .

The other day I used a baseball term in trying to convey an idea to one of my pupils.

I wanted him to assume a starting position which would find the ball opposite his left foot and both hands on the right side of the shaft. At times he would have the ball off his left foot but fail to get his hands on the right side of the club. Finally I told him to keep his left hand a baseball. He told me that he had played professional baseball.

I told him to keep his hands, body and everything behind the club-ball, but put him in the proper position. He had no trouble hitting them a mile. If you have stood at ball park to knock a ball on run, you'll recognize the position. Just lower your club to the golf level and even so, you have the proper starting position for your swing.

Paul Runyan has been raised as a comparatively short wood club player. Around 200 yards with a spoon he has little competition. But his maximum carry has been something like 205 yards.

Recently he has exercised his suffering muscles. He has gained about eight pounds in weight. The added weight and strength showed in his driving at Lakeville during the Metropolitan open. He played with Sid Brews, South African champion and Macfarlane, former open champion. He had any number of tee shots and equidistant them.

I asked him about these longer drives. He attributed the extra length to the weight and strength recently acquired.

THE RED TIGER

By ALANSON CROSBY

A MODERN KNIGHT ERRANT

CHAPTER THREE

A FIGHTER!

Pandemonium broke loose in "The Red Tiger". Women's frightened screams mingled with the shouts and curses of men and above all rose the sounds of tables being overturned and dishes and glasses crashing as panic seized the milling crowd, blindly trying to escape in the dark from some unknown danger.

Bob Harley threw a protective arm around Judith's shoulder. "Don't move!" he shouted in her ear. "The lights will come on in a minute. Stick tight to me."

With his free arm he sought to ward off a surging, clinging with one hand to Bob and trying rather feebly with the other to push away the bodies that lurched against her.

Just as she feared she could not keep on her feet another moment, the lights came on again. An awful hush, punctuated by the sobbing of frightened women, and groans of men men and women who had been trampled in the wild panic, fell upon the crowd. Then followed those mothers to the front of the room, where two men were being carried out the door. With a shudder her eyes took in limp hands dangling from inert bodies and a red splotch on a white shirt front.

Bob Harley reached out suddenly and grabbed a passing man by the arm. His hurried, quickly said and called as he recognized the redheaded reporter.

"Hullo, Bob; something here for you, I reckon?"

The man looked quickly at Judith. She thought she saw in his eyes the same expression as Bob's when he first saw her in "The Red Tiger". She felt her face reddened, and turned her eyes from him.

"Ran help me, will you?" said Bob, "Take Miss Bates home. She —she doesn't belong here."

"I wouldn't 'ave thought so," said the other man evenly.

"This is Randall Spencer, Judith," Bob explained. "Judith Bates, Ran. Skip's been in accident. I'm trusting her to you, Ran—I've got to get the dope on this business. Please take her home."

"With pleasure," said Randall Spencer; and Bob was off.

Randall Spencer. The name seemed vaguely familiar to Judith. Probably some client of Stokes, Andersen & Stokes, for whom she transcribed legal papers. She noticed that he was tall and rather good looking, and his blue eyes radiated frank friendliness.

"Why'd better get out of this mess," he said as he took her arm. "There's the nearest exit." He plioted her toward it, elbowing a way through the nervous crowd. Just as they were at the door, Harold Stokes' voice startled her.

"Beauty!" he called and emerged with from the crowd near the exit. "I was afraid I'd lost you. Oh, hello, Spencer. Glad Beauty fell into good hands—I'll take her off yours now, if you don't mind."

"How are you, Mr. Stokes?" said Spencer, rather coldly. Then he turned those friendly eyes, a bit harder now, to Judith, inscrutingly.

Judith had no notion of relinquishing her new protector for Harold Stokes.

"I think I'll go with Mr. Spencer," she said decisively.

"I like that," said Stokes, aggressively. "I brought you and I'll take you home. You can't shake me that way, Beauty."

"I don't want to go home with you," said Judith simply. "If Mr. Spencer doesn't mind taking me."

"Delighted," said that gentleman, the friendly look returning to his eyes. "Would you kindly let us pass, Stokes?"

Stokes reddened—and there was a distinctly ugly note in his voice as he replied, making no effort to step out of their way:

"Look here, Spencer, you can't come that on me. This girl came with me and she's going to leave with me — see? You'd better not meddle in this. It's my affair."

"I would say that it was Miss Bates' affair," said Spencer mildly enough. "If she chooses my company in preference to yours, that's all there is to it. Step aside, please."

"Not by a damn sight," said Stokes, bursting the exit with his body. "Get off my girl, you heel!"

"I'll ask you just once more to step aside," said Spencer and there was an imperative quality in his voice. Harold Stokes, encouraged by the proximity of several brutes of his acquaintance and a whispered word from one of them, continued to bluster.

"You'll lay off my girl, I tell you! She's mine, you hear? You run along and peddle your papers, but she stays here, y' understand?"

Spencer made no verbal reply to this, but Judith sensed action in the air.

It came with suddenness. Spencer's right arm shot out and the impact of it on Stoke's chin sent him staggering. Before Stokes could catch himself, Spencer had caught Judith by the arm and was running with her through the exit.

Behind them came oaths and imprecations and the angry voice of Stokes yelling to somebody to stop them. Half a score evil looking men were at their heels.

"That's my car," breathed Spencer indicating a smart tan roadster by the curb. "Get in it. Can you drive? If you can, go ahead while I hold those things back."

"I can drive," she confessed. "Anyhow, I couldn't desert you like that."

"Well, get in," he urged. "I'll do the best I can."

Obedient to his command, she climbed in as he wheeled upon the half-dozen men at their heels.

He thrust his hands in his coat pockets and said in a steely voice:

"Two men have been killed in this joint tonight. Unless you cuss want to follow them, you better turn tail and go back to your parties."

They halted in indecision, their eyes fixed on the coat pockets in which Spencer had thrust his hands so nonchalantly.

"Ah, hell," snarled one of them, "let Stokes do his own dirty work. He's a fool. Chalmer anyhow."

The other grunted approval of this sentiment, and followed their leader back to "The Red Tiger".

Spencer's foot was on the starter almost before their backs were turned, and Stokes came fuming out of the exit door just in time to see with tan roadster turning out of the alley and on the concrete road, headed for town.

They drove swiftly and silently for five minutes. Then Spencer lifted his foot slightly from the gas and as the indicator gradually turned back from 80 to 30, he relaxed and indulged in a chuckle.

"Fooled 'em, didn't we, Miss Bates—or should I call you 'Beauty' as Stokes does?"

"Please don't," Judith protested. "Stokes is a beast and I hate him."

"How," she asked hesitatingly, "did we fool them? I noticed you let they turned back when you put your hands in your pockets. What were they afraid of?"

"Guns," Spencer said laconically. "And you didn't see it myself."

"Mary a gun," laughed Spencer. "But I guess in the future if I visit the 'Red Tiger', it would be safest to pack one."

"You are very brave," said Judith admiringly. "I don't know how to thank you."

"Don't try," said Spencer. "Speaking of guns—"

At that moment there was a loud report and the car swerve delightly. Judith in fright, grasped her companion's arm.

"Steady," he said reassuringly. "Just a blow-out. Whoa Nancy." He brought the tan roadster to a gentle stop at the side of the road. "Have to change a tire."

Evidently he was used to the work in spite of his good clothes and fine, white hands that showed no marks of manual toil. Quickly he got the bad tire off and the spare one in its place. He was tightening the lugs when the glare of a headlight behind them caused him to pause. Judith noticed that he frowned slightly.

"What is it?" she asked, a little anxious.

"Nothing, I guess," he responded carelessly. Just some of the customers coming home from a quiet evening at the 'Red Tiger'." He resumed tightening the lugs a little faster. Before the last one was tight, however, a car had whizzed past them at terrific speed. Another followed close on its heels.

"Well, Nancy's all right again," said Spencer carelessly as he hopped in. "I ought to have changed that tire long ago. Just lazy."

"That first car looked like Mr. Stokes," said Judith, a bit worried "It was."

"No had two or three men in with him. Do you think he is bent on any more trouble?"

"Hope not," said Spencer frankly. "Don't worry . . . He was pretty gave, though."

They rode on in silence for a few minutes. Judith was beginning to thing their last adventure were unnerved when the glare of their headlights suddenly revealed a big touring car drawn up across the road, blocking their path.

Spencer slammed his foot on the brake and brought his roadster to a standstill a few feet from the waiting car.

"Get out, you two, said a gruff voice, and they went pale with a surge of terror that the speaker was one of the evil men from "The Red Tiger" and that he had pursued them out of "The Red Tiger" and that he had somehow covered with a wicking looking automatic.

CROSS AND DOUBLE-CROSS

CHAPTER FOUR

Randall Spencer shot a quick glance at Judith. She read in it an inquiry, and her answer was a smile assured to obey the command and not risk his life in a foolhardy attempt at resistance.

As they stood by the roadside, hands in the air, swift wonder about Harold Stokes passed through her mind. If the blue car was not his it was his twin — among the half-dozen forms revealed by the automobile headlights she looked in vain for him. If he was present he was standing outside the circle of light. Nevertheless, she was convinced that he was the instigator of the holdup, if not actually present.

Her momentary terror was succeeded by a feeling that this must after all be a theatrical and rather silly joke. Surely they were not in actual danger. Gunmen, abduction and assassination were accessories in the peaceful city that lay ten minutes' ride ahead of them. Yet—and a recurrent surge of terror accompanied the thought—she had been almost an eye-witness—certainly an ear-witness—of cold-blooded murder in "The Red Tiger".

The harsh voice of the man covering Spencer with his automatic interrupted her thoughts.

"If either of you attempts any funny business it'll go hard with you. Frisk him, Steve."

Steve stepped forward and began a systematic search of Spencer's pockets. A gold watch and chain, pocknife, cigarette case, bill-fold, handkerchief were the not results.

"No rods?" The chief of the holdup men did not disguise his surprise. "Say young feller, what did you put per hands in yer coat pockets for, then?"

"Just getting them warm," replied Spencer coolly, but enigmatic smile.

"Well, mebbe we'll warm you plenty," growled the chief ruffian, pocketing the things his assistant had taken from Spencer's pockets. "Take him for a ride, Steve. All you boys go along. You, Pete and Bill. Pete you stays with us. Bill, you climb behind the wheel of car. Mebbe he won't need it any more."

The sinister import of all this was not lost on Judith. "Take him for a ride." "Won't need his swell car any more." They were going to murder her protector! All thoughts of her own danger vanished in a concern, which she did not stop to analyze for the gallant young man who had stood between her and Harold Stokes' unwelcome attentions.

Down came her hands from the air, and in one swift movement she was between the chief thug and Spencer.

"You shan't do it!" She cried in an agony of desperation. "Leave him alone!"

The chief thug whistled. There was almost a note of admiration in his voice as he said:

"Spunky little cat, huh?" He pulled her out of the way. "If I'd been the least bit nervous when you made that move, sister, you'd a-been frilled. Listen, Sis, there ain't no man livin' that's worth that!"

Spencer stood calm and pale.

"Don't endanger yourself on my account. I beg of you, Miss Bates," he said, quietly.

She began to sob, in a realization of helplessness and futility.

"Try up shi!" said the leader. "I reckon we won't kill him this time—but for your sake. That is, unless he gets funny." He whipped out a few words to Steve, and then said aloud, "Take him along, boys."

The big touring car this had blocking the road was unceremoniously pulled to a position behind "The Red Tiger". Ten miles away, Spencer was assigned to the front seat with a rough side of him.

"Don't worry—Pudjik" he said in a few tones as they lay him to the car. She could only go in the back seat and the car started.

The man whom the chief thug had called Bill climbed into Spencer's roadster and drove off toward the city. The other one, Pete, brought the blue roadster up to where the chief thug stood with Judith.

"Step in, Sis," he commanded. He hesitated. His eyes on her arm and forced her in, then squeezed in beside her. She forced herself to quit crying and focused her attention on the tail-light of the touring car ahead of her. For minutes they drove silently, maintaining the same distance behind the touring car in which Randall Spencer was a prisoner.

Judith was not thinking of herself but of the car ahead, and especially of one of its occupants. There could be no other purpose than a sinister one in the enforced separation of the two prisoners of this evil band, but what that might portend for herself she dismissed from her mind—indeed scarcely thought of in her concern for Spencer. That evil should befall him her protector was agonizing. Would they dare they—shoot him? She shuddered. Squeezed in tightly between her two captors as she was, they could feel her tremor. Pete, at the wheel, grinned vacantly. The other thug, who seemed to be guilty kind, tried to reassure her.

"Don't worry, Sis. We ain't goin' to hurt you."

"Never mind me! What are you going to do with Mr. Spencer?" she demanded.

The man grunted.

"You're a queer one . . . But I admire your mind and you, at that time yet mind, that he won't be hurt either if he don't get funny . . . You 'tend to your own business, Pete."

The other thug was scowling at him. "I'm runnin' this affair, sis; I'll."

"Yer talkin' too damned much," snarled Pete. "If the chief knew as well, I wouldn't want to be in yer shoes!"

"Well, you make sure the chief don't know it, or you and me will have a acre to settle—get me?" The first thug returned his companion's scowl with interest.

"Ah, fergit it," said Pete in a tone of disgust. "What's this shirt to you, anyhow, Dick?"

The man thus identified as Dick, partly mollified, returned a little sheepishly:

"Nothin'. But I think she's on the square. It's kinda queer to run up against that kind of a gal in any more." The other agreed.

"You don't know nothin' about her but what she says. Yer just gettin' soft."

"Mebbe I am," Dick returned a shade belligerently. "But you won't find me soft if you go spillin' any beans to the chief. And, anyhow, I'm obeyin' orders, ain't I? The chief told us to bring this gal back unharmed, didn't he?"

"Yeh," said Pete, sarcastically. "But he didn't say nothin' about you talkin' to the jane and tellin' her not to worry about her boy friend. An' I don't remember hearin' any special orders to be tender with the fellow, either. I guess what you whispered to Steve back there, bein' all hoks kinds phoney to me, Dick."

"Well, cry up," snarled Dick. "It's none of yer damned business!"

This conversation between the two outlaws was both reassuring and disconcerting to Judith. It showed beyond doubt, that no immediate harm, was intended toward her, but it left Spencer's probable fate clouded in doubt. That Dick, the leader of this band, was not brutally disposed toward either of them, seemed to be indicated. It all depended on what he had thus interpreted instructions. If they conflicted with the purposes of the man who had referred to as the "chief" what then?

Speculation along this line was interrupted by the swerving of the leading car from the city limits. It was turning off the main road. Judith held her breath in suspense. Would the blue car follow? A minute that seemed an age ensued before the blue car turned the side road, down which Judith could see the tail light of the touring car.

The blue car kept on straight ahead. Judith gripped Dick's arm.

"Oh, where are they taking him?" she demanded. "Why aren't we following?"

The tail light of the touring car disappeared as the road rise in the side road. Pete had pressed hard on the gas and the four car was making 65.

"Don't fuss!" growled Dick. "Everything's all right."

But even as he spoke Judith heard a loud report. She gasped.

"Must 'a been a blow-out!" Dick reassured her. "The tires of the old bus are rotten."

The blue car was making 70 miles an hour. They were a long way past the side road intersection now and the lights of "The Red Tiger" were looming up ahead.

Finally there came to Judith the sound of five more shots in quick succession—they could be nothing else—there could not possibly be six "rotten tires" on the touring car. A horrified unconsciousness blotted out the horrifying scene that flashed through Judith's imagination.

"Damn 'em!" snarled Dick. "They double-crossed me!"

"Ya-ah?" grinned Pete. "An' you was double-crossin' the chief!"

An' the jane's passed out—fainted!"

MARRIED AFTER ROMANCE OF 50 YEARS

A marriage ceremony at Jarvis, Ont., recently culminated a romance that began 50 years ago. Archie Parker and his fiancee quarrelled on the eve of their marriage half a century ago. Recently they made up, and our picture shows the happy couple after the wedding ceremony.

SMALLEST FOOT

If Mrs. Vronnie Arvanis, 24, can prove claim that she can wear a one-half AA shoe she will not have to buy any more shoes. A shoe manufacturers' convention in Chicago recently advertised that any person who can wear this extremely narrow shoe would receive shoes for life. Mrs. Arvanis has forwarded to Chicago a pair of her shoes which she had made to order, to substantiate her claim. Photo shows Mrs. Arvanis with one of her shoes, size 1 1-2, smallest in ready-to-wear sizes.

FLOODS TAKE UP WHERE DUST STORMS LEAVE OFF

Dust storms have harried the western and mid-western States until much of a once fertile area of Oklahoma and other states is now arid wastes, and now with the cessation of the dust menace comes the threat of flood to new areas. Here is a view of the residential section of Vinita, Okla., turned into a veritable ocean when Bull Creek suddenly went on a rampage after a 4-inch rainfall in less than one hour. Many of the residents were rescued by boats from the water.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, June 15—(CP)—Trading mining market had few extensions in today's short session, the business showing mainly in a dribble of trades in half dozen gold stocks including Central Patricia, Lake Shore, McWatters, Paymaster and Teabota. Prices were barely firm over the board but recessions in no instance appeared important.

Noranda was about unchanged A cent or two represented the extent of the losses for Big Missouri, Base Metals Corporation, Sudbury Basin and Sherritt.

Eldorado River worked back 5 cents, Castle 3 and Bear 1.

Action was slow in the senior gold group with losses up to about 13 cents for Hollinger, Lake Shore and Dome.

McWatters was run up to 1.36 for a gain of 14 cents and the close was a little under the top. The oils were slow and Chemical Research advanced about 18 cents to close around 1.35.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, June 15—(CP)—The "boom" in the lower stocks, spreading from dismissal of the charges against several directors of Distillers-Seagrams, was not working today to any extent. Offerings from a few profit-takers were sufficient to trim prices up to 3-4. International Petroleum, British American Oil, International Nickel were off fractions and Consolidated Smelters dropped nearly two points. Brewing Corporation, Pfd., met off 3-4, Bell Telephone back-tracked 1 1-2 while Union Gas, Winnipeg Electric Pfd., Dominion Steel and National Steel Car ruled higher.

Robt. Simpson Pfd. dropped a point, and Moore Corporation, Canadian Bread, C.P.R. and Massey Harris remained steady and slow. Western Canada lost about 3-4, Distillers Seagrams 1-4 and Industrial Alcohol A 1-4.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, June 15—(AP)— While scattered profit taking appeared in today's brief stock market session, the general firmness of the rails kept the list in an optimistic mood. For the most part, however, gains were small. The metals were somewhat easier today. The closing tone was fairly steady. Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares.

AOTHER RECORD

Stella Walsh, famous Cleveland girl sprinter caught by the camera as she finished the 220-yard dash in 24.3 seconds to set a new world record for girls over that distance. The old mark was 25.1 and was held by Robinson of Chicago and Stella shaved a good margin from that time in making her record.

EVERYTHING IS FINE IN CLEVELAND DUGOUT NOW

Doves of peace seem to be flapping benign wings over the wiz-wam of the Cleveland Indians where recently all was strife and discord. Following the dismissal of Willis Kamm and Glenn Myatt from the playing roster, many fans protested, urging that Manager Walter Johnson be given his air. With the team winning, however, the fans gave Johnson an ovation (with only a few boos) when the club opened a long stand at Cleveland. Picture shows, left to right, Johnson, Coach Steve O'Neill and top, Owner Alva Bradley and General Manager Billy Evans, on the home grounds.

STRAWBERRIES AT 30 CTS. BOX

First Offering of Home Grown Variety This Season

Home grown strawberries made their appearance on the Belleville market but the quantity was somewhat limited. The pulling price was 30c a box while a few asked a slightly higher price. Prospects are that there will be a heavy crop, late rains improving the plants.

The market was largely attended by both sellers and buyers and in consequence considerable trading was in evidence.

During the past week the hog market showed some improvement in prices. Live hogs advanced from 8c per cwt. to 9c and dressed hogs from $12.50 to $13.00.

In the grain market there have been no changes to note for some time and the situation remains stable. Eggs showed a slight increase in price owing to the supply not being as large as in former weeks. The ruling price for No. 1 was 18c and 20c was asked in some cases. Butter sold at 25c per pound with two pound rolls retailing at 45c.

Fish vendors did considerable business with prices reasonable for cake salmon, white fish, pike and mud cats.

In many respects the market was the best that has been held for some weeks. Flowers and vegetable plants for transplanting were in abundance with many purchases.

Quotations were as follows:

Weekly Crop Report

Winnipeg, Man., June 15—In the eastern grain growing region weather has been generally warmer with showers and all grains are making splendid growth and coming along slowly in fine shape. The season is still considered from ten days to two weeks later than normal but is at several years since conditions were any better than they are at this time. A few points report grasshoppers hatching out lighter soil but municipalities are taking action and no ravage is expected. One or two points also report a little ravage from cutworms while others state intermittent high winds have caused land to dry out fast resulting in slight damage from soil drifting, according to the weekly crop report of the agricultural department C.N.R.

In Southern and South Central Manitoba all grains are growing rapidly and no serious damage is reported from recent frosts, although gardens were affected. One specially reports a hail storm strip which was not extensive. Hoppers are appearing at isolated points but are not doing any damage so far. All seeding is completed and grain is growing splendidly.

In the Dauphin and Swan River areas weather has been cool and showery with frosts at night. Moisture is plentiful and wheat and coarse grains are standing strongly. Along the Lewman, Lampman, Arcola, Gravelbourg, Central Butte, Riverhurst, Semgough subdivisions in Southern Saskatchewan weather has been warmer with a few heavy showers.

Conditions are favorable and all crops are making good progress and early wheat is up about six inches. Only isolated damage has been done by soil drifting and grasshoppers, although hatching in some localities, are not expected to do any damage.

In areas with lighter land moisture is sufficient but showers are needed to keep top soil from drifting. Throughout the Warroue, Biggar, Dodsland, Rosetown, Eroue, Beechy subdivisions weather has varied from cool with heavy rains to somewhat warmer with showers. All no point is grain reported suffering from lack of moisture although in some of these areas more rain would be beneficial.

Growth Splendid

Along all subdivisions constituting the Prince Albert division weather has been warmer and growth has been splendid with all crops making good progress. A few points report cutworms active and slight damage is expected from this source.

From all points in Central and Northern Alberta reports from all ports of showers and crops growing rapidly with conditions generally. Some grasshoppers are appearing but control measures are being employed.

In North Central Alberta all grains have now been sown with the exception of a little green feed. Wheat is healthy and moisture conditions are good but warm weather now would be acceptable.

In the Peace River country wheat here has been mostly warm and showery and seeding of all grains is practically completed. Early grown fields are showing strong growth and weather conditions are ideal.

Cattle markets this week have been characterized by indifferent trading in quite a few divisions prices eased compared with those which ruled a week ago. Good weighty steers are selling lower in sympathy with quotations reductions in the States. Some grass feeds are now arriving and buyers are shipping clear for such offerings or adjusting their prices to take care of these slippery kitters.

The bacon market showed a few strong flurries but settled back practically in line with last week.

ENTERS WIGWAM?

Cleveland's chances for a pennant this year were regarded as good, with the reported acquisition of Catcher Rollie Hemsley from the St. Louis Browns. Consideration, dependent upon approval of St. Louis directors, was said to be $30,000. Pitcher Thornton Lee and Catcher Bill Sarnell, Manager Rogers Hornsby agreed to the terms, and Hemsley accepted terms of president of the Phil Ball estate, owners of the team.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by McElheran & Watkins

The members of both clubs will be sorry to hear that our president is being moved to Toronto next month. We will sure miss him around the greens. The club has made great progress since he has been our presiding officer, and this year is our banner year. To him him all kinds of success in his new venture and we are sure that some club in Toronto will benefit by our loss. We will have more to say on this subject in the near future.

A game was played on Friday afternoon by the following players: Carl Fisher and Dave Fisher v. Geo. Watkin and J. O. McIntosh, resulting in a win for Watkin and McIntosh 28-14. Dave says he will get them next time.

How about a married couples game. We scrap at home, why not on the green.

The notices are posted in the club house for our doubles on July 1st. Pair up, we need a big entry.

Our greens man gets us some wonderful greens on Wednesday. Keep up the good work Wes.

A mixed game will be played on Wednesday instead of men's rinks as listed in the book. We want everybody out. This is by popular request.

To the new members: Newt Wilbur has been selected to take entry for a schedule of doubles for this year members only. He will explain full details to each member. While the rain held away again last night the score now is 3-3 This is too bad Bert Wes says it is good for the greens

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"Enchanted April"
Lovely Ann Harding as Her Glorious Best in this Celebrated Story!

When husbands tread a separate path, leaving their wives to mope by the fireplace, the forgotten spouses can peck beg and bargain and travel for a change of scene and heart to a vacation under Italy's sunny skies.

What makes "Enchanted April" doubly appealing is the presence of the lovely, glittering Ann Harding as its star. Never before has Ann been so charming never so schillating, never so pleasing to the eye. "Enchanted April" offers a striking Ann Harding—one who retains the dramatic talents of old and incorporates with them an entertaining flair for smart comedy. Beauty, charm, humor, drama, romance, youth—they're all in Ann Harding as star of "Enchanted April".

And—there is a secret cast of superb character actors. Frank Morgan lends the portrayal of Miss Harding's husband the restrained intelligence it requires. Reginald Owen—that blustering fool, theatrically speaking!—performs in a magnificent part. Katharine Alexander smoles graciously, Jane Baxter lends unimpeachable English beauty and allure to a role. And we must not forget Ralph Forbes, Jessie Ralph, Charles Judels and Antonio Ottiano in other splendid roles.

This reviewer claims the critic's privilege of withholding the details of "Enchanted April." But, lest I plague the reader, I say, briefly, that "Enchanted April" concerns four women's joint holiday, in sunny and flower-flooded Italy, an escape from husbands, homes and habits left behind in the fog and drizzle of London.

"Mysterious Mr. Wong"

Thrills — chills — stark mystery gripping suspense and hilarious comedy are the ingredients of "The Mysterious Mr. Wong", the sensational mystery story which will be shown in conjunction with the above feature.

Lovers of both mystery and comedy will find these elements in super abundance in the plot of this entertaining film.

Adapted from the famous mystery story by Harry Stephen Keeler, the new picture stars Bela Lugosi as the real and features Wallace Ford and Arline Judge in romantic roles.

Lugosi, the role of a dreamed up character is a new departure for Lugosi, he plays it with conventional reticence and will hold the audience absolutely under the spell of his characterization as the sinister Mr. Wong.

Other excellent attractions announced for exhibition on the sam-e screen are "Good Little Bad Sonkeys", the year's best and funniest color cartoon and a worthy accessory of an all color short called "Little Pigs," and the Belle Latest News Flashes.

"Bride of Frankenstein"

The new sequel to one of the Century "The Bride of Frankenstein", with Boris Karloff, Colin Clive, Valerie Hobson, Elsa Lanchester, Una O'Connor and Ernest Thesiger, is announced for presentation at the Belle Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and evening.

AT THE BELLE
"Cardinal Richelieu"
Reveals Arliss at His Best in Outstanding Film

Preparation for a period of six months, during which he delved into more than 100 books and spent several weeks making screen tests, preceded the start of George Arliss in the title role of Darryl Zanuck's 20th Century Pictures dramatic spectacle, "Cardinal Richelieu," which begins a two day run at the Belle Theatre today.

The cast supporting Arliss reads like a Hollywood Blue Book, the twenty-five principals including Maureen O'Sullivan, Edward Arnold, Cesar Romero, Francis Lister, Douglas Dumbrille, Violet Kemble Cooper, Kathryn Alexander, Lumsden Hare and Halliwell Hobbes, to mention only a few of prominence.

Like the star's previous success "The House of Rothschild," "Cardinal Richelieu" centres its drama around a great historic controversy, depicting the stormy times of King Louis XIII of France when Church and State were contending for power and the great political prelate, Richelieu was the real power behind the throne. Based on a play by Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton, the screen play in credited to Maude Howell and the adaption to Cameron Rogers, while W. P. Lipscomb wrote the dialogue. Rowland V. Lee directed, Maureen O'Sullivan and Cesar Romero, the screen's latest romantic sensation, cast a love drama around which the larger drama of political intrigue swirls and rages.

Scenically, "Cardinal Richelieu" is the most elaborate of Arliss starring vehicles. Art Director Richard Day's conception of the splendor of feudal France, the glittering magnificence of Louis XIII's palace, the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris. And the costumes worn by the star were especially made in Rome.

Direction of this spectacular production was entrusted to Rowland V. Lee, who directed "Count of Monte Cristo," one of the ten best pictures of the past season.

Ross-McLaruin Fight

The official fight pictures, Round by Round! Blow by Blow! Barney Ross vs. Jimmy McLarnin, with Jack Dempsey, referee, is announced as the headline attraction at Loew's on the same program. See Ross, the master boxer outdance and outpunch the punisher. This exhibition offers 15 rounds of flying fists and furious fighting. See Ross regain his welter-weight championship. See every punch! See every blow! every thrill! better than a ringside seat. Don't miss it.

Other excellent attractions announced for exhibition on the same program are "Good Little Bad-Sonkeys", the year's best and funniest color cartoon and a worthy accessory of an all color short called "Little Pigs," and the Belle Latest News Flashes.

Ex-Premier MacDonald Leaves For Home

Off to Lossiemouth! After serving as Prime Minister for many years, ill health causes the former Labor party head to tender his resignation to King George. Ramsay MacDonald is shown here waving an answer to the fond good-by of his cohorts of friends as he leaves London. He is being succeeded by Stanley Baldwin, popular Conservative leader, second premier occupying the seat of lord president of the council in Baldwin's cabinet.

Daily Short Story

LET'S PRETEND!

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Once the boat, groaning and wheezing, shoved away from its pier and out on the black river, all touch with reality, with everyday New York, seemed severed. The city became a thing of shadows and incandescent street lamps, building lights and the eyes moving autos on the Drive glowing faintly in the Summer night. The city's voice dropped from a roar to a muted whisper.

"What a lovely evening!" exclaimed Mary Spunk.

There was a tension between them at first, these two figures in chairs beside a top deck railing of the excursion boat, bound clanking and puffing, for Coney Island.

Until they met accidentally on Riverside Drive that evening Peter and Mary had not seen each other in three years—not since the night Mary had told him, back in Newton City, that she was going to marry Ray Miller his leading rival for Peter, in a grand gesture had gone next day out of Mary's life and also out of the town heading for New York. Later he had read in a newspaper of her marriage.

"It's good to see you!" Peter said, after their first warm greeting. "Where's Ray?"

Mary gave him an odd look.

"Oh, he's back in Newton City," she said. "I'm here on a visit."

The Night is Beautiful

Then she had turned toward the river, exclaiming over the beauty of the night and the boats, and Peter has suggested that they take the steamer from the foot of 125th st. to Coney Island.

They found seats aboard and chatted at first of mutual acquaintances and superficialities.

The boat put in near the Battery and packed up more Coney voyagers, who jammed it still tighter.

Voices rang out in merriment: in the stern a brown was singing; from forward came the strains of an accordion orchestra. Music, cool air and the sense of motion stimulated a community gaiety.

"Oh, I love this!" Mary repeated, resting her hand on Peter's arm in her excitement.

Peter dropped his hand over hers, then hastily drew it away.

"That—that's the Statue of Liberty over there, all lighted up," he said, struggling to repress a sentiment which he had thought was dead. He added:

"I'll be going out past here again Sept. Friday at midnight. My company is sending me to visit some European textile centres. I'm booked on the Nurlanka."

"How grand!" Mary enthused. "Now I wish I could go to Europe. I've never been abroad, you know. I'm just a home girl."

"Well," said Peter, "there's a strange kink in man that makes him ring of all the animals imagination. Let's use ours. Let's pretend, just for tonight, that you are going to Europe and that this old tub is the Nurlanka."

"That's" said Mary, snuggling nearer in her chair. "Draw the picture for me, Peter, while I take it all in."

A Description

"Your friends gave you a bon voyage party," said Peter. "They toasted you in champagne, left your de luxe stateroom piled high with fruit, flowers and presents. They hurried ashore on the last warning the whistle sounded hoarsely, and the boat started.

"Your stewardess is arranging your things and you are out on deck watching New York harbor slip behind you for the first time. Bay Ridge slides by on the left; fleet lighters and that battered schooner over there are moored in the Red Hook flats. Now Staten Island is on the right, many lights gleaming.

"You go through the Narrows and a faint movement is felt the first roll of the sea—which is going to mal-de-mer you good and proper tomorrow. Overhead, as now is the velvety night, studded by a million stars."

He paused and Mary said:

"That's a lovely description of the land and nature Peter, but where do you come in?"

A tantalizing note in her voice urged him, made his drop the game in a momentary flare of resentment.

"Not even in pretense am I on deck in this scene, since you are Ray Miller's wife!" he snapped.

"Then you haven't heard!" she said, softly. "Well, Peter, would it help you to go on with our game if I told you I am no longer Ray's wife? I divorced him two years ago."

Peter shouted, gathered her into his arms.

"You bet it would help," he cried. "The old ghosts of We're starting a new one now—with all pretending over when the Nurlanka sails Friday night!"

Spring

Spring is the season when animals sleep
And birds scarsely sing and the earth puts more grass on
And people all feel like a little more sleep
And look all around them for something to leen on.

Avertisement

Why waist food by throwing it away or leaving it get stale in the ice box when you could be doing good in the world with it? Our superiors will call them at charge and take it away neetly. The Ed Wermink and Lew Davis Dog Food Company. Dog dinners served on your own premises. A crisis each.

INTRIUSTING PEOPLE IN

Mary Watkins says she'd never aloud to do hardly anything on account of her mother being so nervius about her getting hert or ran over or something because she's a only child, and she claims she's going to have at least 10 children of her own and leave them do whatever they feel like because then if anything serious happens to a few she pobly won't miss them.

Skinny Martin is famous for being a wide sweeper and his many frends never lose interist in watching him in case some time he might be able to close his mouth again.

ANOTHER SHOCK FELT

Lated figures placed the death toll in the entire area from the original shocks at about 56,000.

TRAINING TITAN TAKES TINY TRAIN

The biggest one of them all rides in the smallest train! Prince Carnera, towering behemoth, is getting up steam for his bout with dusky Joe Louis by opening the throttle of the smallest man-carrying locomotive. The toy-like train made an interesting comparison with the huge Primo, who is looking again toward the heavyweight crown he once wore. It—the train—operates near his training camp and he goes over in some of his 'lighter' moments.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED—

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

"Get a steady hold around my shoulders," commanded Tarzan.

"I'm going to take you through the air."

Roger, protesting he was no child, nevertheless obeyed. Instinctively, he felt that when this half-naked giant gave orders, nobody dared question his purpose.

Then came an experience the British aviator never forgot. It was almost like flying in his beloved airplane. The ape-man carried him easily, swinging from one high branch to another in dizzying swoops, pointing an instant, then taking off again. Many miles were quickly travelled.

At last the two men dropped to earth outside the protected hut.

"Here is my 'manor house'—for the present," remarked Tarzan, entering the bona. "You had better sleep now. I'll be back later." Exhausted, the young aviator need no second invitation.

He flung himself upon the bed of boughs outside the hut and the ape-man turned away. Wonderingly what had become of the woman and who she was, Roger sank into deep and dreamless slumber. Meanwhile, from the hut, two dark eyes watched him with troubled intensity.

SCOT FOOTBALL STARS TRIUMPH IN CROSS-CANADA TOUR

Stretching their winning streak to ten straight victories the touring Scottish football team defeated a picked all-star Eastern Canada eleven at Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto, by six goals to nil. Thus they again conquered the east after crossing Canada with a string of triumphs and running into their stiffest opposition against an all-star Western Canada team in Vancouver. Scenes from both the east and west games are shown above. Willie Mills, the Aberdeen flash, is going into the air (top left) along with Don Cowan, of Vancouver, during stiff tussle on the Pacific coast. Tommy Walker, $60,000 star of Hearts, is pivoting below waiting to get into action. Scots won that game 1 to 0. Top right shows Scots vs. Eastern Canada with D. Wilson, Scottish forward, being blocked by a smart heading play and from a Toronto opponent. Below: the Torontonians have secured and Dally Duncan, Derby County left wing wizard (back to camera) starts in to retrieve. Coming in from the left is Miller, who starred during the game and scored one goal. Duncan was the outstanding player on the Scot line-up, thrilling the spectators with his foot-work and dribbling plays.

TO CONVERT GABLE

REV. SAMUEL J. WILLIAMS

Coming from Hopedale, O., to Hollywood to save Clark Gable from sinful film fame, the Rev. Samuel J. Williams, young pastor, was disappointed but not deterred when told Gable was on Catalina Island making a picture. The minister, claiming to have a special message from his flock, said one of the women in his congregation had seen in a dream the Hollywood movie people as lions, being saved by the prayers of good church people. The Rev. Mr. Williams was prepared to urge Gable to take up an evangelistic career.

JAPAN'S ARMY MIGHT AGAIN FORCE CONCESSIONS FROM CHINA

Gen Ho Ying-Ching (LEFT) couldn't defend it, so he told his government when Col. Takashi Sakai (CENTER), Tokio's spokesman, delivered an ultimatum calling for Japanese control of Peiping and areas of territory has been carved out of and agents of Chinese unification by Japan. Japanese troops (note flag) threatened to march again into the ancient capital, Peiping, as shown on former invasion two years ago. Though the Nipponese ultimatum was accepted, supposedly ending anti-Japanese activity in northern China, the situation remained tense. The Chinese capital may be moved further south.

CIGAR ET CASE WHICH LED TO ARREST OF KIDNAPPERS

It was the purchase of this cigaret case (left) paid with a Weyerhaeuser passkey note by Mrs. Margaret Waley, which led to the apprehension of the alleged kidnappers of George Weyerhaeuser. The bill which Mrs. Waley tendered in payment of the case, was seized by Salt Lake City, Utah police. On the right, Harmon M. Waley with his wife, Margaret, who were arrested by federal agents as the alleged kidnappers of George Weyerhaeuser.

"G-MEN" OF U.S. GOVERNMENT SMASH KIDNAP RINGS

Since the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., started the U.S. department of justice in the business of smashing kidnapping rings, the "G-men" have cleared up virtually every major abduction case. This has been borne out by recent arrests of Harmon Waley and his wife in Salt Lake City for the kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser, nine-year-old of Tacoma, Wash.; in which $200,000 was paid. Immediately after the ransom payment was made in the Lindbergh case the federal sleuths stepped into the picture and to-day Bruno Richard Hauptmann is awaiting execution in the death house at Trenton, N.J. Verne Sankey was captured by the "G-men" for the snatch of Charles Boettcher of Denver, Colo. He committed suicide in his jail cell. Walter McGee met his Waterloo in the abduction of Mary McElroy of Kansas City, Mo., and he now is serving a life sentence. Roger Touhy and his gang were given a 99-year stretch for the snatch of John (Jake the Barber) Factor in Chicago. Manny Stirzwi, Albany, N.Y., character, is serving a 50-year term for the abduction of John J. O'Connell, Jr., members of a powerful Albany political family. George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his partner in crime, Harvey Bailey, are in prison for life following the abduction of Charles F. Urschel of Oklahoma City while Arthur (Doc) Barker, alleged member of the notorious Karpis gang, will remain in prison for life in connection with the kidnapping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul, Minn., banker. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, has been the man "behind the scene" in all of these arrests.

FINISHES SECOND

JIMMY THOMSON

J. P. Morgan Sells Fortunes in Miniatures

A small fortune, represented in a collection of 795 miniatures gathered by his father, is being put up for auction by J. P. Morgan, noted American financier, in Christie's, Auction Rooms, London. This collection is one of the finest, privately-owned collections of miniatures in the world. Though the paintings are extremely valuable themselves, the finely wrought frames also cause a stir, since many of them are made of pearls, rubies, diamonds and emeralds. This portrait of Queen Marie Antoinette by Francois or Tony Dumont is one of the masterpieces. Note the magnificent framing.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JUNE 17, 1935

150 ONTARIO POSTMASTERS GATHER HERE

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

New York, June 17 (CP)—Jeremiah Findley, 61, got more than he bargained for when he went fishing in the Hudson River.

His line became tangled around that of another fisherman close by, and they both started pulling to get the lines free.

The other's sinker suddenly flipped over and struck Findley on the head, knocking him unconscious. He's in a hospital with a fractured skull.

Boston, June 17 (CP)—Is there a ghost in the old Hay Scale house at Adolphustown, Ont.?

Mrs. Jessie Bowerman, 70, wife of Alex Trumbley's assistant, thinks so and she is angry, it was what happened later.

She told police court:

"I slept alone one night with a woman who then asked to see his wallet, examining it while in bed. Next morning I handed him his wallet, containing $60 in addition to his own, and when I counted the money, wallet and all, it was gone."

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 17 (CP)—As a daughter was a fish, Magistrate H. G. Thayer can't be sure and he needs more evidence.

Two boys were arrested on a charge of stealing a neighbor's fish. They told Thayer they were only after crayfish which are the small edible crabs of the fish calcined weren't fish.

Thayer heard the matter over for a week and finally pardoned the lads when Hinds produced a garden snake and gained for the trial and gave his opinion.

London, June 17 (CP)—Four "Peter" girls from London intend to be reunited with their mother soon for the first time in 15 years, it was learned here today.

Mrs. Peter Wagner, accompanied by her husband and two children, will arrive from Vienna, Austria, on the Empress of Britain tomorrow.

The reunion ends one of her worries for the present, Mrs. Wagner explained, which is to be ironed out when she is joined by her eldest daughter, Anna, 21.

Bridgeport, Lake, Nfld., June 17 (CP)—Newfoundland's first Labor Day will be celebrated here on the North American's first golden — were they to have.

The shrouds of a road crew unearthed in the fishing summer the skeletons of five tiny Indian babies, believed by authorities to be those of children in some long dead resident's family.

Boston, June 17 (CP)— The curious case of the "glowing gravestone" was solved today. The mystery, the luminosity of the stone in an East Boston cemetery had mildly perplexed a district since it was first noticed last week.

Patrolman Albert Wagner, assigned to the case, took a second look and discovered paint, awaiting the first night and yesterday, of what the gravestone was.

Truro, N.S., June 17 (CP) — "Chalk" Johnson was held up by his own backyard yesterday by a bandit who made off with all of his money on the ground in front of him. After he had recovered with their respect, the bandit accosted a second victim, relieving all the change, and fled.

Ridgway, N.Y., June 17 (CP) — With a cost of only five dollars, Joseph Hoag, 70, owner of a farmer, has built a tractor which he uses in his daily work here.

The tractor is constructed of the rear end of a truck and the motor and front end of a touring car, both of which were salvaged from the scrap heap. Tractor type traction is provided by tire chains on the rear wheels.

Reformatory Escapee Sentenced to Pen

Guelph, Ont., June 17—(CP)—Declaring he "couldn't depend on himself" as he left the Reformatory, James Stone, alias Tuplis of Toronto pleaded guilty in police court today of escaping from the institution and was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston. Stone who must return at the end of the Kingston term and serve another 12 months at the reformatory, escaped 10 days after his conviction in Toronto on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

Money on 'Sure Thing' But His Horse Ran Out

Hamilton, Ont., June 17—(CP) Ralph Stevens, former baker in the Dominion Bank, who pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing $1,300 of the bank's funds, today was sentenced to four months definite plus nine months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge.

Stevens said he took the money to bet on a "sure thing" in the Kind's Plate and the horse ran out.

QUINTE LOYALISTS HONOUR MEMORY OF 1784 LANDING

151st ANNIVERSARY

Impressive Gathering in Ancient Church Near Adolphustown

The Loyalists on the Bay of Quinte District met in the old Hay Bay Church at Adolphustown, Saturday, June 15th, to commemorate the 151st anniversary of the landing of the Loyalists, also the 142rd anniversary of the old church, which was erected in 1792.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, President, occupied the chair. Addresses were given by the chair, by James Semple, of Belleville, President of the Bay of Quinte United Church Conference, His Honour Judge R. H. McLean of Picton, Rev. Mr. Parsons of Napanee, Rev. Mr. Sanders of Consecon and C. Fraser Aylesworth of Picton.

An interesting feature of the meeting was an address by Joseph B. Allison (who is 96 years of age). He spoke with force and clearness of the hardships, privations and grit, a description of the hardships, services and sacrifices made by the Quinte Loyalists. He said the condition of the poorest citizen in Canada today was better than that of most of the original pioneers. He said work, not words, made this country. He urged the unemployed to get busy in the fields and gardens of the country and take their own food.

Mr. Allison was Secretary of the Quinte Loyalists Society in 1884 when the Centennial of the landing of the Loyalists was held at Adolphustown. Miss Quinte U. E. Loyalists Societies had been in existence in the Bay of Quinte District for over a century.

J. R. Allison Honored

The following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Joseph B. Allison, Adolphustown.

President—W. C. Mikel, K.C., Belleville.

Vice-Presidents—C. F. Aylesworth; Hon. Chancellor; Col. D. Sarrager; Col. Roscoe Vanderwater; Capt. O. G. Hicks; H. R. Ives; Wm. Wood, Picton; P. H. Wills; Dougal Bleecker; Chas. Bleecker; Mrs. Ella Bleecker; Rt. Rev. F. Day; Addison Vandervoort; Charles Van Alstyne; Jas. Van Alstyne; Dr. G. W. Morden; Geo. Bailey; John Mallister; Mrs. Gordon Burn; Judge McLean; Col. R. J. E. Graham; C. G. Ellis; Mrs. Alfred O'Grady; Gilbert Charles Bogart; Fred Allison; Mrs. Genevieve Robinson.

Secretary-Treasurer — Mrs. Will Gryce, Picton.

Executive—Mrs. Fred Allison; Miss Lily Carr; Mrs. Harry Johnstone; Miss Marion Rollins.

A resolution was passed approving the celebration on the Carrying Place on Monday, September 23rd, next to commemorate the acquisition by the Government of the first title to be land from the Bay of Quinte to the Humber, now the City of Toronto.

The Ladies' Aid of the church furnished lunches and refreshments.

CROWN MINISTERS MEET STRIKERS

Conference Will be Held in Regina Over The Weekend

Regina, June 15 (CP)—Ready to co-operate at first firm in their demand for $2,000 a year for relief camp workers from British Columbia and Alberta Hunt in Queen's Park today awaiting the arrival of two Cabinet Ministers from Ottawa to discuss settlement of their grievances.

"We are willing to negotiate," declared Arthur Evans, one of the leaders of the Ottawa-bound army of 1,000 men, when he conferred with R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, and Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, who arrived here from the Federal capital to talk things over with the strikers.

But should negotiations fail, then the trek will be resumed in defiance of orders issued to Royal Canadian Mounted Police to prevent the strikers from boarding eastbound freight trains for Ottawa, Evans believed. The whole question was expected to be thoroughly discussed during the week-end by the strikers committee.

Postmasters Will Urge Investigations be Public Before Any Dismissals

Discussion of Big Issues Will Open Ontario Meeting

M. P'S. FAVORABLE

Rent Allowance Question is Tabled For Discussion

Because it is felt that political patronage enters into the dismissal of many postmasters in Canada, this question will be one of the most important discussed during the three-day convention here of the Ontario Branch, Canadian Postmasters' Association at the Quinte Hotel.

In as much as the association was formed 39 years ago to not only improve the Canadian postal service but also to protect the postmaster, members of the Ontario branch feel that time is now opportune to express themselves.

The Ontario branch will urge that an open investigation be held before any postmaster is dismissed. R. B. Whitfield, secretary-treasurer of the branch to-day declared. "We shall request that sworn affidavit evidences in a case of dismissal shall not for two years be eligible for the office of postmaster. In this way we will be progressing to the point where politics plays no part in the important phase of government service.

Attitude of M. P.'s

"We have a fact," Mr. Whitfield added emphasized, "that many of the more liberal-minded members of the House of Commons have a contempt for such a move. It is true that while they are for it they are against the privileges of recommending the appointment of postmasters, there are many who favor a method of giving rent allowances to postmasters. At present this allowance is governed strictly according to a post office's stamp sale.

Office Rentals

An instance will be given where one postmaster has a rented office and a comparatively low stamp sale, whereas a smaller one is housed more than a postmaster a few miles away with an older office and a higher stamp sale. Out of his rent allowance the postmaster pays the entire upkeep of the office, and pays for any necessary additional help.

"We are of the opinion that a member should say 'that a more equitable basis of rent allowance can and should be established by the department, and recommendations to that effect will be given us.

At least 150 delegates from all over the provinces are expected to register at the convention and the sessions will be fraternal delegates from other provincial branches. There will be many greetings and all in during the sessions. The address of welcome will be given by Mayor George Tice and Postmaster J. V. C. Truscott of Belleville.

Burglars Break Into 2 Toronto Churches

Toronto, June 17—(CP)—Police today were searching for burglars who broke into the Bloor Street Methodist church over the week end and stole vestments and other valuable articles. They received no cash as Sunday collections had been removed.

At St. Martins-in-the-Fields Anglican church thieves hacked their way through the brick wall of the vestry while at Bellwoods St. United church the combination was broken from the safe.

Five other burglaries were reported to police.

Policeman's Gun Used to Enforce Shoe Shine Trust

New York, June 17—(CP)— Three little bootblacks still in short trousers who said they stole a policeman's gun to enforce a shoe shine "trust" in suburban Jamaica, took arraignment today on a charge of homicide in a holdup.

The trio and the rob each allegedly confessed:

Frank Damato, 12, son of an unemployed bricklayer, one of six motherless children, who sneaked through a backroom window at Damato police headquarters and stole a revolver while . . . Lisbon Lawrence, Negro, also 13, son of a Negro minister, aided the shoes of Patrolman Louis Churchdale, owner of the gun, in the fire room, and Hugh Damato, 12, who stood by Saturday night while his brother fired a bullet into the head of a fellow bootblack who tried to take them seriously.

"We have been shining shoes in the town hall district of Jamaica, But competition was bitter. They decided, police quoted them, that a gun would help enforce a "truce." After they got Officer Churchdale's revolver they decided, according to police reports confession, robbery would be even better.

Men their stature, bright faces and knickerbockers interfered.

They said they planned to hold up two rooms but one of them, instead of pointing her pistol at the two girls, held the barrel of the pistol and it took considerable kicking and scratching to free him.

Then they came across William Walsh, 36, impoverished painter, asleep in the cellar of a vacant house. After a visit to his estranged wife and two children, the trio had but a dime 25 cents but he had spent it when they awoke. Angry at the alleged confession, awoke and shot him.

FIFTEEN CHINESE GIRLS FACE DEATH

Charged With Spreading Unrest Among Gov't. Troops

Poochow, China, June 17 (AP)—Death before a firing squad or imprisonment for life was may be all 15 girls today as the possible penalty for their activities as communists.

Military authorities at Nui Chang informed the local garrison the girls were executed by them were married and "all confessed their guilt."

Dispatches asserted Hui Chang authorities were pondering the penalty for the girls, whether the cries here said the girls had a fair chance to escape with their lives or suffer "sex and beauty have not always in China stayed the executioner's axe or the firing squad."

Hui Chang advices said 15 "good looking young women were selected for this dangerous (espionage) service among government troops."

The military said the girls dressed themselves in their best finery and made a conspicuous target for scores of the government armies.

The officers asserted the girls preached Communism and apparently had begun to undermine the loyalty of government forces before they were captured and jailed.

Hui Chang is in Kiangsi province, incident, the military ordered all persons to "beware of girls, religious folk or others who are interested in your affairs and duties.

4 OF PARTY DIE AS FLAMES END WEDDING FETE

Fire Breaks Out in Canopy Under Which Bride-to-be is

DECORATIONS BLAZE

Dozens Saved by Twenty Year Student Who Gives Life

New York, June 17 (AP)— Four persons are dead, scores injured and fire which turned a gay wedding celebration into tragedy.

More than 300 guests were making merry in a lower East Side public hall, where Miss Pearl Sobolower and Louis S. Sheth were to be wed at midnight Saturday.

Shortly after 11 p.m. flames broke out at a canopy under which the bride-to-be was sitting. The fire spread quickly to the flimsy decorations.

Some escaped by crowding through the windows of the hall, but the first floor of a four-story building. Many in the crowd were trapped.

Paul Strecker, 21-year-old college student, made four trips into the flame-swept building to lead dazed children and adults to safety. On a fifth attempt he was himself overcome by smoke and fell. Firemen said he saved dozens of lives. Four children persons died in hospitals. They were Mrs. Sophie Stein, 40, mother of the bridegroom-to-be; Mrs. Sophie Zuckerman, 56, and Miss Lillian Lamont, 30, both of whom were taken to hospitals, of which 30 still remained there.

Fire Marshal Thomas F. Brophy said Mrs. Stein was overcome by falling pieces of burning debris.

Brophy said there would be held by two rooms but one of them, instead of pointing her pistol at the two girls, held the barrel of the pistol and it took considerable kicking and scratching to free him.

Then they came across William Walsh, 36, impoverished painter, asleep in the cellar of a vacant house. After a visit to his estranged wife and two children, the trio had but a dime 25 cents but he had spent it when they awoke. Angry at the alleged confession, awoke and shot him.

ELECTIONS ACT BILL DISCUSSED

End of Parliament Not Seen After Five Months Session

OTTAWA, June 17.—(CP)—Just as the Parliamentary session is reaching a stage when committee work should be slackening, another controversial measure is put into action. With the government's measure to establish a Dominion Elections Act, it is expected, the House of Commons may be kept busy for the second reading stage without division.

Members of the Commons resumed debate on the bill to provide with five months of sitting already behind them, it is expected that may not be for some time. The bill would repeal existing federal legislation in various stages of development, and one measure at least, the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, which would replace the single alternate voting system in Saskatchewan during provincial elections. The introduction last week precipitated the debate almost immediately, an unusual occurrence. Under the rules occasions the Government forces introduction of legislation have been introduced and given first reading now awaits second reading.

Applications for Bonds Running Into Millions; 'Splendid,' --- Hepburn

Over-Counter Sale of Bonds in Ontario Banks Begins

HEAVY PURCHASES

Interim Certificates Only Are Issued Today

Toronto, June 17 (CP)—Declaring "everything is going splendidly and we are entirely satisfied," Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today said applications for purchases of Ontario's $20,000,000 loan are "running into millions."

Over-the-counter sale of bonds started today following the Premier's announcement last week the bonds would be marketed by the savings offices. His action came after he had received requests for a $15,000,000 loan.

The amount of savings offices is being enlarged as rapidly as possible, Mr. Hepburn said. Ralph Cook of the Bank of Toronto has been appointed and the Eighth Dominion Second Lot

Applicants for purchase of the bonds have told the Government, Mr. Hepburn said, they were applying for the investment because they felt the Government required money they would come back for a second lot.

Meanwhile, he continued, letters of congratulations "endorsing our action" and thanking the Government have been pouring into his office. Many people, he added, intimated their intention of transferring their funds to Treasury offices.

52,000,000 Bonds Brought

While the Government declined to disclose the names of the purchasers of the bonds, Mr. Hepburn said he understood a small bonus, comprising as the surging waters rose to the floor.

Large Oaken Crucifix Blessed at St. Michael's

Beautiful Specimen of Carver's Art Presented to Parish Church by Mrs. Samuel Domenico in Memory of Her Deceased Husband

The beautiful crucifix presented to the church of St. Michael the Archangel by Mrs. Samuel Domenico in memory of her deceased husband was blessed at Sunday morning devotions by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nolan, V.G., who preached an appropriate sermon on the symbolism of the Cross.

The preacher referred to the veneration accorded the symbol of our redemption by the early Christians and of the great sacrifice would ever be associated with the Crucifixion of a ransomed race that the wood touched by the wounded body of our Saviour was deserving of special honor. He sketched the various stages of the conflict of the cross in the early days of the church's history leading to its triumph over the hearts of men, and the future victory when the Cross will appear, borne by angels, at the coming of our Saviour as Judge on the last day.

The crucifix is a library in itself for the instruction of believers, a consolation to the afflicted, a strength in every tribulation and sorrow of their lives, said the preacher. It is an object lesson in God's love and mercy to us and we should love it.

During the blessing of the crucifix the Oratorio Choir sang prayers and the "Rose of the Cross" sung by Mrs. J. Trasiach and Mrs. J. Grant.

The crucifix is a beautiful specimen of Art, from the hands of the artists, Cuby, Patriarca, Company of Montreal. The cross is of oak, thirteen and a half feet long, and the figure of Our Lord is three and a half feet. It has been much admired by all who have seen it. It is placed in the wall near the door of the church where it can be easily perceived on entry.

ENGLISH TRAIN IN REAR CRASH FOURTEEN KILLED

Express Not Scheduled to Make Stop at Welwyn

TRAVELLING FAST

Station Platform Turned Into Scene of Horror, Destruction

Welwyn, England, June 17.—(CP Cable) — Railway officials began an investigation today into the disastrous collision between passenger and goods express train here which caused fourteen deaths and injured nine others.

The collision turned Welwyn station into a scene of horror and destruction last Saturday night. The goods train, which some observers said was travelling at 70 miles-an-hour, crashed into the rear-end of the passenger express, en route from Newcastle to Kings Cross Station to Newcastle.

Several of the rear-end coaches were ripped in all directions.

The passenger train was not scheduled to stop at Welwyn, a Hertfordshire "Garden City" 26 miles from London. The driver of the goods train, Charles Barnes, said he had no time to go anything but jam on the brakes, cut off steam and jump just before the crash.

Rescue parties were quickly on the scene. A relief train was dispatched from Kings Cross with doctors, nurses and stretcher and helpers aside from the local staff. Residents rushed to the roar of the collision. Dangers at Welwyn Town Hall, told of the disaster hurried to the scene in dressing gowns and rushed through the night in mud and grime.

W. T. Powell, Welsh International Rugby player was aboard the wrecked train. Though injured, he managed to free himself and went back to try to rescue a dying woman in one of the wrecked cars, but took off his coat and shirt as experts rescue work. When he put them on again, the sleeves were stiff from a coat pocket.

Rescue attempts were underway today to identify the last of the dead. Relatives had to examine suit labels and laundry markings of some of the victims, so badly were they injured.

OCCUPANTS OF CAR CUT BY GLASS

Mrs. Geo. English and Miss Nancy Coutts, both of Shannonville, sustained severe flesh wounds as the result of flying glass, when the rear window of the automobile in which they were sitting was broken by a baseball thrown by some age boys on Scott St. on Saturday afternoon. Local police were notified and upon investigation found that the automobile had been parked on South John St. by Mr. S. Graves, Shannonville who owned the vehicle. The ladies were sitting in the car with other occupants, in conversation, not observing a group of boys playing catch with a baseball at the read of the car. Suddenly one of the boys threw the ball wild and it crashed through the rear window of the automobile. Miss Coutts sustained a slight cut on the nose while Mrs. English's left arm was badly lacerated, both needing medical attention.

New York Distillers Party Entertained at Corbyville

Inspection of Plant is Followed by Banquet

When Gooderham Distillers Incorporated of New York placed a large order with Consolidated Distilleries of Montreal for liquor to be bottled in bond at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol at Corbyville, to meet a maximum capacity of the plant and this is what members of Gooderham Distillers Incorporated together with representatives of the press, members of advertising agencies and other guests saw at the plant on Saturday afternoon, when they were entertained by officials of the Canadian Distillers at Corbyville plant. The party left Montreal on one of the forty-five members of the distillery ministry inspected the gigantic plant, the largest distillery in the British Empire, paying particular attention to the modern up-to-date bottling room as they viewed the same under perfect arrangements completed beforehand by the officials at Corbyville. This inspection finished, the party was entertained at the official residence of the company and later partook of a delightful luncheon in the spacious banquet hall, leaving on an early evening train for Montreal, and thence to New York, where the party disbanded early Monday morning.

Met at Station

The party was met at the C.N.R. station, at noon and transported to the plant in large buses owned by the company. On their arrival everything was in readiness for inspection. The members of the party were divided into four groups under the direction of James Swift, Dan Hannah, A. W. Cearty and D. Dales but before proceeding, two attractive young ladies presented each member of the party with a souvenir. An innovation, which caused considerable merriment and much snapping of cameras was the "Old Black Mule" with a darkey in attendance, stationed inside the grounds. This is the trade mark of "Green River" liquor. The mule was an exact replica of the bottle label and the boys rode, led and posed just like the mule at every opportunity. Prince Logan was the darkey in charge of the mule and many stunts were put on by the visitors.

As the party proceeded toward the plant, their attention was attracted by the old white house, being informed that the residence was originally occupied by the late Senator Harry Corby, the founder of the distillery, and where he resided for many years. The rack warehouse with thirty-two units of storage capacity, the cooker room, the fermenting room, boiler room, machine shops and driers were all inspected as well as the gin still, the gin bottling room and the mixing room. Some time was spent in the Industrial Alcohol plant, which is a considerable industry with the Corbyville plant. Each party then proceeded on the bottling room to see at first hand the operations, that the liquor undergoes before it is ready for the market.

The bottling room proved a revelation to the visitors. The conveyor with its thousands of cases of bottles, were dressed in spotless white and efficiently performed its operations in their particular section. The clicking of the bottles as they ran on to tainers, and thence into cases was a source of wonderment especially the value of the products, which was completed with a large mailing department. The party was then taken to the basement and there shown how the cases are stored pending handling the goods, the final markings and making ready for shipment. Near the door of the bottling room was a box of cases of liquor packed with case goods and this operation was fully explained.

Viewed Countryside

Not content with one view of the rack warehouses many of the visitors went to the top of the building to get a view of the wonderful countryside. They marvelled at the well kept fields, some of the farm buildings, with the Moira River wending its way through both. Collecting the party, they all proceeded to the official residence of the company and there were entertained, later moving down to the banquet hall for luncheon. Here again, the same perfect arrangements prevailed, and a most delightful social half hour was spent. The toasts to the King and the President of the United States, were heartily drunk, both being honored by the singing. Waiters performed their duties with alacrity, Jim Nice entertained with a few humorous monologues and everything moved to the conclusion.

Mr. Bayer, member of the Consolidated Distilleries of Montreal, was the chairman of the luncheon, and Henry Kaplan, president of the Gooderham Distillery, N. Y. Claims, director, L. J. Gordon, sales manager and Jos. W. Shapiro, distributor, Henri Prechette, distributor, Montreal, short addresses dealing all principally with the trade, and each speaker expressed thanks for all the wonderful entertainment provided during the afternoon. A picture of Corbyville and Donald was presented to the plant at Corbyville, the Company at Montreal and to Mr. Bayer. Major O'Connahor, on behalf of Consolidated Distillers expressed the appreciation for the visit and hoped it would be the forerunner of many more happy events. James Hughes of New York, spoke for the Press.

Those responsible for the entertainment and arrangements for the visit were —A. Wilkinson of the Montreal office; Wilfrid Labrecte, general manager at Corbyville; James V. Boyle, assistant general manager, A. Graham office manager, Thos. Cavanagh and Dr. A. O. Rackburn. After goodbyes were said, the party was transported back to the station where they entrained for Montreal. Those in the party were:

Silver Jubilee Of Marriage Is Observed Here

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Legault received the congratulations and good wishes of their many friends on the occasion of the silver jubilee of their marriage, the occasion being marked by a celebration at their home, West Bridge Street. Twenty friends were present at a delightful dinner party, Mrs. Legault received her guests in a lovely gown of powder blue and pink. The spacious rooms were filled with choice flowers and the dining room was artistically arranged with silver bells and streamers and pink roses in silver baskets. A handsome wedding cake was presented with a tiny bride and groom and bore the figures 1910-1935.

A telegram honoring the host and hostess, was read by Mr. John Fahey, while Miss Margaret Cummins, on behalf of the guests, presented them with a beautiful silver tea service and tray. Mr. and Mrs. Legault graciously thanked their friends for their kindness and for the good wishes and sentiment expressed in address. The wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cummins occurring on the same day, Mrs. Cummins was presented with a handsome bag by Miss Joan Fahey on behalf of the guests.

A happy evening was spent by the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Legault receiving many messages of congratulations and good wishes. The out-of-town guests present at the celebration were, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pigeon, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rousseau and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Large all of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. F. Corrigan and Miss Joan Fahey of Peterborough; Mrs. Ed. Britton, of Rochester, Miss Margaret Cummins, of Kingston, and Miss Dorothy Ross of Winnipeg.

Brownies Receive First Class Award

Three Brownies of Company Three, Mary Dolan, Shirley Jackson and Helen Miller, won their "Golden Hands", the Brownie final class award, after completing successfully the many tests required. The last one were tried out on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. E. Brownscombe, the examiners being Miss Dorothy Boyle, convener of the Badge Committee of the Girl Guide Council, Mrs. J. W. Imlah and Mrs. Van Blaklaize. Mary Dolan and Shirley Jackson also received wings which must be won before their eleventh Birthday.

Among the things a Brownie is must know how to do in order to pass their first class test are preparing a milk pudding and making tea. The girls brought the puddings with them, made tea during the afternoon and served refreshments to the examiners. First aid for cut fingers and grazed knees, knitting a scarf or other garment, hemming and darning, the care of plants, the correct manner of extinguishing matches if clothes catch fire, are some items in which Brownies must be proficient before receiving the award. The saxaphone work which is part of the training was in charge of Miss Joan Blaklaize.

JUVENILES ADMIT STEALING FRUIT

Three Lads Given a Reprimand by Police Chief

Despite concerted efforts on the part of police, thefts from trees still continues in this city. Over the week end the local police officials received complaints from the manager of the Belleville Fruit Company, Limited, Bridge Street, of stealing fruit from the racks in their warehouse on Albion Street after closing time. After investigating the matter for some time Plain clothes Officer Fred Izard apprehended three youthful lads, in the vicinity of the fruit company's warehouse, and after questioning them, ascertained that they had been responsible for the missing fruit.

It was disclosed, that the smallest member of the trio had gained entrance through a small window in the window at the rear of the building, through which he passed the stolen fruit to his accomplices outside. The fruit, it is said, has been eaten, while the majority had been taken to school and distributed among their playmates, by the lads admitted. The lads were instructed to report to Chief Kidd at a later date after they had been taken before Mr. Fred Donnelson, the manager of the Fruit Company, and dealt with in regard to trespassing on his property and the theft. They have all lived in the vicinity of the fruit warehouse.

Obituary

MRS. ANNIE BRITTON

This Monday noon Mrs. Annie Britton, widow of William Britton passed away at an advanced age at her residence 198 Mary Street. She had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Britton, whose maiden name was Annie Estelle Conley, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Conley and was born in Belleville and resided here all her life. She was well known and held highly esteemed by many friends. She was a devout member of the Bridge Street Church and a woman possessing many fine traits of character.

Surviving her are two sons, Edward J. Britton of Rochester, N.Y. and William Britton of Belleville, one daughter, Mrs. George Wilson, Hamilton, Ont., two brothers, Thomas Elvins, and Mrs. C. Legault, Belleville. (Hamilton and Rochester papers please copy.)

William Farley Brickman (Picton)

William Farley Brickman passed away this Monday morning at his home in Picton. He had been ill for about three weeks.

The late Mr. Brickman was born in Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward County, a son of the late Benjamin Brickman and Mrs. Brickman. He was a member of his life was passed in the township where he was born and where he was engaged in farming. Five years ago he went to make his home in Picton and was highly esteemed by many friends.

Surviving him are three sisters, Mrs. John Hopkins, Toronto; Mrs. Estella Vanalstine, Detroit; Mrs. Daniel Ingle, Detroit, Mich.; one brother, Benjamin Brickman of Amelisburg township.

The body of the late Mr. Brickman is resting at the Bush-Ketcham Burial Company Funeral Home, Picton, where funeral announcement will be made later.

Late Mrs. Beatrice Boomhower

The funeral of Mrs. Beatrice Boomhower, wife of Mr. Oscar Boomhower, took place from her late residence, 4 Dafoe street, Friends assembled in the home for the service. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. C. Kleinsteuber, pastor of the Tabernacle Temple, assisted by the Rev. A. Dawson of Picton. Interment was made in the cemetery at Napanee, the service at the graveside being conducted by Rev. Dawson of Picton.

The bearers were Messrs. H. Whitmarsh, W. Richardson, C. Dafoe, J. N. Clapper, J. Storms and S. Mills.

Late Kathleen Gaffney (Cleveland, Ohio)

The funeral of Mrs. Kathleen Gaffney, Cleveland, O., was held from the late residence of her mother, Mrs. Philip Doran, 93 Ghatham St., to St. Michael's Church on Monday morning. Requiem Mass was celebrated at 9:00 a.m. with Rev. Father Collins officiating at the church and later at the graveside. Interment was made in St. Michael Cemetery.

The bearers were Stanley O'Brien, W. J. O'Brien, Arthur Doran, Charles Doran, Daniel Gaffney and Leo Bennett.

Mr. John Fahey sang "Nearer My God to Thee" during the Offertory.

Police News

Activities in local police circles were rather quiet over the week end, not a single arrest being necessary due to a brief respite from scenic spighting at the police station for a night's lodging was all the year's lowest rob over the week end when only one lonely transient appeared before Sergt. Grant's desk on Saturday night in quest of a night's lodging. Last night (Sunday) only three put in an appearance, the last number to be afforded a night's lodging at the cell block during any week end this year.

A Bleecker Ave. resident reported the loss of $5.00 in valuable remedial cushions to the police yesterday. They had been removed from the verandah sometime Saturday night, it is believed.

Eugene Grills, 59 Chatham St., complained to the police he had been assaulted in Victoria Park on Saturday night. Grills claims he was ridden his bicycle through the park about 10.30 p.m. when he stopped to speak to an acquaintance. Suddenly a man set upon Grills with his bicycle pump as the weapon of attack. Grills is in charge of assault will be laid against the assailant. Grills intimated to the police.

No serious motor accidents were reported in Belleville and the immediate surrounding district over the week end, despite the fact that motor traffic attained its highest level of the season. Many citizens took advantage of the opportunity of leaving the city and visiting nearby summer resorts and other spots, where cool breezes were assured.

Good-bye Bermuda!

Article No. 7.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Bermuda is a gem of the ocean and was intended by its Grand Architect to be a paradise but man has done much to spoil all this. Despite many, kind, charming people, Bermuda has more handicaps for its holiday guests than any part of similar area known to us. Here are just a few specific details.

1. The stench of the streets both in town and country due to the prevalence of horses is really very offensive. The principal streets in towns are swept by darkies in long and truly irregularly and since these much used thoroughfares are only coarsely hard surfaced, (not paved) the objectionable refuse is absorbed and a permanent unpleasantness permeates an otherwise flower-fragrant, balmy air. This handicap is serious and can only be overcome by the abolition of horses, an event which can never come to pass because of the darkie problem; nearly all cabmen are darkies and they receive much of the gold that comes to Bermuda as their gold-filled fesh would be sufficient. It is true that there are hotels and cottages in isolation away from stench but people cannot remain there all the time if they wish to know Bermuda. Those who have lived long in this rocky island enjoy immunity from these offensive odours.

2. The calmest of calms to a considerable extent within their power because carriages constitute the chief method of conveyance about the island. As a result of this condition of affairs the darkies have formed a monopoly exists and the darkies agree among themselves on a high rate of charges and exact them sometimes without compunction or shame. A writer obtained the following story from a well-known lady resident of Bermuda:

One Saturday afternoon I found myself in Hamilton, Bermuda, in the midst of a heavy rain. It was necessary that I should get home quickly as my three children were alone and alarmed.

"How much to Hampden Court Cottage

"Sixteen shillings (four dollars).

"When I arrived home imagine my dismay and indignation when that darkie cabman did his best to collect twenty-five shillings (over six dollars)." This darkie fairly quivered with rage because I demurred.

3. The darkies who expect to receive some of your money are as smiling and gracious as Uriah Heep and all others are painfully polite because sooner or later they expect to be supreme in Bermuda. They own over half the island and its wealth now. On more than one occasion in various parts of the island, the writer has seen darkies and girls on their way home from school jeering and scoffing at peaceful, inoffensive guests, and the girls were just as rude as the men. On Sunday afternoons it is until recently darkie children begged pennies from visitors but that a law had been passed forbidding this and the writer has seen darkies arrested who disobeyed. The begging and scoffing was a method of retaliation on innocent people.

4. The hotels in Bermuda are in a virtual combine too (called "Hotel Association"). Although they have not a monopoly of the entertainment of guests in Bermuda, nevertheless they have a monopoly of hotels and other parts we know considering what they provide. Most of their guests are sent to them by Travel or Tourist Bureaus everywhere on the continent that the writer visited and they are in a position to compel every guest at Bermuda hotels. The travel bureau where we bought our tickets tried to arrange accommodation for us in this way but we nevertheless varied. It was a secret until further investigations later in Bermuda. Is it any wonder that guest rooms throughout the hotels in Bermuda are empty in declines? One of the largest and oldest hotels in Hamilton, Bermuda, was assisted a few days ago from town coffers to the time of twenty-five thousand dollars to enable it to reopen and this is merely one example of waste and harmful advertisement for Bermuda.

While in Bermuda one year ago the writer reported that nearly every hotel there was in default and in the hands of a receiver, due to almost identical conditions.

5. The mosquitoes are a menace to strangers in Hamilton, Bermuda, during May and June, due to a marsh in the centre of the town. Many thousands of dollars were spent by the town in an effort to fill in the marsh but the work was never completed and the awful menace remains. A few gallons of coal-oil poured on this marsh every week or two would give the desired relief though only temporary. Science is not a long suit in Bermuda. Now follows the experience of a lady guest the writer met and interviewed a few days ago:

"I came to Bermuda the middle of May to remain a month and then continue my tour of the West Indies. Within twenty-four hours I was seriously stricken by mosquitoes which seemed to be poisonous. Within a week my arms, ankles and legs were a mass of itchy sores as if I had the smallpox. I cancelled all my reservations for other ports and secured a return passage to New York for treatment. I have often been bitten by mosquitoes but never in this awful, murderous variety. I would not return again to Bermuda if I received the island as a gift.

6. Business practices in Bermuda may be best described as unethical and unwise. A prominent Englishman of good manners and exceptional intelligence told the writer the following story:

"I came here from England two years ago to work for the Bermuda Railway Co. I have no fault to find with my job or my wages but I have many objections to the general conditions in Bermuda. I am no place Englishman nor for any one who has not been a resident for many years. The entire affairs of the colony are under the control of a clique, who run things in their own interests. This statement is no exaggeration of the famous "Family Compact" of infamous memory in Canada.) Only twenty-six families own practically all of such can engage in trade or business in Bermuda. If any others get along too wisely or well, they are simply shoved off the map. A stranger may purchase a home but he will not be let into the inner circle and will remain a permanent contact with the island.

There is no business or income tax and only a slight real estate tax (less than four dollars per $1,000). These deficiencies are more than compensated from two sources both of which are unethical and unwise.

(A) A ten per cent. duty on all imports including food and clothing which are absolute necessities because produced so slightly in Bermuda. This along with uniform high profits makes the cost of living enormously and unnecessarily high.

(B) The Bermuda tax of twelve shillings and six pence paid by each and every person on leaving Bermuda for any other port, amounting to three dollars and twenty cents when paid in American money.

It will be noted that the chief taxes in Bermuda are not paid by the aforesaid clique but by the prosper and grow rich fast. Big quick, easy money in their secret slogan."

T. A visitor takes a Bermuda train to a certain place for any forty cents and is absolved to learn that he must pay eighty cents to return on the same afternoon. Return tickets are not issued on the Bermuda railway. If an explanation is demanded, you are told that the government of Bermuda requires that a train in the morning, another in noon and a third in the evening be run at specific rates and that these trains are known as "cheap trains" but that all others are subject to such rates as the Bermuda Railway Co. may dictate and that these rates are necessary to help because the railway now in operation four years is not paying expenses past and present. You are still shocked at Bermuda business methods but you soon feel better when you consider that you do not possess a bicycle, that a cabman is a smiling, peaceful aristocrat, and that not one darkie cabman cannot fly. Hence the railway is your line. Be sure and you forget about it as you wonder what will be the next line of attack on your fast shrinking wallet. You are just crazy if you go to Bermuda with less than three times what you would require elsewhere.

8. Visitors who go to guest homes have another grievance; the restaurants in Bermuda are too few, too poorly equipped and far too dear for the merely food they supply. In Miami we thought four stewed prunes for seven cents and other things in proportion were a trifle dear, but we can tell a story now far better than that. Please remember that onions and potatoes are the chief export crops of Bermuda and that they sell onions at two dollars a bushel but potatoes are much less. In any of the restaurants we visited in Bermuda, we paid six cents for three slices of a Bermuda onion the size of a walnut, and eighteen cents for less than a teacup of potato mashed on two lettuce leaves which are also plentiful locally. Such examples could be multiplied indefinitely. The case we are protesting was well summed up by an old lady who was leaving one of Bermuda's most famous hotels one afternoon as we passed by. This distinguished looking gentleman was almost completely paralyzed on his left side and was being assisted to a waiting carriage by either his daughter of his nurse, most probably the latter, being aided his right hand and his wallet to pay the eager cabman, darkie by color his tip for bringing his luggage.

"You had better tell the driver where you want to go," suggested the bespectacled gentleman, and sweetly as a lamb but with that huge wallet had yielded a tip to the watchful darkie.

"Do you know what Bermuda reminds me of? Well it is a gigantic spider's web and I am the fly that escaped just in the nick of time."

The nurse blushed crimson and hung her head in shame because a considerable crowd had gathered around in quest of excitement for a dull afternoon.

9. Canadian citizens crossing to the United States from Canada for a visit are not required to pay any head tax as many readers know. Not so when you go from Bermuda for New York on your way to Canada. Then you must pay a head tax of eight dollars per person; you are given an official receipt which must be signed by custom officials at the point where you enter Canada. This receipt must then be presented for refund at certain specified offices which Toronto is one. It is a lot of trouble to obtain indeed with many others makes travel a burden which few care to bear.

10. The lady who fled from mosquitoes had another unusual experience. She applied for a single fare ticket from Hamilton, Bermuda, to New York, on the steamer and with exactly the same accommodation as when she arrived a few days earlier. She was amazed to discover that she must pay nearly double the amount required to come to Bermuda and be obliged to return by way. Part of the cause is explained in the two taxes mentioned above but the steamship company was surprisingly unaccommodating. Those who control the destinies of Bermuda must think that their climate and scenery will continue to attract tourists no matter what happens to them after their arrival. As a matter of fact Muskoka, Georgian Bay and the Thousand Islands are just as beautiful and healthful as Bermuda. The best thing about going away is the fact that one should be sufficiently grateful for blessings so abundantly showered on us

CAMP FIRES

Camp fire days are just ahead when the smoke will arise from excursion and holiday areas as newcomers to, or those distant or near spots for their outing. That the fires should always be under control and should be thoroughly extinguished is one of the obligations resting upon the camper.

With the coming of the motorcar, vacationing has become an entirely different matter with that class of persons who in the old days would have spent their holidays at home or go out to visit country relatives. Today the holidays are broken up into week-ends and countless little excursions or they may be in one large vacation but the fact is that the people are now making their home away home in the summer time." The Governments have spent money ot make the great expanses of nature an almost virgin park for the tourist and the holidayer where he may find relief from the worries of city life and find a change of scene, diet, and moods. In return for this the camper and excursionist must see to it that what he brings into the country is not a menace—namely fire.

According to the Rotarian Magazine, the boys' camp is not the chief offender for the boy is taught how to build and care for fires. Says the Magazine: "Enemy No. 8 is the thoughtless adult who leaves his camp fire smouldering, ready to be spread by a guest of wind or carelessly flips a cigarette or cigar butt aside." No adult would want to be blamed for such a piece of carelessness which might endanger lives and destroy valuable property. It is against the law to leave a smouldering fire and conviction of such an offence that a magistrate may impose a heavy fine.

LIFE OF 150 TO 180 YEARS

Normal mental life span of one hundred and fifty to one hundred and eighty years is the plan of nature, according to a Russian scientist, Prof. Peter P. Lazaroff of Moscow. He declares that while he has not experimented on prolonging human life, he has succeeded in extending life in lower animals to as much as four times the normal span, with a treatment of Roentgen rays.

At the present time he is observing closely a number of persons about one hundred years of age. He has already reached a number of findings, among them that sensitivity of the brain at birth is nearly zero but increases to a maximum at twenty years of age after which it begins to dwindle but never reaches zero because the body's death intervenes.

Another finding which proves interesting to people is to know that seasonal changes affect the sensitivity of the mind, spring and autumn being the high points, winter and summer the low periods. But the highest sensitivity is in April, when man feels best.

Race has no influence on brain sensitivity but climate leaves its mark—the northern races being more sensitive mentally and more energetic than the southern.

One of his findings with which many will doubtless be a considerable amount of disagreement is that "persons living to an unripe age usually are non-smokers." There have been many aged persons who have admitted smoking.

Prof. Lazaroff states that it is possible to predict the date of birth of a child by charting the mother's brain sensitivity.

The doctor has not described in detail his method of determining brain sensitivity, but he shows that it is based on laws of physics after tests of eyesight, hearing, muscular motion, and so forth.

To prolong mental sensitivity he says that the problem is to find some chemical or physical agent capable of reacting on the brain and nerve cells in a stimulating manner.

NO BRITISH PRESS CENSORSHIP

The British people desire to get their news uncensored in order that they may form trustworthy opinions for themselves. The only restraint on the press in Britain is the libel law, which is strict and calculated to protect individuals against slanderous statements. When the liberty of the press goes in English-speaking countries it will mean that other liberties prized by the people will go with it. Dictatorship and tyrannies cannot flourish where a free press is permitted. Even world celebrities like Premier Mussolini must be prepared to accept sharp criticism for their public conduct. When the time comes that they cannot endure discussion of their actions and policies it is time for them to retire from public life.—Brantford Expositor.

God denies a Christian nothing but with a design to give him something better.—Cecil.

To him that harkens to the gods, the gods give ear.—Homer.

There is a certain noble pride, though which merits shine brighter than through modesty.—Richter.

DISTRESSED

It wasn't much more than a fortnight ago
I had almost come round to the view
That the state of the house rather tended to show
The workmen were long overdue,
And, though well aware that my bank account would
Be drained past all shadow of doubt,
I had almost resolved to arrange that it should Be redecorated throughout.

'Twas a view in which Mary entirely concurred;
She started at once to select
The various colors in which she preferred
To have all its chambers bedecked.
She meant, she announced, to be right in the mode
(On which she has always been keen),
And pondered the merits of orange and woad
And lemon and ultramarine.

I have always maintained that a dutiful spouse
Should humour the wife that is his.
So I hope she'll be pleased when I tell her the house
Is going to stop as it is.
If she's bent on possessing an up-to-date show
I know that this course is the best.
For the white that was put on ten seasons ago
Today is distinctly distressed.

EXPLOSION IN MUINTIONS FACTORY in Germany emphasizes the danger to life, limb and property which exists in factories where explosives of any kind are made. Great precautions are taken to prevent accidents at one time or another when the said precautions have to be observed by many humans, some careful, some carelessly inclined, and some who think so many precautions "poppycock." Some years ago an explosion in an Ontario powder factory was investigated. Regulations provided that each workman or woman should change clothes on entering and leaving the factory, and it was strictly against the rules to have upon the person metallics of any kind. It was found as ascertained that the explosion was caused by a workman who wore a pair of suspenders to work, the saving metal clasps. The clasp broke and he secured a cold chisel somehow and struck the metal a hard blow. His working clothes were soaked with explosive substance and the first spark from the chisel's contact with the suspender clasp set him on fire, and the factory as well. He recovered but the factory was ruined. No doubt he thought the rule against metallics too silly to observe to the letter—and so, the fool and his brushes were soon parted also his job and considerable skin.

ANGINA PECTORIS, a derangement of the heart activities, which has claimed many victims is now fated to join the minor ailments with which man is afflicted, according to a report from Cleveland, Ohio, where an operation is said to have effected a cure. Joseph Kirchman, aged 45, a farmer, was operated upon by Dr. Claude S. Beck; the operation, according to Dr. Beck, opening up a new supply of blood by bringing the pectoral muscle on the chest into close contact with the heart and the roughened lining of the pericardium, a small pouch which surrounds the heart, thus bringing relief from the painful attacks. The operation is said to have been entirely successful and the patient is gaining weight daily and says he never felt better in his life.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE

"I hope you are not afraid of microbes," apologized the paying-teller as he cashed the stenographer's check with soiled currency.

"Don't worry," said the pert young thing. "A microbe couldn't live on my salary."

A little boy of six was recovering from an anaesthetic after a minor operation. When the auburn-haired nurse peeped round the screen to see how he was progressing, she was somewhat taken aback to be greeted with: "Hi, Ginger, bring me me trousers. I want to go home!"

CHINA TRIES TO WARD OFF JAPAN

The North China situation is acutely confronting declarations of China's highest executive body, the national government's central executive committee, that it could not accept Japan's demands because they would reduce China to the status of a "Japanese protectorate". Map indicates territory which Japan already has in its possession—Manchuria, Jehol and Hopei—and also shows Chahar Province which Japan desires to control with its present holdings in China. Leading figures in the latest Chinese-Japanese situation are General Seijuro Hayashi, Japanese war minister; General Jiro Minami, Japanese ambassador and commander in Manchoukuo, and Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, China's dominant military leader.

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

Immediately beneath us were the Ageyl, an irregular close group of tents, dowin of them were Indian artillery; and by him for company, Abdulla's machine gunners, in regular lines, with their animals picketed out in these formal rows which were useless to the professional eye, fear and convenient, if space were precious. Further out the markets was set plainly on the ground, a boiling swell of men always about the goods. The scattered tents and shelters of the tribesmen filled each gully or windless place. Beyond the last of them lay open country, with camel-parties coming in and out by the straggling paths of the nearest too-brackish well. As background were the foothills, reefs and clusters like ruined castles, rising steeply to the horizon of the coastal range.

As it was the custom in Wejh to camp where we were, my whole way of life was spent in moving back and forth, to Feisal's tents, to the English units, to the Egyptian Arab tents, to the town, the port, the wireless station, trampling all impartially up and down these coral paths in sandals or barefoot, hardening my feet, getting by slow degrees the power to walk with little pain over sharp and burning ground, tempering my already trained body for greater endeavour.

Four Arabs wondered why I had no mare; and I forbore to puzzle them by incomprehensible talk of hardening myself or confess I would rather walk than ride for sparing of animals; yet the time was fast and the second true. Something limited to my physical possible rose at the sight of these lower forms of life. That existence stirred a servile reflection upon our human kind: the style in which a God would look on us; and to make use of them, to lie under an avoidable obligation to them, seemed to me shameful. It was as with the negroes tom-tom playing themselves to red nakedness each night under the rafters. Their faces, being clearly different from our own, were patterned with it hurt that they should possess exact counterparts of all our bodies.

Feisal, within, lounged pop-eyed night at his politics in which so few of us could help. Outside, the crowd employed and diverted us with parties, joy-shooting, and marches of victory. Also there was scandal. Once a group, playing behind our tents, set off a sequence of shots—the relic of Boyle's capture of the town. In the explosion their limbs were scattered about the camp, marking the canvas with red splashes which soon turned a dull brown and then faded pale. Feisal had the tents changed and ordered the bloody ones to be destroyed: the frugal slaves replied then. Another day a stove fell into fire, and burned the three of our guests. The camp crowded round and applauded, and laughter till the fire died down, and then, rather shamefacedly, we cared for their hurts. The third day a mare was wounded by a falling joy-bullet, and made much trouble.

One night the Ageyl mutinied against their commandant, Ibn Dakhil, for fining them too generally and flogging them too severely. They rushed his tent, howling and shooting, threw his things about and beat his servants. But not being enough to blunt their fury, they began to remember Yenbo, and went off in full the Aleiba. Feisal from our bluff saw their torches and ran barefoot amongst them, laying on with the flat of his sword like four beside. His fury delayed them with rushes and shouts and blows of sheathed swords. One gave him a horse on which he charged down the ringleaders, while we dispersed the rest by firing very lights into their clothing. Only two were killed and thirty wounded. Ibn Dakhil resigned next day.

Fakhri Pasha was still playing our game. He held an entrenched line around Medina, just far enough out to make it impossible for the Arabs to fire into the city. Such an attempt was never made or imagined. The Turks held a line of blockhouses along the railway, in strong garrison at all the stations between Medina and Tebuk, and in certain posts between these garrisons, so that no patrols might penetrate into the track. In short, he had fallen back on a line of defence as little in it with high explosives. They would cut rails and bridges, place automatic mines for running trains.

The Arabs had passed from doubt to violent optimism, and were promising themselves the whole Hejaz railway and the Aleiba. Feisal encolled most of the Billi, who made a number of Arabia between the railway and the sea. He then sent the Jubeina to Abdulla in Wadi Ais. He could not communicate directly with the Hejaz Railway; but he dropped him first to delay in Wejh and set marching an intense movement among the tribes beyond us, that in the future our revolt might be extended, and the railway threatened from Tebuk (our present limit of influence) northward as far as Maan.

With his northern neighbours, the coastal Howeitat, he had already made a beginning but we now sent to the Beni Atiyeh, a stronger people in the north-east; the chief, Auda Abu Tayi, was of a certain allegiance.

He gave us freedom of movement across his tribe's territory. Beyond lay various tribes owning obedience to Nuri Shalan, the great Emir of the Ruwalla, and after the Sherif and Ibn Saud and Ibn Rashid, the fourth figure among the precarious princes of the desert.

Nuri was a solid man who had ruled his Anazeh tribesmen for thirty years. He was the chief family of the Rualla, but Nuri had no precedence among them at first, nor was he loved, nor a great man of them. His leadership had been acquired by sheer force of character. To gain it he had killed two of his brothers. Later he had added Sherarat and others to the number of his followers, and in all their deeds his word was absolute law. He had none of the wheedling diplomacy of the Arab sheikh: a word, and there was an end of opposition, or of the opponent. All feared and obeyed him: to use his roads we must have his countenance.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 17TH, 1915

Miss Jessie A. Morrice, who for the past three years has been superintendent of the Municipal Hospital at Melville, Sask., has gone overseas as a nursing sister in the Canadian Army Medical Corps. Her brother, Mr. Alex. Morrice of this city, has received a cablegram announcing her safe arrival at Plymouth, England.

Mr. A. Kirk, ex-Reeve of Ameliasteford township and ex-Warden of the county, was a visitor in the city to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wheatley left last night for New York en route to England. They expect to return to Belleville in August.

Mr. John Philpem is home from Winnipeg on a visit.

Mr. John Nicholso nof Chicago is spending a few days in the city renewing acquaintances.

Tenders for the building of a Children's Home in the city will be received up to and including June 30th.

30 Years Ago

JUNE 17th, 1905

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Snider, College Hill, have left for Old Sydney where they will reside. Just prior to their departure a number of friends presented Mrs. Snider with two handsome rugs.

Judge Merrill of Picton, who passed away June 14th, was a brother-in-law of Mrs. A. Schuster of this city.

That Sir Gilbert Parker still has the most kindly thought of his old home was again evidenced in a most practical manner this morning when Col. Ponton received another draft from Sir Gilbert for $100 for the public library. This is the seventh gift of a similar kind from Sir Gilbert.

Mr. A. W. McCreary left yesterday morning for Winnipeg where he intends to locate.

Messrs. T. Blackburn, H. F. Ketcheson, J. McPee and Phil Harrison of this city have been authorized to issue marriage licences.

50 Years Ago

JUNE 7TH, 1885

It is nearly a quarter of a century since any non-resident land in this city has been sold for taxes. Such a sale would add much to the revenue of the city and should be held regularly. The citizens are becoming clamorous over the delay.

"Strawberry Finn" by Mark Twain has been added to the new books in the library at the Mechanics' Institute.

The fall end of the Rathbonn Company's drive of logs from Black Creek is at Leslie's paper mills dam. A large gang of men went out this morning to bring them down the river.

A garden party in aid of the hospital fund will be held on Mr. W. H. Foster's grounds, Pinnacle Street, on the evening of the 25th. inst.

The public presentation of diplomas to graduates in arts from the Belleville High School will be held in the city hall tomorrow evening. Admission cards have been issued. The intention is to have a select audience.

Roses are blooming in advance of the usual time this year.

Next Friday will be Decoration Day. The steamer Merritt will make hourly trips to the cemetery from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tickets 10c.

The harbor presented a lively appearance on Saturday night when there were three brightly lighted steamers moving about at the same time.

Mr. John Bailly yacht, the North, was launched on Saturday. Jack Roblin has done a first class job in repairing and strengthening her.

The ranks of the 15th. Battalion are filling up rapidly. The battalion will have two parades this week to the hospital "ot. The band will give a concert during the drill.

Mr. Charles Jones has gone to Rochester.

Mr. Thos. Hanley, Jr., went to Newcastle last night on the steamer North King.

Mr. Jas. K. Ketcheson is spending today in Brighton.

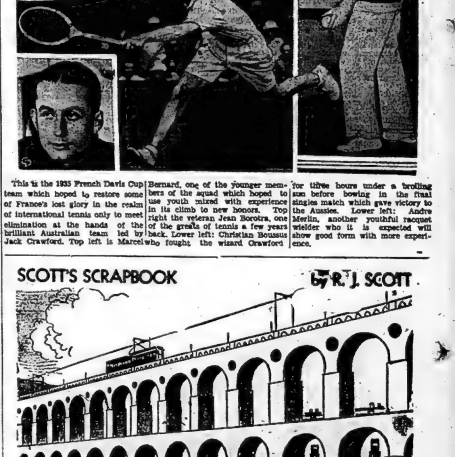
2 Cruisers Desert Canton Government

Hong Kong, June 17 (AP)—Two of the Canton Government's fighters deserted today, running the gunnut of the cross-fire from the royal Bocatoris Forts at Canton and slipping away to sea.

The cruisers, Hai Chi and Haishen, ran aground and were stuck for an hour before Whampoa, while troops turned machine guns on them from the shore but finally made good their escape. The cruisers had deserted the Nanking Government for the Canton command in 1933.

The members of the crew, most of them mutineers, had expressed dissatisfaction at their pay and conditions of service for Canton.

FRENCH 'CUPPERS ELIMINATED BY AUSTRALIANS



This is the 1935 French Davis Cup team which hoped to restore some of France's lost glory in the realm of international tennis only to meet elimination at the hands of the brilliant Australian team led by Jack Crawford. Top left is Marcel Bernard, one of the younger members of the squad which hoped to be round mixed with experience in its climb to new honors. Top right the veteran Jean Borotra, one of the greats, who in a few years show good form with more experience.

Jean Borotra, who fought the wizard Crawford for three hours under a broiling sun before bowing in the final five-set match which gave victory to the Aussies. Lower left: Andre Merlin, another youthful recruit of the French squad.

Chapter Five PRISONERS

"You beast!"

The words came almost inviolently from Judith as she opened her eyes to find Harold Stokes bending over her. He held a basin of water in one hand drops dripped from the fingers of the other and just above her face. Judith pushed the hand angrily away and sat up straight. A quick glance around her revealed that she was in a small, sparsely furnished room that had evidently been lying prone upon the bed over which Stokes was bending as she came to consciousness. There was one small window in the room, through which she could see the hazy hangtag of a maple tree in the moonlight. At the other end was a door, with a key in the lock, and a strong bolt above the doorknob. In the centre was a small, plain table, with a few magazines, a newspaper, a bottle, two glasses and a box of cigarettes on it.

"That's nice," said Stokes, straightening up, "here's gratitude for you!" His face was flushed and Judith could smell the odour of liquor on him. The gleam of his black eyes was not reassuring. Yet Judith felt none of the inclination to fear him that of fear. Stokes set the basin of water on the table and dried wiped his wet hand with his handkerchief.

"Gratitude!" She gave him a look of hatred and contempt. "I owe you everything that's bad. You're not only a beast, but a murderer!"

"Come, come, Judith," Stokes said, frowning. "That's just a little too much. I grant you Bob Randall better take that back." He glowered at her menacingly.

"I won't take it back," stoutly. "You've killed Randall Spencer heard the shots. You're a cold blooded, deliberate murderer."

"I won't have you say it from "The Red Tiger" tonight, as I can prove by a dozen witnesses. Will you please get over your friend with an—shall we say accident?—it's no concern of mine."

"You lie!" she cried, almost hysterically. "You murdered him yourself. You instigated it. His blood is on your hands!"

Stokes' eyes fell before the accusation of her own. His face trembled as he poured liquor out of the bottle on the table, and still shook as he raised the glass to his lips. He downed the liquor quickly.

"You're all wrong about that, Beauty," he said in an effort at conciliation. "I'll grant that some to any misfortune I'm sorry, but it's through no act of mine. He tried to take you away from me, but I don't hold that against him—if a pretty girl has always held a great allure for Benny. Now if you and wanted me to, I'd outwit him. I got you back and that's all I aimed to do. Both my worry your pretty head about Randall Spencer? You never know him better tonight, did you?"

"No," she said. "But he tried to protect me from a beast—and he's paid for it with his life. And there's a God in heaven you'll suffer for it."

"I don't like that word beast that you slung about so freely," snarled Stokes. "And your cut it out—or it may be a case of Beauty and the Beast in earnest."

"I'm not afraid of you," Judith asserted. "If you touch me I'll scratch your eyes out. And even come near me I'll scream."

Stokes laughed, unpleasantly.

"Scream—that's rich! Those have been a good many screams in "The Red Tiger" that the outside world never heard. You can scream here to your heart's content—it. Nobody in this joint pays any attention to screams."

The implication of Stokes' words was not lost on Judith. For the moment she was forced to think of her own plight instead of the fate of Randall Spencer. Involuntarily she shuddered. Stokes' burning eyes were on her and caught the tremor. He laughed again.

"You might just as well be sensible, Beauty. I'm very frank and brutal, you are completely in my power here. It's quite like an old fashioned melodrama, in which I'm the villain and you're the virtuous beauty in distress. But unlike the old fashioned melodrama there's no hero in the offing to rescue you in the nick of time."

"You've taken care of that by murdering him in advance," she said contemptuously. "You must be proud of yourself."

"There's where I must take exception. I haven't murdered anybody, and there never was any hero. If Randall Spencer had action you as he planned it would just have been a different villain and the same beauty in distress. You don't know Benny—I do."

"You're lying, Harold Stokes," Judith said quietly. "Isn't it enough to murder a man without slandering him after he's dead?"

Slander Benny!" Stokes laughed sardonically. "Gee, Beauty, you must have been struck hard. Gentlemen young and pretty girls—especially working girls—are, or were, like meat. If he'd gotten you away from me, you'd have been just another on his long string."

"Now, I know you're lying," said Judith. "Bob Harley wouldn't have asked that kind of a man to take me home, and Bob would know."

"So, Bob Harley's mixed up in this too?" Stokes scowled. "Well, it's much the worse for the reddheaded reporter. Damn him and all his tribe! They're always mixing in somebody's business. Now he'd better lay off this affair . . . Listen, beautiful but dumb innocent! If Bob Harley and Randall Spencer are not, as witnesses, what they come to be at a notorious dive like "The Red Tiger"? How do you know that Spencer didn't fix it up with Bob in advance to introduce you to him and have him take you home? He could afford to play Benny Baddensohn for that. Bibbs Haver and newspaper men are proverbially hard up."

"You might just as well stop your lying," said Judith calmly. "You're only fooling me a bit—only making me hate you worse, if that were possible. Bob Harley was here on an assignment. He had been pumped off that there was going to be shooting here. And he was amazed when he saw me in this "hotel" now that you so truly describe it. Only I didn't know it was a hotel. . . I don't know why Mr. Spencer was here, and I don't care. I only know you are lying in every word you say."

"Have it your own way," snarled Stokes. "But just remember this, young woman—you're here for just as long as I would to keep you, and the sooner you get over your present attitude the better it will be for you. Those walls are thick enough to deaden that way properly, as I said before, if you screamed and some one should hear and come there would be any attention paid to it. And if you're harboring any notions of escaping by that pretty but stubborn head of yours, you had better forget them. We're on the third floor, and there's a mighty hard passenger elevator that window. If you jumped you'd break both legs. If not your neck. I'll look after I'll look after that door and carry the key with me when I leave. Now, if you think of it you could pick the lock, you'd be in for a very unwelcoming second. "The Red Tiger" without my protection than you'll ever be with me. I'm sorry for nothing of the kind miller whom she loved instead of Randall Spencer and who had murdered her heart.

Many of the townspeople were unwilling to see such a beautiful romance destroyed. Under the cover of darkness them appeared at the lovely girl's house. They bore gifts of china, vases, linens and household necessities.

A Happy Ending

In quantity and value their offerings to Eva and Venus far exceeded the original lovers' attempt by the parents.

So the poor miller and his beautiful bride were married and lived happily ever after. Thus was born the custom of giving showers.

The practice of giving jewelry to one's betrothed had its beginning in the myth that needed the magic girdle of gems of Aphrodite became the object of envy.

Diamond rings are almost universal among civilized countries, as engagement rings. The intense flash and gleam of the precious stone is supposed to have originated in the fires of love.

What Is Their Meaning?

Curious conventions that have had their beginnings in the social customs of primitive and aboriginal people still are carried on religiously by the people of today. We can only guess at the meaning of some of them, but we still follow them.

From Scandinavia there comes a tradition that the bride must make the bridegroom's bridal shirt with her own hands if the wedding is to be a happy one.

Have you ever given a teacup to an engaged girl? It is a proper gift and the practice is said to have been started by a lover who went to sea for a long sea journey. Prior to his departure he gave his betrothed a china teacup and bade her drink tea from it every afternoon at one certain hour.

If he ever became unfaithful the tea would run over the edges of the cup and crack it.

Origin of Englishman's Tea?

That custom may have been the origin of the Englishmen's tea hour of the present time.

Sociologists say that the lover's kiss was unknown centuries ago. Now the kiss is regarded as the seal with which lovers plight their troth.

At one time in the history of human marriage brides were obtained by purchase. The money, horses or cattle which the bridegroom paid to the bride's father were called the "Wed."

Eloping may have developed either because the girl desired to escape marrying against her will or not love or because she did not desire to wed. Her lover had enough coins or cattle to buy her.

Mother-in-Law Jokes

There are many mother-in-law jokes, but few really amusing ones. There seems, however, to be a social basis for the inevitable mother-in-law difficulty. In many tribes a custom persisted that the man and mother of his intended wife could not see or speak to each other until after the wedding.

The family that suffered such repactly naturally would harbor ill feeling toward the author. Particularly would that be true of the mother of the captured girl.

The stalwart friend is with us today, but now we call him the best man. The bridesmaids are the descendants of the friends of the girl who tries to prevent the capture.

The original flower girls carried sheaves of grain before the bride. This symbolized the wish for a fruitful union.

The Ring That Binds

Wedding rings used to be made of many varities of materials. But the use of the narrow gold band is general. The ring symbolizes such as eternity or a union without ending being worn on the left hand signifies the subjection of the girl to her husband. The right hand has always been a symbol of power and authority. The veil is thought to be a sign of submission also.

Bride's Garter is Charmed

Brides often used to suffer almost complete stripping when a bride's garter was considered a charming on which to dream. Eventually brides put on within easy reach to protect themselves and then they took to throwing it to the dream-mad crowd that always attended weddings. This custom is believed to have progressed to the throwing of the stocking.

Now brides suffer no embarrassment by the simple expedient of throwing the bridal bouquet and whoever catches it is supposed to be the next girl to be married.

THREE DROWNED DURING WEEK-END

Trainman Killed, Girl Burned And One Commits Suicide

(By The Canadian Press)

Six persons came to violent death in various parts of Ontario during the week end. Three persons were drowned. A trainman was killed, a girl died in her burning home and the fifth committed suicide.

Margaret Robb, 24, daughter of Dr. J. M. Robb, former Deputy Minister of Health, suffocated and died in the home, rescued by dropping from a window after trying to save her.

At Guelph Frank Swackhamer, 17, dipped from the bank of the Speed River into 18 feet of water. He was unable to swim. Efforts of companions to reach him before he sank were futile.

Sherwin Thomas, 23, drowned off Fort Carling when seized by cramps after a sailboat capsized. Three others were saved.

Thomas Nicholls, 54, of Grafton, was found dead in a few inches of water in a creek near Cobourg. An inquest was found he had been killed, his death is being investigated and an inquest will be held Friday.

Joseph Corrigan was killed in switching operations in railway yards at South Porcupine. There were no eye-witnesses to the accident, a brakeman found his body.

James Brand swallowed an undentified poison and then went to the cowshed where he hanged himself. They declared it was self-administered.

Obituary

Mrs. Harriett Matilda Bird

After an illness of about six weeks' duration Mrs. Harriett Matilda Bird, wife of Mr. Francis J. Bird, passed away at the family residence at Wallbridge, Sidney Township, on Sunday, June 9th.

The late Mrs. Bird, who was in her 85th year, was born in Hunting-don Township, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Zedock Thrasher. For the past 30 years she had resided at Wallbridge, prior to which time she had resided in the 8th concession of Thurlow. She was a member of the United Church at Wallbridge and was a woman of most estimable character, being highly esteemed by many friends.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. Francis J. Bird, one daughter, Mrs. Daniel C. Hyde, Belleville and one son Sydney W. Bird of the Township of Thurlow.

The funeral service will be held at the family residence on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Hall officiating. Interment will be made in Belleville Cemetery.

BEST CHEESE TO BE GIVEN PRIZE

Board Authorizes Award of $10 For This Purpose

In an effort to still further stimulate and encourage cheese factories of this district in the matter of make, members of the Belleville Cheese Board at their regular Saturday meeting held in this city went on record as unanimously favoring a motion that the Board give a prize of $10 to the maker in any factory selling on the Belleville Board in 1935. This prize is to be for the highest scoring cheese to be exhibited at any fair in the district. The high scores to be sent to the secretary of the Belleville Board, and such scores to be read before members of the Board at a regular meeting before the award is made.

The motion, proposed by Buyer Jean Cook, and seconded by Mr. W. C. Bell, followed the reading of a communication from the Shannonville Fair Board requesting a grant for that institution similar to the recent ones made the Belleville and Stirling Fair Boards.

"It is moving dirt," pointed out Mr. Cook. "I am doing it only for the purpose of encouraging the makers through this district." As at first proposed the motion asked substitution of the prize to be given to the highest scoring man at the seven fall fairs in this district. It was afterward changed on the suggestion of President Morrow, that the winner must be of a factory which is a member of the local Board.

"Why not make the prize for the factory having the highest score of the year," suggested Mr. Madill.

Cloverdale. "I'd like to move an amendment to that effect."

"The motion has already been voted on and passed," reminded President W. R. Morrow.

SUNDAY NIGHT CONCERT GIVEN

Hundreds Enjoy Fine Program by Municipal Band

Hundreds of local citizens enjoyed the first of a series of Sunday night band concerts tendered by the Belleville Municipal Band at the Belleville Tourist Camp, Dundas Street, last night and left high praise of the local musical organization. Loud applause followed each number and encores were the order of the night.

Assistant Bandmaster Walter Alcombrack, who directed during the opening number, O Canada, followed by a march, Subsequently Lieut. Percy Johnson, who succeeded Bandmaster and director assumed their duties and directed the musical gala capably throughout the remainder of the program. Soloists featured their accompaniment for many girls, watched Charlie being unloaded at the Dundas Street camp. These people have now grown to man and womanhood but one thing remains that day. Councillor George LaBrash —then just little George, was among those who helped land Charlie in Trenton. The land was strange to this young horse especially as he did not understand a word of English. He immediately went to work and made many friends. His present owner, W. J. Turcott, drove Charlie for several years and fifteen years ago he purchased him and the two have been in business ever since. With the exception of Sunbeam and legal holidays, Charlie is in harness and about the streets of Trenton.

If Charlie could only talk. He could tell of the days when he was the pride of the streets with especially cars on the muddy thoroughfares. Children would stop and pet him and steal rides on his sleigh or wagon. Everybody was more friendly in those days. Now the horseless carriage made its appearance. Charlie and his other horse friends only laughed as they knew that these contraptions were only a fad and would soon die out. Charlie also was frightened when they approached. One by one his friends left town for the farms as the car was cutting into their business. Now he doesn't even bat an eye lash when these shiny new automobiles pass. He maybe looks at them and remembers when he and his kind ruled the road but now they are, in many cities, a curiosity. Such is life with Charlie on his thirty-third birthday.

FORMER BANKER DIES

Sudden death occurred at Vancouver during the week end of Wm. Montgomery Chandler, aged 63, at one time a banker in Stirling. Mr. Chandler, who was born in Toronto, first came to Stirling as an employee of the Sovereign Bank. Later he returned to Stirling to open a branch of the United Empire Bank, of which he was manager for a number of years. Mr. Chandler became supervisor of the Royal Bank of Canada and later assistant supervisor of Royal Bank.

Trenton Horse at 33 Quietly Goes About His Daily Tasks

"Charlie" Well Known to Every Resident of Town

Trenton, June 17 (Special)—On Saturday a resident of Trenton celebrated his thirty-third birthday. To some this is only the prime of life but to Charlie it is old age. Charlie is a horse and well known to every citizen of Trenton. Charlie was born at Colonel Lanning on June 16, 1902. When he was three years of age his owner, Capt. Reinfret sold the farm as the car was cutting into their business. Now he doesn't even bat an eye lash when these shiny new automobiles pass. He maybe looks at them and remembers when he and his kind ruled the road but now they are, in many cities, a curiosity. Such is life with Charlie on his thirty-third birthday.

Bridge Street S.S. Is en Fete As Young Scholars Graduate

Impressive Scenes at Sunday Morning Service

"Suffer little children to come unto Me, forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven," is an impressive service at Bridge Street United Church, Sunday morning when promotion and prizes for faithful service throughout the year were presented to the Sunday School children.

Mr. Jos. E. Shortt, secretary of the Sunday school, presided over the presentations. With each class presentation a short program of the work they have accomplished was given. The classes included; Cradle Roll Class taught by Miss Campbell, Miss Sulman's class, Graduate class, Miss Sloe, Distribution, Miss Morden. Honor graduates, medals, Miss Sine. Young Worshippers' League, certificates, Mrs. Semple. Presentation of Honor Cup, J. E. Shortt. Bible Study cert. D. McCoy.

Sr. Primary Class: Joan Ross, Ida Watson, June Kent, Muriel Semple, Marie Dunderry, Joyce Morton, Helen Bradshaw, Eleanor Sandercock, Alma Burkholder, Stanley Smith, Donald Semple. Wm. Johnston, Muriel Hibbard. The graduates repeated in unison. The names of the 12 Apostles. Names of the books of the Old Testament, and the Ten Commandments. They were presented with Bibles by Miss Morden, supt. of the department.

Honor Graduates: Joan Ross, Ida Watson, June Kent, Muriel Semple, Marie Dunderry. They repeated in unison the beatitudes, 13 chapter 1st. Corinthians. The presentation of medals were presented to these honor graduates by their teacher Maud Sine.

Young Worshippers Class: Dean Wilson, Dougald Robin, Wilma Clark, Mercy Woodhouse, Joyce Woodhouse, George Woodhouse, Walter Robbin, Marion Griffin, Arthur Griffin, Gordon Griffin, Ralph Griffin, Margaret Griffin, Margaret Semple, Muriel Semple, Wesley Semple, Ralph Clapp, Donald Lattimer, Raymond Ball, Vincent Maiolo, Jack Dunn, Jack Henry, Betty Randle, Fred Smith. This class was presented with certificates by Mrs. Semple with certificates for regular Sunday morning attendance as Young Worshippers.

The Loyalty Cup presented by the Live Wire Trail Rangers was awarded her with best attendance for year, Loyalty to God, church, Sunday school and group work by Wesley Semple. The cup was presented by J. E. Shortt.

The Bible study certificates to the members of the Trail Ranger group, Bible Study certificates: 80 percent, or better. Examinations were based on previous 13 weeks lessons. Tests were sent sealed from Toronto. The certificates were presented to the following by Mr. D. W. Moore: Bob Zufelt, Jack Smith, Ralph Griffin, Arthur Griffin, Gordon Griffin, Wesley Semple, Ralph Clapp, Jack Steward, Ross Clare, Walter Roblin, and Robert McCormack.

Quiet music was played throughout by the organist Prof. V. P. Hunt. Splendid anthems were sung by the choir ably assisted by the junior choir who were contrastingly robed in white.

At this time Rev. Dr. Semple congratulated the teachers and officers of the Sunday School for the magnificent work they have been doing and in the manner in which the children went through their services. "I also want to thank the children. They should be proud of the work they have accomplished," said Dr. Semple.

Taking as his text Mark 9, World Wonders in Child's Eye, Semple went on to disclose the disaster that would befall the world if there was no child and how the child nobly fitted into the picture. A great author once wrote that no child should ever be born of a human mother. Imagine the immensity of that statement. Picture what the world would be without a child. There would be no baby fingers, no cradles, no toys, no public school, therefore no teachers, no ministers, no Bibles, no intensified love that existed between a mother and her child. Nothing could be conceived of quite so bad as the world without a child.

In the child is the hope for the future world. In his beauty and innocence are the possibilities of service to God. This is shown in His words "Suffer little children to come unto Me, forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

HOMER PIGEON FOUND ON LAWN

A valuable homer pigeon was found on a lawn on Bleecker Street, unable to make flight, owing to a broken wing, yesterday. The bird was taken into custody by a nearby resident and is now in the city pound. It was reported this morning. On the bird's legs were the usual homing pigeon markings, one carrying the identification—CHU "34" No. 5604. The identity of the bird is unknown to the finder but local bird fanciers who may have knowledge of the possible owner are requested to get into communication with the Ontario Intelligencer, where connections between parties can be made.

BLACK EYE

Signor Mussolini is here shown sporting a "boxer" of a black eye which he received about two weeks ago when he was struck by a barrack while horseback riding. Though strict orders were issued not to make pictures of the dictator's "sinner's," the enterprising cameraman evidently disregarded orders and obtained this unusual shot.

AT THE BELLE

"The Bride of Frankenstein"
The Super-Shocker of 1935

The strangest pair of lovers in the history of the screen are seen in "The Bride of Frankenstein", the weirdly thrilling Universal drama coming to the Belle tomorrow (Tuesday) and Wednesday, matinee and evening.

For this grotesque man and woman are the monstrous creatures built up from parts of dead bodies.... human beings undoubtedly, but in reality grisly products of the graveyard. Burial crypts are robbed by a fanatical pair of half mad scientists, crazed by their terrific experiments in actually creating life. A grisly laboratory on a hill-top filled with advanced electrical appliances, is the scene of their labors, and it is here that success crowns their efforts.

It was in the original "Frankenstein" that Karloff, "The Monster" of the story, was brought to life at the height of a crashing electrical storm in this same laboratory defying his further adventures a mate is created for him in the person of Elsa Lanchester.

Never before, it is said, has the screen shown scenes of such tremendous excitement as when the wouldbe bride comes to life. The stereo rages and howls and flashes of lightning illuminate the interior of the laboratory in this eerie setting with darting flames and exploding coils of white smoke. The booming of the electrical apparatus rivals the crashing of thunder above, and the climax comes when the operating table bearing the lifeless form of a woman is lifted by long chains into a final bedlam of explosions and brilliance and further impulses are brought down from huge kites at the end of copper wires, flying high in the very midst of the flashing lightning.

The "Monster Woman" is quickly lowered to the floor of the laboratory and the trembling scientists swiftly unwrap the bandages in which she is encased. A finger moves and the eyes open her first staring eye. She's alive.

But a still greater climax is to follow, and the picture comes to an end on a high note that leaves the audience almost gasping.

Excellent Shorts

A funny All-Star comedy "Dumb Luck" another of the popular Marriage Vow comedy series, Edwin C. Hill, the Rambling Reporter, introducing the Belle Latest News Flashes, and "We Do Our Part" a unique and clever divertisement introducing a host of favorite Radio Stars will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Enchanted April"
Portrays Ann Harding in Sensational Marital Problem

At last the beauty, charm and humor—yes, humor—of lovely Ann Harding find expression in one of the happiest motion picture stories of her career. In "Enchanted April" the current attraction at the Capitol Theatre the blonde star is said to offer a performance which will delight her huge army of devoted admirers and gain other followers.

Seldom has a tale been so perfectly adapted to the talents of a star. "Enchanted April", Miss Harding, as a drab and unhappy English wife, finds beauty, happiness and romance in a buoyant Italian spring. Her husband, wooed from her side by literary success, follows her to the Mediterranean where her program.

her to find her once more the sweetheart of his youth, and an enchanted April brings fresh joy into their lives.

The film is said to radiate hope, charm and gentle humor. It is one of the most winning of recent screen tales—and Ann Harding and her supporting cast give it beautiful expression. From it wives will learn how to recapture the spirit of youthful romance. By it husbands will recognize the sweethearts of their courting days.

The brilliant supporting cast was carefully chosen. Frank Morgan, one of the screen's dollar screen figures of the day, is seen opposite Miss Harding as the self centered husband. Katharine Alexander, distinguished player of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Death Takes a Holiday", will win countless film friends in her role, as Miss Harding's confidante. That excellent actor, Reginald Owen, has one of his best opportunities as Miss Alexander's amusing husband. Other capable players include Jane Baxter, English beauty; Jessie Ralph, Ralph Forbes and Charles Judels.

Mysterious Mr. Wong

Characters who thrive on excitement and seek it every minute of their waking hours, make "The Mysterious Mr. Wong" one of the most thrilling and at the same time one of the most enjoyable pictures which has come to the local screen this year.

This feature which is shown also on this same bill offers thrills to those who prefer that type of entertainment and yet does not lose any of the appeal to those who seek comedy and romance on the screen fare.

Headed by Wallace Ford, Bela Lugosi, and Arline Judge, it is the excellence of the cast all the way down to the smallest bit player, that makes this surging story by Harry Stephen Keeler interesting.

APPLICATIONS REACH MILLIONS

Toronto, June 17 (CP)—The Ontario Government's $20,000,000 bond issue, replacing the unintended $15,000,000 issue of last week, went on sale today as Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn announced the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission would transfer its bonds to the Ontario Savings Banks.

"Hydro will make use of our banking facilities as far as it is feasible to do so," he said. The announcement said Hydro's funds on deposit in chartered banks would be ordered transferred. T. Stewart Lyon, Hydro chairman, was silent on the matter.

Commission of one-eighth of one percent offered by the Government to reliable houses caring to handle the bonds, will be paid by the Government on the new issue, speaks in 1937 and 1938 on Canadian funds at the Bank of Commerce at Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Halifax, St. John and any Ontario Savings Office.

It was reported during the week-end the Workmen's Compensation Board—which, according to an announcement by the Premier last week would be ordered to transfer its funds to the Provincial Bank—also has several million dollars in the new issue.

"Couldn't put their funds in a better place," was the Premier's comment to this report.

Questioned as to progress of his plans to raise funds without the aid of financial interests the Premier said: "Everything is going fine. There isn't a doubt of the success the stand we have taken."

As to the possibility of obtaining short-term money in New York, Premier Hepburn said plans in this regard had not been dropped altogether. He admitted the Province is largely in insistence of Wall Street, but that situation is repayable in U.S. funds. The Premier said however, he would confer with U.S. financial interests again before the week was out.

Toronto dealers in unlisted securities have offered to co-operate in selling the issue, it was learned. Later announcement said these firms were not connected with the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Mayor O. J. Kerr, Stratford, Conservative supporter of municipalities transferring their accounts to the Government Bank. He was of opinion Stratford should transfer its funds if the Government opened a branch there.

In East Toronto Danforth Riding Liberal Association asked for establishment of a branch in that constituency.

Persons wishing to buy the bonds may obtain applications at any Ontario Savings Bank. Their applications are forwarded to the Provincial Treasurer. He later advises the applicant his bonds are ready for the purchaser then pays his money and gets his bond.

It is strictly a cash business, it was stated last night.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Riggar and Crawford by Financial Service

With the New York market at a new high level in four years, the local list has not yet reflected the buoyancy prevalent across the line. A continuation of the upward trend in Wall Street, however, is bound, sooner or later, to bring about higher quotations for the better grade Canadian dividend payers.

The liquor stocks showed signs of coming to life the latter part of last week. The strength in Distillers-Seagrams, due to a court decision favouring the Bronfmans, was in large part responsible for the demand, although another constructive factor was the announcement that exports of Canadian whiskey in May amounted to 154,340 proof gallons, as against 139,349 in the same month of last year. Practically 97 per cent of our liquor exports go to the United States.

Those who think Major Angus is bullish in print should speak to him privately. He told a group on Wall Street analysists last week that he thought the current market move ahead will carry the industrial averages to the neighborhood of 140, and beyond that he will not go. He also guesses that they will reach 100 before the end of 1936. Major Angus thought the Dow-Jones averages might exceed the 1929 highs before the bull market ended. He thought that was all together possible and declared that the bulk of 1937 earnings by the market then was not too high.

The market buoyancy is attributed to the fact that there is a plethora of idle funds seeking profits. The high-class dividend payers continue in steady demand and the issue is not far off when satisfactory yields will be the junior equities are difficult to obtain. One group that continues to offer a satisfactory return is the preferred shares of power utilities, but the demand, if it continues for any length of time, will reduce the yields on these securities more in line with general yields.

Ford of Canada "A"

Last week's liquidation in Ford of Canada "A" shares caused the issue to react rather quickly. This particular selling is now over and the market action of this stock during the next few weeks will be followed with a great deal of interest.

The company's plant at Windsor is busy and is said as it was a few weeks ago. A reduction in the number employed has been made. A decision as to the number to be employed place at this season of the year with Ford.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, June 17.— (CP)—Industrial share prices worked lower in the opening session of the week on the Toronto Exchange. Volume was small and the softer trend was the action in C.P.R. in which the big rail advanced on good turnover. Ford A sold off to 34 for a loss of 3-4 and the Gils, also trading in the early session, showed fractions of 1-8 to 1-4.

In a generally slow market C.P.R. staged a fair rally on heavy turnover in the Industrial section followed by a good turn for the rails on the New York Boards. The price advanced 11 1-4, up 3-4, before easing down slightly. Ford A was also active and weak, losing a half point and the leading oils registered losses of 1-8 to 3-8.

Distillers and Metal issues came out at lower prices. Distillers, Seagrams, Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Hollinger 1-2 and Consolidated Smelters 1 1-2. Food, Utility and Bank shares were quiet and in the miscellaneous group Gatineau, Int. Nickel and Provincial Gas were firm.

Noranda, Teck Hughes and Pioneer, McWatters drifted fractions to a few cents and prices were off narrowly for Base, Gunnar and McKenzie. Announcement that Gunnar would have to do some new financing to pay for its proposed mill, brought in a little selling of the stock.

Eldorado dipped to 1.25 and came back to 83 for a net loss of 5 cents.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, June 17 (AP) — The stock market halted to catch its breath today although there were no indications of any serious backslide.

Canadian securities generally moved with narrow irregularity. Dominion Bank was quoted at nominally unchanged. McIntyre Porcupine and International Nickel dipped fractionally, as did Canadian Pacific in the bond market. Dome Mines was a little higher. On the Curb Lake Shore Mines lost a little ground. Sterling exchange was steady in the foreign exchange market at 99 3-8's cents.

Advances of fractions to a point or so were marked up by Case, Safeway Stores, Montgomery Roller Bearing, Collins and Aikman, Auburn, International Harvester, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, General Electric, American Telephone and Western Union.

U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and American Rad sagged. American Can and U. S. Steel lost about a point each, and Westinghouse and Schlehem were a bit heavy.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, June 17—(AP)—Irregular price changes were the rule in today's stock market. The firmness of the utilities did much to bolster business sentiment in the accordancy, but reactions largely attributed to technical factors appeared in other parts of the list.

The number of new highs for the year were recorded and gainers of fractions to a point or so included Case, International Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Int. Industrial Alcohol, Nash, Auburn, Collins and Aikman and Northern Pacific. Issues such as U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Noranda and Cerro de Pasc were heavy, American Can, U. S. Steel, Chrysler and Eastman Kodak sagged. Chemicals, however were mixed. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

CHEESE EXPORTS

Montreal, June 12.—Receipts of dairy products at Montreal last week with comparisons, were announced today at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs.	Butter.	Cheese.
	Boxes.	Boxes.	Boxes.
Last week .	13,547	29,401	18,978
Week ago .	14,302	24,237	12,214
Year ago .	15,908	22,078	22,046

Exports from Montreal last week amounted to 6,637 boxes of cheese, 22 boxes of butter and 143 cases of eggs. Cheese exports were the best so far this season.

Stewart-Warners Drop to Second Place Ties With Petes After 12-2 Loss

Men of Lee Pound Ball Hard And Win Easily

KITCHEN SMART

Locals Secured But Four Singles From Delivery of Kitchen

Peterboro, Ont., June 17.—Stewart-Warners dropped back into a second place tie with Johnson Motors, when on Saturday, Wm. Knotty Lee's gang pounded two "Radio" hurlers hard for 13-2 victory. Almost a thousand fans witnessed the slugfest in which 18 hits, including eight circuit clouts were collected by the homesters off Art Calhoun and Ernie Smith, while Jack Kitchen pitching four-hit ball and getting great support, twenty RAMP members in the starting circle.

The Radio men spotted the Petes an early lead which found it too much to overcome. They clouted the ball on the nose repeatedly but drove it invariably into an outfielder's hands. The Littledrom on the other hand smacked the pill between fielders and benched their hits to produce a number of counters. They had a little edge defensively with but one miscue charged the winners two.

Calhoun's hill it every frame but the fourth and he retired with two out in the fifth. The score was 8-1 then. Art was nicked for nine safetys and walk while fanning one. Smith relieved him and fared no better against the mashing Petes who got off to a big start in him and a walk as he struck out two, four hits and a walk in the next and two walks though striking one batter out. Aside from the circuit and sixth, only one runner reached second. His support being excellent.

Peter Field Well

Gray, McIlroy, Ford and Calhoun got the circuit wallops with Green and Ford fielding nicely and Weir functioning with smart relief on Konopka's line drive between centre and third. Ash topped the Motors at bat with two doubles and two singles in five times. Calhoun and Smith each got a two bagger and two singles while Foley, Kearns and Whaley also safely. Jack Kitchen got both Whaley being two passers. The Radio's Ash and Konopka, Konopka and Murphy stood out.

Gray led off with a scratch hit to third and he stole but died on second. Next hostage saw Ford strike across and McIlroy walked, went to second and Barclay to first on Whaley's interference. Gray's home on Calhoun's single. A walk to Green in the third, Ford's hit in the fourth and Green's life on an error in the fifth came to naught as they set their other mates in the ninth. Roy Smith was safe on a miscue, moved up on Ash's single, took third on an infield out and scored on Ford's fly to centre and grounded out one two three for the last three innings. Calhoun's single an out and Foley's double gave the Petes one in the first. They added three next time up, singles by Burton, Ash, Calhoun and Foley while Weir died on first out figuring in them. An error, out and double by Ash and Whaley set their fifth run in the third. Blanked in the fourth the Lee lads repeated one in the fifth. Kearns hitting safely, stealing and going to third on an out and scoring on Ash's double. Two counted in the sixth on a walk, wild pitch and doubles by Calladine and Kearns, Burton doubled, moved to second on Ash's hit and tallied on an out. The final three came in the eighth with a walk out on singles by Murphy, Burton and Kitchen, and doubles by Ash and Whaley along with a boot.

RADIOS HAVE TO WIN ON TUESDAY

Peterboro Will be Opposition And Locals Will be Fighting

Smarting under two consecutive defeats at the hands of the Oshawa and Peterboro clubs, the Stewart-Warners meet the Peterboro Petes in a regular C.O.B.L. twilight fixture at the Exhibition Park on Tuesday night. Having played but per cent baseball in the league thus far, the local Radios have their backs to the wall and intend to give the Petes a second trouncing, after the one-sided defeat handed the locals in Peterboro on Saturday. Doubtlessly Knotty Lee will throw his ace righthander "Spook" Scriver in against the Radios with hopes of annexing a second consecutive victory, while Coach Mills may deem it advisable to throw Art Calhoun right back at the Petes, one to hit his showing on the mound in Belleville, versus the Petes during their last appearance here, while on the other hand Jack "Jolter" Williams may get the pitching assignment of the day with Ernie Smith being retained for relief purposes.

"Batter Up"

The Peterboro club has been strengthened by the recent acquisition of Sig Konopka, their star shortstop of 1934, who has been shifted to the infield. Jack Burton, Monty Kane, Konopka, backed by hitters like Tommy Foley, Murphy, Kearns, Calladine and Whalley make the Petes a powerful threat. While the Radios have every confidence they can subdue, now they have shaken two bad games out of their system.

As pointed out by Earl "Sonny" Green after Saturday's defeat in Peterboro, Well boys, that's better than we did the first game in Peterboro last year, when they trimmed us 12 to 1", quoth Sonny as he referred to the 12 to 2 drubbing the Petes handed the Radios on Saturday. An assignment of eight fine new balls arrived in Belleville on Saturday and after being christened in Peterboro, are expected to ring loudly with base hits against the Petes here on Tuesday evening. Large crowds are attending local games, so 'tis advisable to come early and avoid the rush.

OUTING HELD AT OAK LAKE

Promptly at 9.15 A.M. on Saturday morning a regular caravan of motorcars assembled at the Y. M. C. A. on Campbell St. in order to transport the members of the two Saturday Morning Classes, the Preps and Junior School, to Oak Lake for a picnic outing. Following an enjoyable drive to Mr. Bird's popular recreational centre at Oak Lake, some fifty odd boys proceeded to make things merry. Organized into groups by Secretary J. E. Shorey, and Physical Director Morden, the boys were soon employed in various sports, baseball, water pitching teams, boating expeditions etc. Then with the near approach of the dinner hour, practically all the boys indulged in a dip in the clear lake waters. The program of the morning proved quite sufficient to put a keen edge to the appetites of all present and how the boys did lay to this latter task.

Mid-afternoon the cars, which conveyed the boys to the scene of festivities returned for their respective load and arriving back at the Y. M. C. A. the picnickers all pronounced the outing a real success. Both the boys and the employed officers of the Association are greatly indebted to the following citizens, who very kindly assisted in the conveying of the group to Oak Lake and back: Miss Edith Clare, Mrs. Chas. Cameron, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Mr. R. F. Jennings, Mr. Leo Riggs, Mr. Joseph Imlah.

Mel Harder of Cleveland Robbed of No-Hit Game by Dinky Roller Through Short

Double Win by Indians Helps Team to Close on Tigers

GIANTS CLIMB

Increase Margin in National Over Pirates And Cards

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr)
(Associated Editor Sports Writer)

When practically all the hitters in both major leagues are off on a slugging spree, Mel Harder can check one group of them with a nearly perfect pitching performance, stands out like the proverbial sore thumb. The "standout" in this case is Mel in Harder, who, at 25, is one of the veterans of the Cleveland roster.

In ten major league games yesterday—the first Sunday of the season—doubleheaders have been permitted—the hitters bracked out a total of 223 hits but only one of them was made off Harder's delivery. In the second inning of Cleveland's opening game against the Red Sox, Ellsy Miller swung at a bad one and managed to connect for a dinky single that slipped between Bill Knickerbocker and "Bad News" Sale for a single, that spoiled a no-hit game.

The rest of the way Harder, winning his sixth victory of the season, kept the Sox away from first base, with four passes while the Indians smacked Lefty Grove for a 6-4 victory. Thus they went on to win the second clash 9-3, poling out 15 blows, while Willis Hudlin was being routed in touched for eleven.

Margin is Cut

The only double triumph in the series for the Cleveland Indians to clip Detroit's third place margin to a half game even though the Tigers scored seven runs in the second and walloped the Athletics 13-3, while Schoolboy Rowe hurled six-hit ball. Hank Greenberg and Rob Johnson maintained their tie for the home run lead, when each connected with a circuit wallop.

The Yankees and White Sox suffered a greater reverse when their win bill was shot out in the fourth inning of the opener after a record of 30,000 had watched the Yanks build up a big lead. The Chicago White Sox made the high spots in the day's slugging, when Washington won the opener 10-9 with a 11-hit attack of Johnny Stone, and the Browns came back from a 10-2 licking to win the second them they made 37 assisting hits.

Giants Climb

The shorter National League program was just another story. The Giants are on the climb. The league leaders hopped on Phil Collins for six hits and a 5-3 victory over the Phillies. Boston and Cincinnati broke even after scoring joyfully and recorded practically no progress down the Reds won the first game of a doubleheader 7-6 and the Braves countered with 7-4 triumph.

Failing miserably at the bat, especially in the early stages, the Stewart-Warners looked anything but champions in the afternoon on Saturday, Big Russ Kitchen, with pocketing his high spitball with deadly effect in his pocketing, literally stood the Radios on their proverbial ear and let them down with four small singles and two runs, while the Petes made the most of their five two local mounddsmen garnering 18 safe hits, eight of them eight healthy clouts which netted exactly one seven dozen runs. On paper this would look as though the local pitching and fielding was woefully weak, but such was not altogether the case. Four or two shaky hits at the opportune time, would have been the means of the Petes not burying anything but good ball, despite the fact that the Radios made no four stingy hits. The balloon went up in the third, and all over a scarcely pitched ball game. Burton perched on first, Ash tried to sacrifice by bunting but failed, and Calhoun raced for the initial sack and the ball settled down the first base line for a "hit". From then on it was just a parade of Knotty Lee's hickory-wielders from the bench to the plate or around the base path, which ever way you felt. The Petes scored in every single innings except the fouth.

Saturday's loss sustained by the Radios drops them into a tie with the Petes for second place in the league standing, with Oshawa now leading the parade. The locals have dropped two straight games, solely through inability to hit the pellet. On Saturday Big Radio was unable to find the range of the plate, the management being told that such would surely help battle prospects. Well now the Radios are in a tough spot as they meet the Petes here on Tuesday night in a twilight fixture, at which time the sole possession of second place will be at stake. Doubtlessly Knotty Lee will throw his ace righthander Scriver on Tuesday, while Coach Mills has Jack Williams up his sleeve, with Williams and Big Russ Kitchen will be tossed right back at the Petes on Wednesday night.

It begins to look as though the Radios' sterling corps of either pitch shut-out but or lose their game. On June 1st in Oshawa Ernie Smith was nicked for three in one single counter and lost. To date the Radios have won two games, all of which were shut-outs hurled by Williams and Calhoun, the former blanking the Ponies one to nil on two different occasions, as Calhoun applied the whitewash brush to the Petes, 7 to 0. If the locals expect their hurlers to win all of their games, well it just ain't going to do all. For instance the local bench was as quiet as a tomb on Saturday, only one or two voices being heard above a whisper. It must be grateful that the Radios have been hitting the ball high up of late, but they are not hitting them far away for base hits, and that's what wins baseball games, they tell us.

Oh well, Saturday's game is now ancient history and all the Radios have to do is win on the home diamond on Tuesday night, when Knotty Lee's "motor-boats" and all will be forgiven. As Coach Mills remarked after the game, players are not sticking out very often and we are hitting the ball hard, but just can't seem to hit 'em safe. The boys will eventually land some of their clouts on safe territory and when they do well just watch the parade of pitchers some of these clubs in the league will have to trot out." Incidentally the O.B.A.A. passed Big Konopka's contract on to Peterboro, and with the return of the ex-Detroit infielder, the Petes played bang-up ball on Saturday, giving Kitchen marvelous support, while after the game the paramount reason that Kitchen was returned the winning laurels.

It begins to look as though Clem Bowler's Aajmaas are the class of the local Senior Softball loop. Their victory over the Alemites on Saturday evening was the fourth straight. Incidentally two games are scheduled in this loop tonight with Young Canada meeting the Aajmaas at Central Park, while Tweed journeys to Redneraville.

Did you know that the longest game in the major league was the 26-inning, 1 to 1 tie between Brooklyn and Boston Nationals, which occurred on May 1, 1920.

Local sportsmen is all agog over the possibilities of seeing Frankie Genovese, the ex-featherweight boxing champion of Canada, in action at the Arena next Friday night. Genovese is well known in professional boxing circles throughout the Dominion and if the attendance warrants Friday night's card above, of professional wrestling and boxing, this feature will be repeated with the well known Italian scrapper coming to Belleville. Genovese is fighting a ten round bout with an opponent yet to be named, the Kiwanis Club announced today. Following this, two one hour limit wrestling bouts will be staged, the first one to be a special, tomorrow. Incidentally this boy Elmo Saidore, who is reputed to be over five feet in appearance and demonstrated the Indian Deathlock with precision on Friday night, made a host of friends locally. "Bring Saidore back against some worthy opponent next week or two, remains to be seen, but he's surely a crowd pleaser.

HENN'S TRIPLES WIN FOR AAJMAAS

Knocks in Three Runs And Plays Smart Ball in Field

Clem Bowler's Aajmaas continued their winning streak in the local Senior Softball loop when they downed the Alemites by the score of 9 to 7 at Central Park on Saturday night. Behind steady pitching on the part of Johnnie Bawden, the Aajmaas overcame the Alemite's early lead and sewed up the final in the sixth, never to be headed. It was the Aajmaas sixth win in seven starts.

Bawden struck out seven, while Don Ridley, his opponent on the mound mowed whiffed six, but Ridley was plenty wild, he walking one Aajmaas batter, while Bawden passed five. Timely hitting with runners in scoring position gave the Aajmaas the edge. The Alemites opened furiously when they scored four runs in the initial frame, three on Bob Senda's triple, and he subsequently crossed the plate himself. Only in the fifth did the "lubricants" threaten again, but two strike outs ended their chances. With, three runs in the fourth and again three more in the fifth, the Aajmaas drew up even with the Alemites and assured themselves of victory with Ted Henn's mighty triple lager.

Daily Short Story

"SPITE!"

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

To thousands of gushing feminine hearts Harvey Deane is the acme of masculine pulchritude.

To Harvey Deane himself he is a pretty good fellow, too, for what young man, suddenly elevated from obscurity to fame, can stand the adoration of the public without a certain amount of egotism?

In short, Harvey Deane is a movie actor. A pretty good one at that.

The young hero of the screen, resplendent in a pale green silk dressing gown and puffing absently on a monogramed cigarette, was lying comfortably in an armchair in his rooms at the Kingsley Hotel. There was a slight smile of satisfaction on his lips as he smoked.

Life was pretty good for all. A lot had happened in the past few years. From a heel to a hero on the cross of the war.

Just five years before he had lived in this same hotel. He had spent endless days haunting the casting offices to receive that one heart-breaking word, "nothing." He had eaten in dog-carts and considered steak just something to dream about. Now he could buy a restaurant.

Few days he had spent in this very hotel pressing his one good suit, so that he might be presentable, all came back to him as if it were only yesterday. The time he got a small part in a show and then the backer got mad at his girl friend who was taking the lead. It was the end of that show and back to the streets for Harvey Deane.

It was the profile that did it. And the smile, that no woman in the right sense could resist, helped a lot, too. Harvey Deane gazed into the mirror on the wall. He was well satisfied with what he saw there, and for the first time, apparently, he became aware that he had something.

"I say, Harvey," said the visitor, "what's the trouble?"

"Trouble? Oh! Oh! Yeah. Trouble. Yes Fred."

"I should say so. I've been trying to talk to you for five minutes."

"I didn't hear you."

"That's evident."

The young movie actor gazed at Bill Daniels, his companion, for some moments. Finally he spoke.

"What were you asking me?"

"I was just asking you why you put up at this hotel. There are far better ones in New York.

"Afford! Say, I could buy this joint with my pocket money."

"Sure, sure," said Daniel reassured. "Now, what I mean. Why stay here?"

Harvey Deane made a grand gesture as he swung his right arm around in front of his face. He let his bejewelled timepiece and stifled a yawn.

"I wasn't going to tell anyone, yet," he stated, "but as long as you asked me now, there is no sense in waiting for the party tonight.

"Is it a party? Have you fondness for this hotel?"

"In a way it is neither," Deane stated. "But it might be called a secret, for I haven't told anyone as yet. Certainly I have no fondness for this dump and I'll tell you why.

"Five years ago, before the general public became aware of my historic ability, I lived here. As any struggling young artist I was frightfully poor, and I knew I had a front to maintain. It was here that I lived as I spent a month looking for a job and it was here that I came back at night to assuage my disappointment in sleep.

"Finally just before I got my first chance in Hollywood, I did not have even rent money. I was ejected. It was then that I resolved, that, if I ever became a success, I would come back here in all my glory and here I am!"

"Spite, eh?"

"Good For Business."

"If you want to put it that way, yes. Of course, as you must be well aware, the management is glad to have me here. It is good for business."

"Yeah," said Daniel dryly. "I get what you mean. So what?"

"Just this. When I throw my party tonight I'm going to send champagne by the bagful. And each time I'll put my name on the order, so the manager will know to see it. It will be my big moment of revenge."

Harvey Deane, immaculate in full dress, moving out into the middle of the floor at 12 o'clock that night. The guests were in a jubilant mood. It was the big moment of the party as it height and exemplified the feeling that had been up his hand for silence and shouted, "Folks," he said, "this is the biggest moment of my life. Even yesterday I was thrown out of this hotel for not paying my rent and here I have come back to stay for good. Though I am famous, I am not above condescending to those who helped me when I was down and out. I have known before. I am modest only in helping the management to crush those who in their animosity towards them for their treatment of me harbor a grudge against a celebrity."

The movie star beamed in uncontrolled egotism. It paid to have your friends think you democratic. He would get him no little publicity. His guests applauded his speech and he raised his hand again for silence. He started to speak again but a knock on the door interrupted him.

"Do me who it is," he commanded his butler quickly. The door opened and a fat individual bustled into the room.

"You Deane?" asked the newcomer.

"Quite," said Harvey with poise that comes only to actors.

"Well," stated the fat man heatedly, "pack up and get out. We have a right to crowd in this hotel. You're making too much noise."

Little Benny's Note Book

Yesterday afternoon me and pop and ma was taking a week an se-cond of me helping in a store and pop not feeling like closing the sparrow, and ma said, O, here's a opportunity.

That's not an uncommon phrase common in a city of this size, pop said, and ma said, I mean there's something I wanted and go in a drugstore, now what was it?

I'd better say, pa, pop said, and ma said, it won't do you any good, have it on the tip of my tongue. It'll just put my memory about a week back on it. I know I mite forget it, so I associated it with the word drug-store. Now, what could I buy in a drug-store that's associated with liberty? she said.

A bottle of shampoo, pop said. It releases a lot of lather, in other words it gives soap suds their liberty, he said, and ma said, my goodness what a far-fetched comparison. It wasn't boric acid and it wasn't milk of magnesia, she said.

Was it cawfy drops? pop said, and ma said, No, what have cawfy drops in common with liberty pray?

Haven't they deprived thousands of little cawffs, of their liberty? pop said, and ma said, That's even more ridiculous. It wasn't either face powder or shoe powder, she said.

O, ma, I bet it was mouth powder, you have to take it in the library of reiring to the bathroom to use it, I said, and ma said, Don't be silly, how preposterous. It wasn't cleaning cream, she said.

It mite of been writing ink, pop said. One bottle of ink and a fountain pen and liberty, in other words free from its prison in the mitut, he said, and ma said, It was postage stamps, that's what it was, postage stamps.

Liberty, for Pete sake? pop said, and ma said, Why of course. The druggist sells them to you without exier charge, doesn't he? she said.

Yes yes go on, pop said, and um said, Well, that's a free service, in other words you have the freedom of that little country, and where be freedom if it's not liberty?

I wish I knew, pop said, and um sent in to buy some stamps and the drug store man said he didn't have any.

Claim Greater Efficiency from New Method of Artificial Respiration

Red Cross of Denmark Adopt Invention of Holger Nielson

ABOVE are shown the important positions in the new Holger Nielsen artificial respiration method which has been adopted officially by the Danish Red Cross and which is said to be more efficient than the Schaeffer method now employed. UPPER LEFT, the starting position, with body of victim outstretched, head on hands. Operator assumes position at head, can kneel or ground, either extended to balance (see diagram). UPPER RIGHT, the second motion, extending arms as shoulder blades with hands. LOWER RIGHT, the "lift," in which hands are slid from shoulder blades to arm pits, and body slightly lifted to permit fullest chest expansion.

By H. WALTER PYE

(From an interview with Herr E. von Holstein Rathlou, Member of Board of Director, Danish Red Cross; professor in Electro-Technique, University of Technology of Copenhagen.)

London.—A new discovery has given to artificial respiration, so important a safeguard on our beaches and in many of our industries, a new high-level of efficiency and simplicity. Mr. Holger Nielsen, a Danish sports inspector, has recently made public the details of his new method which experienced Danish authorities affirm surpasses the universally known Schaeffer method by 90 per cent. efficiency of respiration.

It is based on the principle that when treating a senseless person just rescued from drowning it is most urgent to clear his or her lungs of the noxious substance filling it—in this case, water. Many years ago Inspector Nielsen noted that the two methods in most common use, the Schaeffer and the Silvester, both invented by great English physicians, could at best force a respiration equal only to the normal, uncomplicated breathing of the average, healthy man. He concluded that to cleanse the lungs thoroughly and speedily it would be necessary to force respiration more similar to that deep breath we take when we expand our chests to its fullest capacity.

Use Deep Breathing Principle

We have learned by frequent experience that a single deep breath cleanse our lungs for us and freshen our vitality. Holger Nielsen proceeded to the difficult task of applying such deep breathing to a second, involuntary respiration. Difficult, because breathing is perhaps the most purely mechanical function of the patient's torso from that takes place in our bodies; and made doubly difficult because the lungs of a senseless man will accept only so much air as the method employed will force him to do. And when we consider that it has taken over three hundred years for science to reach the point of seemingly perfect forced respiration, we are able to realize to the full the enormity of the task the modern investigator sets for himself.

In the early years of the present century, Sir Edward Schaeffer invented the famous system bearing his name which has today become so well known that it requires no description.

Schaeffer Method Simple

With the universal acceptance of the Schaeffer method all the world profited. Here was an ideal method so simple that almost any man or woman, working without assistance could with patience restore lost breath in an almost miraculous manner. It was so generally excellent that it seemed hardly able to bear improvement. But the glorious confusion of a thoughtful sports inspector caused him to note the one subtle lack of Sir Edward's method and from that observation has been built the present method through years of patient research.

Only in regard to the prone posture of the patient's body are the two methods similar. For in the position of the operator, in his movements and in his speed of working, they differ radically.

Kneels at Head

With the Holger Nielsen method the operator kneels at the head of the patient, instead of astride his hips, puts pressure on the shoulder blades instead of low down on the rib structure and at the conclusion of each pressure permits his hands to slide to the patient's arms and raises them very slightly. By this action, the diaphragm becomes largely relieved, the operator removes the weight of the patient's torso from his chest and makes it expand so greatly as to cause the lungs to accept almost double the quantity of air that can be taken under any other method. This slight lift lessens the number of forced respirations to the minute but causes an increase in the depth of each breath of a full 90 per cent. over the Schaeffer method.

Tested and Proved

This is the crux of the Nielsen method which gives to artificial respiration a hitherto undreamed of efficiency by, one—evacuating all of the noxious substance, whether water or gas, from the lungs more rapidly than was heretofore considered possible and, two—by causing the natural process of breathing to be set up correspondingly faster.

Upon its successful completion, the inventor turned it over to Professor Arnold Krogh, Nobel Prize winner, of the Rockefeller Institute in Copenhagen, an investigator famous for his researches on the respiratory processes.

Professor Krogh tested it exhaustively, on actually insensible persons, and as the results of his tests gave the method his unqualified endorsement.

Following Professor Krogh's endorsement, the new method was officially investigated and approved by a special commission of trained men drawn from the faculty of medicine of the University of Copenhagen, the state board of health, the Danish Red Cross, the Danish life-saving association and other interested bodies.

Immediately following this official approval, the Danish Red Cross formally adopted the new method and ordered its instruction given to all bathing beaches and in all industries.

Complete rules have been published in a Danish Red Cross booklet. They appear in full elsewhere on this page.

Important

Artificial resuscitation is to be carried on well after the patient gives the first signs of life by exhibiting the ability to breathe slightly by himself, but from that point on the operator must discontinue the second half of the movements, the "lifts." The operator proceeds only to apply and relieve pressure on the shoulder blades, continuing the movements to 8 to 10 times per minute.

For if the "lift" is continued after the point the patient can be very seriously over-ventilated causing a great diminishment of the carbon-dioxide in the blood, CO_2, and resulting finally in a fatal inability to breathe at all.

If a carbogen apparatus is employed the "lift" may be continued, but only in this one circumstance. And only if the apparatus is in the hands of a trained operator. Without the apparatus the operator "lift" must be discontinued at once on perceiving the first signs of life in the patient.

Couldn't Sleep for Aching Back

New Foods Rise Thanks to Dodd's

"I had kidney trouble and got on down," writes Mrs. Alex. Hurley, Jamestown, Ont., "Everything seemed wrong. My back ached. I could scarcely straighten up and I could not sleep. Never had any success until I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. After about six pills I felt brighter and when I had taken a box I felt like a new person. Now I feel fine and nothing worries me and my work seems no trouble to do. I sleep well and am always hungry for my meals." 96

Dodd's Kidney Pills

Eight Times per Minute

The operator repeats these double movements seven or eight times the minute. The first half -the pressure on the shoulder blades, must last for 2½ seconds while he is counting to four and at four he must swing backward and grasp the arms. The "lift" of the arms continues during 2½ seconds, while operator counts from five to eight, and at the count of eight he returns to the starting position. The count must be made slowly and evenly and the eighth count should be made seven seconds after the first. This allows ample time for the even, slow swinging from pressure to "lift" position and back.

If necessary, operator may employ a watch during the beginning of the resuscitation.

The treatment must not be given up until at least four hours of steady, unremitting resuscitation has been tried, unless, of course, the patient commences to breathe strongly and naturally of his own volition.

The tests of the method in form and rhythm, A really rhythmic, soft, rolling, movement can be learned by anyone. Only the operator makes certain of the balance of his position, "this, of course, may be slightly adjusted during the first few double movements, until he finds himself working without effort.

FOR ANNUAL MATCHES AT BISLEY

LEAFS SPLIT A TWIN BILL

Lose First to Syracuse 14-8 But Win Nightcap 7 to 3

By The Associated Press

Montreal Royals will always remember yesterday as the day on which they collected 41 hits and 34 runs to win two ball games from Albany Senators by the score of 24-8 and 10-2.

It was some ball game, with the hits ringing off bats like bullets coming from a machine gun.

Gus Dugas, a former Senator, drove in a total of 12 runs, six in each game. He hit a homer with the bases loaded in the first encounter.

The game reminded some of the boys of that game last July when Montreal defeated Buffalo 29-3 in the first game of a double bill and then lost the second 4-1, dribbling down the fine line.

In another double header yesterday, Newark Bears did some limity hitting to defeat Rochester Red Wings 9-5 in the first game but they dropped the second 5-3. Crabtree and Peel bill a couple for the circuit to counterbalance Dugas' 6-for-9 with.

Buffalo split a double header with Baltimore, losing the first 11-10 and winning the second 3-1. The second game was a tight pitchers' duel between Joe Harris and Sheriff Blake. The first game was a wild hitting affair.

At Syracuse, Toronto Leafs and the Chiefs took one game each at a double attraction. The Chiefs won the first 14-9 and the Leafs in the second 7-3.

GOLF

The ever increasing popularity of the club was shown by the big turnout of lady members on their field day. No less than thirty-three ladies competing in the morning and afternoon games. The joint captains, Mrs. A. P. Allen and Mrs. W. H. Reeves promptly started the first couple off at 9.00 for the morning game. Some excellent golf was played and many attempts to beat "par" were made by the competitors in their "first field day." Those playing in the second and third "flights" are to be congratulated on the improvement they have made, many of their "cards" being much lower than they were last year. Their handicaps will be reduced to the number of competitions held during the year and also to the advice and help given to them by the club's professional, Jock Mitchell.

Prizes and ties served to over fifty members in their newly decorated clubhouse. The following are the results of the competitions:

Dos Fine pitching performance by Jack Murphy of Oak's Terriers and no longer do Aylmer combine hold undisputed possession of first place in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League's Western group. Murphy duly overpowers but Aylmer a good turn Saturday.

Jim shutting out the Combiners 3-0, he lifted the Terriers into a strategic position at the top of the Eastern division. He made it possible for London and Strathroy to get into a three-way tie with Aylmer in the other section.

Murphy allowed nine hits, four more than his own team was able to get from the gallery of Lampman, but the Terriers bunched theirs with good effect. London laid down a 24-hit barrage that brought a 16-1 victory over Preston and Glen Ford kept pace by defeating Ingersoll 4-2.

Guelph Maple Leafs and Brantford manager to commit eight errors between them and the Leafs dropped an 11-9 decision because they made the majority of the misues. Dunlaps defeated Hamilton Victorias 6-3 and Hamilton Moodie-Tigers whipped Kitchener-Waterloo 11-6 in other Intercounty fixtures.

Niagara Falls' two entries in the Niagara District Senior kept right on skidding. the Cataracts losing 10-7 to St. Catharines and Merchants losing 4-3 to Merriton. Louis Ceccio pitched four-hit ball for the merchants, but two of the hits were doubles and another a home run by Jerry Mesiton.

Truth Through? His Records Remain

By Central Press Canadian

New York—Moving into the twilight of a brilliant baseball career, George Herman "Babe" Ruth is leaving behind an amazing record of achievement to attest his prowess as a player and his place in the halls of diamond fame as the greatest gate attraction in history.

In an atmosphere of intrigue that surrounds Ruth's unfortunate departure from the ranks of the Boston Braves, the glory that was Babe's has somehow been shoved into the background. Even the battle smoke has cleared, however, the record-smashing contributions of the greatest slugger of all time, will stand unsullied.

They say that baseball was good to Ruth. It was good to him only in the fact that it paid him returns that were in keeping with his worth. He was paid off in thousands. In return he paid back the club owners in millions. His own share was only a fraction of that accumulated for others. His own teammates other than ball players also profited. Salaries were measured in terms of Babe's pay envelope and as the Sultan of Swat drew fatter contracts, so did other players.

In his 22 seasons in major league baseball; 20 of them as a regular player and two more on part-time duty, Babe piled up no less than 76 records. The tattering Bambino himself the first time he broke 15 years ago for the then record purchase price of $125,000 and upset the baseball world with unheard-of feats in slugging, which helped organized ball to outgrow the grime of the 1919 world series scandal.

Was Great Pitcher

As a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox before he joined the Yanks as a fence buster and outfielder, Ruth set records that have long stood as on world series record. It was a world series game that he pitched for Dodgers in 1916. He holds the record for the most consecutive and consecutive scoreless innings as a pitcher in World series competition, totalling 29 2-3 innings in all.

It was not until 1919 that Ed Barrow, then manager of the Red Sox decided that Ruth's value as an outfielder to take full advantage of his mighty slugging talents, and he served to over fifty members in their newly decorated clubhouse. The following are the results of the competitions:

Babe Ruth may be through as a player since his dramatic flare-up and quick departure from the Boston Braves, but to thousands of boys and girls he is still the greatest hero baseball has. So he is assured (Left and below) as he arrives at his New York home after driving from Boston, even though he has retired, the great Bambino is still their idol.

Babe's records live on, and for the time being at least, he is still the idol of every red-blooded American and Canada and the United States.

Fortune—and Records Hit

It is estimated that Babe Ruth earned approximately $1,068,471 in his baseball career, first professional engagement with Baltimore in 1914 until his recent retirement. His top amount $642,000 was in salaries from the New York club during the years he reaped his $24,000 more. Exhibition baseball tours accounted for another $120,000. In addition there were thousands of dollars accumulated from manufacturers for testimonial, radio contracts and newspaper articles.

Some of his major records are:

Most homeruns—759.

Most homeruns in season—60.

Most runs in a season—177.

Most runs batted in—2,197.

Most bases on balls—2,056.

Most strikeouts—1,330.

15 MINE OFFICERS HELD AS HOSTAGES IN KANSAS MINE

300 Convicts Mutiny in Prison Coal Mine

TELEPHONES CUT

Officers Go Into Mine to Contact With The Prisoners

Lansing, Kas., June 18 (AP) — Three hundred and eighty-six convicts mutinied in the depths of the Kansas penitentiary coal mine here today, made hostages of 11 guards, and defiantly held out against prison authorities who sought to end the strike.

The engineers cut off virtually all communication with the surface.

Warden Lewis E. Smith said he doubted the convicts had firearms or weapons other than clubs, rocks and possibly a few knives. The fate of the unarmed guards was unknown, prison officials expressed belief they would not be seriously harmed.

Apparently included among the hostages was a 12th prison official, superintendent Robert Murray who went down after the mutiny began because known, and, unarmed and alone, struck off into the 750-foot-deep level in an effort to negotiate with the miners. Several hours later he still was missing.

Deputy Warden Albert J. Graham, veteran of several prison breaks here, said he was not sure what the men were striking for.

He learned over the 'tel' and sought to learn from Guard C. E. Johnson, on the 730-foot level, what convicts were doing.

Gen. Guard Gives News

Johnson armed guard who had prevented the day shift of miners from entering the shaft, sent first word as the trouble in the mine.

When the last two men came down on the cage, he reported by telephone, they were met by three others who assisted them in piling empty mine cars on the cage to prevent its being returned to the surface.

Johnson fired his gun gun at the convicts when his armored guard box and they fled back into the mine. Johnson managed to free the air chart cage and that was the only means of entrance into the mine. The main shaft has been sealed and blocked. Johnson's telephone also was the only one in the mine and all others having been cut off.

Johnson said he and Guard Graham had left the unarmed guards held as hostages as follows: Fil Nathan Wolf, Mine Mgr.; John Hedgin, Levi Day, Mill Guard, Jesse Hardin, John Hedgin, Gebe Kamershack, Dave White, Ed Hamilton, Joe Studdard and I Frank Sawaski.

No Food in Mine

Graham commented that the convicts' position by saying they had no food in the mine and that the only thing they got was they would stage a smudge fire to drive Johnson and his crew from the gun cage they occupied. The latter possibility was seemingly ruled out, however, when they began sending ammunition supplies down to Johnson, who stored in the cage.

Johnson and his crew are equipped with gas masks which would be effective against a smudge, the warden said.

Although no demands had come from the convicts, prison officials expressed the opinion the outbreak was inspired by regulations voted by the Kansas legislature which limited reduction of prison terms for good behavior and fir coal production above the minimum set for each convict.

Under the new regulations, a convict may not earn good time in excess of one day for each day's confence. The acts for which good time is allowed were also limited by the legislature.

Peat as Cheaper Fuel Recommended in Report On Use of Peat Bogs

H. G. Acres, Hydraulic Engineer, Peat Expert Gives Finding

PECO-GRAM PROCESS

Occupational Opportunities Seen by Engineer

Ottawa, June 18—(CP)—Effective use of the peat bogs of Ontario and Quebec to provide cheaper fuel and furnish employment is proposed in a report prepared by H. G. Acres, hydraulic engineer and peat expert of Niagara Falls, Ont., who has investigated processes of briquetting peat in Scandinavia, Germany and England. He deals extensively with the peco-gram process.

Mr. Acres concludes his report as follows:

"Can the peat bogs of Central Canada, or any of them, be made to produce in volume a hard, transportable fuel, sufficiently high in effective heat value, in proportion to the labor to enable it to be sold successfully in the domestic fuel markets of Ontario and Quebec?

Reported Peat

"There are two elements to the answer, one having to do with the physical qualities of briquetted peat as a fuel and the other having to do with its status as a saleable commodity.

"The answer to the first part of the question is that the peco-gram process will produce a hard, transportable fuel, that its heating value when on its bulk is such that it can be readily and conveniently used as a general purpose household fuel, and for the reason of its special qualities, briquetted peat has a pound for pound parity with cannel coal as a fireplace fuel.

Costs $4.57 to Produce

"The answer to the second part of the question is that the production of the assumed heat value ratio of 12 to 1 in terms of equivalent of a ton of 2,000 pounds of briquetted peat in order to deliver the same amount of effective heat heat as a ton of coal would obtain from 2,000 pounds of briquetted peat and the delivery of this ration to the herein estimated production cost of $4.57 per ton and thereby foregoing any prospective benefit which might be derived from the process because of its greater efficiencies, or from reduced manufacturing cost and delivery to the cage of briquetted peat in Ontario or Quebec becomes $6.85 per short ton. The cost of delivery of 2,000 pounds of anthracite coal would be $6.85.

Saleable Commodity

"Taking the delivered price range of prepared sizes of anthracite coal throughout Ontario and Quebec at $13.00 to $18.50 per short ton, this would mean a spread of $6.15 to $11.65 per ton for peat between production cost and delivered price.

"These figures would appear to indicate that briquetted peat fuel is a saleable commodity.

"Much depends on the final conclusion is that there exists in the province a prospective an opportunity to make effective use of the heat resources now lying dormant in the peat bogs of Quebec and Ontario, thereby achieving the double purpose of increasing local employment opportunities as well as the wealth of the communities at large."

CITY OF QUETTA, INDIA, ROPED IN

26,000 Persons Believed Killed in Recent Quake

Quetta, India, June 18 (AP)—A double fence of barbed wire, manned by military and civil police, today encircled the ruins of this "City of Death" where 26,000 persons died in earthquakes.

Within Indian made rose wiredly from loud-speakers, all persons from the outside world were forbidden entrance until the danger of an epidemic from decaying bodies has passed. Many bodies still lay buried in the debris.

Provided with barbed wires, turbanned figures moved easily among the rickety shelters of refuge camps in the city. Guarding the entrance to a temporary motion picture theatre were officers with rifles, restore the confidence and shattered nerves of visitors.

Salvage operations, begun May 4 by soldiers wearing gas masks were suspended owing to the peril of infection from the heaped-up bodies rotting beneath a merciless sun.

Beyond Quetta more than 100 villages were in ruins.

"TORTURE CULT" PAIR ARRESTED AFTER STORY TOLD

Musicians Claimed They Were Branded With Hot Iron

SCREAM WITH PAIN

Other Forms of Torture Told of Before Boys Released

Victoria, June 18—(CP)—Tale of torture, weird and fantastic as any ever brewed by those pastmasters of the art in medieval times, tumbled from the lips of two youthful Victoria musicians today and sent police on the trail of a "torture cult," that resulted in two arrests.

R. Burrett and P. Walker of East Smoke will appear in court later today on charges of wounding.

The arrests were made after Wilbert Lindstrom and Michael Share, 20-year-old Victorians, went to police.

Lured to the "torture barn" near Saanich by promises of work if they joined a secret organization, Lindstrom and Share told of being branded with the capitalization "O. C. N." of being hung by their hands or feet from beams until they screamed with pain, then cut down and made to run around the building wearing shoes and tight-fitting leggings through which thumbtacks had been pushed.

Those were but a few of the tortures devised for the amusement of the two who called themselves heads of the "cult," police said. Allan Rankin of Saanich said the two musicians told him.

Initiates Blindfolded

The initiates were bound and blindfolded and their mouths stuffed with a mixture of sand, salt and clay, then a gag was tied across their face in an effort to make them swallow. This was followed with a mouthful of powdered alum, which they were unable to spit out because of the cloth's packing and effect on the mouth tissues. Tufts of hair were then half pulled, half cut from their heads and they were tied their backs with other substances to irritate them.

Each initiate was taken blindfolded and thrown into a tent in the final act, then told to go home or threatened with harm if they did not keep silent.

Lindstrom is believed to have suffered most. He said he was forced to lie on the floor with one men sitting on his head and the other on his feet while a hot, hard, cold light of the moon bathed the scene. Then a red-hot poker seared into his flesh the letters "O. C. N." were seared into his flesh by a "branding" iron instrument, which had been heated over an oil burner.

Share managed to squirm around with the result the branding wounds were on his abdomen instead of the right side as intended and were not as deep as Lindstrom's.

Two other victims were treated in similar fashion, Chief Sankin said, but refused to make complaints. In case the treatment was not as severe as with the other three.

German Fleet Strength Will Not Exceed 35 P. C. Of British Naval Power

France, Italy Express Views on Naval Agreement

CATEGORY LIMIT

Imperial Aspirations of Germany Thought Definitely Going

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, June 18.—Conclusion of a naval agreement between Britain and Germany was formally reached today.

The basis of the agreement is that the total strength of Germany's fleet shall in no circumstances exceed 35 per cent of the British fleet.

The full delegations met at the foreign office. Sir Samuel Hoare, British secretary, and Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Italy, Ramsay MacDonald, First Lord of the Admiralty, were present with British experts. Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to Britain, headed the German delegation.

Agreement Reached Per Cent.

Several outstanding points still remain, to be settled. These, it was indicated, probably should not be difficult of solution. The conversations are expected to end on Friday.

It was authoritatively learned the agreement provides for a double limitation on the size of the German navy.

1.—A Global limit of 35 per cent. of British effective naval tonnage as determined by International agreement.

2.—A category limit of 35 per cent. with certain latitude allowed for transfer from one category to the other.

The first provision means Germany agrees to limit her total tonnage to 35 per cent of Britain's. The second means Germany cannot apply her total of 35 per cent to the construction of one particular category of warship.

The latter is the main difficulty confronting the two delegations. The British delegates pressed for category limitations lest Germany's tonnage advantage under the agreement might be used to cover the sea with German battleships.

Italy today presenting a note to Britain reserving her views on the Anglo-German naval pact, but saying she was willing to discuss the matter at any time. The French note was said to have declared Germany's naval rearmament a matter for discussion among signatories of the Washington Naval Treaty.

France also intended to consult the British Embassy in Paris. She was said to have declared that she renounce her existing Naval treaty obligations and would have maintained German rearmament under the treaty air should be considered jointly.

Diplomats expressed the opinion Great Britain would lay down seven battleships, 22 cruisers and a large number of destroyers in the next five years. Officials' confirmation of British building plans was unavailable.

Strike Committee Moves to Ottawa At Gov't Expense

By SAM G. ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Regina, June 18.—(CP)—Eight representatives of 2,000 striking Relief camp workers prepared today to travel to Ottawa to submit grievances of the men against camp conditions to the Federal Government. Their comrades will wait the result in Regina.

An agreement was reached last night between the committee representing the strikers and Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, and Hon. Robt. Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

While the committee negotiations reached their final stage, the strikers paraded through city streets for a while in a light drizzle of rain, but the railway yards where the strike planned to defy police interference and leave aboard a freight train if negotiations failed, a large crowd of Regina police had gathered.

DEPOSITS RAISED MILLION—HEPBURN

More Than Six Million Now Subscribed For New Loan

Toronto, June 18—(CP)—By noon today the subscription lists of Ontario's new $20,000,000 bond issue had been disposed of during the morning, Premier Hepburn announced, and the total subscription to date, including that of yesterday which exceeded $2,500,000 reached more than $6,000,000.

All these bonds were sold through the treasury offices in Queen's Park, officials being unable to learn the extent of business in the 21 treasury branches throughout the province.

The Premier estimated, however, deposits in these branches had increased by about $1,000,000 since the new loan was opened.

Subscriptions will be received for two to two and one-half per cent.

Appointment of one manager in each new branch, at London, was announced. The position was given to J. A. Taylor, former branch manager for a London Trust Company.

Branches will be established at Niagara Falls and Port Erie, the Premier said, and Provincial Architects will leave tomorrow for a tour of inspection of sites in these two location of branches. North Bay is considered likely for a treasury branch, said Mr. Hepburn, and tects will also visit other northern points.

Another office will be established at the border of the lakes but Mr. Hepburn did not specify whether it would be in Port Arthur or Fort William.

The office will act also as a distributing office for amusement tax tickets.

JAPANESE, CHINESE WITHDRAW TROOPS

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

Tientsin, June 18.—Veteran Japanese troops of the Tientsin garrison, departed for Tangku today, returning to their base in their normal strength of about 900, while Chinese troops also continued to withdraw in great numbers.

Tokyo's military and naval officers asserted, however, that Japan was persisting in their concentration along the Great Wall as a "precautionary measure".

The Japanese military watched the Chinese troop operations closely and reported they were freely over the province from Tientsin.

War Debts to U. S. First To Be Settled

LONDON, June 18, — (CP)— Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that the same agreement, virtually cancelling the German War Reparations, cannot be finally ratified by the Great War Allies until their war debts to the United States be settled.

GREETING CARD MAILING RATE TO BE DISCUSSED

Postmasters Discuss Problem of Political Patronage

RIGHT OF APPEAL

Delegates Are Told No Official Need Fear New Governments

Members of the Ontario Branch, Canadian Postmasters' Association still hauls political patronage and interference exist in cases of postmaster dismissals, despite the fact that it was pointed out to the convention in the Hotel Quinte today that in all cases of dismissals are heard before commissioners appointed in each province for that purpose.

A resolution urging a public hearing of all dismissal cases was laid over for future consideration. It was further claimed that any postmaster who thinks he had been wrongfully dismissed has appeal his case direct to Ottawa. However, some members, claiming delay and interference in connection on the part of politicians, would have the resolution passed.

President's Opinion

The same impression arose that delegates feared that with a change of government they might lose their offices. W. Whitefield, president of the Ontario Branch, suggested: "Any postmaster who believes himself politically need have no fear of a change of government. I don't think that would be a fair whole have any fear of a new government."

What the postmaster feared most, thought G. A. Whitefield, secretary-treasurer of the branch, was the postmaster who would allow himself to assume his office as a candidate parliament to the disadvantages of the postmaster.

Cards in Open Envelopes

A resolution was passed by the resolutions committee recommending to the department that greeting cards in open envelopes be classed as first class mail, the stamp on which is being two cents to now and three cents as of town. This was tabled by the convention for consideration tomorrow.

Fraternal greetings were extended by Frank Wells, president of the Maritimes Branch, Philip Green, Prince Edward Island Branch, and H. McGowan, representing the Saskatchewan Branch.

Waterloo Fought 120 Years Ago Today

Story of Great Victory as First Told to British People by London Times in Issue of June 22nd 1815, Copy of Which Has Been Loaned to Ontario Intelligencer.

On Thursday evening, June 22nd, 1815, Major the Honourable H. Percy arrived with a despatch in London from Field Marshal the Duke of Wellington, to Earl Bathurst, Sir Majesty King George Third's Principal Secretary of State for War Department. This was published the following morning in the Page 3, in the London Gazette Extraordinary and the London Times stopped its press to insert a copy of the despatch.

Wellington's despatch was dated Waterloo, the day after the Battle of Waterloo which was fought on June 18th, just one hundred and twenty years ago today. It tells in detail the movements from June 15th with Napoleon collecting his corps between the Sambre and the Meuse. One of the lines which will live in British military annals reads: "In the meantime I had discted the whole army to march upon Quatre Bras." The attack by Napoleon on Prince Blucher at Sombref and the defeat of the enemy at Les Quatre Bras are then described and arrived by decided to fall back on Waterloo. Wellington's corresponding move on the part of the Duke, who retired from Les Quatre Bras to Genappe and thence to Waterloo which he reached on the morning of the 17th at 1m o'clock. Napoleon made no effort to follow the Prussians.

The despatch describes in detail Wellington's position at Waterloo, his forces and the attack at Hougoumont on the morning of the battle, a detachment from General Byng's Guards Brigade occupying the place. This position held during the day. Infantry attacks were the order of the day all through the day, British cavalry having opportunity to manoeuvre at a result. Wellington then tells of the final attack of the enemy and of the route.

Memorable Words

"These attacks were repeated till late in the evening, when finding the enemy made a desperate effort with the cavalry and infantry, supported by the fire of artillery, to force our left centre near the farm of La Have Sainte, which after a severe conflict was defended, and having observed that the troops retired from this attack in great confusion and that the march of General Bulow's corps by Euschi-

SEASON FOR FISH HATCHERY IS OVER

With tanks now empty, employees at the government fish hatchery are enjoying the first breathing spell since early spring. This year a higher than average amount of fry have been distributed from the plant. Besides a considerable number of lake trout, it was estimated today that 11,000,000 salmon fry have been distributed through the northern lakes of this district during the season.

TENDERS FOR FILL TO BE AWARDED SOON

Announcement of award of tender for a 20,000 yard fill to be made at the new government dock extension will be given out in a day or so, it was stated by Mr. Cleo Clarke, chairman of the Belleville Board of Harbor Commissioners, today. It is expected that work on the new fill will be started immediately upon receipt of the necessary approval from Ottawa. Several tenders had been placed for the work.

TURTLES REPORTED ON INCREASE HERE

Turtles, the scourge of good fishing grounds and making only next to carp as game fish destroyers are still up the Moira River to the bay of Quinte and local harbor, it is reported by fishermen. This year, perhaps owing to low water in the bay last year and favorable conditions, the turtle shell backs have shown remarkable gain in numbers.

NO SESSION OF POLICE COURT

Activities in and around local police circles were at a low ebb for the year today when no arrests were necessary for city during the past twenty-four hours. Seven transients secured a night's lodging at the police station last night, all being liberated and instructed to "move along" this morning. No one sought for accidents were reported on local streets or sidewalks during the past twenty-four hours, despite the heavy rainfall that ensued yesterday. No session of police court was held locally today, although Magistrate R. J. Deacon, K.C., is scheduled to preside in court at Trenton this afternoon.

HIGHWAY WORK PLANS AWAITED

"When will work be resumed on the Faulkner highway? I might as well ask you that question," commented Mr. Peter MacLaren, superintendent of construction on that project, Mr. MacLaren who has been billeted in the north, spent a brief business visit in the city on Saturday.

"My guess might be as good as yours, and I could say that it might or might not start again in the fall or the early part. But don't quote me as saying that."

HEAVY RAINFALL BENEFITS COUNTRY

In a drenching downfall which continued throughout the greater part of Saturday night, two inches of rain was received in this district yesterday. The rainfall which was officially registered at 1.84 inches was one of the heaviest on record. Soaked pastures today and fresher appearing garden plots in the city and country gave ample evidence of the benefit of the fall.

Obituary

LATE THOMAS V. DACK

The funeral of Thomas V. Dack took place from his late residence, 63 Sinclair Street, Monday afternoon. Service was conducted at the home by the Rev. G. G. Wright, Rector of Christ Church, assisted by the Rev. A. J. Geen. Many friends were present also a good representation of the veterans and Sons of England.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery, the service at the graveside being conducted by the Rev. G. G. Wright. The last rites of the Sons of England were conducted at the graveside by Leslie Emerson, George Barlow, Chaplain, of Oxford Lodge.

The bearers were Messrs. James Savage, Edgar Stapley and Walter Rose, representing the Sons of England; P. H. Tilley and George Elsley representing the Veterans and William Hunter representing the Order of the Moose.

There were many beautiful floral tributes.

LATE MRS. AGNES S. BROWN

Monday afternoon there was a very large attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Agnes S. Brown, late of 32 Ontario Street, which took place from the Martin Funeral Home, 203 Church Street.

The service which was very impressive, was conducted by the Rev. G. O. Wright, Rector of Christ Church, some of the older members of Christ Church choir and friends of the late Mrs. Brown, led in the singing of the hymns "All Saints on Earth in Concert Sing With Those Within Work is Done," and "Abide With Me."

At the conclusion of the church service the service of the Order Eastern Star was conducted by the following members of Belleville Chapter No. 56: Mrs. Ethel Adams, Worthy Matron; Mrs. Elsie Harmon, Associate Patron; Mrs. Thelma Liddle, Associate Matron, and the following representing the five Star Points: Mrs. Evelyn Aikman, Mrs. Harriet MacKelvaine, Mrs. Susie Washburn, Mrs. Mabel Davis and Mrs. Elsie Harmon. The chaplain was Mrs. Elizabeth Holst and the Marshal, Mrs. Mae Bilton.

The late Mrs. Brown was the widow of William John Brown, who was for some years chief of the Belleville fire department, and as an evidence of respect and esteem Chief William J. Lynch and representatives of the fire department attended the funeral in uniform.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery, the committal service being conducted by the Rev. O. O. Wright.

The bearers were members of the Order Eastern Star and were as follows: Messrs. E. T. Cherry, Past Patron; Evan Barlow, Past Patron; George Adams, Harry Sagar, Chas. Brown and Quintin Boyd, Past Patron.

MRS. HARRIET YOUNG

Mrs. Harriet Young passed away Monday afternoon, June 17th, in the residence of her niece, Mrs. Andrew Houle, 157 Neville Park Blvd., Toronto, for the past twelve years she resided with her nice Mrs. Irene Jenkins, 371 Bleecker Avenue, Belleville. Mrs. Young had been moving to Toronto. She is survived by one son James Young, of Spokane, Washington; four sisters Mrs. Minnie Curtis of Barrie, Ont., Mrs. Alma Thompson, of Edmonton, Mrs. M. McDonald of Los Angles, California, Mrs. Emma Lewis of Colorado; one brother, Mr. William Mayo of Los Angeles, California, and two nieces, Mrs. Irene Jenkins of Belleville, and Mr. Andrew Houle of Toronto.

The body of the late Mrs. Young was conveyed to Thomas C. Thompson's Funeral Home where it will rest until Thursday afternoon.

Funeral notice later.

LATE ALEXANDER R. FARGEY

Stirling, June 18.—Many friends and relatives from all parts of the County of Hastings, as well as from many distant places gathered to pay their final tribute at the funeral of the late Alexander R. Fargey, which took place on Thursday afternoon, June 13th, at his late residence in Stirling, under the direction of the Stirling I.O.O.F. No. 239, of which the deceased was an active member since the time of his initiation which took place in the year of 1897. He was also a very active church worker, being a member of the session, and chairman of the Board of Managers of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. J. A. Kolfend conducted the service and delivered an inspiring message.

Left to mourn his loss are, the widow, Mrs. Alice (Miller) Fargey, three daughters, Mrs. R. G. Stroods, Newton Highlands Mass.; Helena Fargey, Hamilton; Mrs. Christina Fargey, at home; and four sons, Harold, of Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Fred A., of Detroit, Mich.; Charles, of Toronto; Archibald, and John, at home. He also leaves one sister, Matilda Fargey, of Belleville, and one brother, Mr. Thos. L. Fargey, of Manitoba.

Many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held throughout the community.

The pall-bearers were: F. T. Ward, J. M. McGee, T. J. Scott, R. W. Mckleljohn, Robt. Eggleton and H. Ashley. Interment was made in the Stirling cemetery.

St. John's Church, Stirling, Celebrates 75th Anniversary

Rev. B. F. Byers, Former Rector, Addresses Congregation

Stirling, June 18.—On Sunday morning the large congregation gathered in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, to take part in the first of a series of divine services which mark the 75th year since the founding of the Church. Extensive preparations have been made by the various committees to make this unique celebration one of unusual interest. The celebration will consist of several outstanding midweek activities and special services of divine worship for two Sundays. On Sunday morning, Rev. B. F. Byers of Belleville, was the special speaker. Mr. Buyers, who ministered to the people of St. John's parish for nearly 38 years, retired two years ago. It was with great joy that his parishioners welcomed him back into their midst on this special occasion. Rev. J. McDonnell, present Rector, stated that "no introduction was necessary in this parish of Byers." For nearly half of the long existence of St. John's church Mr. Stirling he laboured tirelessly among its people. He had watched members of it grow up from the cradle to manhood and womanhood. He had given them of himself in time of adversity and also in times when good fortune attended their ways. Surely no one knew and loved these people better than he.

Church's History

In his address Mr. Buyers spoke of the many changes that had taken place since he first came to Stirling. "Changes," he said, "are at times necessity" even in the two years since his absence he had noticed great changes for the better and constructive to the Christian cause. Seventy-five years ago it came to the hearts of a few loyal parishioners under the leadership of Rev. Wm. Bleasdell that Stirling of that day needed an Anglican Church and with the sacrifice and united effort on the part of everyone the magnificent edifice of the present day was erected. Built on the solid foundation of Christ's teaching in a spiritual sense, and of stone, with twenty-inch walls like it is, it might stand the test of wind and storm in the years to come, built wisely and well with the thought of beauty ever present, though it has been threatened with destruction by fire on no less than three occasions it still stands a monument to the handiwork of our forefathers.

"No one today knows the difficulties encountered in its construction but no doubt, there were many. It was built at a time when money was even more scarce than it is today, erected complete at a cost of five thousand dollars, but today it could not be erected for twenty thousand. And what joy must have been shared by that little band at the laying of that cornerstone and then later the grand opening. They loved and raised their church in those days knowing well its influence on the lives of their children and the community at large. These men have passed on to their reward, but the work which they laid down, women and children plodded weary miles on foot to attend service and to carry with their place in God's house on the Sabbath in all sorts of weather. Than came the ox-cart and later the horse and wagon and with these modes of transportation over rough, ill-kept roads the faithful have driven to worship and now we be in their places Sunday after Sunday. They made possible by hard work the church we take much or less for granted in these days of bewildering speed.

The beautiful building with a truly ecclesiastical architecture that is admired by all who look upon it in its picturesque setting is a monument to the effort and unity of our forefathers and that unity has lived on down through the years. Loyalty of the parishioners to their church and to their Rector has always existed and forward in the hearts of Stirling and to this we must credit the success of every enterprise they have entered upon. The future is even more bright than the past. Let us then remember that this church is a place for meditation, a holy place and that it is the responsible parts in its functioning. Regular attendance, wholehearted co-operation and loyalty will carry us forward to accomplish those things for which our forefathers laid the foundation seventy-five years ago."

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers at this service as arranged by Mrs. Wm. Shaw, Mrs. Rodgers and Mrs. (Dr.) H. E. Alger. Special music added greatly to the service as Miss Margaret Bateman offered a soprano solo "Just for Today" during the offertory.

Next Sunday the congregation will be honored by the presence of Ven. F. H. Coleman, B.A., who will speak in the morning and Very Rev. W. W. Craig, M.A., D.D., who will speak in the evening.

Ex-Reeve Reports Conditions Fine in North Hastings

Better conditions in the northern section of the county, and a spirit of optimism among its residents extending even to those connected with the lumbering industry was reflected yesterday by ex-Reeve W. N. Ollroy of Coe Hill, a business visitor to the city yesterday.

"Crops are fine all through the country, and I really believe that conditions are improving stated the optimistic, ex-Reeve. "Even in my own bushes I have noticed a change for the better, and we are all hanging on now for higher prices."

Mr. Ollroy, one of the most prominent lumbermen of the north, expects to cut about one and one half million feet of lumber this year. Actual lumbering conditions were reported a bit slow, however. Pulpwood, especially has not been moving so fast, he admitted.

Crops are excellent in the north and even the small farmers expect to realize handsome profits from their labors on the soil.

FEW STRAW HATS ARE SOLD AS YET

Felt Hats Are Being Made Especially For Summer Wear

Straw hats—stiff brim boaters—with eye-dazzling ribbons of the variegated shades of the rainbow, once the crowning effect of swanky, well dressed youth, and the last word in formal summer attire for the oldsters, are on their way out in the opinion of local haberdashers.

Their open season, proverbially scheduled to commence some time along about the first week or so in June, lasting until the cooler winds of September, has produced so far this season but few actual and genuine skimmers.

"Count them; just count them on the street today and see for yourself," dolorously invited a mourning downtown outfitter as he stood in the shade of the doorway of his store this morning and gazed through the open door to the street.

Along Front Street an occasional straw hat bobbed up and down on the head of a more occasional pedestrian and disappeared from view. "Ordinarily at this time the summer straw hat rush would be on. What do we find? We find them passing on right by," added the same store owner.

The reason? Felt hat manufacturers are making their product lighter and more fit for perspiring brows in August. They're making a bid for the summer straw hat market, and according to store owners, evidently succeeding.

Trenton Town Solicitor Ordered to Take Action

Corporation Will Try to Recover $14,000 on Agreement

TRENTON, June 18.—(Special)—The Trenton Town Council met on Thursday night for a special meeting. Mayor Harry Cory and Councillors Percy Hill, R. Newell, R. J. Whitley, Charles E. York and Hugh O'Connor were present. Councillor George LaBrash was absent owing to the serious illness of his sister in Pickering where he was called.

It was decided to instruct the town solicitor to proceed at once to take action against the C.N.R. for $14,000.00 for an alleged breach of an agreement dated in 1911. In this year the town gave this amount to the C.P.R. as a bonus for making Trenton a main line terminal. The roundhouse and machine shop were built and the agreement called for no less than one hundred men be employed there for a period of twenty years. This has failed and the result is the town's action for the return of this money.

It was also passed that all property owners who supply the material for cutting down and supply the labour. Relief workers who get jobs during the summer but do not earn the amount of their relief, will have the privilege of working out the difference with the town. Workers who are not on relief for the summer, but have to return later, will have to make a statement of their earnings before getting back on relief.

Council also gave the Humane Society permission to hold a tag day on Sat. June 29. Next Sunday the Mayor and Council will attend the annual decoration day services and place a wreath on the Memorial Arch on Governor Simcoe Park as the usual custom.

THE LATE JAMES DALE

James Dale, an old resident of Trenton, passed away on Thursday last after a long illness of some weeks. He was in his eighty-seventh year and had resided in Trenton for a number of years. Five wives predeceased him. The funeral attended by a large circle of friends and relatives, was held Saturday afternoon from the Anglican Church with the services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Ardagh. Interment was made in the Front of Sidney cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Wm. Ketcheson, E. Sheppard, W. Hyde, E. Cunnell and G. Hyde.

The late James Dale is survived by a brother and sister, Mrs. Rutford and three sisters, Mrs. Mary McArthur of Campbellford; Mrs. Henrietta Baker of Brighton, New York and Mrs. W. Allison of Redcliffe.

The Late Mrs. Sarah Jane Curry

The funeral of an aged and highly respected citizen of Trenton, Mrs. Sarah Jane Curry was held Thursday from Corbey's Funeral Parlor with Rev. A. E. Johnson, of King St. United Church conducting the services. Interment was made in Mount Evergreen Cemetery. Pall bearers were Messrs. T. Weaver, E. Sheppard, W. Hyde, E. Cunnell and G. Hyde.

The two tugs the Alice and Rose, called in the Trenton Harbor on Friday to take on coal. The tugs were on their way to Oswego to tow a boom of pontoons for the Toronto Harbor Commission.

Trenton Golfers Defeated by Belleville

Sixteen players from the Belleville Golf Club gained a slight edge on the local players last Wednesday afternoon. The weather was excellent and good scores were turned in. After the match, lunch was served at the club, catered by the Imperial Lunch, and was most delightful. President Ross H. Benson welcomed the guests. Acting President O. A. Meagher, of Belleville team and Capt. J. Cather responded.

The teams—Belleville—H. Ridley, W. Thompson, J. Legault, P. Allen O. A. Scott, A. H. Ketcheson, H. Newby, J. Cather, L. Train, T. Sherrubbs Weldon, G. Waldorf, the Cather, A. R. Cameron, J. Marshall, J. Kerr, S. Hibbard.

YOUTHS MISSING IN HEAVY STORM

Rivers in Western Ontario Near Flood Stage

By The Canadian Press

Two youths were missing today after a thunderstorm on Lake Simcoe, Farmers of Ontario reported yesterday's rains which soaked practically every district in the province.

Only in one area, north of Guelph, was the situation dangerous with rains choking a river near flood stage. In several cases the precipitation broke records of several years' standing.

At Midland, Joseph Young, 22, and Walter Foulger, 20, were missing on Lake Huron after the severe thunderstorm in years. They had gone out paddling earlier in the day and when night fell were still reported. Police said the water was too rough to make a thorough search.

At Stora the Grand River was on the rampage, almost at the spring flood level. A tributary, the Irvine, was rending and wrecking a small wooden foot bridge, used by sightseers in the Grand Gorge, from its moorings. The bridge was hanging by a single cable last night.

South of Stora, in the Grand River valley, hundreds of acres of farm lands were under water. Trees were swept away, livestock, in some instances, was marooned for a time on small islands formed by the sudden rise in the river.

The Grand River was within two feet of flooding cellars of homes along the river think and was still rising.

In a rain, which began Sunday night and continued until late yesterday at Brantford, more moisture fell than in the entire period between May 24 and the end of August last year.

Miss Mary Dunkley Retires After 41 Years as Teacher in Picton

Has Completed 44 Years in Teaching Profession

IS BANQUETTED

Picton, June 18—A very unique occasion was marked by a banquet on Friday evening at Bedell Hotel when the Directors of Picton Public Schools, honored Miss Mary Dunkley, who is retiring after forty-four years' spent in the teaching profession, forty-one of which have been spent in Picton Public Schools. The teachers had as their guests the members of the school Board and their wives, and the executive of the School and Home Club. A most delectable dinner was enjoyed, with Bridge following and community singing with Mr. F. Z. Walden at the piano.

Principal F. Van Cott acted as chairman for the evening. He called first on Judge McLean, who paid high tribute to Miss Dunkley, whom he had called a friend since 1919. The Judge spoke of the faithful and honest work of this teacher that had benefitted the town generally, and himself and his boys in particular. Miss Dunkley never missed an opportunity to do any good, public or private, and had always taken an active part in the social life of Picton. Pa people recognize their debt to her and are grateful.

Dr. Gullett of the School Board spoke next. He described Miss Dunkley as one of the most deserving public servants Picton has ever had, one who had worked so well, over such a long period. He paid tribute to Miss Dunkley's influence in the community, to her individuality and her impressiveness with her pupils.

Dr. Strothers spoke of Miss Dunkley's willingness at all times, to assist him during the past eight years, in the work of the school, and of the Teachers' Institute.

Miss Clara Hill read a very fine address to Miss Dunkley, on behalf of the Picton Public School teachers, and Mrs. Todd presented her with a silver tray.

Mr. Harry Hunt, Chairman of the P. S. Board presented Miss Dunkley with a cheque from the Board, for "distinctive service."

Mrs. R. Ward on behalf of the Home and School Club presented Miss Dunkley with a lovely basket of flowers.

Miss Dunkley replied feelingly in a very clever little speech, thanking those present for the honours they had paid her.

A happy closing to the program was the presentation by Miss Wyatt of a beautiful plate to Miss Thompson, bride-to-be on behalf of the teachers staff. P. P. Deroche, Mr. Bruce Yarwood read an address expressing the best wishes of the teachers. The teachers were then guests of the School Board at the "picture play of Red Gay" at the Regent theatre.

Home Visits Grandmother

The death occurred at Kingston General Hospital, where he had been a patient for some months on Thursday of a life-long, respected resident of Hallowell, Albert Hobson. Mr. Hobson had been all his life a successful farmer in that neighborhood, where he enjoyed the esteem of his neighbors. Surviving are his sisters, Miss Martha and Miss Alberta Hobson at home, Mrs. Ernest Jeffers of Picton and a brother in British Columbia.

Interment will take place on Monday morning in St. Gregory's Church, Picton, with interment in Mount Zion cemetery.

Mr. George Williams

In Toronto on Thursday, June 13th the death occurred of George William, following a major operation. Mr. William was born in Picton, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Williams, and spent his entire life here, with the exception of the past year, which was spent in Toronto. For many years Mr. Williams conducted a grocery business in Picton. This he sold a few years ago, when he became manager of the Brewer's Warehouse, a position he filled until going to Toronto. He is survived by his wife and one sister, Mrs. Mack Howell of Toronto. The funeral service was held in Glenwood chapel, Picton, on Saturday afternoon with interment in Glenwood cemetery.

2 1-2 MILLIONS OF LOAN SUBSCRIBED

Disposed of at Treasury Office and Interim Receipts Given

Toronto, June 18—(CP)— With more than $2,500,000 of Ontario's new $5,000,000 loan already subscribed, government officials today awaited the response from provincial savings offices.

The bonds already sold were disposed of at the treasury offices in the Legislative Buildings and interim receipts given. Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said last night but applications for the outside offices were not sent until the afternoon.

"We really weren't equipped to go on Saturday," he declared.

Announcement was expected today of additional branches of the savings offices being opened. The managers will receive an annual salary of $2,100. First manager Ralph Cook of Dublin was appointed yesterday to the new Guelph office.

Noting Sir Thomas White, vice-president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce urged support of the bond issue, Premier Hepburn voiced his appreciation of the move and added because it came from a former federal minister of finance "it was the greatest tribute that could be paid to this province."

ONTARIO POSTMASTERS

Ontario Postmasters are in convention in the city for three days. Business of much importance as it relates to the public service will be brought to a head.

This is the second convention to come to Belleville within a week. Last Wednesday the Ontario Jewellers met here in a one day session and at the close of their business meeting spent a gala time. Though the Postmasters' convention opened during the wettest day of the season before the convention is closed the visiting delegates will have had full opportunity to see Belleville and its environs under excellent weather conditions.

Postmasters have an important part to play in the national life. What would life be without a post office. Radio and other means come to pass but the mails of His Majesty the King go on. Invention does not take the place of the letter, not even the telegraph has succeeded in doing that. The mail which seems so ordinary to us today is really one of the achievements of the modern world. The stamp was not always. Time was when special couriers had to be used to carry letters, but now letters with stamps affixed go everywhere by the many millions daily to every part of the earth.

Postmasters representing this service in the various centres occupy no unimportant place in the economy of the modern institution of the post office.

Belleville welcomes these men from all parts of the Province and wishes them profitable discussions of value to the Province and Dominion. When they complete their labors and leave, citizens will hope that they will bear away happy memories of their three days' gathering in Belleville.

LESS CRIME

Judge J. T. McKinley of Ottawa Juvenile Court paid a tribute to the youth of today when he said that though the temptations of this age are ten times as great as they used to be, "the young people of today are cleaner and more wholesome than any generation that has gone before and they will make better mothers and fathers than we have done." He added that there was less crime and there was less immorality in Ontario in 1934, 1500 fewer persons being sent to prison, and 7,200 fewer persons sent to prison in 1932 and 1930 he added, stressing that there was no connection between poverty and crime.

When fewer persons are sent to jail, reformatory and prison, it is a good thing. In this present age it does not mean that there is laxity in the enforcement of the laws, it means greater obedience to the laws and statutes is manifest.

One of the healthiest signs is in Judge McKinley's mind that "eighty per cent of those released last year made good."

Recently mention has been made in the press of some men released from prison finding their way back into crime and their ultimate return to prison. This but stresses the need for active interest in the prisoner while he is in the prison and after he has left the confines of the rugged walls. A number of organizations do work whose value can only be estimated in scales which weigh spirit and moral values, and among them the Salvation Army does very noble work. Meeting the men in prison and meeting them when they leave, such men as Major Wallace Bunton make an impression on the impressionable mind of the men who come back into circulation of citizenship. And that is what these men need. They have to find friendships, they need to know that they are in the minds of people who love them for themselves. A lonely man let out of prison with little but his record to his name, often finds the way hard, and great credit must be given this class of men that so many of them do not fall again. Society owes an obligation which is only paid when it sees that not one of these men is not given a fair chance.

It is good news to know that these men are making good, eighty per cent of them, as the judge says.

HORSE STILL HAS HIS PLACE

Many of us remember the not too distant day when horses had such distaste for motor cars that they would take off he road when one of the noisy intruders came in sight. Lovers of horses now attribute to them somewhat jealous and unfriendly stages toward mechanized transport, but there is one horse in England which has rather a taste for motors, and the other day, when left standing near a parked car he began to eat it up, starting with the hood cover. The matter was brought to court and the owner of he car was fined five shillings "for being at an improper distance from a horse and cart." The old order changeth, as the poet-philosopher said, yielding place to new; but "the horse still has a place in the sun, and the old order still enjoys its ancient rights under British law.

TO A ROSE

Fair, fragrant flower, words can but half express
Thy dainty grace, thy silken loveliness—
Unfolding bud, that in the summer hour,
Gives promise of the perfect, opened flower;
Elusive colors paint thy petals rare.
Oh, what can with a budding rose compare?

I prize thee, too, since long, ah, long ago
The bush was planted where thy flowers grow,
By one whose life was fragrant but so brief,
Who left us with a great heartache and grief,
But whose fair memory, like thy fragrant flower,
Is with us with each summer's fleeting hour,
Whose fair, sweet face, so like thy petals bright
Remains with us to gladden and delight—

For oh! the fragrance of a life lives on
When life is past and earthly days are done.

HUEY LONG, SENATOR from Louisana broke the long distance speech record by talking fifteen hours straight in a filibuster attempt to delay action on President Roosevelt's new National Recovery Act. Huey talked on every subject under the sun except the subject under discussion and dwelt long and longingly upon the evolution of pot likker, how to make it, how and why. Senator Huey Long's long speech plastered his name again on the front page but contributed less than nothing to the advantage of the citizens of the United States, nor did it contain one helpful hint pointing toward a solution of the economic problems of the world. Senator Long's speech was just Long.

DUST STORMS, as experienced in the United States Southwest, are nothing to joke about, still even a laugh can be dug up out of misfortune occasionally. A newspaper woman asked a high official in Washington what was the cause of the dust storms, and the answer was:

"There are a number of very good detailed scientific explanations, but one which appeals to the imagination is that they started in Utah, caused by Mae West walking over the grave of Brigham Young."

TUESDAY, JUNE 18, is the anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo, memories of which were recently revived by the presentation of "The Iron Duke" by George Arliss, eminent English actor, whose conception of the character of the Duke of Wellington, while charming, does not fit in exactly with the conception of most people, more or less intimate with the great soldier through reading. However, Arliss certainly humanized the character, and brought out more of the man and less of the soldier, so perhaps he had the right idea after all. It is interesting to recall that the Battle of Waterloo took place on June 18 but it was not until June 22 that a report of the battle with Wellington's victory was published in the London Times—and the battle was right close to home, too, just across the Channel. In these days the newspapers would be issuing extras with pictures before the battle was over.

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

Fortunately, this was easy. Feisal had secured it years ago, and had retained it by interchange of gifts from Medina and Yenbo. Now, from Wejh, Faiz el Ghusein went up to him and on the way crossed Jon Dighmi, one of the chief men of the Ruwalla, coming down to us with the desirable gift of some hundreds of good baggage camels. Nuri, of course, still kept friendly with the Turks. Damascus and Baghdad were his markets, and they could have half-starved his tribe in three months. But they suspected him; but we knew that when the moment came we should have his aid—and help, and till then anything short of a breach with Turkey.

His favour would open to us the Sirhan, a famous roadway, camping ground, and chain of water holes, which in a series of linked depressions extended from Jauf, Nuri's capital, in the south-east, northwards to Azrak, near Jebel Druse, in Syria. It was the freedom of the Sirhan we needed to reach the tents of the Eastern Howeitat, those famous abu Tayi, of whom Auda, the greatest fighting man in northern Arabia, was chief. Only by means of Auda abu Tayi could we swing the tribes from Akaba to Azrak as previously in our favour that they would help us take Akaba and the hills from their Turkish garrison; only with his active support could we venture to thrust out from Wejh on the long trek to Maan. Since our Yenbo days we had been longing for him and trying to win him to our cause.

We made a great step forward at Wejh; ibn Zaal, his cousin and a war-leader of the abu Tayi, arrived on the seventeenth of February, which was in all respects a fortunate day. At dawn there came in five chief men of the Shararat from the desert east of Tebuk, bringing a present of eggs of the Arabian ostrich, plentiful in their little-frequented desert. After them, the slaves showed in Dhaif-Allah, abu Tayr, a cousin of Rami ibn el Jasi, paramount of the central Howeitat of the Maan plateau. These were numerous and powerful; yielded fighters; but blood enemys of their cousins, the nomad abu Tayi, because of an old-grounded quarrel between Auda and Hamd. We were proud to see them coming thus far to greet us, yet not coming, for they knew less fit than the abu Tayi for our purposed attack against Akaba.

On their heels came a cousin of Nawwaf, Nuri Shaalan's eldest son, with a mare sent by Nawwaf to Feisal. The Shaalan and the Jazi, long hostile, hastened to make at once amohibr; so we divided the parties and improved a new zone-camp. After the Rualla, was announced the abu Tayegha chief of the Sukhur Howeitat of the coast. He brought his tribe's respectful homage and the spoils of Dhaka and Moreifidah, the two last Turkish outlets on the Red Sea. Room was made for him on Feisal's carpet, and the warmest thanks rendered him for his tribe's activity which carried us to the borders of Akaba, by tracks too rough for operations of war, but convenient for preaching, and still more so for getting news.

In the afternoon, ibn Zaal arrived, with ten other of Auda's chief followers. He blazed Auda's fame for Arabia and then once for himself, and, sitting back, declared that he came from Auda to present his salutations and to ask for orders. Feisal, with policy, controlled his features and, and introduced him gravely to his blood-enemies, the Jazi howeitat. Ibn Zaal acknowledged them distantly. Later, we said great private conversations with him and dismissed him with rich gifts, richer promises, and Feisal's own message to Auda that his mind would not be smooth till he had seen him face to face in Wejh. And we are immense chivalrous name, but an unknown quantity to us, and for so vital a matter as Akaba we could not afford a mistake. He might have come down that we might weigh him, and frame our future plans actually in his presence, and with his help.

When the sun had declined across the sea, and the cool of evening drew down, a great cavalcade issued from the ridges making Abu Zeribah and closed on us. Forth from its front at wild speed shot three or four mounted spooks crossing each other's and their own tracks in mimic battle, while the main body began to chant a deep Ateiba melody. This was Sherif Shakir, my astonishment Fedzah, coming attended to visit Feisal from Sherif Abdulla's own message to Auda that his mind Shakir was a prince in the eyes of the great Ateiba tribe, to whom his riding (the man was a very amateur on horse-back), his shooting, his bravery, his recklessness, his wealth were alike wonderful. In return, Shakir played the Bedawi. His simple living, his arts and manners were all nomadic: even his appearance, from the harrar veil to the braided hair; and the hair was Beduin also, in its population: "Ordu is Bedawi" laughed Shakir, "would want his whole head to himself."

Feisal that all his guests were happy, this day was not essentially unlike Feisal's every day. The rush of news made my diary fat. The roads to Wejh swarmed with envoys and pointers and gaily-dressed passage made the lukewarm Billi more profitable to us. Feisal swore new adherents solemnly on the Koran between his hands, "in" and while he waited, march when he marched, to yield obedience to no Turk, to deal kindly with all who spoke Arabic (whether Bagdadi, Aleppine, Syrian, or pure bloodied) and to put independence above life family, and goods.

He also began to confront them at once, in his presence, with their tribal enemies and to compose their feuds. An account of profit and loss would be struck between the parties, with Feisal's generous and interceding between them, and often with the balance, or contributed towards it from his own funds, to hurry on the pace. During the week Feisal laboured daily, putting together tiny pieces which made up a common society, and combining them into his one design of war against the Turks. There was no tribal unrest active in any of the districts through which he had passed, from the Coast of Aqueir, ultimate and unchallenged, for western Arabia.

ACROSS THE HALL

CHAPTER SIX

Judith heard a gentle tapping at the door of her prison room. That would not be Harold Stokes; would not be him him to rap before entering the room to which he held the key. Almost eagerly she crossed the room to the door, buoyed up by a hope that her better sense told her was unreasonable.

"Who is there?" she demanded.

"Me—Dick". The voice was low but familiar. "Put yer ear close to the keyhole, Ma'm."

She obeyed unquestioningly. He continued almost in a whisper:

"I'm takin' big chances, an' I reckon I'm a fool, but some how —well, yuh ain't like the rest here, an' I ain't keen on that fancy born, stokes, an' I'm fer helpin' yuh if I can."

She started to murmur her gratitude but he cut her short.

"Don't talk, but listen—I ain't got much time. Stokes is comin' back soon an' —well, he's drinkin' more'n good for him—or you. Listen good as I leave turn out yer light an keep close to th' door. When he opens it, slip out before he kin turn the light on. I swiped the key to the door jest across the hall an' I'll unlock it an' leave the key on the inside. Slip in there quick an' lock the door. That'll rid you of him for a while. But for Cheryl's sake. Sh. dont give me away."

"I won't," Judith promised, "and I'll never forget what you're doing for me, Mr.—uh—Dick". Then doubt assailed her. Could she trust this man? "Tell me one thing, though. Did they kill—him? You told me they wouldn't. I heard shots—and I guess I fainted."

"I don't know," the voice at the keyhole replied. "I'm sorry I can't tell ye. If they did he must've tried ez got away. I can't help that now. I'm tryin' to help you."

Reason told her that now, regardless of the rule of Randall Spencer she must look out for herself. If he had been shot down in cold blood, no reason why she should escape, to set in motion forces that would avenge his murder. If he had, unrighteously murdered there was no reason why she should supinely await the sort of treatment she had every reason to expect at the hands of Harold Stokes. But what could she do, prayed defaying the crisis, unaided?

"I'm goin', Sis. Good luck to yuh," the voice at the keyhole said.

"Wait—just a minute. Can't you get word some way to Bob Harley—he's a reporter on the Morning Sun—about me? He'll see me out of this, I know. Won't you 'phone him, please?"

"I'll see what I can do, gal," the man said reluctantly. "But I'm takin' my life in my hands just unlockin' that door fer yuh. I'll be cat most if the chief finds out I'm messin' with any reporters. Don't talk any more an' put out yer light."

Her ear to the keyhole Judith heard his stealthy step and a faint click as he unlocked the door across the hall. Listening intently, she thought she could hear the sound of the removal of the key and its re-insertion on the other side of the door, and then the man's retreating footsteps down the hall. Rose sighed and then thanked God that there was no electric switch near the door and that she had to cross to the centre of the room to turn out the light. That done, she made her way silently to the door again, in the dark. Then a thought struck her, and with a light laugh she stepped back to the centre of the room and turned on the light once more. Quickly she pulled down the window curtain to shut out the faintest ray of moonlight, then dragged the two chairs from their places by the wall and turned them over on their sides in such a way that they would be obstacles over which one, groping in the dark, would be almost certain to stumble. Again she turned off the light and felt her way carefully around the centre table to reach the door.

"I hope he breaks his neck," was her charitable thought as she visualized Stokes's probable fate in Erotic light. But what if he carried a flashlight? That might spoil all her plans.

Patiently she waited at the door, her ear close to the keyhole to catch the first sound of approaching footsteps. She pulled the chair on edge for a quick spring across the hall as he entered the dark doorway.

Minutes that seemed hours passed and then, with a start, she began to think that perhaps he would not return that night, and heard footsteps that instinct told her were his, far down the hall. He was walking heavily, rather unsteadily. "Drunk — the beast!" Judith thought. "So much the better." She heard him stumble against something and curse. And a ray of light coming slowly along the hallway told her that he carried a flashlight to guide him down the otherwise dark hall. She gathered herself together for the encounter, flattening herself against the wall just beyond the doorway.

She could hear him fumbling with a key at the door and dropping it from his unsteady fingers. She could visualize him, in her imagination, stooping unsteadily to recover it and could hear him swearing as he did so. And then she could hear the key scraping futilely around the keyhole and her heart nearly stopped beating as she waited for key and keyhole to fing each other. At last they did, the key turned and the door opened.

She waited until he was fairly framed in his light band, its rays not revealing her close to the wall, her right arm raised above her head. That arm came down quickly and the flashlight clattered on the floor from his nose too certain grasp, extinguishing itself as it struck.

She slipped past him as he let out a volley of oaths and, safe in the darkness of the hall, paused long enough to give him a push with all the strength of her athletic young arms. She heard his oaths increase as he floundered and stumbled, and a heavy crash as he tripped over the nearest chair. Then, suddenly, all was still and she wondered, dully, if he fall had killed him.

"Good thing if it has," she told herself defiantly, but then she felt a quick revulsion. No, she would not want to be the means of taking even his life. She paused a minute, listening. A groan and deep breathing reassured her. If he was just badly hurt she could be glad—certainly he richly deserved as much.

The key was still in the door, her groping hand told her. She pondered whether to lock it and take the key. If he was unhurt she would take delight in jailing the jailer. As she considered the matter her foot touched the flashlight on the floor. She stooped and recovered it. She pressed the button and found it was not out of commission. She flashed the rays on him. He had fallen over one chair and struck his head on the other, and blood was trickling from a cut in his forehead. He moved slightly as she flashed the light on him, and began swearing again.

"More drunk than hurt," Judith thought. "Somebody'll find him. It would be crazy to worry about him."

She shut off the flashlight and listened. She thought she heard a footstep on the stairs at the end of the corridor. Better do as Dick had told her. Somehow she had confidence in that ruffian. So she stepped across the hallway and put her hand on the doorknob of the room opposite. It opened to her touch and she found the key on the inside as Dick had told her it would be. She locked the door and waited. That footstep must have been imaginary. She flashed her light around the room. It was almost a duplicate of the one she had left. In faint hope she stepped to the solitary window.

But it offered no more vision of escape than the window in the other room.

She glanced at her wrist watch by the ray of the flashlight. It was almost four o'clock. It would soon be daylight. Up to now the excitement of the night had kept all thought of sleep from her. But now, in reaction to all she had been through, she began to feel drowsy. She would not do that. Resolutely she thought. She was still too far from security. She wished she had locked the room across the hall and brought the key with her. Sooner or later somebody would discover Stokes there and a hue and cry would be raised and a search for her started. That moment of discovery might be delayed were the door locked on Stokes' unconscious form sprawling on the floor.

She glued her ear to the keyhole. All was quiet in the hallway. She could hear nothing.

Stealthily she unlocked her door and flashing her light down the hall, it was clear. In three steps she was across the hall flashing the light on the keyhole of the door. It was terribly still. She made the key turn noiselessly and pushed the door wide. Sad as he was, she could not but shrink in her heart to wish him dead. She bent over and touched his face. It was warm—he was not dead. She shook him. He only grunted and opened his eyes, staring blankly at the light in them which revealed him and hid her. Satisfied that he was not even badly hurt, Judith left him, turned the key in the lock and retraced her to the room across the hall with the key in her possession.

"Wow! I'll have a headache when he comes to himself!" she chuckled. "But, considering the other arrangements, he can shout till he's black in the face and nobody'll hear him. Serve him right if he stays there for days! Now for a little sleep!"

In the meantime, how long was she doomed to stay here in "The Red Tiger" before rescue came? That it would come—if Dick got word of her plight to Bob Harley—she was certain. Even if he didn't her absence from the office would surely be reported to Bob by Sally, and undoubtedly Randall Spencer's disappearance would be noted and in the case of a man of his social importance, would create a sensation.

Drowsily, Judith's thoughts crept upon him as almost without her will she sank on to the bed. minute by minute and then—a weak-ly She mustn't go to sleep, of course, but she could close her eyes for a minute and rest them—they were aching so. Such a fine young man —it couldn't be possible that he was dead . . . Yet those shots . . . She shuddered at the thought.

It would be a terrible blow to that coldly beautiful girl he was engaged to . . . but would she really feel it half as much as she, Judith Bates, a little strong-rapier of no importance, socially or otherwise, to anybody, who hadn't known him an hour? . . . Surely God, who was merciful, wouldn't let him die that way . . . She smiled in confidence that somehow he had escaped, and, smiling, slept.

She awoke with a start. The sun was pouring into the window of the room and there was a great pounding on the door.

MISSION SOCIETY HONORS MEMBER

Trinity Church Branch Presents Gift to Mrs. Rivers

Madoc, June 18—On Thursday evening Mrs. Frank Datlo entertained at her home, the members of Trinity United Women's Missionary Society, in honor of Mrs. W. Rivers.

After some conlesta, an impromptu programme was put on. A quartette Mesdames Huffman, Marbee, Fair and Bristol gave two numbers. Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Jack gave some interesting readings, after which the following address was read:

Dear Mrs. Rivers:

We, the officers and members of the Women's Missionary Society are indeed pleased to have you with us for one more of our social evenings. You have been revered in our beloved society, not only because you are the wife of our esteemed pastor but for the high standard of living and of service you have maintained throughout the years. Very often we have noted that the many tasks you so conscientiously performed were for you a test, physically.

We shall treasure the memory of our hours together, of your efficiency as our press secretary, of your rearness in each membership and last but not least the beautiful prayers offered from month to month for the great missionary cause.

We have been guarded, strengthened, encouraged and intrusted in His work. Our thoughts shall often follow you in your new sphere of labor.

We shall be interested in the progress of the sons and daughter who have grown to manhood and womanhood in our midst.

We hope to welcome you if at any time you have the opportunity to visit in this village.

May the Dear Master prosper you and yours.

Lovingly,

The W.M.S. of Trinity United Church.

Mrs. Rivers was presented with a set of silver salad forks. Refreshments brought the pleasant evening to a close.

ST. ANDREW'S W. M. S. HOLDS JUNE MEETING

Members of St. Andrew's Auxiliary W.M.S. assembled at the home of Mrs. C. A. Reid for the June meeting, and the attendance was unusually large. The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, after which Mrs. Fleming led in prayer.

The Bible reading was given by the president, Mrs. Pargey and the minutes of the May meeting were duly adopted.

Plans for the summer meeting of the Presbyterial, which is to be held at Deseronto on July 4, were discussed, and a committee comprising Mrs. Ranson, Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Haggerty was formed, the first-named to act as convener.

Mrs. Pargey was appointed to take charge of the Bible study contribution to the programme at Deseronto.

Attention was directed to the Flower Fund which was in need of replenishing, and it was moved by Mrs. Rutherford, seconded by Mrs. McCreary that the sum of five dollars be voted towards it.

The treasurer's report was then read and duly favourably commented upon, and then Mrs. Ranson, convener of the mission study meeting read her composition based on the chapter in the study book dealing with the Persian field, and which proved to be very instructive.

Mrs. Bell pleased the audience with her solo, "Because." For "Events" and Mrs. Fleming gave the "Current Events" feature, interpolating her own personal comments on several of the subjects chosen, in an interesting manner.

Mrs. Moore, one of the visiting ladies for the East Hill district was a very comprehensive report of her activities in that line and was complimented on the splendid work she had carried out the duty assigned to her.

Mrs. Pargey reported for the West Hill visitors, and she too, had been going to quite a lot of ground on her visits to the shut-ins.

It was announced that the meeting would adjourn for the summer months, and that the next meeting would be in September with Mrs. George Wallbridge's group in charge.

A very pleasurable part of the programme was the short address of Mrs. C. A. Reid who spoke on "The Little Things In Life" and which she carried out, in a manner appropriate to take for granted, instead of giving them the full credit for the attention that they deserved.

Another hymn was sung and the meeting dismissed with Mrs. Reid with the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison.

WATERLOO FOUGHT 120 YEARS AGO

ernment upon Planchefoute and La Belle Alliance, had begun to take effect and as I could see from my position on the ground and as Marshal Prince Blucher has joined in person, the whole of his army on the left of our line by Ohain, I determined to attack the enemy and immediately advanced the whole line of infantry, supported by the cavalry and artillery. The attack succeeded in every point and the enemy was forced from his position on the heights and fled in the utmost confusion; and about half past seven as far as I could judge, one hundred and fifty pieces of cannon, with their ammunition, which fell into our hands. I continued the pursuit until long after dark, and then discontinued it only on account of the fatigue of our troops, who had been engaged during twelve hours, and because I found myself on the same road with Marshal Blucher, who assured me of his intention to follow the enemy through the night; he has sent me word this morning that he had taken sixty pieces of artillery belonging to the Imperial Guard, and several carriages, baggage," etc., belonging to Buonaparte, in Genappe.

"I propose to move, this morning, upon Nivelles, and not to discontinue my operations.

"Your Lordship will observe, that such a desperate action could not be fought, and such advantage could not be gained, without great loss; and I am sorry to add, that ours has been immense. In Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Picton, His Majesty has sustained the loss of an officer who has frequently distinguished himself in his service, and he fell, gloriously leading his division to a charge of bayonets. The Earl of Uxbridge, after having successfully got through this arduous day, received a wound by almost the last shot fired, which will, I am afraid, deprive His Majesty for some time of his services.

"His Highness the Prince of Orange distinguished himself by his gallantry and conduct till he received a wound from a musket ball through the shoulder which obliged him to quit the field.

"It gives me the greatest satisfaction to assure Your Lordship, that the army never, upon any occasion conducted itself better. The division of guards under Lieutenant-General Cooke who is severely wounded; that under General Maitland and Major General Byng, set an example which was followed by all; and there is no officer nor description of troops that did not behave well.

Again Field Marshall refers to the assistance of Blucher, 'should not do justice to my feelings or to Marshall Blucher and the Prussian army, if I did not attribute the successful result of this arduous day, to the cordial and timely assistance I received from them.

"The operation of General Bulow, upon the enemy's flank was a most decisive one; and when I had not found myself in a situation to make the attack, which produced the final result, it would have forced the enemy to retire if his attack should have failed and would have prevented him from taking advantage of them if they should unfortunately have succeeded."

I send with this despatch, two eagles, taken by the troops in this action, which Lord Percy will have the honour of laying at the feet of His Royal Highness."

In an addenda he says—"Since writing the above, I have received a report that Major General Sir William Ponsoby is killed and in announcing this intelligence to your Lordship, I have to add the expression of my grief for the fate of an officer who had already rendered very brilliant and important services and was an ornament to his profession."

On pages three and four of the issue appears a list of dead and wounded officers in the fighting of the seventeenth and eighteenth.

The front page of the Times carries at the left top the words "The Times containing the Full Account of the Battle of Waterloo." At the lower right corner is a story from "a gentleman who left Brussels on Sunday evening," the night of Waterloo telling of the jubilation in Brussels at the great victory.

Through the kindness of Col. W. N. Ponton, the readers of the Ontario Intelligencer have been privileged to read the extracts from the issue and has the precious paper in the full account of the Battle of Waterloo". Col. Ponton possesses pages one and two of the original issue and has the precious paper protected by frame and glass. The paper came into his possession from the estate of Sir Wm. Sankey, Col. Ponton's first wife being a member of the Sankey family. A Sir Richard Sankey was among those who fought at the Battle of Waterloo.

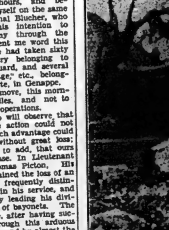
CIRCUS COMING! BOYS AND GIRLS HEAR GOOD NEWS



Cole Brothers Will Hold Parade and Performance July 2

There was a concerted rush on the part of the juvenile population on the morning of opening bank. There was a hurried consultation of calculators and dark deals on the part of the oldsters. There was a hasty checking of dates to see that no previous engagement would interfere with the afternoon or evening of July 2.

For the circus will come to town on that date. After an absence of years, Bellevillians will be treated again to the "Big Top" the snarling lions, the tinsel elephants resting in strength, big tusked and adornment, the fashionable ladies with their men will be the silken-coated, snarling Bengal panthers, hyenas, cavernous-mouthed hippos, ostriches, seals, zebras and camels. There small boy standing big-eyed in front of a bill board in the downtown section of the city and guessing saw some of the fearsome animals take shape in his lurid paper before their eyes, and whispered "Gee!" to the gaffer's daughter next to work with dripping brush and ease of long practice. But the real circus posters also attracted the attention of hundreds of citizens who caused to pause.

Railway trains more than a mile long, packed with solid effects, cages and all the incidentals connected with a vast two and one half million dollar circus will carry it into the city. This will be made up of fifteen double length cars, over 1,000 people, 400 scenic stars of the fly-

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"Stingaree"

Irene Dunne and Richard Dix in an Exciting Romantic Melodrama!

"Stingaree" a spectacular dramatization of the career and personal romance of the lovable Australian bandit of that name is the special request feature at the Capitol Wednesday only. Irene Dunne and Richard Dix play the heroine and the hero of the title respectively, with Mary Boland featured in a strong semi-comic character part.

"Stingaree" is the tale of a dashing adventurer in the Robin Hood type, who steals from the rich in order to finance his benefactors. The film deals with his supreme adventure, his love for a poor girl whom he promotes into a world-famous operatic success.

The story replete with romance drama, comedy, music, heart appeal and swift action, should both Miss Dunne and Dix superlatively colorful and glamorous roles. Dix, as he comes on with polished manners and agreeable personality, is placed in many interesting situations with every opportunity for the exercise of his ingratiating screen technique.

Miss Dunne has the role of Hilda Bouverie, a beautiful girl who has a beautiful voice and who is forced to work as a singer in the cafes of rich relatives. Upon an errand of mercy, Stingaree sees Hilda and hears her sing and immediately falls in love with her.

Masquerading as a famous operatic impresario, he learns of her great ambition and tells her he will help her to realize it. Soon, however, he is exposed by the police and, when he sees that further subterfuge is impossible he boldly kidnaps Hilda and carries her away on his beautiful white horse to his hideaway. There, in one glorious night of music and love, he succeeds in completely winning Hilda's heart.

More exciting and romantic episodes are those which follow. In an exploit of great bravado, "Stingaree" succeeds in carting Hilda on the road to fame and is himself captured by the police and sentenced to a long term in prison.

Subsequent incidents show Hilda's rise as an operatic star in the capitals of Europe. Although she attains the heights, she is not completely happy, for she is unable to forget the lovable bandit who has made it all possible. So she determines to return to Australia in the hope of seeing him again.

From this point on the story moves with ever-increasing speed, and the climax is one of the most surprising and satisfying that has even been screened.

The feature is supported by several excellent short subjects. Complete Shows 2.30; 7.15; 9.15.

AT THE BELLE
"The Bride of Frankenstein"
Super-Shocker of 1933 Next On Belle Screen

The screen's strangest, most weirdly thrilling motion picture comes to town today (Tuesday), when "The Bride of Frankstein" opens an engagement of two days, at the Belle Theatre.

Three years ago the original "Frankenstein" started the world of theatregoers to pounding at the exploits of "the monster" that grotesque creature—built up from parts of dead bodies by a half-crazed scientist, and brought to life to pursue a bewildered career of murder and destruction.

Now Universal has produced a hair-raising sequel to the original story, following the further adventures of the Monster and showing how a woman is constructed in the same manner and brought into the world as his companion.

Karloff is again starred in the role of the Monster, and is credited with creating the strangest character ever seen on stage or screen with terrifying power. In spite of his actions, will not fail to gain your sympathy. In private life Karloff is a cultured English gentleman, but in the picture he lives up fully to his part of "The Monster."

"The Bride of Frankenstein" was filmed in Hollywood, but the story is laid in England and the entire cast is British. Elsa Lanchester, (Mrs. Charles Laughton) is seen in the Female Monster, and other noted players of the company are Colin Clive, Valerie Hobson, O. P. Heggie and Una O'Connor. The picture was directed by James Whale.

For strangeness of characters and story, for scenes beauty of settings and for thrilling action, the screen has never produced a picture so eerie! "The Bride of Frankenstein." "The Bride of Frankenstein" he learns to talk, and becomes part of a vast excitement when a woman, a similarly created, is the bright of a wild storm. Then follows a thrilling climax which will keep any audience well-nigh breathless. It is strong type, but a thrilling, action-filled picture which feeds the imagination as few films have done, and one without question of a new high mark in the realm of the so-called "horror" picture.

Screen Full of Joy

A screen full of joy is offered in "Cynara," a typical Hollywood romance of short treats that precede the exhibition of the feature attraction, including another of the popular "Marriage Vows" comedy series "Dumb Luck," with an all-star cast of funmakers, Edwin C. Hill introducing the latest Hollywood world events, and a smart oddity "We Do Our Part," introducing your favorite Radio stars in a novel and clever characterization.

See Solution in Educational 'Lab' Common Problems of Continent

Canton, N.Y., June 17 (AP)—On the eve of an international parley in Washington on a reciprocal trade treaty between Canada and the United States, prominent statesmen, businessmen and educators are gathered today to discuss "common problems" in the unique relationship of the two North American powers.

The conference, first of its kind of Canadian-American affairs, is sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. St. Lawrence University and Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and will continue until next Saturday. It is in the nature of an educational laboratory where the delegates will seek common factors for understanding and perpetual peace.

Richard Dix as "Stingaree" give us an excellent portrayal in this exciting adventure drama to be shown at The Capitol tomorrow.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Early summer dullness in the security markets is something which may be expected, but the longer term prospects fully warrant maintenance of present holdings of good stocks, with any recessions offering advantageous periods for the acquisition of additional promising issues.

The month of June is usually a period of receding prices in the stock market. This year, however, June has so far been an exception, the trend being moderately upward locally, with Wall Street recording the best levels in four years. This may be due to the fact that the summer recession in business is somewhat less than normal with the outlook for the fall rather promising.

Recent stock market performance in Wall Street must be regarded as impressive, in the face of the near term deflationary potentialities as well as the development of new factors of uncertainty. The NRA decision of course has not yet been forgotten but so far no important realignments have occurred and among the factors favorable to the decision seems almost unanimous that no changes will be made in price, wages or hours of employment.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol's sale of 300,000 gallons of inventory is an important development for the company. This is a strategic sale and even at $2.75 a gallon, will bring the company in $825,000, sufficient to liquidate the bank loans and leave an operating surplus. The quality of the Canadian company's product is beginning to be appreciated across the border and shareholders can look forward to additional large-scale sales in the future. The stock market, by the way, has not yet fully discounted the constructiveness of this development.

Rising prices for stocks in no way relieve the investor from seeking investment. Prices can go on rising as long as there is a belief that gains appear and the pressure will still be a great one. This may believe that this capital demand for a lasting place becomes exhausted gradually as prices advance, but for each buyer there is a seller and the total reserves of idle capital remain the same. Only for the particular buyer is the demand satisfied and the seller merely takes his profit, leaving a preference, it is true, for cash. Hence the fact that there is still there for industry to draw upon when it chooses, with a rising stock market not depriving business of any funds.

Lake Shores

Lake Shores has developed exceptionally rich ore at the 4,200 ft. level. The ore reserves are believed to have been increased by $41,342 ounces in past few months. Average grade of ore mined in May was 0.39 oz. Net profits are at a rate of between 84 cents and 90 cents per share annually. The company produced 10,000 ounces more of gold annually. Should gold advance from $35 to $41.34 per ounce it is quite generally expected in American financial circles that Lake Shore would advance to a rate of well over $6 per share annually.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol.

It is significant that control of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company has been acquired by Distillers Corp. of Corby and Gooderham Distilleries of New York. No details are available with respect to the price obtained. The outstanding feature of the transaction is that the goods will be delivered as quickly as it is possible and payment will be made in cash.

* * *

Barron's (The Trader)—The stock market continues to push slowly ahead under the pressure of the tremendous cash reserves and under the influence of encouraging second quarter earnings statements. The seasonal business recession and its usual mid-summer gloom are glossed over in the confidence that the fall will only bring new revival by natural or governmental means. A striking sign is that the rails have begun to feel the stimulating influence. There is always the chance, under the New Deal or the Stock Exchange, that speculation and investment may outrun investment demand and a correction in the stock market may follow. Nothing is in sight, as yet, however, which suggests that cash is preferable to stocks, the only basis for a tolerable, liquidating movement.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, June 18 (AP)—The buying urge again appeared in today's stock market although the session was no runaway affair and a high degree of selectivity continued to govern dealings. A late upturn in the rails helped to lift other parts of the list. The closing was fairly firm. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, June 18 (AP)— The stock market surged to higher levels today but bullish forces were more than ordinarily cautious. And buying continued highly selective. Among Canadian stocks, Dome, International Nickel, Dominion Stores and Canadian Pacific maintained a steady pace. On the Curb, Lake Shore and Hiram Walker eased. Dunlop, Consolidated Smelters were narrow. Canadian funds were unchanged at 99.32 3-4 cents.

Advances in fractions to a point or more were registered by American Can, American Tobacco "B", Radio preferred "B", Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse Electric, Southern Pacific and N. Y. Central. The steels, motors, chemicals and metals were unchanged to a shade higher or lower.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, June 18 (CP)—Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" was the Ball Weather of the Toronto industrial share market today, turning over in heavy volume on the announcement that the company had put through a new sale of liquor in the United States running into millions of gallons. It advanced more than a half point to close above 9. The general market took new firm at the close. Volume was improved in the afternoon.

With talk of a technical reaction floating across the border from Wall Street, traders developed a noticeable bump of caution today and their light selling in the process of reducing commitments was sufficient to shade prices considerably. Nickel lost ¾ to 27¼, Consolidated Smelters ¼ to 163, Brazilian ¼ to 9 while the oils and Canadian Pacific were off ¼. Canadian Industrial Alcohol led the main exception, traded actively at 9, up ¼.

Construction and steel issues held their ground in the main. Quite a few recessions were posied in the utility, food and bank group. Bell Telephone was featured a point and Shawinigan ¼.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, June 18 (CP)—Buyers picked up a few stocks here and there over the Toronto Mining Board today but activity was very spotty and there were no gains or declines of importance to record, the general lobe holding steady. Interest was in for considerable attention with the price leaders, unchanged while business in the golds centred mainly in Consol. Patricia, God's Lake, McWatters, Pickle Crow and Teck Hughes.

A dribble of business was handled at practically unchanged prices on the industrial section. Coming Treh. ventured up a few cents in the early trading but dropped the gain later and in the main the mining issues were limited to about 10 cents and were almost as many down as up. Teck Hughes traded in fair volume at 84, up 3 cents.

Trade in the base metals was largely concentrated in Noranda with the price unchanged. In the silvers Castle held strong on slow trade and Beaver came out in considerable volume at 1.36 to 1.36 as against Monday's closing price of 1.34. Hollinger stocks and ice mix remained quiet.

LIVESTOCK

Monireal, June 18 —(CP)—Cattle trading again was too slow to establish prices at the opening of the Toronto Canadian National Market today and with hogs unsettled, movement was restricted largely to calves and lambs. Cattle holdovers, after yesterday's very dull market, numbered 1,600 head.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Live Stock Branch were:

Cattle, 410; calves, 270; hogs, 330; sheep and lambs, 1,000.

A few lots of heavyweight butcher cattle went from $5.50 to $6.50. Choice steers sold at a general top of $6.50 with a few at $7.00. Common sold mostly at $4.00 to $4.50.

Indications on the hog market were for a firm settlement.

Lambs were steady at $9.50 for choice and at $7.50 to $9.00 for other choice and $7.50 to $9.00 for other grades. Sheep sold at a general top of $2.50 cwt.

Calf, sheep and lamb quotes were unchanged.

Hogs and cattle—no quotations.

RADIOS WEAK WITH WILLOW

Team Average is .190 And Best Regular Player .250

With seven games, or nearly one-thing of the C.O.B.I. schedule completed, the batting averages of the Stewart-Warners find their hitting prowess far below average, the local "Radios" hitting the pellet at the lowly clip of .190 for their team average. Not a single regular player of the local senior team is hitting anywhere near the coveted .300 mark, although pitcher Art Calhoun has a batting average of an even .300 having participated in only four games.

Johnnie Kerr, local left-fielder, leads the Radios with the willow, he averaging one hit out of each four times at bat for an aggregate batting average of .250. Dean Ford, local short-stop, follows in line with an average of .238 while Pitcher Ernie Smith hit for .200 in the two games he has appeared in, while Jack "Chief" Williams is also batting at the .200 clip for the four games he has appeared in making local hurlers the big hitters.

The batting averages of the Radios to date, seven games having been played in the C.O.B.I., are—

	G.	AB.	H.	Av.
A. Calhoun.....	4	8	4	.500
J. Williams	4	8	2	.250
H. Smith.....	7	20	4	.200
J. Kerr	7	20	5	.250
D. Ford	7	21	5	.238
R. Gray	7	20	6	.300
R. Smith	7	23	4	.173
O. McIlroy	7	23	4	.173
A. Weir	7	25	4	.160
E. Green	7	23	4	.173
J. Barclay	7	23	2	.087
W. Mills	7	21	4	.190
F. Sero	1	0	0	.000
M. Little	1	0	0	.000

In the seven games played to date the Radios have lost 21 runs officially face operation hurling, from whose deliveries they have collected exactly 41 hits, an aggregate batting average of .190 as a team.

ALABAMA PITTS ELIGIBLE TO PLAY

Judge Landis Gives Boy Trying to Come Back a Break

By The Associated Press

Alabama Pitts, who may or may not be of International League calibre, has brought that baseball sentiment prevalent in his fight to be allowed to play for Albany despite his shady background.

It wasn't "Alabama" personally that stirred all baseball, but the principles the case represented. And so when Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis handed down a decision in favor of Pitts, the news was rushed far and wide.

Rain last night spoiled a possible all-climax to the case, but tonight fans were at first league action against Toronto in a scheduled eight game set. Pitts, finally gave the judge announced his decision in Chicago.

Baltimore continued its heavy ball pounding to defeat Rochester 12-7 in third series action on Baltimore yesterday. George Puccinelli leading the attack with a home run knocked in three runs across the plate and added ten hits total for the season to 20. Vince Barnhart and Walter Gautreau also joined the home run spree, Barton to bring in two. Rochester collected nine hit homers for Rochester.

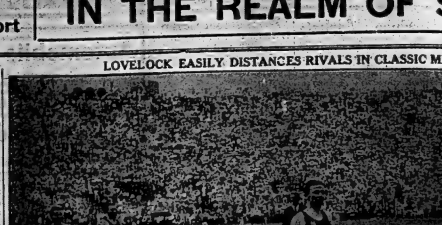
The Newark Bears defeated the Buffalo Bisons 9-3 in the only other International League game yesterday. Six runs in the home game of their series also.

Cecil Stiglitz seemed to be in fine form and he blanked the Bisons for eight innings. However, in the ninth a homer by Joseph Sprinz and a double by Ray Fitzgerald caused him to be relieved by Ike Showers and Frank Makosky went into halt the rally.

CARDINALS ARE BETTER

The Cardinals and the Starlights got their season under way on Saturday when they played on the latter's diamond, the Cardinals' diamond, the score being 18-13 in favor of the Reds. Next Saturday's game will be played at the Fair Grounds. Details of the game as furnished by the Cardinals' manager, Jimmy Mills are:

Starlights: 12 runs, 11 hits, 4 errors.



Cardinals: 18 runs, 13 hits, 2 errors.

Umpires: Matthews at plate, Rousseau on bases.

Triples F. Gibbons, B. McBride, J. Pepper; Doubles, J. Mills, J. Pepper, S. Mills, S. Kerr, Strickpole, Pepper 2, Gibbons 2. Walks, Pepper 7, Gibbons 9.

Batteries: Starlights, Gibbons, p; Figden c. Cardinals, Pepper p; McGuire and Mills c.

LOVELOCK EASILY DISTANCES RIVALS IN CLASSIC MILE

Jack Lovelock, smooth-stepping Oxford and New Zealand miler shown breaking the tape to win the invitation mile race at Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N.J., ahead of Bill Ponthron and Glenn Cunningham who made a marvellous bunt in the closing stages to finish easily. The time was 4.11.2. Spectators agreed that the winner could have covered the mile in far better time had he been pressed. Ponthron forged into second position when Cunningham faded in the stretch, but Lovelock's victory was clear-cut and undisputed.

Cy Blanton, Pirate Hurler, Rushed to Hospital After An Attack of Appendicitis

Brilliant Hurler Lost to Team For Great Part of Season

CARDS DRUBBED

Cleveland Also Loses First String Catcher by Sick Route

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The season all pennant contenders fear and few manage to avoid seems to be coming upon major league baseball. That's the time when some important player gets sick or is hurt and all the carefully laid plans of the managers have to be re-arranged.

The latest victims of the scourge, which already has struck several times without doing any great amount of damage this season, are Pittsburgh Pirates and Cleveland Indians, both of whom have hopes of finishing at or near the top this season.

Both Pittsburgh and Cleveland moved up a bit yesterday with lopsided victories but got severe blows through the losses of valuable players. Cleveland's first-string catcher, little Frankie Pytlak, finally gave up his effort to recover from an illness while wandering around with the club and left for his home in Buffalo.

Blanton To Hospital

The tribe didn't miss him much when Bill Brenzel substituted ably and made two hits in the course of an 11 to 2 triumph over the Red Sox.

The Pirates got a worse blow just after they had slugged the Phillies into submission 12-5 without the aid of their leading clouter, Arky Vaughan, who is nursing a Charley Horse. Darrell Hamilton, brilliant rookie pitcher, who has won nine games against five losses, was stricken with acute appendicitis and hurried off to a hospital for an operation. He's not expected back with the club for some time.

On the brighter side of the picture, the Indians, after being delayed a half hour by the rain which wiped out three other American League games, piled up 17 blows, including home runs by Earl Averill and Hynek Campbell, to trounce Boston for the fourth straight time and move into a tie with Detroit for third place in the American League.

Pittsburgh gathered in 23 blows off three Philly pitchers and increased its margin over the third-place St. Louis club to a game and one half as the Cardinals were bested under a 14-3 score by the league leading Giants. For the Phils Johnny Moore belted his 12th home run of the year to tie Mel Ott of New York for the league lead.

Giants Drub Cards

The Giants got going against Paul Dean for three runs in the second inning, belted him to cover in the fourth, when the Cards blew up for three errors and four more runs counted and finished off Bill Parrell for a total of 13 hits. Among them were circuit swats by Mark Koenig and Hal Schumacher, who pitched the full game for his eighth win.

The cellar-dwelling Braves smote the ivy on the right field wall at the Bunker Hill Day doubleheader, 8-3 and 5-1, and left the losers feeling very much like the British troops and only a few points ahead of Philadelphia.

Wally Berger belted his 10th and 11th home runs behind Dutch Henry and his flingling in the opener while Danny MacFayden subdued his former teammates in the afterpiece. Two homers by Chuck Klein, each with a man aboard, gave the Cubs their winning margin in a 5-3 triumph over Brooklyn.

Manager Gould Never Lost Faith In His Protege

(By Edward J. Neil)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, June 18—(AP)—James J. Braddock was named to the pugs ring from birth.

Early in the morning of June 7, 1906, in the heart of Hell's Kitchen on West 49th Street, between 10th and 11th Avenues, he was born to Mrs. Elizabeth O'Toole Braddock, and the proud father, Joe, now 70 and a watchman on the Hoboken docks, promptly named the lusty 17 pound infant James Jay in honor of James J. Jeffries, then heavyweight champion of the world.

The parent Braddocks, both mother and father, came from County Galway, Ireland, 45 years ago. One of Jim's uncles was a famed rough and tumble fighter, another a prominent foot runner.

Born to Be Fighter

Two of Jim's three other brothers, Ralph and Joe, were fighters for a time. He has four brothers, in all, and two sisters.

The family moved to New Jersey, where Walter Joe set up in the trucking business when Jim was a little nipper. He went to school in West New York, N.J., and his fighting career started early. He was ten, been he flattened the first school mate, Elmer Furlong, with a single right. Then Manager Johnny Morris, another pal, 30 times for the fun of it splitting the decision about even.

At 13 he was a messenger boy, and one job he likes was delivering the round by-round description to a newspaper office of Jack Dempsey's conquest of Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919. At 15 he was in 1923 a clerical helper in a print shop and after hours he'd sneak over the fences of Jersey ball parks to see the games. At 16 he was in the amateurs, weighing 158 pounds, and scored 40 knockouts, before he turned professional.

Never Lost Faith

One day in 1926, in Union City, N.J., gymnasium, a New York manager, Joe Gould, was scouting sending boys in training of a middleweight, Harry Galfund. Joe spotted a big skinny kid standing by the ring posts, looking eagerly on. Joe needed a sparring partner.

"You a fighter?" he demanded.

"Yes, sir," said the big youngster.

"What's your name? What do you weigh?"

"Braddock, 162."

"Wanna box with Galfund?"

"Sure."

Braddock almost knocked out Galfund, a seasoned fighter, whereupon Gould, sent the old warrior home and took over the new. They never parted after that. The years rolled by, and they went up, down, and sideways, but they stuck together through it all.

Daily Short Story

FOUR ROUNDS

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Round one—Well, here goes — I wonder if I'll be able to stay the limit—Gee, it's a long time since I fought—I sure need the dough—Must stay the four rounds, it means forty dollars—The kids will eat for a while if I can—And to think a few years back I was a main bout attraction.

—This kid looks like a puncher —I'll have to keep away from that right hand—He looks so clean cut and young—Coco — I looked like that—I wonder if he'll wind up with a smashed nose, cauliflower ears and scarred eyebrows—So far so good but I don't seem to be on my toes the way I used to—Maybe I can snare him—I'll the old gag the champs use when they are out of condition—Say kid if you are a nice boy I'll let you stay—It didn't work, and that left drive blood—Ouch, I could take a dozen like that in the old days without opening my jaw—His punch now—I'm tired I feel and the kid looks fresh as a daisy—And another fresh kid—I'll try a right—Missed him, my timing is away off—And to think I once could set my opponent up and he has to be done. His kids can't shave not while I'm around up—Forty dollars, that's a lot of money right now—Ah, the bell—seems like I'm wearing diver's shoes and how far away that corner appears—My arms are tired and my wind is gone but I've made ten dollars so far.

Nine Minutes

Round Two—Thirty bucks to go —Nine minutes—I don't know as yet a lifetime if you have to take it—I'm still tired, that rest didn't seem to help much—Right under the heart—Boy, that hurt. I'll have still more minute—Better keep away from the ropes—It will be fatal if I'm caught in a corner—can't seem to hold him in the clinches—Three — Four — Five —Am I dreaming?—Six — Seven— I'd better get up—The kids, I got to get them milk—Milk, Milk—Eight —Say, referee, don't look at me like that—I hope my wife don't go to a picture show—He might stop it and I'd only get twenty dollars—Those right hand smashes are making me weak—and sick—I can't help thinking what I have done to this kid a few years ago—Youth is a great thing—It can't be beaten—Sound like the bell—Rubber legs—leaden arms and face swollen from punishment—But I must carry on—It's the kids, you know.

Round Three—I wonder if I look like I feel—This boy sure seems as if he hasn't scratched himself—Hear that crowd roar—shouting "Knock him out"—How quickly they change—They used to cheer me once — But what's the use of worrying about that—I've been over dollar made and I'm still going—My kid's are my inducements—I think I was a bad one but I'll hold for a spell —If I could only retire—Maybe I would stop peering into my face—He might stop it if I look too bad —can't afford to have that happen —I'm tired, so tired—Maybe if I whispered to the kid that I'll stay—No, I couldn't do that—I was a champ once—And champs can fight one way—K. O's is necessary but never ask for mercy—Seven!—Gosh, I must have been knocked down again—I'll take nine and up —That was swell of the referee, not stopping to wipe of my gore—A life saver—Oh, why don't that bell stop—Down again—Five — Six — Seven—Bang—Thank goodness for that—Well I'm thirty dollars to the good—Means a few more things for the kids—I'll make it now.

A Knock-Down

Round Four must look as if I was hit by a train—That crowd is booing again—Maybe if they knew, it wouldn't be like that—The kid seems to be getting careless — I wonder if he can take it—So far I haven't been able to find out—Well here goes, the old roundhouse right—Dropped him—I'm surprised—He only took a count of two—And he is mad—I guess I'm in for it now right—Left—Uppercuts—Left hooks—I'd like to slug with him but he's too strong — I'm weary — Sick—Tired — Minute and a half to go—I hope I can make it—How fickle these fight fans are—They are cheering me now — And calling the kid a bum when I knocked him down — What do I care for their cheers, jeers and groans—It's the money I need— Thirty seconds to go—There's the stool coming into the ring—Bang, bang—It's all over—I lose the decision—I'll get the call for a while —That's all that counts with me.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had liver and onions for supper in pop's honor, and when pop was half ways through , his 2nd helping as well, there was four inches lords a Mitie bridge this evening, Willyum? and pop said, My attitude is that thousands of people will no doubt pay and even go so far as to imagine they're having a good time, but as for me nothing is further from my inclinations and intentions. To state the case in the plain unequivocal language of a blunt man, a thousand times no, I said.

Being the same way he greatly reels about bridge, and ma said, Well, I suppose it's a wonderful thing to know your own mind. I cny with I knew my own just as certainly many times when I am torn between pro and con and if pop said but and why and why not so and maybe. I mean I envy you, ma said.

The complesely happy man is he who knows not ony what he doesn't want to do but what he does want to do, pop said. Shall I go around in Pedro or shall I spend carefree bowling, or shall I cert up in my bedroom slippers and commune through the .sfill nite with one of the master minds of literature, such as the fellow that wrote Merder in the Parsonage? I should prefer to think that before nite if I start rite after supper, but the color hasn't haven't bowled for 3 nites, and who am I to expect to be perfect without practice? he said.

With just then the doorbell rang and ma said, O my goodness that must be the Hewses already. I forgot they said they were coming early.

What the dooce do they want? pop said, and ma said, Well, my lands Willyum what have we been talking about all this time? Didn't I tell you they were going to drop around for a little bridge? she said.

Yee gods. Ma 's a woman in a world, pop said.

Meaning what was a use.

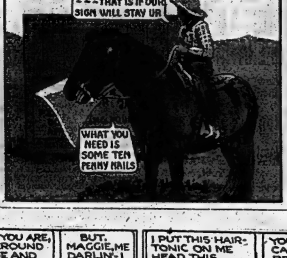
FIRE FORETOLD

Summerside, P. E. I., June 18—(CP)—The disastrous fire which razed Summerside's Central High school building was foretold to a teacher, Mrs. Muriel McHatt, in Charlottetown Monday by a fortune teller, the teacher told friends today.

WHEN you're feeling low, try a bowl of Kellogg's Rice Krispies in milk or cream. Their crisp crackle will cheer you. Rich in energy — easy to digest.

Children like Rice Krispies because they snap, crackle, and pop in milk or cream. Fine for the nursery supper because they promote restful sleep.



At all grocers in the Mother Goose story package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Quality guaranteed.

Minister, Ordained on Spot Where Apostle Paul Stood, Tells Rotary Story of Saloniki

Rev. R. E. Newman Recalls Achievements in Greek Theatre of War

HOSPITAL WORK

Holloway Street Minister Describes Events And Customs

Salonici, Calipoli—words to conjure with during the war, suggesting unlimited heroism, bungling in high places, and many other things in addition to the extreme of Empire loyalty, came back into the minds and memories of Belleville Rotarians at the weekly meeting Monday in Rotal Quinte when a word picture was outlined of hospital work at Salonici during the war, accompanied by a description of the manners and customs of the people encountered by the allied soldiers stationed at Salonici.

The guest speaker of the day was Rev. R. E. Newman, of Holloway Street United Church, who was introduced by Col. David Bazragar as the product of a Grenville County farm, who after considerable experience in the Canadian West and a University education, enlisted and went overseas in 1915 as a member of a hospital unit.

Briefly sketching the tremendous difference it made in the life of a farmer boy accustomed to do what he wanted, to be suddenly introduced to military discipline, military meals and all that military life implied, the speaker rapidly traced his journey from Canada to England, the hospitality experienced by Canadian soldiers in the Old Land, and the feeling of intense pride and loyalty engendered by contact with Englanders at home—pride in being a Britisher, member of a great race. Lady Astor's estate in England, donated for hospital purposes, was described and other scenes in England which were new and wonderful to Canadian eyes.

Then Egypt for a week with all the many and varied thrills which only Egypt can give—then on to Saloniki and the grim work of ministering to the sick and wounded soldiers—the horrors of malaria and dysentery and the surprise of below zero weather which brought 300 cases of frost bite to the hospital tents, in one night.

Ordained in Macedonia

To be ordained in Macedonia, in a little church near where the Apostle Paul preached was the unique experience of Dr. Mr. Newman, the ordination being sanctioned by the Canadian Methodist church authorities on request of an Anglican clergyman at the Front.

A ride in the Colonel's car to and from the church for the ordination, the first and last ride in that car for the young preacher—returning to prepare a meal for 300 soldiers and afterwards washing the dishes—were some of the high lights of that memorable day when with the big guns of war booming a grim accompaniment, the young Canadian took final vows of service under the Prince of Peace in that faraway land of Macedonia, where the gospel had originally come from and which needs its return very much just now.

Paul, The Apostle

Paul the Apostle, who, once stood on the very spot where the ordination took place, could never have visualized, even with his gift of vision and prophecy, the scene of that unique ordination in which a Canadian soldier began his career in the ministry.

Marriage customs in the country roundabout Saloniki are queer and interesting. Marriages are arranged upon a money basis, each party to the marriage pact putting up 129 francs—and if either the party of the first part or the party of the second part breaks faith the wor fending party can take the entire stake of 200 francs.

Women do the work in the fields and all rough work around home and when the lord and master of the home rides forth on his donkey his lesser half walks behind, carrying the latest baby to arrive in the family.

Other interesting views of life in Macedonia where progress has not advanced beyond the stage of one hundred years previous, people are as about the same intellectually as in the days of Paul—a country where the western ear attuned to modern progress can hear again the medieval cry of long ago from Macedonia—"Come over and help us".

Dominion Secretary Griffin Speaks on Association Problems

With the application of delegates to the 39th annual meeting, the annual convention of the Canadian Postmasters Association at the Quinte Hotel, is expected to be one of unusual interest.

It is no mere coincidence that a postmaster should be chosen to preside over the meetings of this organization, for the chairman is always the executive during the time was also for a half dozen conventions to be brought before the association by resolution, and there will be a resolution dealing with each of these officials' duties, with applied interpretations in the office of postmaster. Other resolutions were briefly mentioned and indications are that more come will be added.

The Question

The question of government ownership of all or certain lines in Canada, as it is in many European countries, is one that will be discussed, and it is said that there is a strong feeling that the government should accept the cost of operating a government service, as well as the benefits. The Canadian railway system is somewhat different from that in European countries.

Tuesday afternoon about thirty-five delegates will assemble at the home of Orderly Officer Allison, a golf game had been planned as the afternoon's entertainment, but the wetted club, Today, however, there will be no golf for the boys.

Banquet Planned

At 10 o'clock this morning H. W. Jones, Ottawa, will address the meeting on "Some Phases of Post Office Work". R. T. Griffin, Dominion secretary, following this will have a discussion of committees appointed at the last convention. Following this will be a number of addresses, followed by an address by Charles D. Griffith, secretary of the Dominion Association. At seven o'clock the annual convention will sit down to the main dining room in the Quinte Hotel as guests of the T. of C. ladies' auxiliary. Following the banquet there will be entertainment by a number of ex-members, followed by artists.

Rural Problem

Rural mail problems has not advanced beyond the stage of one hundred years previous, people are as about the same intellectually as in the days of Paul—a country where the western ear attuned to modern progress can hear again the medieval cry of long ago from Macedonia—"Come over and help us".

TARIFF BOARD TO HAVE TWO DUTIES

Parliament Approves Trade and Industry Commission

Ottawa, June 18—(CP)—In Senate passage from one reform to another the House of Commons today resumed consideration of amendments to the company law after placing its approval yesterday on measures to establish a Dominion trade and industry commission and create a fund to stabilize Canadian currency.

The trade and industry commission will be the tariff board, and as it was debated Prime Minister R. B. Bennett informed the House regulation of business was the most difficult problem confronting public men. The problem was to prevent destructive effects of unrestrained and unrestricted competition and still protect the consumer from exploitation by monopolies.

The proposed commission will have power to recommend approval of certain agreements as to price and production in particular industries and their subsequent approval and carry with it exemption from prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act.

The result of competition inevitably led to monopoly, said Mr. Bennett, despite being lawful and destructive. The fittest or those with the largest resources, were able to undersell their competitors, drive them out of business and then seize the privileges of dictating their own terms to the consumer.

Most Problem In Part

Mr. Bennett believed the agreements contemplated in the bill would provide a means of meeting the problem in part. Liberal members, however, were more or less doubtful and expressed the view the Combines Investigation Act should not be relaxed in any particular. The formal completion of the second, however, as the bill moved through second reading and the committee stages.

The exchange stabilization Fund will amount to some $62,000,000 and will be derived from a utilization of the profits made in the value of gold reserves. The bill provides from revaluing these reserves at the present market value of gold, $35 per ounce. So far they have been carried in the books of the Bank of Canada at the old par value of $20.67 per ounce.

Premier Serves Ultimatum to End War With Breeders

Toronto, June 18.—Premier Hepburn warning from Queen's Park that racing cannot continue, responsible directly to the Government and operating under the department of agriculture, would be established at the next session of the Ontario legislature unless the present differences between the breeders of thoroughbreds and race track owners, with regard to track operations, are eliminated.

"In view of the Government's heavy interest in the livestock industry in the province, and in the income from the pari-mutuel system," said Mr. Hepburn, "the Government has decided that some satisfactory arrangements are made for the direction and control of racing between the breeders and the race track owners that at the next session of the legislature an act will be passed creating a control body, which will have the supervision of racing in Ontario. Such a body, if it is necessary for the Government to create it, will be placed under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Agriculture.

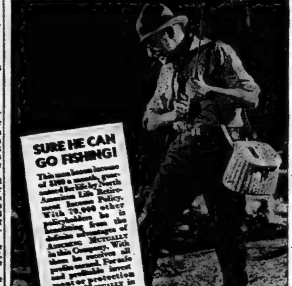
"The Government hopes that in the meantime the parties interested will be able to reconcile their differences and agree upon a satisfactory form of supervision for racing in this province."

VICTORY IN COURT FOR TOM MOONEY

Writ of Habeas Corpus Issued by Supreme Court

San Francisco, June 18 (AP)—Tom Mooney, Monday, cracked the legal barrier which for 19 years has blocked his fight for freedom when the California Supreme Court by issuing a writ of habeas corpus opened its doors to him for the first time.

The court, which previously had held it was powerless to consider the case of the ageing life-term convict, recognized through its action his charge that perjured testimony brought his conviction at the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing.



Legal observers interpreted the writ, which was returnable June 27, was throwing the famous case wide open again.

"Today's order of the Supreme Court," declared Gregg T. Davis, counsel for the imprisoned man, "means that the attorney-general must successfully deny the allegations of perjury made by Mooney and, failing which, the prisoner will be set free. It is a notable victory for Mooney."

At San Quentin prison, Mooney paused in his work of peeling potatoes and smiled broadly when informed of the Supreme Court's action.

"I am very happy to hear the news," he said, "and am looking forward in anticipation to my release after the hearing."

The June 27 proceeding, court attaches said, will be merely for the purpose of settling details of procedure and determining a date for hearing arguments in Mooney's behalf.

POLICE GUARDING PREMIER HEPBURN

Automobile Equipped With Firearms and Body-guard Present

Toronto, June 18 (CP)—Provincial Police are guarding Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn against attempts on his life by threatening letter-writers, The Mail and Empire says today.

Since he assumed office last year he has received numerous "crank" letters but details made within the past 10 days are considered so serious, the newspaper says, police are watching the Premier's every movement.

Even his automobile is equipped with firearms in case of attack, it was reported. Wherever he goes a bodyguard steps along beside him.

The paper says the latest notification was "viewed by his friends, if not by himself, as differing entirely from the usual run of threats and consequently stringent precautions have been taken since."

It was stated the threat was made against the Premier alone, and does not concern his family.

The Premier refused "absolutely" to comment on the report.

TREES UPROOTED DURING STORM

Wild Early Morning Tempest Sweeps Across District

A forty mile gale, accompanied by miniature cyclones which dipped to the ground, swept over sections of the city, tearing large trees out by the roots and breaking off branches from others, swept through the city during the early morning hours and left a trail of wreckage behind.

Employees of the local municipal men of public works laboured throughout the morning on the task of clearing the roads and streets of the litter of branches and limbs strewn through the city by the violent storm. On South John Street, between Dundas and St. Paul one large maple well over one foot in diameter was pulled up, roots and roots anchorage and tossed across the road. On Church street in front of the home of A. Clifton a large branch also broken off, blocked the sidewalk until removed. Damage to the west side of the city was confined mostly to broken branches and uprooted flower beds.

Reports from rural sections indicate that damage was slight, except for the loss of a few shingles from barns. The storm had only recently centred itself in the city. The rain which accompanied the wind caused little garden loss by its heavy descent.

SUBDUE MUTINY IN KANSAS MINE WITHOUT INJURY

Rioting Convicts Brought to Surface After 21 Hours

USE SMOKE SCREEN

Ventilator Fans Reversed to Force Convicts to Surrender

By K. GORDON BROWN
(Copyright, 1935, By The Associated Press)

Lansing, Kas., June 19 (AP)—A score of officers and guards led by Warden Joseph Kinney subdued 300 rioting convicts early today in the fifth darkness of the Kansas State Prison coal mine and ended a destructive 21-hour mutiny.

Soon after the final lift load of mutineers, sheepish, bedraggled, came to the surface and they marched past a line of heavily armed prison, county and State Highway officers to their cell block 60 feet away.

In 35 minutes the evacuation of the 720-foot mine level where the riot convicts was complete.

Only a half dozen guards remained below to check the damage wrought in the convicts' fury.

Termination of the day and night-long mutiny was accomplished without injury to either guards or convicts and even the 19 frightened mules kept below to haul coal cars were reported unhurt.

We had a Hell of a time breaking down a door barricade. That's what took so long," said Simpson as he came up to announce the riot was ended.

Smoked Without Bloodshed

Not only was the mutiny quelled without bloodshed to man or beast but the prison officials announced they had made no concessions to the three demands of the rioters.

"We don't owe them a nickel," declared T. W. Wood, chief member of the Prison Board of Administration.

The more than 300 prisoners had demanded better prepared food, the discharge of Dr. David F. Parker, prison physician, and immunity for their actions.

The prison guards and other officers used smoke from a fire started by the convicts themselves as their chief weapon of attack.

Started in the main barrack, the fire was fed by hay and timbers in an effort of the rioters to drive armed guards away from the strategic gas gauge near the base of the air shaft. This would have given them control of the entire subsurface level. But a fan in the tower that had been smuggled down a little at a time.

By reversing the ventilator fans, Richard Simpson and Lee Warren shot smoke upon the rioters and sent them scurrying in disordered groups to the far corners of the four miles of pitch black corridors.

Yesterday's gas was produced by soaring flares and electric torches fastened to their clothing, members of the disciplinary party descended without incident but found their path blocked by a heavy double door which separated the air shaft from the main mine shaft.

It had been bolstered by iron rails and by heavy coal and heavy timbers. This was the door Simpson referred to as delaying the surrender.

As it was battered down the officers saw a group of convicts walking toward them, their hands in the air. Others followed and the mutiny was over.

A half dozen of the mine guards who had been held hostage throughout, again were in charge as the evacuation began. Warden Simpson said he would investigate all charges against the ringleaders and punish them.

Four Cling Hours to Canoe, One Lets Go and Drowns

Toronto, June 19—(CP)—Thomas H. Smallman of Toronto, son of J. E. Smallman, noted horseman of London, Ont., was drowned in Hollow Lake near Dorset in the Muskoka District Sunday, it was learned today.

Mr. Smallman, who is a member of the Canadian and two Richardson and Smallman was fishing with three others from a canoe. The canoe suddenly capsized and the four were thrown into the water.

For hours they clung to the gunwales of the canoe until exhaustion caused Smallman to release his hold. The three others made shore where they were discovered last night by a search party.

Dragging for Smallman's body was started today by residents of the district.

After clinging to his overturned boat London for several hours Smallman, who is 28, was overcome by the cold water and slipped off to drown.

His wife, the former Eleanore Leonard of Hamilton and two friends, Danny McManus and Miss Dorothy Cluff both of Toronto, managed to swim to safety when the boat drifted within 150 yards of the short line.

It was learned the passengers were thrown out of the boat when it turned quickly to avoid a log.

Mr. Smallman could swim well but the cold water forced him to release his grasp.

German Naval Envoy Makes Private Journey To Discuss Air Accord

Naval Accord Greeted as Victory For Peace in Germany

GERMAN PLANS

Britain Will Discuss Situation With France, Italy

London, June 19 (CP-Havas) — Germany immediately followed up the completion of the Anglo-German naval accord with an offer for an aerial accord along the same lines, it was reliably reported today.

The proposal to establish an aerial ratio with Great Britain, similar to the naval agreement, was made, it is understood, after Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Ambassador-at-large and naval envoy, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, had made a private trip to the fortnight office.

Britain is now going to discuss naval limitation with France, Italy and Russia. A communication attributed has gone to Paris, inviting French naval experts to London. Later the French will come to Italians and then, it is speculated, the Russians.

In Friday's conversations at Paris with Premier Pierre Laval, Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations affairs, will not merely seek to remove French hesitations over the Anglo-German naval agreement. He will, it is learned, press for a general limitation of armaments.

The Fifty Express said today Joachim Von Ribentrop, leader of the German delegation, notified Britain that Germany proposed to build the following ships between now and 1942:

Five battleships;
Sixteen cruisers;
Fifty destroyers;
Thirty submarines.

This can be build nine 9,000-ton cruisers, 30 1,430-ton destroyers and 66 250-ton submarines.

Hailed as Peace Step Victory

Berlin, June 19 (CP-Havas) — The German newspapers were unanimous today in hailing the Anglo-German naval agreement as a great Nazi victory.

Headlines such as "A great step forward!" "A step along the road to European peace," and "A historic event," were printed in all the papers.

France Fearful

Paris, June, 19 (CP-Havas) — Fearful of the Anglo-German accord has driven a wedge between the united front of France, Great Britain and Italy, the French capital gave a cool reception today to the news of the agreement.

CRAFT CAPSIZES HANDLERS DUCKED

When the sailing punt in which they were cruising capsized near the lighthouse yesterday afternoon three local young men were forced to shore causing considerable anxiety to many onlookers. The Provincial Police later were notified of the incident and upon investigation found the boat to have been owned and sailing by R. Rushlow, 15 South John street. Mr. Rushlow was accompanied by two friends, launching this sailing punt and proceeded across the bay for a sail. Upon their return trip, however, a gale sprung up resulting in a heavy sea rolling. Near the lighthouse the craft was caught in the trough of a large wave and capsized, as many onlookers along the shore became alarmed as to the boy's welfare. Fortunately all three youths could swim well and soon were safely on the shore. The capsized craft was towed ashore by a passing motor launch.

LLOYD ELECTED TO PRESIDENCY BY POSTMASTERS

Offices of Honorary Presidents Are Created

A. M. CHURCH IS V. P.

Organization Will Meet Next Year in Orillia

E. G. Lloyd of Schomberg was today elected president of the Ontario Branch, Canadian Postmasters' Association, in convention in the Hotel Quinte here. Mr. Lloyd was nominated by W. McClure of Tillsonburg who held the office for the past five years.

Portsmith Probe Opens Into Shooting of Blais On Farm at Bethany

Constable Recalls Visit of Portsmith, His Wife And Blais

Inspector Gurnett Testifies Portsmith Said He Borrowed Rifle

Millbrook, Ont., June 19—(CP) — Preliminary hearing of the murder-charge against Ralph Portsmith of Bethany started today before Magistrate W. J. Campbell of Port Hope. Portsmith is charged with slaying of Noel Blais, French Canadian farm hand whose body was found on Portsmith's farm June 6.

Portsmith allegedly told police he had shot Blais accidentally.

Blais had been carrying on an affair with Portsmith's wife, related Provincial Constable W. J. Carey of Peterboro in describing his admission he said was made by Mrs. Portsmith to him some days before the shooting.

Visit to Police Office

On June 4 Portsmith came to Carey's office in connection with his wife and the hired man, Portsmith, wife and Blais were present.

"Mrs. Portsmith told me she had done wrong with the hired man, Blais, she said the affair had been going on for two weeks," testified Carey, adding Blais declared he couldn't help it "that he loved her."

Portsmith told Blais he intended to pay the hired man and Blais was ordered by Carey to stay off the farm from then on.

Mrs. Portsmith's husband was working at night and she was "fed up" stated Constable Robert Warner of the Ontario Provincial Police in conversation to police on the occasion when Portsmith visited the Provincial Police at Cobourg.

Portsmith was sitting on the verandah crying when Constable W. Thompson of Bethany arrived at the scene of the killing June 6.

Statement by Portsmith

"I killed a man. I shot him accidentally," Constable Thompson testified to him, stated Constable Thompson. Witness added:

"He told me he had had some trouble with Blais and that Blais had ordered Blais to stay away. The morning of the shooting Blais had refused to work. Portsmith claimed Blais sleeping under a loose floor in the shed and pointed the rifle, Blais threatened to harm Mrs. Portsmith and the boy's the accused man said. He told me he thought the rifle was a scare him but didn't intend to shoot him."

The body was fust lying inside the shed door, face down in a pool of blood, described the Constable. In the dead man's hand was a paperinspector.

Hankey's Prick Wins Royal Hunt Cup

Ascot, England, June 19 (CP Cable) — H. Barnard — Hankey's Prick today won the Royal Hunt Cup feature of the day's card at Ascot. Sir Henry Lyons' Scaltercrash was second and Sir Alfred McAlpine's Llanarmon, third.

Prick started at odds of 66 to 1, Scaltercrash at 28 to 1, and Llanarmon at 33 to 1.

Thirty-seven ran over the distance of seven furlongs and 155 yards. Prick led by a length at the finish with Llanarmon half a length back of Scaltercrash.

Three last-minute scratches reduced the field from the original 40 probable starters. They were Negundo, Fables Vos Jeux and Poet's Pride. It was still a record field with 37 competing.

Wives Handle Finances; Postmasters Watch Test

Reluctantly Men Confess It Pays to Bring Wives Along as Budgeting Skill Works Out at Convention

This city is the scene of one of history's major upsets in the role of husband. Belleville, policed so gracefully as the confluence of the River Moira and the Bay of Quinte, will go down in history as the town where husbands and wives surrendered their rugged individualism, their boasted masculinity, their ageless heritage of ruling the roost.

It is here that a group of men attending the annual convention of the Ontario Branch, Canadian Postmasters' Association, succumbed to challenge that their wives, budgeting, dish-washing, child-raising mates. The women are handling the finances of the men's organization. The writer detected a trace of masculine resentment in the voice of a feminine charm of many of the weaker sex as the convention got under way and was aroused.

When, in a corridor of the Hotel Quinte he heard a woman say to her husband, "I've given you enough money today, remember the agreement," he started an investigation. For 36 hours some of the delegates would admit their moral defeat. Others, however, were frankly proud of their wives, proud in their eyes, pride was strictly every mailed boson.

Ladies Take a Hand

Despite the tight-lipped, tenacious inclusivity of the men, it leaked out that a year ago at the convention in Windsor the womenfolk formed a committee. It was composed of wives of delegates and the men were prone to petty extravagances, gross mismanagement and general budget-busting. It was high time the ladies took a hand in things.

The women didn't — it was discovered from the women—neglect their husbands' affairs. Each demands her current control, but with infinite, insidious patience over a period of about 11 months they "educated" the men. Many of the wives started the ball out when they arrived at Belleville for the convention. Others, with a touch of goodfellowship and the realization of the men suffered a common misfortune.

In other words, they agreed to allow their wives to handle the financial affairs while at the convention.

TAKE 2 WIVES

"Just an experiment," declared W. W. Jamieson, Belleville, head of the branch. "I've got an open mind, I'm willing to try anything. I'm sure we'll have to allow my wife to handle the money if she and the other wives think they can do a better job. Why should I...I mean—why should I?"

"Why should you, Mr. Jamieson? Why should you?" wondered Lorne Trenton, Belleville postmaster. "If they can take it, I guess I can. I admit I held out for a long time, but when my wife finally said, 'I'll be ashamed to myself, 'why not give Mrs. Trenton a chance to prove she is a good I'm competent,' So, I told her to go ahead and handle the money. And is she handling it?"

Doing a Good Job

"Why yes, I am. I...I mean, well sure I'm letting my wife handle the finances. She's doing a good job, too, admitted Jamieson. "I'm

SACRIFICES LIFE IN VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE CHILD

William Papst, 56, And Nancy Redcliffe, Six, Drown in Trent

BODIES RECOVERED

Four Year Old Sister of Little Girl is Only Witness

Campbellford, June 19.—William John Papst aged 56, sacrificed his life here Thursday afternoon in a vain effort to save six-year-old Nancy Redcliffe, who had waded out beyond her depth in the Trent River. Papst, who lived in one section of the house occupied by the little girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Redcliffe, jumped into the water with his clothes on when he saw the girl disappear.

Only Other Resident

Only other Redcliffe, four-year-old sister of the drowning victim, witnessed the tragedy, she rushed home to tell her mother that Papst had gone into the river with his clothes on. The mother quickly summoned help, but it was probably half an hour after the child had gone down before boats, manned by townsmen, were on the scene. Papst's body was recovered at 5 p.m. about 100 yards away and that of the girl two hours later. Hydro employees worked over Papst for an hour in vain.

Nancy had come home from school and suggested going down to the river. Her mother had not wanted her to go, thinking the day was too cool. Papst said he thought it would be all right, and the girl departed, walking with him.

With Papst watching the girls from near the house, Nancy waded into the river, and suddenly disappeared. The 56-year-old man dashed to the bank and leaped in after her. He was handicapped, however by the weight of his clothes and a strong current and whether he reached the girl is not known.

The call for help brought out nearly the whole town and the search was filled with people in boats piled up and down with grappling irons seeking the bodies. Doctors were also on hand, but there was little they could do when the bodies were finally recovered.

Papst had lived in Campbellford about a year and was employed as lumberman in Springbrook. His wife, Blanche, resides in Toronto, her sister of the drowned girl. There are also four children in the Redcliffe family.

$41 SHEEP BILL PAID BY COUNCIL

At a recent meeting of Rawdon Township Council accounts totalling $41 were passed for sheep and lambs killed and maimed by dogs. Mr. John Fleming had three sheep and four lambs killed.

FLAG IS FLOWN AT HALF MAST

When the City staff at the Canadian Department store in this city, the flag is floating at half staff out-of respect to the late Col. William F. Eaton, who passed away yesterday at his home at Oakville.

18 INCHES SNOW IF RAIN WERE SNOW

A mathematical minded city hall employee with the aid of sharpened lead pencil this morning computed that if yesterday's rainfall, with nearly two inches of precipitation during the day had been received in the form of snow, residents of the city would have been faced with the task of shovelling slightly less that eighteen inches of it from roads and streets. The rainfall records here was estimated to have been about one-third of the total amount received during the month of May.

NO BLACK SPIDERS IN THIS DISTRICT

Reports of fatalities and poisonings caused by the bite of the black widow spider contained in recent news despatches generally received from southern points leave expert entomologists at the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory unmoved. Belleville and district, and the well-to-do-ario residents are practically safe from this insect, it was stated.

"If we have black widow spiders they have not been reported as yet, and it is not generally believed that they are found this far east," stated Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the laboratory.

"I've only seen one in my life, and that was in the west. The spider is a pretty thing to look at, and perhaps is the reason so many people have been bitten by it. However, it is not he's a pretty little customer, and a dangerous one, from all reports."

WATER RISES TWO INCHES IN HARBOR

Aided by recent heavy rains, or attributed to the steady rise of the lake levels now on the upswing of the high water cycle, during the past three days a rise of two inches has been noted in the local harbor and Bay of Quinte, according to readings taken from a water gauge by Jack Robbin, well known waterfront resident.

DEMAND FOR HELP EXCEEDS SUPPLY

"The demand for farm help exceeds the supply", commented Mr. V. V. Rose, district resident of the local Employment Service of Canada office this morning.

"Farmers need help, but lots of the men won't take the jobs in spite of the fact they had previously registered for them. This is not the majority of them by any means, but because we have placed a considerable number of them so far this season.

"Some of the men attempt to wriggle out of the job when approached by a prospective employer. When he offers $16 a week, they want $18 or $20, if they only knew it, a single man getting $16 or $18 a month, including board is getting a pretty good thing just at the present time."

The greatest demand is for single men, it was stated.

CARP FISHING IS ON THE DECREASE

Carp fishermen, operating in the Bay of Quinte and surrounding waters under special license given out by the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries, following application made by game inspector Weymark of this district are reporting smaller catches this week. Unseasonable weather conditions was given as the cause. Several of the fishermen previously reported catches in excess of their expectations. Marshall Conrow, well known fisherman, reports a catch of well over 700 pound of the fish in one day.

The special licenses to net have been given out by the department in an effort to reduce the number of carp, well known as one of the greatest enemies of game fish.

POSTMASTERS FETED BY EATON'S

Entertainment Not Speaking Rules Festivity

The convention of the Ontario Branch, Canadian Postmasters' Association definitely entered the realm of entertainment last night when the delegates and their wives were the guests of the T. Eaton Company, Limited, at a banquet in the Hotel Quinte.

The whole evening was unique in that not a single speech was made. Many of the guests present were briefly introduced by Carl E. Reeve, representing the president and directors of the store, and announced with a broad grin, that the evening was to be one of enjoyment not speechmaking.

"A mighty fine idea," declared Mayor G. O. Tice. "This is the first time in four years I've been able to just sit back and have a good time."

However, Mayor Tice did make a little speech. His Worship couldn't resist it. Belleville artists, who entertained and served such applause that the Mayor stood up and told the banquet that Belleville had more and finer talent than any other city in Canada five times its size.

Miss Leona Riggs, Miss Jessie B. Cuttis, Mr. James Rankler and Mr. Alec Gordon of this city and Miss Fielding, Miss Robertson and Mr. Clare Rouse of Toronto provided the entertainment of the evening in song, reading and in comedy.

Mr. Reeve, who acted as chairman, introduced the following head-table guests: Mr. J. O. Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce; Mr. H. W. Mc. Donald, Postal Director at Ottawa; Mr. Phillip Crenier, representing the Quebec Branch of the Association, and Mrs. Crenier; W. J. McMillan, manager of the Canadian Department Store; W. R. Gordon, manager Robert Simpson Company, Eastern, Limited, Belleville; C. D. Griffith, Secretary of the Association; Mayor G. O. Tice; W. J. W. Maguire, President of the Branch; F. T. Murphy, Superintendent, Equipment and Supply Branch, Ottawa, representing Hon. Arthur Sauve, M.P., Postmaster General; A. N. Sands, Merchandise Superviser of the T. Eaton Company, Limited; Col. E. White representing the Maritimes Branch of the Association; J. B. Boyce, Belleville representative of General Motors; Miss Kay Williams.

WALDEN HOPEFUL OF FARM PLANS

Head of Local Veterans Branch Predicts Extension

Optimistic and hopeful, that veterans throughout this district may receive benefits of the lands set in the near future when plans of the Dominion and Provincial Governments are completed, James Walden, president of the Belleville branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, returned to the city yesterday after having attended the solemn and colorful dedication of the Army and Navy Veterans' farm near Brockton.

President Walden attended the ceremony on the invitation of Col. Woods, Dominion president, and in his capacity as 3rd vice-president of the Ontario Command.

"We have hopes, that the farm movement for the single veterans where they may learn principles of farming, may soon be extended throughout the Dominion. The Brockton Farm is the first one that has ever been tried by any returned soldiers' organization, and it is a complete success," stated President Walden on his return. "We are now going to work on the matter of having these farms set up in every province, where the returned single men may be given a chance to learn to provide for themselves."

The farm was described by him as a 113-acre one, equipped with latest and most approved buildings and with pure bred stock. Competent instructors are at present engaged in teaching a number of single men who have been taken from Toronto Beach for the art of farming and are working in close co-operation with employment agencies and farmers, who desire experienced help. For the present accomodations at the farm are limited, but it is hoped that with the purchase of more land, that other men may be billeted there. It is also hoped to provide smaller plans, where the men may raise their own produce and dispose of it through the farm itself at current prices.

Parasites in Comatose State Revived for Season's Operations

Entomologists Busy For Eighteen Hours a Day

BATTLE SAW FLY

Inactive for the past several months in specially designed refrigerators where they have been kept in a dormant condition, thousands of parasites which have been ordered in regular shipments from Central European points during the past winter are being thawed out for the planned work at the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory. A full staff of entomologists at the laboratory is now experiencing one of their busiest periods. Working on an average of from 8 to the morning until 11 at night, entomologists are carefully revitalizing the tiny charges and selecting them for transfer to distant points throughout the Dominion.

The majority of the cases selected are for the Wheat Stem Saw-fly Parasites which will be sent to the wheat districts of the Canadian Prairies in their fight against that pest. Thirteen species of the wasp are destined for the western coast where they will be liberated in the standing timber. Peach Moth and Codding Moth parasites will be despatched to the Niagara and Niagara district.

Up to the present no corroborer parasites have been liberated in this district, although work on this is expected to start soon, following a careful check up of the district it was stated, that last year's parasites which had been set out have wintered well and will give good service during the coming summer.

I. O. O. F. and Rebekah Lodges Attend Divine Service at Tweed

Tweed—Tweed Lodge No. 290 I.O.O.F. and the Rebekah Lodge No. 296 held their annual Divine Service at the United Church on Sunday, June 16th at 2.30 p.m. with Rev. R. R. Nicholson in charge. The members of the local lodge together with visiting brothers from Madoc, Actinolite and Elzevir gathered at the Oddfellows' Hall at 2.00 p.m. and marched to the United Church. They were preceded by Tweed-Sulphide Band of twenty pieces playing "Onward Christian Soldiers".

The marked the second public appearance locally of the band recently organized under the able leadership of Walter E. Dark. The members of the band made their first public appearance in their new uniforms, purchased with the proceeds of the recent Minstrel Show. The uniforms consisted of smart wine coloured tunics and natty blue trousers with strip of wine coloured material down each leg. Caps donated by Nichols' Chemical Co. Sulphide, and by local interested merchants and citizens completed the layout. Many favorable comments were heard regarding the smart appearance of the band which has already done much, and during the summer will do a great deal more to advertise Tweed, as they intend to give sacred concerts at the park on Sunday evenings during the summer.

The opening hymn "Unto the Hills" was sung heartily by the congregation augmented by the members of the band and choir. The choir sang as an anthem "Onward Christian Soldiers" by Schnecker, with Mrs. Harry Grier singing the alto solo most acceptably. The responsive reading the first Psalm "Blessed is the man—followed. Mr. Walter E. Dark, leader of the band contributed a fine cornet solo "Somewhere a voice is calling", the clear ringing notes from the instrument played by an artist filling the sacred edifice.

The pastor, as an introduction to his splendid address welcomed the members of the I.O.O.F. and Rebekah Lodges. The Oddfellows' Lodge is an ancient and noble order founded in Baltimore, Md., in 1819, and now numbering over three million members. It is founded on Christian principles. The members believe in a Supreme Being as the Creator and upholder of man—they believe in the brotherhood of God and brotherhood of man. It's members are taught to visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead and care for the widow and orphan. That they are taught to live that conditions is shown by the fact that they have expended many dollars for this purpose. Friendship, love and truth are cardinal principles of the order.

Selecting as his text St. John, Chapter 13 and verse 34 "A new commandment give I unto you that ye love one another." Jesus' words spoken on his last night on earth, the night he developed his Divine Plan. The Eleventh Commandment." The whole gospel may be summed up in the words of the Master as used on this occasion. "Little children love one another." A new relation to Christ, growing out of this command, involves a new relation to man. The old interpretation of the command "to love thy neighbour" was interpreted as loving one's neighbours but hating one's enemies. Jesus commanded his disciples to love their enemies also, the possible of the Good Samaratan was that he had that man's neighbour is every man who is in need and whose life touches, whether at home or in China, Japan, India.

The Jews thought they had done everything when they had supplied the physical needs, Jesus taught that the spiritual needs should also be ministered unto. The eleventh commandment embraces all the others. It is the secret of Christian living. Sympathy compassion, self-sacrifice were the keynotes of Jesus' life, an example which he left us to follow.

At the conclusion of the service the Oddfellows preceded by the band marched to the Victoria cemetery where the ceremony of decorating of the graves was conducted. The members of the order gathered in a circle around a central square of grass, covered with a carpet of pink and the names of deceased brethren were read by Recording Secretary R. A. MacDougal, deposited bouquets of flowers on the flag. At the conclusion of this ceremony, a ceremonial was conducted at the graves of departed brethren. During the absence of this committee the band played several hymns. Bro. Harvey Vance, a member of Thomasburg Lodge, delivered an excellent address commemorative of this decoration ceremony.

The following graves were decorated; Brothers John Stokes, Robert Maguire, Wellington Hardy, Norman Lloyd, Charles Moon, James Molyneaux, David Beatty, Peter Bartlett, John Hay, Lyman Godfrey, John Pratt, Sidney Church, James H. "ON A BICYCLE BUILT FOR THREE"

With cycling becoming increasingly popular in the Old Country as the weather daily grows warmer, the problem of what to do with Master Baby crops up. It is solved in a perfect manner, however, by this Inverness cyclist and his wife, and who built a tiny sidecar for their bicycle in which the child sits with comfort enjoying the fresh air and countryside. A glass windshield protects the child from dust and dirt. The photo is from Inverness, Scotland.

THEY WATCH THE TIME IN WALLA WALLA

Among the benefits of living in Walla Walla, Wash., is that you are constantly "on time". Human sundials are the rule rather than the exception. The dials are painted on the street. When you want to know the time you merely stand in the centre and your shadow tells you the answer. Of course, if the clouds start gathering you may have to carry a watch, but nevertheless "Me and My Shadow" remains the theme song of the bustling town.

The house of Mr. and Mrs. Edward De Ozier, 75 Millwood Rd. Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Dorothy Bernice was united in marriage to Allan Frederick Leonard, son of Mrs. Leonard and the late Frederick Leonard, Rev. F. W. Maxwell officiating. The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of cameo sky marquisette, fashioned on Grecian lines and carried a bouquet of Briar Cliff roses, lily of the valley, forget-me-nots and baby's breath. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lucy Marguerite Ozier, who wore a gown of daffodil chiffon and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses, lily of the valley and baby's breath. The groom was attended by Mr. Sherwood Leonard, brother, and Miss Jean Elizabeth Ozier played the wedding march. Mrs. Ozier, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black lace over satin, with corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas, and baby's breath. Mrs. Leonard, mother of the groom was wearing navy georgette with lace trim with shoulder bouquet of pink sweet peas and lily of the valley. After the buffet luncheon, the bride's couple left by motor for a short honeymoon in Eastern Ontario. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard will live in Tweed where the former is manager of the Bell Telephone Co.

MORE CONVENIENT to Call at 7.00 p.m.

New Night Period

7 P.M. to 4.30 A.M.

Night rates on "Anyone" long distance calls now begin at 7 p.m.

"It's so much more convenient," says a faithful daughter who calls her mother in a distant city twice every week. "Now I can call and get the benefit of the night rate before I go out for the evening. It is better for Mother, too—she goes to bed early."

The 7 o'clock night rate period effects many savings for telephone users who formerly used the evening rate between 7 and 8.30. In a few cases (affecting about 2 per cent of the traffic) rate readjustment has made a 5-cent increase in the minimum (or night) rate, yet the convenience of the longer night rates period (7 p.m. to 4.30 a.m.) is of far-reaching benefit.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

DUST ON ROADS

Stirling News-Argus draws attention to "the dusty condition of the highway from Stirling to Foxboro and Marmora", which is worse at night and when glaring headlights come into view, motorists are practically unable to see what is ahead of them.

Those who have had a car pass them in a cloud of dust on any road have been left wondering how they ever escaped collision and injury.

MUSSOLINI'S WIT

Mussolini in a spirited address in Sardinia flashed a bit of wit when he hit at the "ridiculous Punch and Judy shows" of other nations which, he said, would be consumed "with Fascist ardour." If it had not been for the last phrase about Fascist ardour some people of "other nations" might have thought he was in earnest. But he was just speaking to ardent Fascists in Sardinia and the mention of the Punch and Judy play was so understood by his hearers that no one thinks that Il Duce had anything but a joke to deliver.

The Sardinian listeners could cheer and laugh at the mind's picture of a Punch and Judy show burning up. Even Mussolini must have been the ruggedness of the lines of that stern countenance to laugh at his own joke.

The world has passed it by and nothing serious has come.

SOUTH AMERICAN EXAMPLE

Belligerent nations in South America have stopped fighting. There is nothing more to fight about after 170,000 Paraguayans and Bolivians had been sacrificed in three years' struggle over the fever-ridden jungles of the Gran Chaco.

The feeling of the world in regard to the struggle of these two republics, both of Spanish origin, cannot but be like that of the mad Hamlet in the play when the same mane, who wondered that armies would fight over a patch of land, not large enough to hold the slain. While the Gran Chaco is continental enough to cover every man, woman and child of the two republics at war and all of the rest of the inhabitants of South America and of the world if it were necessary to put all humanity in one war cemetery it does not lessen the fact that the war has been a colossal blunder. Like another war, nobody seems to have won this one—the collapse of the whole fabric of the civilization of these two peoples was imminent. It took a bumbling world to bring the two to their senses.

Now mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters in the two lands can spend the rest of their lives mourning over their dead beloved victims of the bloody Moloch or Mars of war and also in wearing their fingers to the bone to pay the debt. As the rest of the world is impoverished by the events of 1914-18, these two republics bear the burden of their own fireworks and display of hatred over oil leases in addition to their unavoidable share of the post-World War collapse. Perhaps those nations may have thought war was a good way to end depression. They have bitten the dust.

It is a sad and bitter lesson that the world is getting—and it is getting it right from the shoulder of hard fact and nature and human nature that conquest is never victory and the greatest victory is peace. Few wars can be excused on moral principle, though there are numerous cases where a people or a certain form of society, a nation has had to defend itself. But war with the avowed intent of retaliation or of conquest is a losing game to the nation which puts it and to the innocent besides. There is a better way and those nations which have been working so hard to bring about disarmament with a reasonable amount of protection and security are carrying on the winning game. Wars may not be over but some day wars will probably be abandoned as a means of settlement.

With the fear of war in this age, it is no wonder that nations arm, and in the present state, nations have to maintain defensive forces and to be so prepared as even to consider lines far outside of their boundaries as their defence. Yet this day will pass and even the most ambitious of lands will find that there is such a thing as peaceful conquest, with every nation striving peacefully to excel. That will be the culmination of things, for which men of peace and the truest soldiers have ever striven. If wars do occur now despite moral opposition, they will finally disappear, it is hoped, because they do not pay and because they are a mistake.

Soldiers themselves are the best exponents of peace. "The men who went" would never want their sons to have to endure what they endured. Bolivian and Paraguayan veterans will also say so, as the veterans of the Great War have said it.

Be thou the rainbow in the storms of life: the evening beam that smiles the clouds away and tints tomorrow with prophetic ray.—Byron.

MEETINGS

Some meetings seem
The whim of chance,
No touch of meaning
Or romance;
While others show
A clear design
Whose imports glow
Through every line.

When I met you,
Dear, it was planned
Before the blue
Sea lanes were spanned.
Down farthest maze
Of history
Men trod strange ways
That this might be.
A speak-shrunk hold,
A kiss, maybe,
In days of old,
Brought you to me!

HERE'S WHAT WALTER WINCHELL says on the subject of life in the city and country—just a voice from the subway:

"I always seemed to me that I wouldn't be so happy in a small town, but never having been in one long enough, I dunno. . . . When I've yenned to get away from The Big City—just for a change of faces—I was restless waiting for the New York gazettes to arrive. . . . To keep in touch with the big city, I found myself tuning out other radio entertainment to hear what was being aired from Gotham. . . . No part of the news reel excited me as that episode where Times Square at night is shown .....In sum, the New York I got away from—was all that interested me! And so I always felt that one of the boys who is incessantly waiting for the old home town, wouldn't really go back to it when he had the chance. . . And sure enough, recently the old home town invited him publicly . . . and he decided that he wouldn't go back, for fear, he alibied: "His illusion would be spoiled!"

Poor chaps, their lives are attuned to the subway - elevated trains; monoxide gas lulls their senses to the discord of man-made noises, and the odor of thousands of perspiring humans hurrying . . . somewhere . . . nowhere, an atmosphere in which the life attuned to the sweet smells and divine peace and quiet of the countryside would wither and, if it expire altogether, exist only in a false world of fuss and frenzy, in which heat and cold is intensified and the law of the jungle, distrust and selfishness, influence the destiny of humanity existing solely on the froth of life, while their brothers in the "great open spaces" of the Bay of Quinte region enjoy the wine of life.

A BRONZE TABLET was recently unveiled in the preasroom of The New York News' in memory of Edward J. Duffy, former mechanical superintendent of The News, who died July 24, 1934. The wording on the tablet said:

1892-1934.

In Memory of Edward J. Duffy
Foreman 1921-1929.
Mechanical Superintendent 1929-1934.
Fine Craftsman—Good Fighter
Able Executive—Sound Builder.

All his standards were high. And he spared himself least of all in their attainment.

Could more be said in many words?

More than a thousand members of The News staff attended the ceremony, many floral pieces were in evidence and a bugler sounded Taps.

Edward W. Edwards, Industrial Commissioner of New York State, was the principal speaker.

Could any finer tribute be paid to a craftsman who loved his craft?

HAVE YOU HEARD THIS

Dessert was being served. The young lady asked the rather deaf man:

"Do you like bananas?"

"Er—er, no," he exclaimed in furious embarrassment. "You see, I still prefer the old-fashioned night shirt."

THE FORUM IN THE DESERT

by T. E. LAWRENCE

He showed himself worthy of this achievement. He never gave a partisan decision, nor a decision so impracticably just that it must lead to disorder. No Arab ever impugned his judgments, or questioned his wisdom and competence in tribal business. By patiently sifting out right and wrong, by his tact, his wonderful memory, he gained authority over the nomads from Medina to Damascus and beyond. He was recognised as a force transcending tribe, superseding blood-chiefs, greater than jealousies. The Arab movement became in the best sense national, since within it all Arabs were at one, and for it private interests must be set aside; and in this movement Feisal took place, by right of application and by right of ability, had been properly earned by the man who filled it for those few weeks of triumph and longer months of disillusion after Damascus had been set free.

The Bedrs were odd people. For an Englishman, sojourning with them was unsatisfactory unless he could become as deaf and deep as the sea. They were absolute slaves of their appetite, with no standards of mind. Drunkards for coffee, milk or water, gluttons for coarse food, and confirmed beggars of tobacco. They dreamed for weeks before and after their rare sexual excitaes, and spent the intervening days titillating themselves and their hearers with bawdy tales. Had the circumstances of their lives given them opportunity they would have been always scatalogists. Their strength was the strength of mere geographical beyond limitation: the poverty of Arabia made them simple, continent, enduring. It forced into them the habit of patience: they became accustomed to greater returns, and took, and, indeed, were glad to have spent the time, thought and skill lavished every day over Medina and Emirs for such meagre ends. Arab processes were clear, Arab minds moved logically in our eyes with nothing radically incomprehensible or different, except the premises: there was no excuse or reason, except long custom, for ignorance, whereby we could call them inscrutable or Oriental, or leave them misunderstood.

Militarily we were now firmly assured in Akeiba. Akeiba sent up down two Rolls Royce armoured cars, veterans of General Smuts' campaign in German East Africa. Their officers and crews were English and enterprising. They began to learn the arts of and driving. Yenbo was emptied of its last soldiers and stores.

Rabegh also was being abandoned. The aeroplane from Egypt flown up here and were established. Their Egyptian troops had been shipped after them, with Joyce and Cadett and the Rabegh staff, who were now in charge of things at the base. Lawrence and Hornby were up country clearing at the railway day and night, almost with their own hands: all seemed already for the best, when Joyce, Stirling, Stockman, the great master, hurried in and whispered to Feisal, who turned to me with this big grave, trying to be calm, and said, "Auda is here." I shouted "Auda abu Tayi" and as that statement the tent-flap was drawn back, before a deep voice which boomed "Praise to God, our Lord, the Commander of the Faithful. There entered a tall, strong figure, with a haggard face, passionate and tragic like the other. They sat down, Feisal introduced us one by one, and Auda with a measured word answered to register each person.

We had heard much of Auda, and we had heard much of Auda with his help; and after a moment I guessed from his manner and directness of the man, that we would attain our end. He had come down to join the fighting, starting at our delay in Wejh, anxious only to be reconciled to the Arab freedom for his own lands. If his performance was equal to his promise the revolt be prosperous and fortunate. The weight was off all minds before we left the divan.

We were a cheerful party: Nasib, Faiz, Ali ibn el Hussein, Feisal's apollitic cousin, Zeal his nephew, and Sherif Nasir, resting in Wejh for a few days from labours elsewhere. I told Feisal odd stories of Abdulla's life, which seemed to amuse him always. Suddenly Auda scrambled to his feet with a loud "God forbid" and flung from the room. I stared at on another, and there came a peal of hammered oaths, which grew after to learn what it meant, and there was Auda bent over a rock in prayer. He fake tools to fragments with a stone, "I had forgotten to say my prayers," he explained. "I was eating my fourth meal." Fourth breakfast! Unfortunately he had few teeth of his own, so that henceforth eating was for him a long and difficult business after-pain, and he went about halfanesthetised. He had taken Akaba, and Sir Reginald Wingate sent him a dentist from Egypt to make an end of it.

Auda was very simply dressed, in a white cotton robe, white cotton with a red Mosul head cloth. He might be over fifty, and his beard was not yet more than white; but he was still strong and straight, loosely built, easy, but active as a much younger man. His face was magnificent in its lines and bones. On it was written very truly the death in battle of Annad, his favorite son, many years before. Only when it ended his dream of handing on to three generations the glory and the name of Abu Tayi. He had large eloquent eyes, like black velvet, and his face, his forehead was low and broad, his nose very high and fine, his mouth perfect: his mouth rather large and mobile: his beard and moustaches had been shaved by the Egyptian Hovelist style with the lower jaw shaven underneath.

W.C.T.U. HOLDS SUCCESSFUL PARLOR MEETING

A very successful parlour meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. G. A. Ferguson, Bridge street, on Tuesday. Mrs. Joe. Short, president, was in the chair and the guests were received by Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. G. B. Sharpe.

Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn was in charge of the devotional period.. Mrs. R. Farnsworth read several items from the minutes, including one which said, "By the time that British subjects have the revenue returned to the municipality is only about one percent of the amount spent on drink to obtain $250 revenue, at least $25,000 would be added to the city's coffers and the money expended would go out of the town."

Mrs. Inman contributed a solo and Miss Sulman, a reading. Mrs. Fred Wills also a solo during the afternoon. Mrs. Moore, who presided at the piano for the hymns accompanied Miss Forman and Mrs. Hubbs was accompanist for Mrs. Mc Pherson.

The address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Wm. Ellis, who in the course of her talk read extracts from a pamphlet of John and Charles Wesley. This pamphlet was of the original edition and was over 150 years old. In her address, Mrs. Naylor advised her hearers to really understand things from a community point of view rather than as a group of what some folks might consider "temperance cranks", for many showed that their lives as well as speech that they are ready to try to understand and help others. She said that a drunken man is happier than a sober one and that is why unhappy people take to drink. The thing then would seem to be to make people happy as possible. Developing this theme, Mrs. Naylor showed that riches do not make for happiness but that Christian living does. She read extracts from the diary of John and Charles Wesley, concluding that these persons were tried out it might be found that they would produce happiness. She then brought the money.

An interesting discussion followed. A message from the Provincial was much appreciated and Mrs. Short also thanked all those who assisted in the program. Hymn and the Mizpah Benediction closed the business part of the meeting.

Refreshments were served by the

Helen Wills-Moody's dream of a comeback to the tennis heights was abruptly shattered when she met Kathleen Stammers, left-handed star in the semi-finals for the Kent County championship.

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

The district annual for East Hastings met in Lonsdale hall, June 5. The meeting opened with the Ode, followed by the Lord's prayer in Unison. "The Maple Leaf of Canada" was then sung. The President Mrs. Gilroy, Melrose, conducted the meeting. An address of welcome was given by Mrs. W. Waddingham, Tyendinaga East, the reply and Tyendinaga East, the reply and address being given by the President of the Plainfield branch. The officers of a new branch, Moira's Branch, were called to the front, introduced and welcomed by the president.

At the noon hour a very delicious and tasty dinner was served by members of Tyendinaga East branch to which about 70 people besides local members did justice. Proceeds at the table were $17.75. Following the election of officers for next year, a programme of music and recitations took place. The next district annual to be held in Melrose.

The June meeting of Tyendinaga East W.I. met at the home of Mrs. F. Akey, Lonsdale, on Friday, June 14, with an attendance of fourteen, two being new members. The meeting opened by singing the Ode, followed by the Lord's prayer in Unison. The roll call was answered by giving your favorite author and the kind of book he writes. The minutes of the last meeting were then read and approved. The members were divided into two sides for a contest on attendance. Mrs. A. Waddingham and Mrs. C. J. Akey being leaders, the losing team to be at the close of the institute to give a banquet to the winning side. The secretary's report for the year 1934-35 was read and the chairman of the different standing committees gave their reports. It was decided to buy clothing to be cut and sewed for relief at a sewing bee.

A question box was introduced, the main subject for questions for July meeting being on Household hints. Mrs. W. Waddingham was chosen for delegate to go to a special meeting of all institute branches in this district.

Mrs. P. Germain read the current events followed by a reading "Our Own Canadian Government," by Mrs. R. Whittington. The collection for the meeting was 75 cents. A tasty lunch was then served by the hostess, and after a vote of thanks for the use of her home, the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

"WHEN SHALL WE MEET AGAIN?"

CHAPTER SEVEN

"Who is it?" Judith demanded and put her ear to the keyhole to catch the response that might be drowned by the thick walls of the door.

"It's me —Bob! was the quick reply. "Open, dear Judith."

It was Bob's voice all right, and she needed no urging. As she turned the key in the lock and shot back the bolt she had also taken the precaution to fasten a cry of surprise and delight burst involuntarily from her, for standing alongside Bob Harley, pale and stern faced was Randall Spencer. Robbing them of his background of the hallway, was a burly police officer figure representing the majesty of the law.

"You're all right!" Bob demand brusquely. "Where's Stokes?"

Now that the uncertainty and danger were past, and her doubtful hopes for the safety of Randall Spencer were realized, Judith felt herself suddenly grown faint.

She indicated the room across the hall.

"I locked him in," she said simply as she handed Bob the key. "I guess he's hurt."

Look out for her, Spencer," said Bob, crisply. "Come on, Captain. Let's see what's in the other room."

They crossed the hall and Judith saw Bob Harley insert the key in the lock of the door. Then Spencer's eyes were gazing full into hers —a gaze of inquiry and concern that somehow caused her own eyes to drop and her cheeks to burn, a mixture of emotions overwhelmed her—thankfulness that he was safe, relief for her own rescue, and a shameful fear that her own part in the night's adventures was being misconstrued by the tall young man so miraculously alive before her. The faintness that had assailed her grew though she fought against it. She closed her eyes then and leaned against the wall for support. For seconds that seemed hours she closed her eyes, but opened them at the sound of Bob's voice.

"You have had a terrible experience, and you are faint. Let me help you to a chair."

"I'm all right," she protested, though she was glad to feel his strong hand on her arm as he guided her in the room and to one of the two small chairs that furnished it. She sat down with a sigh.

"Did Stokes harm you?"

The question was direct and the voice firm, almost harsh. In his eyes was a glint of steel that boded no good for Harold Stokes if her answer was not reassuring.

"No," she said. "I gave him no opportunity."

"But he had you a prisoner in that room?"

"Not for long—thanks to that man, Dick. It was through him that I escaped to this room across the hall and locked the door. Stokes was drunk and fell over a chair. I'm all right, now."

"Not for long—thanks to that man, Dick. It was through him that I escaped to this room across the hall and locked the door. Stokes was drunk and fell over a chair. I'm all right, now."

Spencer grinned, and then his face got stern again.

"No fault of theirs that I'm here —alive. They had a blow-out, and in the confusion I jumped out of the car and beat it. They sent five or six shots after me but they all went wild—except one. That just grazed my arm. Oh, it's all right," as her eyes showed concern. "Scarcely drew blood. Some of them gave a merry chase, I can thank heaven, the moon wasn't up yet, and I dodging into some bushes and heard them go by. They kept up the hunt for half an hour before they gave up. Then I lost a lot more valuable time, trying to get a phone to police headquarters first and failing in that, and then commandeering a car—I hope I haven't virtually steal one. I didn't think you were in immediate danger and I knew I couldn't rescue you alone. Finally I got that piece of junk I picked up to town and found Bob in the police station all working up Somebody had just phoned a cryptic message to him at the Sun office about you—though your name was not mentioned, I believe— and the need of haste if he wanted to save you from Stokes."

"That must have been Dick," said Judith. "He's a dear, even if he is a thug."

"I don't mean that tough man that held us up!"

"Yes, I see, a lot to him. For some reason he helped me to get out of Stokes' clutches."

"Well, I can forgive him all his other sins—and they've been plenty—if I'm sure—for that."

"How can I thank you any how?" for a long minute short, I was able to throw some light on Bob's startling phone message, and Captain McMahon and a half dozen brawny policemen, they're downstairs just now—were soon on our way here without any respect for the speed laws. Thank God we were in time!"

"Yes," said Judith with a slight shudder. "I don't know what might have happened this morning when they found Stokes. But I wasn't thinking so much of that. I was worried about you. I was almost sure they had shot you—and you had been unconscious when I escaped. I was sure you were lying there dead. Oh, I'm so glad you're not! If you had been, I—I don't know what I would have done."

"Well, I'm not, I'm wondering what I would have done. Only you've been so wonderful, Judith, that I've had "Time" for very little of it. Of course, I'm glad you're safe, but I'm not going to pretend I'm glad that Stokes is going to jail. But that's not the point now. I'm glad, I'm glad he's behaving himself so much like a man. I'm humbled, I'm ashamed of my unworthy suspicions of you, and I'm glad to tell you all in my heart."

Before Judith could reply to this, Bob Harley and Captain McMahon loomed up in the doorway.

"Hello, Bob," said the one certainly, by your kindness has the criminal. He's in the other room. I've heard his confessing you again for a while. The Captain's got him to rights, and I'll be a witness, of course. This is Captain McMahon, Bob. He wants to talk to you a bit."

Stokes, being in mighty fitting just now," said Spencer, "I'll go through a pretty severe ordeal. Can't you manage that tomorrow, Captain, still she's nerved?"

Captain McMahon evidently had a great deal of respect for Randall Spencer.

"Sure," he said good naturedly. "I'll attend to the case now you're here. Only this is no place for a good grand jury like that. Let her go home and get some sleep and I'll talk with her tomorrow in my unofficial capacity as Judith." You look like you've had a terrible time, Miss, and you've been through enough for one day. Get the girl home, Bob, and I'll be over tomorrow. I'll be connected with the case, besides that, I'm the guard for the personal public! Couldn't know anything about that already? Well, I'll be on. They're a pretty slick bunch of rascals. We've got a clue to the whole gang, and I would you called helpful to some more?"

"No," said Judith, "I just don't propose to expose John Stokes to any more danger than she's been through already!" interrupted Spencer.

"Danger, me boy, shh!" expostulated the captain. "It wouldn't be for publication. Miss Judith is a brave woman every young lady in danger—but of course, what's good enough for her is good enough for you, Mr. Spencer." He bowed gallantly toward Judith. "She will help us in the capture of a gang that will not escape her by other danger or publicity."

"I'm willing to do anything I can," said Judith, and Randall Spencer looked strongly to her with his electric gallantry, his twinkling blue eyes. "I'm willing to do anything I can," said Judith, and Randall Spencer looked strongly to her with his electric gallantry, his twinkling blue eyes. "And, Captain, I want to say that, since Bob says one of this gang. The fellow named Dick. He helped me to get away from Stokes, and he phoned to Bob. I owe him a lot. Please be easy on him, if you can."

"Dick—Dick—that would be Dick Daniels, alias "Dick the Dip," McMahon interrupted. "We've the list of him. I have heard quite a good word for him, but that don't prove anything. But just why—We've got nigh the whole gang, please, and Dick ain't among 'em. He's best it, as well he might. We won't try to find him. Bob, you take her home. I suppose you take the young lady home, and I'll talk with her tomorrow. Bob, you and I'll go down with the police car and I'll be wanting to see you from Stokes."

"That must have been Dick," said Judith. "He's a dear, even if he is a thug."

Weddings

ROOTE—WHALEN

On Monday, June 17th, a pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Michael's Church by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, D.D., Mary Cecelia Whalen, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Whalen of this city, and the late Patrick Whalen, to Brice John Roote, only son of Stillman Root of Roseneath.

The bride, who was given away by her eldest brother, Clarence, looked charming in a white crepe silk dress, trimmed with cui velvet yoke with white collar and cuffs of silk hat and veil to match. She wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride and groom were attended by Miss Reta Whalen, sister of the bride, and Mr. James Campbell, of Detroit, Mich.

The bridesmaid wore mais organdy with large picture mobair hat and corsage bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's mother, 119 Church Street, to immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

The happy couple left on a trip to Montreal, Quebec, and points east. The bride travelled in a navy blue crepe ensemble suit trimmed with canary yellow and yellow hat to match. They will reside in Belleville.

LOCKHART—LAWRENCE

Shirley, pretty June wedding was solemnized on Saturday, June 15th, at 8.30 p.m. in St. Jude's Anglican Church, Toronto, when Lucille, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lawrence, Shirley, became the bride of Melville Lockhart son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Lockhart, Toronto.

The bride, gowned in oyster satin and lace, carrying a bouquet of Tea roses and baby's breath, was attended by Miss Madge Lockhart of Clayton, Ontario, while Mr. Stanley Lockhart of Toronto, brother of the groom, acted as best man. During the signing of the register wedding music was provided by Mrs. R. Lawrence, who played as an organ solo, "O Promise Me" by Victor Kolin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Shinn.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Stoddart of 62 Parkway Avenue, Toronto. The bride and groom left later on an extended motor trip through Northern Ontario, the bride wearing a grey ensemble with white fox accessories. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

Guests from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell, Windsor, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Venton Gordon, Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Brown Price, Chicago, Ill.

CREWS—McKINNON

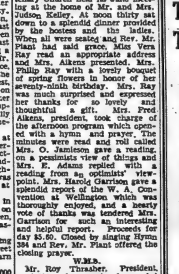
CENTENARY W.A.

The Woman's Association of Centenary United Church met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Minto Gay, Church street, when they came down to a splendid dinner provided by the many members present. When all were seated and Rev. Mr. Hyland had said the grace, Miss May read an appropriate address and Mrs. Aikens presented Mrs. Phillip Hall with a basket shower of spring flowers in honor of her approaching birthday. The party was much surprised and expressed their thanks in a lovely and thoughtful a gift. Mrs. Fred Aikens, president, took charge of the afternoon program when Centenary met with a hymn and prayer. The minutes were read and roll called Mrs. O. Jamieson gave a reading. In a reminiscent view of things and Mrs. E. Adams replied with a reading from an optimists' view-point. Mrs. Minto Gay gave a splendid report of the W. A. Convention at Wellington which was thoroughly enjoyed, and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Garrison for such an interesting and helpful report. Proceeds of tea $5.50. Closed by singing Hymn 384 and Rev. Mr. Plant offered the benediction.



W.M.S.

Mr. Roy Hamilton, President, used the ax her opening hymn and prayer. Mrs. Plant, Sec., read the Minutes which were read and roll called each responding with a Bible verse beginning with Joy. Mrs. Plant, leader of Group One, then took charge of the programme.

Hymn 384 was used and the Scripture lesson was read by Roy Thrasher. Mrs. Phillips gave a very touching paper on "Quiet Hours in the Life of Jesus". Mrs. Hait, Miss Anabel Adams and Rev. Mr. Plant gave a vocal selection which was much appreciated.

Miss Johnson read short extracts from the C.G.I.T. Study Book on India and Miss Vera Ray, a short talk on medical work in India and China. Members were fortunate in having Miss Ray present. She is one of the Centenary girls who has made good. She has just graduated from the Bible School at Toronto and is leaving for Algeria some time in September as a missionary. She is also a graduate nurse of the Belleville General Hospital, which will be of great benefit to the students field.

Mrs. Nettie Farley of the C.G.I.T., Belleville, gave a very interesting talk on the work in the city, also along Temperance lines, showing the difficulties the women of the W.C.T.U. are not encouraged. After a few remarks from Miss Johnson in connection with the Garden of Prayer, Hymn 314 was sung and Mrs. (Rev.) Plant closed with prayer.

Eldorado Neighbors Arrange Party for Mr. and Mrs. A. Abbott

Eldorado.—On Friday evening, June 14th, the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Abbott, a recent bride and groom, gathered at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Fox, to do honor to them. In spite of the heavy electric storm, a large crowd was in attendance. Mr. Vernon Strebe contributed some instrumental music. About eleven o'clock Dr. F. J. Noble called the gathering to order and Mr. and Mrs. Abbott were asked to take seats of honor, and the following address was read by Miss Freda McCann:

Eldorado, Ontario,
June 14, 1935.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Abbott,
Dear Elsie and Arthur,—

Tonight we come to spend a social hour with you and heartily extend our congratulations and best wishes for a happy and successful future.

We are pleased to know that you are not leaving our community where we appreciate the part that you both have played in our social life.

Elsie, we have known you all your life, and with your kindly ways and cheery disposition and willingness you have won a big esteemed place in our affections, and we are happy with you in your recent matrimonial venture and wish you many long and happy wedded years.

Arthur, during your sojourn here you have endeared yourself to us by your warm-hearted and genial personality and have made a host of friends who agree with Elsie, that you have a very splendid choice of a life partner.

To show the love we have for you both, we ask you to accept these gifts as a small token of the friends that have gathered here tonight.

May God be with this household, And bless it day by day.

We extend cup and saucer,
Pour down the peace and evermore
And on its folk always
Be gaiety and health and stay."

Signed on behalf of your many friends,

Mrs. Harry McCoy
Freda McCann
Mr. and Mrs. R. Blakely
Stanley Fox

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott were presented with a handsome walnut bedroom suite, a walnut bed, two rocking chairs, besides some other gifts, linen and dishes. Mr. Abbott thanked their friends for the kind remembrances and invited all to partake of the lunch served by Eldorado. A delicious lunch was then served by Mrs. Bone and Mrs. Strebe and brought a happy evening to a close.

During the heavy electric storm which passed over this vicinity on Wednesday, June 12th, a barn on the house owned by Mr. Jack Chambers was struck by lightning, the lightning passing down the pole and followed the ground wire. The only damage to the barn was the charring of one post of the verandah was taken out of the barn, which is the property of Mr. Jack Chambers.

Mr. James Fox, on helping to load hay on Saturday, slipped and fell a distance of 15 feet, but escaped with only a few bruises and scratches and during the past week has been laid up. He is under the care of Dr. F. J. Noble.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Jones spent Sunday at the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bird.

On Saturday, June 15th, the Young People's Society, of Eldorado and Union motored to Oak Lake to enjoy a picnic supper and spend their Year's work. About thirty young people were in attendance. The day was spent in sports, rowing and swimming. At noon they all spread their picnic lunch and enjoyed by the young people. About five o'clock all departed for home, feeling that a very enjoyable day had been spent.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Magee of Bancroft, also Mr. Arch Andrews of Burnside's District, spent Sunday at Mr. Alex Gordon's.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Post, of Frankford, spent Sunday visiting her father, Mr. James Harris, who is ill at present.

A union meeting of the Railroad Association was held at Eldorado station on Saturday evening. Quite a number were in attendance. Lunch was served at the close.

Mrs. Fred Wright gave a splendid missionary talk to the pupils of Eldorado Sunday School on Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Manly Whyte and family, of Orono, also Mr. Leslie Whyte, spent Sunday at Russel Whyte's.

Mr. and Mrs. Alger Post of Fuller and Mr. R. Holmes of Stirling were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stevenson spent the dinner hour on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Fox, Misses Margaret and Mary Craig of Stirling spent the week-end at the home of the former's aunt, Mrs. James Fox.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Comerford of Toronto, and Miss Irene Thorpe spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rose Blakely.

Mrs. H. MacDougall is spending a few days visiting at the home of Mrs. Ed Blakely.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Franks spent Sunday at the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sandford.

Miss Ruth Anders spent the dinner hour at Mrs. Russel Whyte's on Sunday.

Mrs. Norman McGration of Tudale, Sask., spent the tea hour last Mr. Albert Harvey's on Sunday.

Mrs. McGration is now visiting at Mr. John Chambers. From here she goes from "Summer Hill" to attend friends at Havelock before leaving for her Western home.

Mr. Cecil Boyle of Stirling spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. M. J. Wright visited Mr. Dan Brownson on Sunday.

Leilani Bridge school beat Bancockburn school boys in a ball game on Saturday afternoon. Score, 18 to 31.

Mrs. Wm. Boyle was the Friday afternoon guest of Mrs. James Bailey.

Mrs. Arthur Hollands visited Mrs. W. Tate on Wednesday.

Mr. Harry Walden has reshingled his house during the past week.

Mrs. Fred Wright spent the dinner hour on Monday with Miss Annie Holmes.

"Goin' to Town"

Streamlined West Still Gets Her Men in Film Set in Modern Scene

As a girl who knows what she wants and throws on opposition, the new and modern Mae West returns to the screen in Paramount's "Goin' to Town", coming to the Belle tomorrow and Friday, matinee and evening.

The blonde star's new vehicle does all her previous efforts in comedy, romance, intrigue and vocal efforts, one better.

Glittering, arrayed in the styles of 1935, Mae West plays a cattle baron's widow with plenty to spend and warm affections. And to get her man she transports him from a small mid-western mining town to Buenos Aires and back to Manhattan, and through a series of gay and hectic adventures.

Paul Cavanagh, playing a handsome Englishman, is the man. When Mae West discovers that beauty, wealth and racing stables do not win him, she decides to become a lady, in the society manner.

With her accustomed directness and brevity acts about polished manners and a background. But Count Dr. Dimitri Gatsonin and a number of fortune hunters, including Ivan Lebedoff, and between them they make a lot of trouble for the heroine's charmer.

Mae West bests them in the end, however, and when she goes Cavanagh returns to her side, where he loved her all the time.

Sam Fuller and Irvine Kahn concocted the popular tunes for Mae West to sing and you will find hard to forget they are "Love is Love" and "He's a Bad Man". And Mae West has her repertoire with an operatic selection from "Samson and Delilah" astounded society but will delight the spectators.

Cavanagh, who has been seen on the screen before, turns in a faultless performance opposite Miss West. Others in the cast include Monroe Owsley, Fred Kohler, Jr., Gertrude Gateson, Gilbert Emery and Grant Withers.

The dialogue of "Goin' to Town" written by Mae West, fairly bristles with the brilliant Westerisms that made her first pictures so delightful. You'll enjoy the picture, so waste no time in going to see it for it is, West at her best!

Four Smart Shorts

Four smart summertime shorts, breezy and varied, have been assembled for exhibition on the same program, a funny all-star comedy titled "Buried Loot", novel screen oddity "Sporting Nuts," a tuneful Terrytoon fantasy "Five Puppets" and Pete Smith Marvels at his Artistocrats of melody introducing the stray of Night Crue entertainers complete an excellent short program.

"Bride of Frankenstein"

Karloff in "The Bride of Frankenstein" will be presented at the Belle, tonight for the last time. It is strong fare, but a thrilling, action-filled picture which grips the imagination and sets a new high mark in the realm of so-called "horror pictures". At the Belle here two comedies precede the exhibition of "The Bride of Frankenstein".

AT THE CAPITOL

"Black Fury"

Paul Muni in Film of Dramatic Intensity

No one is ever disappointed in Paul Muni. On the contrary, he seems to grow in artistic stature with each succeeding picture.

Now in a movie which matches in dramatic intensity, his portrayal of the fugitive from a Chain Gang," a greater Muni appears in the "Black Fury" which opens tomorrow at the Capitol.

It requires a great vehicle to give real opportunity to a great artist. "Black Fury" is that.

Resting the claims of Mr. Radek in the story, Paul Muni will appear on the screen as a Slovak miner who becomes a hero and outlaw so far as the ingenuity of Hollywood scenarists will allow. More than that, Muni will be starring as well as singing in the Slovak language. With Muni Karen Morley is taking the part as Anicka's wife. Directed by Michael Curtis—or Michael Kertesz — the well-known Hungarian director of the Hollywood studio, we will see Paul Muni as a recent immigrant to America struggling hard to establish himself in the coal regions of Pennsylvania with that same characteristic uncomplaining patience of the average Slovak. Our anxious and amused attention will next find us watching Muni with the same person of Josef Radek, as he arrives in a new phase of existence, during what is sometimes known as infinite possibilities in the way of speculation, but which usually ends in romance. This is where Karen Morley figures as Mary Novak, a daughter of Slovakia, who comes with every other type of person from the golden days of glowing youth, or from behind the mysterious planes of experience yet to be. Added to this is Radek's success, followed by failure, then back to glory and triumph of such magnitude as to earn for him the title of a hero in the life of black hell.

Added Short Subjects

Several well selected short subjects are shown in support of the feature attraction. Included is "Hayseed Romance," an amusing comedy; a clever and interesting cartoon, "Show But Sure," and the Capitol News showing current events of interest to everyone.

"Stingaree"

"Stingaree," the romantic and thrilling story featuring Irene Dunne and Richard Dix.

Radios in Second Place by Defeating Sea-Horses 4-0 In Well Played Contest

Williams in Rare Form in Scoring Third Shut-out

FIELDING SMART

Green, McIlroy and Ford Pull Off Sensational Plays

Pitching his third consecutive shut-out game of the season Jack Williams turned the Radio outfit over into sole possession of second place in the C.O.B.L., when the local Radios downed the Peterboro "Sea Horses" by the score of 4 to 0 at the local Kahibbara Park last evening. With the exception of the initial frame Williams was always in command of the situation and even when the Knotty Lee-coached outfit threatened in the first stanza, Williams demonstrated the pitching ability and stamped the tide as he struck out one and forced 2 to hit to the infield for easy outs Williams was in rare form using a curve ball, that baffled the highly lotted Peterboro batters as he limited them to six scattered hits. "Spook" Scriver started on the hill-top for the visiting Petes but did not sojourn long in that position as a streak of wildness saw him replaced by Russ Kitchen, who had leslen the Radios last saturday. Neither Kitchen or Scriver proved any great mystery to the locals as they helped themselves to two runs off Scriver due to wildness, and then cuffed the gobetsrd for the needed hits off Kitchen and scored a run in the seventh and added one for good measure in the eighth.

Fielding Sensational

Smart baseball on the part of Williams when he hesitated to and nipped Konopka at the plate in the initial frame, stalled the Petes in the initial frame and at no time following did the Lee-coached outfit achieve a runner past the initial sack, so well did the "Chief" have the situation in hand. Radios scored two counters in the second on two walks and one in the seventh on Williams' hit and Kitchen's error. Two hits and a fielder's choice gave the Radios another in the eighth.

The fielding sensation of the day was supplied by Sonny Green when he leaped into the atmosphere and speared Konopka's line drive in the eighth, doubling Kitchen off first. Grey, Ford and Barclay also played their defensive ball for the Stewart-Warners, while Calladine and Konopka held up the Peterboro infield.

The local win enables the Radios to add sole possession of second place to the C.O.B.L. and drops the Petes into the cellar berth.

Williams was in rare form, running in his third consecutive shut-out of the season. The local hurler struck out five Peterboro batters and did not issue a single base on balls. Kitchen, Peterboro hurler while Scriver sent three local batters back to the bench via the strike out route, Scriver showed the wild hurler of the day, walking three, two of them counting in runs that Williams' control was uncanny and his curve ball stamped him as master of the situation. The local outfit fielded excellently behind the 'Chief' playing errorless ball.

Across the Bay Swimmers Finish At Ostrom Dock

The Across the Bay Swim Committee of the Y.M.C.A., are busy completing with plans and arrangements for this annual July 1st event. As usual the swim will operate under the four divisions, namely, Juvenile under 16 years of age; Junior 16, under 19 years, Senior 19 and over. Ladies no age limit and Members also unlimited as to age. With the exception of the Juvenile section, the swim is open to all bona fide summer residents of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and to members of the Peterboro and Kingston Y.M.C.A. The Juvenile section will be open to residents of the two counties only, this in hope of encouraging more of the local youth to enter the competition.

The regular award of a trophy for each division winner in the swim will be made and as on previous occasions the cups become the outright property of the winner. Rotary Club along with the Kiwanis Club have presented trophies for the swim since its inception, in 1926 and will again do so. Become the donors of the senior and junior trophies. The Ostrom Trophy will again donate the Juvenile trophy and the Junior swim award will be the Cup, given by the Gentlemen's Club, the youngest service organization in the city.

This year in order to add further interest in the diving lower erected by the Y.M.C.A. at Mr. Ostrom's, Rossmore Dock, the events will all finish at that point. During the swim exhibitions of diving will take place, providing added spectator entertainment during the period the swimmers are too distant to follow from the south shore of the bay. The Senior swim which is the 2 mile event will be held as of course have the start at Rossmore Dock and all other three distributions will start at the Government Dock.

Entry forms have been mailed out to all of last year's swimmers and are also available at the office of the Y.M.C.A. for all who wish to compete. There is no entry fee but all swimmers must secure their own boats.

SIMPSONS DOWN HARDWARE TEAM

Only One Player on Losing Team Reaches Third

Continuing their winning streak in the local Mercantile softball loop Simpsons downed the American Hardware by the score of 3 to 0 at their Yeomans street grounds last evening. Dracup, on the mound for Simpsons was in rare form, only one "hardware" batter getting as far as the hot corner, while his team-mates gave him errorless support.

O'Neill of the winners was the big hitter with a four base clout, while Cox cuffed the pellet for a triple and Dracup collected three singles off Graham. Dracup allowed three scratch hits, including Reid's double.

The line-ups—Simpsons — Amo, White, O'Neill, Clark, Moon, Munning, Dracup, Rowbotham and Ketcheson. American Hardware — B. Smith McGuire, C. Smith, Reid Graham, Rodgers, F. McGuire, Bell and Boyd.

KIWANIS WRESTLING

Although boxing is featured as the main attraction for Friday night's weekly wrestling show, two wrestling matches are also to be included on the card. George Richards, the Jewish grappler who meets Antonio Gyroffy, uses the "pile driver" hold, as demonstrated above, as one of his feature holds. Richards is well known and respected in the wrestling ring in the state of Michigan, from where he recently migrated. Jack Pearl the Toronto speed merchant, will be pitted against Johnnie Pavlos, who defeated Jack Dallas in the local ring recently. The feature attraction on Friday night at the Arena however is the scheduled ten round boxing bout bringing together Frankie Genovese, outstanding Canadian welterweight aspirant, K. O. Kelly of Hamilton, who recently met and defeated Bill Townsend, ex-welterweight champion of the world.

CURRENT SPORT
DAY BY DAY

Thanks to the superb hurling of Jack Williams, the local Stewart-Warners are perched somewhere near where they should be in the C.O.B.L. standing today. The "Chief" was in rare form last eve, as he applied the white-wash brush to the Knotty Lee-coaching "put-outs". Incidentally we might make mention of the fact, that Williams has yet to be scored upon this season. He blanked Kingston twice, gave the same dose to Peterboro this evening, while as a relief burlier in Oshawa on June 1st, he stemmed the tide but with a runner on third he was not charged with any loss.

Last night defeat of the Petes drops the Lee-coached outfit away down in the cellar position, even behind the Ponies, while the Radio victory elevates the Mills-boys into sole possession of second place and providing the Ponies trim the Petes this eve, in Kingston, we'll well be back where we were today, in first place. Regardless as to the result of tonight's tilt, the Radios can move into first place with a win in Oshawa on Saturday.

One of the features of last night's game was the masterful manner in which Williams worked. With the exception of the first and fourth inning, Williams retired the first two batters to face him each inning, a feat in itself. Another outstanding play last night was Sonny Green's leap into the atmosphere, that resulted in a two-ply killing. Sonny jumped higher than the proverbial kite and speared Konopka's line drive and Green promptly tossed out Kitchen at first for a double killing. It was a pretty play, as a matter of fact the feature play of the day.

Despite the fact Knotty Lee had "Lefty" Leeper, warming up in the ball pen, all evening we observed he did not so much as consider him, when it came to relief duties in the ninth. No matter how you look at it the Radios are now sitting pretty in second place and will take a terrible bit of beating before they relinquish that perch in some of the clubs in the loop. In the meantime here's hoping the Ponies do us a good turn today.

When the local intermediates take to the field this afternoon in Napanee they will be minus the services of Bud Wilkins, their ace hurler. It seems Bud received a serious injury to two of his fingers, on his pitching hand, while at work yesterday. The B.A.B.A. intermediates will have to depend on Flill Lott and "Speedy" Juby to labour on the local hilltop versus the Gilbard-Gerow clan this afternoon. Incidentally the local intermediates have signed an ex-pro to a certificate and will trot him out in the near future. Manager Fanning told us today. This lad hails from "Dit" Clapper's home town, Campbellford, we hear. If he is as good a ball player as Clapper is a hockey player, well the locals have made a ten strike, we'd say.

Today's Question—"The definition of a sacrifice" is requested.

A sacrifice hit shall be credited to the batsman who, when no one is out or when but one man is out, advances a runner a base by a fair hit, which results in the batsman being put out before reaching first or would so result if it were batsman without error.

Something new in the annals of sport is being tried by the Kiwanis Club at the Arena on Friday night in the presentation of a mixed boxing and wrestling show. The executive in charge feel, that in the bringing of Jimmy Stewart there is a major attraction. Genovese is the ex-featherweight boxing champion of Canada, who has put on many poundages and today is one of the leading welterweights in the Dominion. He is scheduled to meet one K. O. Kelly, Michigan State welterweight champ, in a ten round go. For the more ardent wrestling fans there is also facts to look for in the bout with Johnnie Gyroffy, while Jack Pearl meets with Johnnie Pavlos, the Greek adonis. For the information of the boxing fans we understand the bouts will proceed from the two main bout wrestling attractions.

Belleville will not be the only beneficiary from aquatic sports, if plans now being formulated by Mr. Harry Moore, genial editor of the Trenton Courier become good through. Harry plans to form a boating and yachting club in the near future.

On June 21st., two local boxers Bill Crawford and Bill Sowerby will appear on the smart Lion's Club boxing program at Bowmanville. Freddie Gilbert, outstanding Toronto promoter, has arranged a fine card and signed both Wheeler and Crawford, after watching them perform in the provincial Golden Gloves finals in the Maple Leaf Gardens a short time ago. Crawford is slated to meet Andy Melville of the Premier A. C. Toronto in the main go and he will get Jo Genovese into the same ring at Bowmanville on the night of June 21st. Genovese is the Toronto Premier boxing star's most unpopular decision over Wheeler in the 127 pound finals in Toronto. Matchmaker Fanning, also has in store a real slugging local boxing bouts until late next September. It's too hard to get boxing bouts inside the city for high savings, so we intend to forPreserve" this eve, in Kingston, a couple of months, but we'll be back with a card that will be the last one we staged at the Arena," said Clem.

STUDYING MAX BAER'S INJURED HAND

With the heavyweight crown he had worn so carelessly knocked from his curly head, playboy Maxie Baer began to realize the value of the thing he had lost. But he still insists that it was his sore hands that caused his hopelessly poor showing. An X-ray machine is here taking photos of the injured hands, on which swelling can be plainly seen. Examination of the plates revealed a broken middle finger on the left hand, caused when Maxie's "Sunday punch" landed high on his conqueror's head, and an old fracture aggravated in the right. Bandages on the hands have been sore since he injured them in an exhibition fight against Eddie Sims in Cleveland some time ago.

Daily Short Story

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

From the very first, friends were skeptical. No one dared tell Slums, however. The courtship had been like a whirlwind and they couldn't arrange the wedding fast enough. Furthermore, they raised the advice of no one.

So the genial and mellow critic of music and the high-strung, nerve-taut amateur tennis player —never 'd do' to each other and their friends climbed glasses and wished them a happy future.

The pathetic part of the romance was that neither of the two had any money. Wilson Ardman had never exactly felt the need of it. The modest salary he earned as a newspaper connoisseur and which supplemented his an occasional lecture had been sufficient for his needs. And he also knew that Babe Merrill had very little where-with-al and that she often kept alive on "expenses" she earned as one of the best 18 amateur racket wielders in the country.

But what he didn't know was that a woman—when she gets married and does not depend any more on the bounty of patrons and sport lovers—needs clothing and travel expenses and luxurious home environment to which to return. And furthermore, that a champion must dine in the best places and be seen in the best of places.

They loved each other, of course. But her purse began to snap offener and offener and the dialing in of stock-exchange radio numbers proved very little balm to his distracted disposition.

Within two months, all these who had whispered "I told you so" found their prognostications verified. Babe went south to enter into some tournament or other—while Wilson contributed to stroll leisurely to Chamberlain Hall.

And when a week later a friend asked him "have you heard from Babe," his answer was a vague shrug of the shoulder.

Her Letter

Babe finally did write. It had the merit of at least being candid. She said:

"I feel there is no use in continuing to bite each other. When I think of some of our miserable days it seems it would be foolish for me to return. I can think of you with affection at times — but only from the distance. Proximity makes me jittery. So if it is agreeable with you I will hop over to Reno between tournaments some time this year—and end the fun that binds. I say nothing of you, except this freedom...."

He wrote back: "As you wish, dear. It's easier to be a gentleman than a husband...."

And that was the end of their correspondence.

But news travels by grapevine. Between numbers in lobbies of concert halls, over a cocktail in a quiet club, hints of information in numerous other ways—Will realized that something was happening in Florida. Brooding is dangerous to something poignant—maybe something bitter.

He wrote to Babe. The letter came back: empty unknown. He heard that one of her friends was one of those who had attended the wedding was in town. He telephoned her.

"What's happened?"

"Oh, nothing."

"There's a rumor, she was in the hospital."

"Yes, what is it to you?"

"Well I'm still her husband."

"But I feel is my duty—if she is in need."

"Never mind she wouldn't care for your help. She is too proud."

"Can't you tell me her address?"

"I'll sorry."

Silence

He phoned another of her friends. Those he couldn't reach in town, he tried long distance. It was of no avail. Almost like a conspiracy of silence.

Finally, he exhorted, his promise from one of them at least to pass a message on to her—a request that she write him. Within a week he had a letter:

"About a dozen of my friends have said you inquired about me, and so I thought I would set your mind at ease. I presume you feel that if you wouldn't help me that you would be considered the villian in the piece. Well, F. B. paid the hospital bill and I am now recuperating with R. O. Maybe. It's getting to be a bit of a drag on them, but so far they have shown no hint. The touch of gentrajis in my right leg prevents me from playing just now or getting into a competition. But I don't care. To be honest, I don't care anymore. I am wondering if you should still harbor any ambitions. I can tell you that I am more nervous and distraught than ever....

Will read and re-read the letter. Somehow, he couldn't fathom it. It was plain that she did not want to return. And yet, something between the lines made him hesitate. He remembered the words of her girl friend. "She is too proud." Maybe that was it. Again he scanned her letter. Neuralgia. Well, that was the end, she knew, but was too proud to admit it. But if it was that—who else could she turn to—but her husband? Stevens wouldn't patronize a player who couldn't play. Besides, maybe her pride would change a bit with misfortune on her trail.

He took an envelope—wrote down his name and address on it—and without another word—sealed—enclosed a key—the key to his apartment. Then, he sealed it—marked it special delivery—and dropped it in the mail chute.

Two days later, he received a telegram: "My neuralgia is better. Am on the way on. Love, Babe."

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came around after supper and started to talk about diffrunt subjecks, Gladdis saying to me, I got some real news for you, I had the birth of thrills this afternoon. Ronnel Nonnell made a personal appearance at the Movietown, so I cancelled a couple of engagements and dropped in, and as luck would have it I got a seat rite in the very first row, and there he was looming rite above me in the flesh, and it's a slander about that dimple in his chin, she said.

Do you mean it's not really dimpled enuf ma said, and Gladdis said, it's as dark as a hole in it's genuine 18 carrot dimple, he's got the most perfect deft chin I ever saw.. I could of sworn that dimple was too good to be true, but I was so near I could of touched it with the end of an umbrella, so I'm positive beyond the shadow of a doubt, she said.

Well, imagine, ma said, I always have to miss everything, she said, and pop said, you goria are living in a fools paradise. I've got some more stuff about that famous cleft chin. If you could of seen it by watching me, you would of known what it is. It's the scar from a gunshot wound that he received when he was in the beer running racket. At least that's one story, and another one is that he got it one time while he was eating peas with a knife, and he started to lose a few and made a sudden lunge and cawt himself in the chin, pop said.

I'll tell you the real lowdown on that little matter, Harvey said. It seems his falts teeth dropped out one time and he made a wild grab for them and accidently hit himself on the chin, he said, and ma said, accidents is bad jokes because as a matter of fact Ronnel Nonnell was first prize at Valencia Vallence's birthday party for having the most perfect set of teeth in Hollywood, and now for goodness sakes if you cant be serious let's get down to bridge.

With they did.

SUNNY LIVING starts at the table

How you feel and how you look depend largely on the foods you eat. The balanced meals provided by "bulk" to prevent common constipation — caused by lack of this essential fiber.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a natural food for normal individuals. It furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the ALL-BRAN red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

HOUSING PROGRAM WOULD SPEND 10 MILLIONS AT ONCE

Parliament is Ready to Spend $0 Millions by Bill Introduced

CHARTER REFUSED

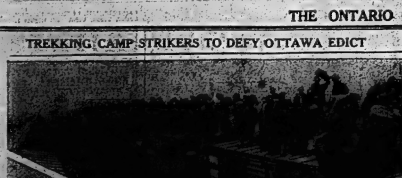
OTTAWA, June 11.—(CP)—The basis of a $50,000,000 housing program is before Parliament today as members study terms of the Government's Housing Bill, based on the report of a special committee.

The plan is to authorize the minister of Finance to advance up to $10,000,000 in loans for construction of new dwellings subject to such terms of repayment as he may stipulate. These advances are not to constitute 20 per cent of the total cost of the House to be erected, including land costs and legal costs and if the whole appropriation is utilized $50,000,000 will be spent.

The advances will be made where another 60 per cent of the cost is advanced by approved lending institutions which may be loan companies or public bodies set up by municipalities or provinces. The Minister of Finance and the lending institutions will take joint first mortgages on the properties as their security.

Introducing the Bill last night, Sir George Perley, Minister without Portfolio, said the housing problem was a grave one. He expressed the opinion, its solution would bring more benefits than any other governmental action.

Progress Made



Apart from giving first reading to the Housing Bill the House of Commons made good progress yesterday although a heated controversy developed over a bill to amend the Practice and Procedure, by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State. This was a measure to clarify the law relating to appeals to judges from the decisions of registrars on the makeup of voters' lists and arises out of a case in Mr. Cahan's own constituency of St. Lawrence-St. George, Montreal.

Turtle Mountain Threatening To Again Engulf Mining Town

Villagers live with million tons of rock trembling above them

This is the town of Frank, built under the edge of Turtle Mountain, and terrific, threatens the annihilated in the early morning hours of May 29, 1903, and threatens to wipe out its successor. Looking south over the present town, the site of Frank which was annihilated can be seen. Over all looms the menacing North Peak, crowned with tons of treacherous shale. TOP, LEFT, a huge main fissure produced by the pull exerted by the earlier slide, which may eventually lead to a new catastrophe. TOP, RIGHT, where Frank stood—a view of the town taken 8 years after Turtle Mountain had come down to crush the town and its people. Nothing but rock and debris remain.

By T. B. WINDROSS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

EDMONTON—Annihilation, swift and terrible, threatens the small town of Frank in the Crow's Nest Pass of the Rocky Mountains for the second time, yet in few citizens go about their daily toil almost unconcerned and apparently unconscious of the great mountain that is said to creep—only a few nearly 4,000 feet above them.

In April, 1903, Turtle Mountain, unstable in the construction and standing precipitous above the mining community of Frank, Alberta, poured millions of tons of limestone rock and debris down on the sleeping valley in the greatest landslide in the history of the mountains. Of the sleeping inhabitants caught in the terrific slide, 83 perished and scores were injured. Those lucky with their homes and belongings still are buried beneath thousands of tons of rock.

New Slide Predicted

Today, the unstable mountain has great, gaping fissures in its surface. Where the new peak was torn loose from its parent body at the time of the slide, fissures that are slowly widening and deepening as the creeping mountain nears a second terrible slide that will in all probability obliterate one of the most picturesque portions of the mountains and fill the peaceful valley again with millions of tons of limestone.

The geological survey of Canada, in a report on the condition of the Turtle Mountain, predicts the probability of another slide from two considerations: the natural conditions favoring a slide of the first magnitude, and the great area of strain from continued mining at its base.

The commission appointed by the Dominion government in 1910 believed that yearly the whole of the townsite of Frank was then in danger of a landslide by one or more great slides. Since then the condition of the mountain has become infinitely more dangerous.

Was Thought Earthquake

It was in the early morning of April 29, 1903, when only a few persons in the little mining community were astir, according to the few eye witnesses, that the great wall of Turtle Mountain fell from its 9,500 foot height down on the eastern portion of the town.

A thousand feet of limestone began the descent. Then daylight revealed the terrible extent of the destruction. A great gash was left in the side of Turtle Mountain, reaching clear to its summit, and the whole valley for two miles was choked with great boulders and debris. The slide had splayed out across the valley and there was vast quantities of rock and dust fan-shaped up the opposite side of the valley.

The Old Man's river was obliterated and the houses, camps, operating plant of the mines, including stables, engines and boiler house, electric power plant, and all workmen's houses, were completely buried.

The wires to the outside world, east and west, were torn down, but later in the day the following message was taken to the end of the wire as the east of the great slide and sent to Calgary:

"Earthquake almost destroyed town. Hundreds killed."

It was thought then the catastrophe was the result of an earthquake. But investigation by government geologists immediately after the slide and since, has demonstrated it was due entirely to the unstable construction of the mountain, aided no doubt by the mining at its base.

Search parties, under direction of Mounted Police, rushed from Blairmore and Calgary, went over the debris scene trying to uncover the bodies of the missing, but it was soon realized the night was hopeless. It would take ages to dig away the great mass of rock under which the dead were buried. Today, the winding motor road and the new railway tracks go over the spot where the eastern section of the town of Frank was located.

Some in Danger Zone

Frank is 56 miles west of Macleod in the Crow's Nest Pass. At the time of the disaster it had about 1,500 population, mostly engaged in mining and railway construction.

Before the slide the old town of Frank used to rest in the shadow of the great mountain so closely that at three o'clock in the afternoon it was twilight in its streets on a mid-summer afternoon. Now the town proper has been removed outside what is marked out by the government as a possible danger zone to a new site, and only a few hardy straggler houses and cynical railroad men still remain in the area of the old town.

As an indication of how the mountain is "creeping" towards another mighty slide, the scrub pine trees growing in the fissure are now leaning over all in one direction and at the same angle away from the movement of the body of limestone.

Great rents in the surface along the north shoulder of the mountain are open and widening inch by inch as the years bring the terrible plunge of the vast body into the valley nearer.

Has Weak Bed

Geologists describe the formation of Turtle Mountain as an erosion remnant of a great block of Paleozoic limestones overthrust eastward upon a bed of shales, sandstone and coal. The thrust plane or thrust fiat to the lower contact of the limestone the mountain slope is underlain by soft shales, interrupted by coal seams and by some interbeds of sandstone. The whole is an unusually weak bed to sustain the heavy limestone forming the upper half of the mountain.

Huge fissures not only show movements of vast masses of rock towards the brink, but they represent deep openings into which surface water from rains and heavy snow and run, and in the winter months must be frozen. This means there is danger of the wedging out of huge prisms, or rock, under frost action. The displacement thus brought about may cause disturbance of the delicate mechanism of the mountain and is likely to bring about another slide of the first magnitude.

Fissures caused by the moderate settlement of mine workings in the mountain are not the dangerous ones such as that which occurred in the open in 1901, might start the great body of rock, a whole mountain, sliding down, bringing terrible destruction in its path.

The commissioners, in 1910, reported to the government that under present commercial conditions it is not possible to mine within a certain area at the base of Turtle Mountain without incurring danger of precipitating a great landslide."

Destruction Threatens

Thus the town of Frank will always be a town on the brink of the grave, as always there must be hanging over it the dread of impending destruction, and yet it is still located near the danger zone, marked out by the government. A new townsite was selected, and many families taken, but familiarity breeds contempt, and past the creeping mountain, at its base runs the railway, and, under its unstable rocks, coal miners have worked for years, and even the calm of the community goes on regardless of the fact that geologists say the conditions today are almost exactly similar to those existing on that tragic morning when millions of tons of rock were hurled down upon the sleeping victims of the Frank disaster.

NEW U.S. TAXES AIMED AT LARGE INCOMES

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Peterborough, Ont., June 20—(CP)—A Peterborough man appeared in court charged with being insolvent and then disappeared. Before he was scheduled to appear he was arrested on additional charges of being insolvent. When he made his appearance he answered the last two charges, the case was again adjourned as he was too intoxicated to give evidence.

Galt, Ont., June 20 (CP)—This city it appears, has a surplus collie. An advertisement in a newspaper announced vacations in the clubs, also expressing progress and requirements for membership.

Where it is headed could not be learned but it was denied more suitable woodlands with water facilities are being provided.

Abbeville, S.C., June 20 (CP)—Will Reid, automobile dealer, is disgusted with quail. Seeing two small birds had fallen from a nest, he lifted them back to their home. The mother bird flew down, pecked Reid on the forehead and pestered a while.

Irvington, Ont., June 20 (CP)—Pete Weed is telling the tale of the fish that caught the fisherman.

Weed said he was fishing with an angleworm bait and hooked a big trout. He reached into the water to lift it out. It gave a bunch and a flop and got off the hook. Weed looks in Weed's arm. What was there was grey flesh and feared he would be pulled into the water. He thinks that the fish gave another twist and freed both Reid and Weed.

Philadelphia, June 20 (CP)—Among those present at the University of Pennsylvania commencement exercises today was Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Nobel Peace laureate. Dr. Butler charged with "unprecedented" propaganda that threatened to undermine the government and wrecking the graduates' pockets with its edicts.

Vancouver, June 20 (CP)—Oscar Salonen, Finnish Communist Party Leaderless and Water Transport Workers' Union, has been arrested and charged with taking part in an unlawful meeting. He will be in the 18th person to be charged in connection with yesterday's waterfront riots.

London, June 20 (CP)—A 12-carat, 1861, United States stamp of remarkable history brought about $2,353 at an auction at Harmers, Bond Street.

The stamp, bearing the portrait of George Washington, was smuggled out of Russia by its owner, Prince Oldenburg, who sketched it into the letter in the corner.

Apparently forgetting about the stamp, the Prince gave the coat to an impoverished Englishman who, in having the coat turned, discovered the stamp. It was sold by then was dead so the unnamed Russian kept it and eventually it found its way to the auction house.

Wolfville, N.S., June 20 (CP)—An "alarming increase" of tuberculosis among cattle was reported to the hospital association of Nova Scotia by Dr. Frederick Ireland, by Miss Anne Mastery, Windsor, N.S. It is added infection were susceptible to the disease because of overwork, too long hours, poor exposure and unsanitary stalls without proper precautions.

Cassan, N.S., June 20 (CP)—A few minutes after she had cleared for New Orleans, the Canadian Government steamer Canso today and began taking the mail. Name of the 2,586-ton freighter's crew were in danger. They were standing by waiting for high tide to refloat their ship.

New York, June 20 (CP)—Little Lucy Ann Lee, who was 10 years old and already has a fortune of $2,000,000, will have custody of it when a decree in Supreme Court by her attorney, is successful. The youngster would have awarded to Lucy a half interest in a trust fund of $621,343 established by her parental uncle, the late R. Livingston Beekman. Cousins preventive of Rhode Island.

FIRE SMALL CHARGE AT NIAGARA FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., June 20. (AP)—Eighteen blasting away table rock at the edge of Niagara Falls changed their plans today and instead of hacking the main rock, they fired another small charge to loosen more.

Today's blast was much more spectacular than the first one yesterday with debris flying in all directions. Previously shallow holes was used in twelve shallow holes.

REFORM RATHER THAN REVOLUTION MAXIM—PREMIER

Hon. H. H. Stevens And Prime Minister Clash in House

STANDS BY SPEECHES

Goes to Utmost of Ability to Carry Out Proposals

Ottawa, June 20 —(CP)—Reform rather than revolution is the maxim of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett as he pursued his programme aimed at elimination of industrial business and social abuses, detailed in parliament. He enunciated his views yesterday as he supported in his first direct clash with Hon. H. H. Stevens on the floor of parliament since the latter's resignation from the ministry of Trade and Commerce.

"The government had gone to the limit of constitutional powers of parliament in proposals legislation based on the report of the Price Stevedo Commission, said Mr. Bennett as he replied to Mr. Stevens' complaints the legislation was hasty and ill-considered. Parliament's powers were defined by constitutional law, Mr. Bennett said.

"There was no doubt the constitution should be changed but until it is changed by proper authority no good purpose could be served by putting legislation on the statute books which the courts would throw out, the Premier said.

If the people were to be induced to believe parliament might do something to change the constitution the age of lawlessness was at hand, Bennett said, development of fascism in European countries started by just that way. First there was concern for the small man, then disregard of constitutional safeguards and finally the people power vested in a dictatorship.

The two Conservative Quebec Councillors slashed on the third reading of the bill to establish a Dominion trade and industry commission. Mr. Stevens complained because the bill did not clothe the commission with powers to regulate business as the Price Spreads Commission had proposed.

He recalled Mr. Bennett's radio speeches in which he dealt with business abuses and said the report of the Price Spreads Commission would be implemented.

Blames Supreme Court

The Prime Minister declared he stood by what he had said in the radio speeches. When he made them he did not know the commission would report. The report would bring in recommendations he believed illegal. The commission had gone to the utmost limit of the Dominion's powers to carry out its proposals into effect but it could go further. He spoke of the old Supreme Court reversed by the Meighen government in 1918. The Board of Commerce Act had been created following inquiry by a committee of which Mr. Stevens was a member. It had been declared with the same powers Mr. Stevens wanted conferred on the trade and industry commission and the privy council had declared it ultra vires. In framing the legislation, he said, the government had benefited by the experience of 16 years and had brought in a bill which, he believed, a committee of the House (Continued on Page 7)

NO NEW TRETH

Callander, Ont., June 20—(CP)—Despite scattered showers, the Dionne quintuplets today were outdoors under the roof of the new verandah, but the time but no new teeth were reported.

20 Million Bond Issue Oversubscribed---Hepburn

Toronto, June 20 (CP)—With over-subscription of Ontario's $30,000,000 bond issue announced Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn went into conference with his colleagues today to determine whether over-subscription would be permitted.

No definite decision on the total sales has yet been made but Mr. Hepburn reported on his arrival at his office today, another block of $1,000,000 worth of the bonds had been sold.

It was reported Ontario's own investment dealers would not take whatever steps are taken to meet $60,000,000 of Provincial financing necessary this year. Premier Hepburn admitted the same process might be continued.

He would, however, "make no promise" that further financing would be undertaken.

RESTRICT 'SUBS' AIM OF BRITAIN

Reduction of Size of Warships is Hoped For

(By George Hamblen)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 20 (CP Cable)—Anthony Eden, Britain's messenger of peace, left this afternoon for Paris. He will lunch there tomorrow with Pierre Laval, Premier and Foreign Minister.

He will endeavour to soothe the ruffled French spirits over the Anglo-German naval pact by explaining its intent and its purpose. He will seek the view of the French government on the next steps to be taken for a western European air pact.

British and German naval experts continued their discussions today. It is expected they would probably run over until Saturday.

British naval authorities were still hopeful of an international agreement to reduce the sizes of warships and to restrict construction or even abolish—submarines.

It was understood the German Reich would give the whole-hearted support to the program.

Delegates to the Anglo-German naval conversations, at which the agreement limiting their navies to a 100-35 ratio was concluded, set about drafting a supplementary agreement to be laid shortly by these principles.

Admiralty Von Ribbentrop, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's personal representative, was received in his official capacity for the first time today by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

The importance of submarines to the French and Italian navies was understood to make complete abandonment of under-sea warships difficult but the British hoped drastic reductions, at least, may be effected.

WOMAN, CHILDREN FAIL TO RETURN AFTER CITY VISIT

Michael Ryan of Sidney Calls in Police to Solve Mystery

WEDDED LAST FALL

Disappearance of Woman And Her Children Unsolved

Reported missing from her home on the 4th concession of Sidney since last Saturday, Mrs. Michael Ryan accompanied by her seven-year-old son and six-year-old daughter, are being sought by local and Provincial police today. The matter was not reported to the authorities until yesterday, when Mr. Michael Ryan attended at the local police station and stated that his wife and her two children had left the home.

According to the story related by Mr. Ryan, his wife, her son Walter Cummings, age 7 and her daughter Mary Ellen Cummings, age 6, all came to Belleville via bus from Sidney last Saturday morning, and on Ryan home and have not been heard of since. After investigation police disclosed, that Mrs. Ryan and her children came as far as Belleville by bus and then completely disappeared. Mrs. Ryan was described as a woman in years of age, 5 foot 9 inches tall and weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds.

Mr. Ryan told the police, that he had met his wife in New York City last autumn, she being a widow. They were married in Belleville last fall and resided on the 4th concession of Sidney. Mrs. Ryan is a farm near Sidney.

It is thought possible by authorities that Mrs. Ryan and her children may have returned to New York where a woman answering to her husband, as no signs of them have been found in Belleville since the reporting of the incident.

BRUNO TO WAIT FOR LONG MONTHS

Lawyers Carry Appeal to New Jersey as He Sits Alone

Trenton, N.J. June 20.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann remained in strict solitude today in the death cell of the state prison pending action by the United States supreme court on the Hunterdon County Courthouse.

To the brief they added three bound volumes containing the testimony in the trial as to how the kidnapped child met death. The brief declared that Hauptmann, it said, was the child had been killed when the was dropped from the kidnapper's buckling ladder.

Despite this, the brief contended Attorney General David T. Wilentz, summing up for the State, espoused no entirely consistent theory that Hauptmann had killed the child before removing him from his crib.

Brief's Contention

The brief further contended the alleged illegality of evidence was advanced by the prosecution contravened Hauptmann's constitutional rights to a fair trial. In this contention was seen the possible basis for an appeal to the United States Court in event of an unfavorable decision.

The State, in the brief it filed with the court, asked the conviction be upheld because the evidence "proved conclusively" Hauptmann was guilty of the murder.

The brief dismissed lightly the defence contention of "varying theories" of the cause of death. It maintained the defence interpretation of Wilentz's remarks in summation as "unwarranted" and stated the Attorney General had merely asked the jury if Hauptmann had placed the ladder against the child's window "into insensibility

REGINALD NAPP NAPANEE, DROWNS

Farm Laborer Last Seen Near Bay and Clothes Found

Meagre reports of the drowning of a man identified by police as the 7-year-old Reginald Napp, farm laborer in the Bay of Quinte west of Napanee, while bathing were received today by Provincial Police of the local district. Search for the body and their statements has not yet been recovered, although dragging operations at the location where he was last seen are now being carried out by Provincial Police Constable Constable Fred Barrett.

The search was suspended to have been working as a farm hand near Newburg had evidently made his way to the shore of the bay where he had taken advantage of the occasion to take a swim. He was believed to have been alone. Discovery of his clothes under near the edge of the water led to communication with resident to police, after which dragging operations were undertaken.

Napp was said to have emigrated to Canada from Australia and has been in this country but a few years, it was stated.

Gesture to Germany Criticized by Laborite In British Commons

Members Shout "Order" as Mention of Royalty is Against Rules

SIR SAMUEL SILENT

London Press Deluged With Protests From War Veterans

London, June 20 (CP Cable)—Criticism of the Prince of Wales for his friendly gesture to Germany, in suggesting British war veterans should attend the 'out-will' delegation to the Reich was on the records of the House of Commons today.

Aneurin Bevan, Labor member, bombarded Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, with questions on the proposed veterans' visit.

Bevan was interrupted by loud cries of "order." Mention of members of the Royal family is against the rules of the House.

"I neither care nor disapprove of it, it is not a matter within the competence of my office," said Sir Samuel amid cheers.

Visit to Camps?

Would Sir Samuel see that the delegation visited ex-service men in concentration camps and prisons? asked Bevan.

Sir Samuel said: "This is essentially a matter for ex-service men's organization. It is not one in which the Foreign Office as such could intervene."

Morgan Jones, Labor member, asked whether the House could take the visit as having no diplomatic significance. Foreign Secretary did not reply.

The chancellor, Eyres was delayed today with letters of protest from ex-service men. Typical was that of Manchester-born Adolf Hitler would receive. Major-Robert Cohen, Jewish ex-service man, of Manchester, who lost both legs in the Great War.

Public Ownership Of All Transportation Is Called Inevitable

Canton, N.Y., June 20.—(CP)—Government ownership of all railroads is inevitable, Willis J. Wilgus, noted New York engineer, told delegates attending the 43rd of the conference of Canadian-American affairs at St. Lawrence University here today.

"The financing of railways has become a thing of the past," he said, "where private capital refuses to go, the question of government ownership is the only way—but government operation need not be the first hand."

He said the whole trend of the United States was public ownership of transportation.

SNAKES BITE FIVE

Clearwater, Fla., June 20.—(AP)—To end the rattlesnake menace in the section Pinellas County Commissioners offered a bounty of 25 cents to 50 for each diamond back rattler brought to the Court House. Five cases of rattlesnake bite have been recorded in the past two weeks, one fatal.

Seaway Cost to Canada One Twelfth That to U.S.

Canton,N.Y., June 20.—(CP)—Cost of the St. Lawrence Seaway to Canada will be a little more than one twelfth of that borne by the United States, declared Colonel Thomson, Montreal consulting engineer, in discussing today the feasibility of the project before the Canadian-American Affairs Conference here.

"Canada," he said, "has spent $150,000,000 on piecemeal improvements in the channel up to date. "If Power and Navigation enterprises are developed jointly, savings of $57,000,000 should be effected.

"For the first time in history we are trying to develop, on industrial civilization in the heart of a continent, 1,000 miles from the sea," he added.

Mr. Thomson held that natural barriers had created a discriminage in mid-continental areas to prevent competition with coastal regions. Completion of the seaway, he said would benefit agricultural, manufacturing and commercial interests in the interior of Canada and United States.

"North America cannot receive full benefits of economic return on part or future capital expenditures until the whole project is completed or can reductions in freight movement costs, redistribution of industry in the continent and full control of freight rates be effected.

"It would serve directly 45,000,000 people and there has been created the sentiment in its favor," he said.

NEW U.S. TAXES TO CUT ESTATES

Roosevelt's New Blue Eagle Planned to Reduce Big Incomes

(By Clarence M. Wright)
(Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, June 20.—Before the United States Congress had recovered from its surprise at President Roosevelt's call for share-the-wealth taxation, architects of the President passed the word today he is considering a new and broad N.R.A. designed to be, in a sense, a companion measure to the tax program.

The tax message, it became clear today, was written and sent to Congress against the advice of nearly all the high Democratic advisers on Capitol Hill.

Its chief features proposed:

1.—Inheritance, succession and gift taxes, which in the three now levied on estates, and suitably graduated to prevent avoidance of the other levies;

2.—A definite increase in present rates on the very highest personal incomes.

3.—Graduated Corporation income taxes ranging from 10 3-4 to 13 3-4 per cent, instead of the present flat 13 3-4 per cent.

4.—Elimination of intercorporate holding companies in all lines of business" through taxation;

5.—Drastic simplification of a constitutional amendment permitting the Federal Government to tax future issues of State and local securities and allowing State and local governments to tax future federal securities.

The message pictured the fourth point as something to be done "ultimately" and not at the present session of Congress.

Treasury experts generally agreed imposing high inheritances on top of the existing estate taxes certainly would yield a huge revenue. They calculated under the schedule, if a fortune of $10,000,000 was left and one person it would anrink to less than $8,000,000 by the time all taxes were paid.

SILENT "SANDY" STILL IN FIGHT

Wins Fifth Round Match in Canadian Open 3 and 2

(By W. R. Wheatley)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton Golf and Country Club, Hamilton, Ont., June 20.—(CP)—The fifth round for the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship this afternoon became a grim struggle right among the eight players left, as C. Sandy "Sandy" Somerville of London, Ontario, still called the man to do or die among other Ontario entrant left was Gordon Taylor, Jr., of York Downs, Toronto.

Western Canada refused to curl to below the Lake Head east could offer and two stalwart Americans were still in the running.

Stan Leonard and Ken Black of Vancouver, carried British Columbia's standard into the quarter finals. Jim Mountifield of Edmonton and Blunt Wickens of Calgary, completing the Western quartet, Both Ontario and Quebec players were eliminated.

The American threat became more ominous when Fred Wright of Weston, Mass., and Dick Lunn, of Washington, D.C., came through unscathed.

DERRICK UPSET PUTS WIRES DOWN

A derrick upsetting at Colborne station, east of Cobourg on the main line of the Canadian National Railways, tore down wires and wrecking, communication for over an hour last night. Mr. Stewart Rand, regional manager for Ontario, stated no one was injured and the damage was comparatively small. No trains or cars were involved.

REGISTRATIONS AT CAMP INCREASE

As predicted earlier in the week, more boys are passing through the city on greater numbers and are more inclined to stop and look around than in former years. To date, it is reported by Mr. Maurice Connolly, caretaker of the city local camp, so far this season, registrations there are considerably ahead of the number who stopped over night last year. Well kept beds and cool green grass as well as first class facilities at the camp are the subject of much favorable comment.

ASK MUNICIPALITY TO CO-OPERATE

Municipalities throughout Ontario are being urged by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to observe the 23rd week (June 23-29) as "Weed Week." The special effort by the department is intended to interest all citizens in weed control in their own yards and gardens, and also to try and bring to their attention the fact that noxious weeds, of which ragweed and goldenrod are two of the list, are actively detrimental to health.

Ratepayers' Association

At the request of a large number of taxpayers, a special meeting of the Ratepayers' Association will be being called for on Friday evening, June 21st at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of protesting against the purchase of a pumper at this time with the prospect of a low rate of city mills or over. All property owners are invited to attend.

KINSMEN CLUB TO SPONSOR CONCERT

A.I.I. Band by Permission of C. O. to Play at Tourist Camp

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville, by permission of Lt.-Col. R. A. Geen, V.D., have secured the services of the A.I.I. Military Brass Band. For the benefit of all citizens a free concert will be held at the Tourist Camp Sunday evening, June 23rd at 8.45 p.m. D.S.T.

It will be remembered that the Kinsmen were also sponsors for "Show Boat"—a very successful production and the proceeds are now being used to support a very worthy cause namely an eye clinic for under-privileged children. It is hoped that this concert is the first of a series which will take place this summer.

Argyll Band under the direction of Lieut. Ross Hunter, well known Belleville musician, has been under extensive training and reports are to be in fine condition.

It is hoped that everyone will respond to this fine entertainment.

Inspector Ross Heard at Convention

One of the most interesting speeches at the Ontario Liberal Convention was that of John C. Ross, Chief Inspector Inspector for the North Bay District which centres at North Bay, extends north as far as the Pole, south nearly to Orillia, and east and west as far as the imagination can reach. Mr. Ross has been in the north country for some years and is thoroughly at ease on the land of gold, silver and lignite. His love of the north and genial personality favored his address with interesting information about the great north land. He has great land of opportunity, as it is called. His staff includes seven sub-inspectors.

Mr. Ross is a brother-in-law of Mrs. (Dr.) Kinnear, of this city.

WATER PUMPER DEMONSTRATED

Leyland Machine Tested at Hospital And West Park

A trim 150-horsepower fire pumper, glistening in chromium and red paint, gave members of the City Council, the Belleville Hospital Board and others a thorough and first-hand demonstration in the modernized art of fire fighting on the hospital plot at Pinnacle and on the west side of the river this morning.

The machine, a British-made Leyland, rated at 150 horsepower, is one of the latest test at the park developed a total pumpage of 1445 gallons per minute, with three lengths of hose line. Supply was from a 10-inch pipe line from the city water main in which only the domestic pressure of 60 pounds was being carried. Two lengths of hose were used at the pump house during the tests.

Coupling to a hydrant leading from the dead-end of the main in the rear of the hospital, in which only a slack pressure was being carried, four lengths of hose were strailed the power of the pumper to throw water over the top of the roof of the building. Stopping the pumper, and with the water running through the machine with no extra pressure the stream dropped half-way down the first second windows. The test appeared to be a convincing one to members of the Council present and favorable comment was made.

Returning again to the lower end of the city where a stop was made in the yard of the park to compare the machine prepared to give a demonstration of direct pumping from the river. Owing to the limited room in the yard, the machine was transferred to Faulder's Park where a second stand was made. Here good pressure from the large main enabled the machine to give a second test for large volume of water which followed the department over.

On the last test five heads of hose, four with 1¼ inch nozzles and one 1½ inch nozzle were used. Water was thrown to a distance of well over one hundred feet into the air. Owing to the fact that the market was in attendance on the square, no attempt was made to "wash the clock" in the city hall.

"If I wanted to give them about twenty more pounds in the main pressure I would be capable of using from six to eight heads in the downtown district, with good pressure," stated E. T. Austin, manager of the Leyland Motors Department, an interested official at the test.

Provinces and States Represented by Cars

Whilst the tourist trade is by no means at its height thus far this year, many cars bearing license plates from various places in the United States and Canada have been observed passing through the city during the past few days. Cars seen by a reporter were from Illinois, Indiana, Nebraska, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, North Carolina, Michigan, Massachusetts, Minnesota, California, Alberta, Manitoba and Quebec.

BIG DOUBLE CIRCUS HAS STUPENDOUS PROGRAM

The world's lowest big show, the Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty Circus from a five year European tour will exhibit in Belleville, Tuesday, July 2nd.

The No. 1 advertising car, the first of three in advance of the Colossus of all amusements, is now in this vicinity. Billposters, banner men, lithographers, radio men and press agents are heralding the great event, and more anyone will be planning for a gala visit to the world's largest "big top", the centre of the biggest canvas city ever assembled to thrill, entertain and amuse a great and discriminating populace.

Traveling on three trains of double-length steel railroad cars, the giant of super-circuses will bring 1000 people, 313 menagerie animals, five herds of elephants and 800 horses.

Pre-eminent feature is Clyde Beatty, trained wild animal exhibition. Beatty is acknowledged to be the greatest wild animal trainer of all time.

There are 400 performers including the famous Nelson family of acrobats; the Imperial Hercules; the Flying Thrillers; Allen King and his cage of fury; Harietta, the famous equestrienne, and her handsome palomino and beloved clowns. The Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty three fair has become a feature amazing in its speed throughout North American continents.

The big holiday will be ushered in with an immense street parade at 11 a.m., Tuesday, July 2nd, three acres of elaborately carved and gilded allegorical float and tableau wagons together with many large and open dens of Clyde Beatty's animals will be seen in the processional. There will be five herds of elephants and two calliope vans of camels from the great desert. Five bands and two steam calliopes will furnish music. Doors for the menagerie open at 1 and 7 p.m. All seats are provided with foot rests.

PRESBYTERIANS OPPOSE CHANGE IN SCHOOL TAX

"Whereas, for the efficient development of these schools every dollar raised by municipal taxation should be appropriated for elementary school purposes is required, and,

"Whereas—Roman Catholic Separate Schools are already, or may be established, in Ontario, their right to any share in Municipal taxation depends morally, legally and solely upon the said privilege to the expressed choice of the individual ratepayer of that faith under the terms of the original Act of 1863, which were then accepted as a final adjustment of the conditions under which such schools were authorized, and,

"Whereas—complete effect to the conditions under which such Roman Catholic Separate Schools were, and are permitted to operate, can have been provided by legislation for the last seventy years, and such legislation is still in force, and,

"Whereas the supporters of Public Schools in this Province have the right to insist and do insist that no extension of the original compact on behalf of Separate Schools shall be entertained and that no revenue derived from taxation Publicly owned or State Utilities, shall be used to further the teaching of one dogmatic religion in religious school, as being wrong in principle and economically unfair to non-Roman Catholics, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that the Presbytery of Kingston of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in accordance with what we believe is the prevailing opinion of this Province, strongly protest against any action which will directly or indirectly increase Public School Board any part whatever of the proceeds of municipal taxation with any new lawfully appropriated to, and used for Public School purposes,

"And, that the Prime Minister, Minister of Education, and all the congregations within the bounds of this Presbytery be advised of this resolution."

Presbytery will meet again in St. Andrew's Belleville, on the second Tuesday of September next.

Obituary

JOHN R. DAVERN (Brighton)

After a brief illness the death occurred in the Belleville General Hospital Wednesday evening of John Roy Davern, Canadian National Railway telegraph operator at Brighton. He was 40 years of age.

MRS. SARAH E. DONOGHUE (Toronto)

On Wednesday, June 19th, Mrs. Sarah E. Donoghue, widow of D. J. Donoghue, passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. F. O'Brien, in Toronto. She was 79 years of age.

The late Mrs. Donoghue, whose maiden name was Miss Sarah E. McGurn, was well known in Belleville some years ago.

LATE WILLIAM F. BRICKMAN

The funeral of William Farley Ackman, late of Picton, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, Saturday afternoon. Many friends were present at the service which was conducted in the chapel by the Rev. Rural Dean C. C. Winght, rector of the church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton.

Interment was made in Albery Cemetery, the committal service being conducted by Rural Dean Wright.

The bearers were Messrs. B. Hatner, H. Redner, A. Spencer, F. Townsend and W. Giles.

RICHARD APPELBEE (Toronto)

Richard Appelbee, a former resident of Belleville passed away at his home in Toronto on Wednesday, June 19th.

The late Mr. Appelbee, who was in his 72nd. year, was born at Bellevue, in western Ontario. For many years he resided in Belleville and was well known and highly esteemed by many friends. At one time he was engaged in the grocery business here under the firm name of Benson & Appelbee. Retiring from this partnership he followed the business on his own account and conducted a grocery store on Bridge street some time. About thirty years ago he disposed of the business and went to make his home in Toronto where he was engaged as a furrier until he retired a few years ago.

Mr. Appelbee married Miss Sarah Jane Herbert, a sister of Mrs. M. Herbert, Dundas street, Belleville. She passed away many years ago.

He was a member of the Church of England and the funeral service will be conducted in Christ Church here on Friday afternoon. Notice of the funeral is given elsewhere in this paper.

Surviving him are two sisters, Miss Sarah Appelbee and Mrs. Mary J. Dickson, both of Toronto. He had three brothers who were medical doctors, they died some years ago.

SIMPSONS FETE POSTMASTERS

Banquet And Entertainment Given at Country Club

A most successful convention of the Ontario Postmasters' Association was brought to a close on Wednesday evening, when the delegates with their wives and friends were entertained by Mr. Robert Simpson Company of Toronto, at a banquet held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. About 125 were seated at the tables arranged most artistically on the spacious dance floor and a delightful dinner was served by William Little, steward of the club and his efficient helper. The president of the Association, R. G. Lloyd of Schomberg the retiring president, W. McGuire of Tillsonburg, newly elected officers of the Association, His Worship, Mayor George O. Tice, J. R. Boyce, President of the Chamber of Commerce, J. O. Herity, Secretary-Manager of the same organization and officials of the Simpson Company were seated at the head table with Mr. Bishop, general manager of the Mail Order Division, presiding.

The entertainment was provided by the Robert Simpson Company, including a string trio, a blues singer, an accordionist and Ernie Hall, comedian, members of the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange of Toronto. The whole program was enjoyed by many encores. Features not on the program were the solos given by T. F. Murphy, superintendent of equipment for post offices and A. W. McGuire, Commissioner of Postmasters included in informals and in all the delegates and their friends had a delightful evening. The visitors to the convention voted Belleville an ideal convention city and hoped to return before date to make another trip to the Quinte City. In the afternoon, the ladies at the convention were taken for a motor drive through Prince Edward and Hastings County, returning to the Country Club for the banquet.

PORTSMITH SENT TO FACE TRIAL

Evidence Taken at Hearing Into Shooting of Noel Blais

Millbrook, June 20.—Ralph Portsmith of Bethany, about fifteen miles southwest of Peterboro', will stand trial for the murder of Noel Blais, hired farmhand, allegedly shot and killed after Portsmith ordered him off his property.

Portsmith was committed for trial Wednesday by Magistrate Campbell after preliminary hearing in the little court room at Millbrook, about five miles south of Bethany. The shooting took place on the Portsmith farm June 6 after Portsmith claimed he warned Blais regarding his friendship with his wife.

Constable Thompson said he found Portsmith "sitting on the verandah crying." According to the officer, the man informed him he had killed the man accidentally and that he had discovered him "down by under a loose floor in the shed and routed him out".

"Blais threatened to harm Mrs. Portsmith and the boys," Portsmith said, and he told me he fired the rifle to scare Blais, but didn't intend to shoot him." Constable Thompson testified.

PRICE REVEALS INSIDE FACTS

Prosecutions Dropped Because of Declaration of McDonald

Toronto, June 19 (CP)—Declaration of W. M. McDonald before he died he was solely responsible for the Manufacturers' Finance Corporation matters led to the dropping of projected prosecutions, Hon. W. H. Price, former Attorney-General, revealed at today's hearing of the Corporation investigation.

In hearings before J. M. Godfrey, K.C., Royal Commissioner, Col. Price, disclosed information hereto for confidential Crown material. The former Secretary Treasurer of the Corporation told Crown officials, it was stated, that he was fully responsible, that directors placed full confidence in him and in event of charges against the directors, he would have to give evidence to that effect.

Following his death, during the course of preparations for prosecution of six men, it was believed charges against the balance could be maintained, Col. Price said.

Says Loan System Will Be Continued

TORONTO, June 20.—Ontario's own banking facilities will be utilized in whatever steps are taken to meet $40,000,000 of Provincial financing necessary this year.

With his Treasury-conducted bond flotation, the first of its kind on record, a signal success last night, Premier Hepburn admitted that the same process would be continued.

The Premier could not announce his next definite move to push the Province out of its capital finance difficulties. He would make no guess about what further financing would be next undertaken, as the Province meets its maturing obligations of the current year.

FAMILY OF FOUR DROWN IN CANAL

Car Topples Over Edge as Dryer Tries to Turn on Road

THOROLD, Ont., June 20.—(CP)—Police today were investigating the Welland Canal tragedy in which four lives were lost, when an automobile toppled over into the 36 feet of water in the canal in a rainstorm yesterday afternoon.

An inquest into the deaths of Herman L. Porter, 42, his wife Alfreda Smith Porter, 42, and their two daughters, Barbara, aged three and Doris aged two, had been opened by Dr. W. H. Hamilton, coroner, but today stood adjourned.

R. L. Calan, Hamilton, who worked with Porter, branch manager of the Monarch Life Assurance Company in Hamilton, escaped a similar fate only by accident.

He was riding with the Porters when they stopped at Lock No. 7 to watch a boat go through the Canal. They drove down a side road on the canal bank. Deciding to turn around and drive back to Niagara Falls, Calan left the car to direct Porter back on the main road which crosses the canal at that point.

Calan walked back toward the highway, when he turned to see the car angle over the edge of the canal. Suddenly it went over a ledge at the top of the canal wall and toppled over into the water.

Alex. McDonald, Port Colborne diver, hastened to the scene and after locating the car had little difficulty in removing the bodies of the Hamilton family. Porter, it said, was in the front seat, his legs pinned by the seat which had been thrown forward. His wife and the two children were on the rear seat. He said the car was upright on all four wheels about twenty feet from the bank.

Porter was born in Digby, N.S., and graduated at Dalhousie University. He was a professor at Brandon College before he entered the Insurance business.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"Black Fury"
Rated One of Best Pictures of 1935
Starring Paul Muni

When the picture "Black Fury" opens at the Capitol theatre today, local audiences will witness a production that is heralded by competent critics as going to be one of the ten great pictures of 1935, and one which will make Paul Muni a leading contender for the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences this year.

Tense drama, tempered with humor, romance and astounding spectacles feature this picture, which has one of the largest cast ever assembled for a single production. There are thirty-six speaking parts, as contrasted to six or seven in the average picture.

Stories of hike maddened miners battle beneath the earth and storm the gates of the mines, seeking to seize it. The brutal killing of a father because he resented an attack on his daughter by a company guard, is a prelude to one of the most dramatic fights ever filmed, as Muni battles to avenge the death of his friend.

Muni's one man strike, in which he barricades himself in the pilot after blowing up all but one of the entrances with dynamite stolen from the company's store of explosives and his reconciliation with the sweetheart who had deserted him for the arms of a treacherous policeman, are two of the dramatic and thrilling episodes that characterize this tremendous production.

Karen Morley has the leading feminine role. William Gargan portrays the part of her seducer.

Several entertaining short subjects including a comedy cartoon and Capitol News Reel will precede the feature presentation.

Complete shows 2.30; 7.15; 9.15.

AT THE REGENT
"Goin' to Town"
Streamlined, Svelte Mae West Goes Modern

In a picture sparkling with modernity and fun, a new Mae West comes to the screen to "do 'em wrong", and knock them dead in the grand old western fashion. It is Paramount's "Goin' to Town", now at the Belle, matinee daily.

Mae West's costumes are dashing and new, the situations of the picture are as up-to-date as yesterday's newspapers, the backgrounds bright even be termed ultra-modern, but Mae West is still the same, grand Mae West. Shrewd ingenious, robust and full of sly humor and observations, she proves again that she is not necessarily a girl of the "Naughty Nineties" or of the "Heckle Thirties", but an eternal character.

Mae West's adventures in "Goin' to Town" open in a western mining town, range over the western headquarters and reach their climax in the strongholds of society at Southampton.

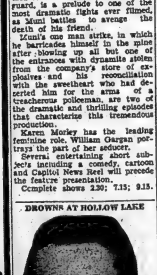
A cattle baron's widow with money to burn and warm affections, she picks Paul Cavanagh, a handsome Englishman, as the object of her affections. But Cavanagh mistrusts his feelings and runs off to Buenos Aires.

Bringing her horses to the Buenos Aires races as an excuse, Mae West continues her campaign, still without effect. Then she decides she must change, to win his love, she must contact a socialite to gain entrance into society.

But this doesn't turn out as well as she expected, Her rival, Marjorie Gateson, plots against Mae West, and the hunters scheme against her.

How this go-getting lady beats society at its game, and into the arms of Cavanagh furnishes a grand climax to the picture.

Miss West's performance is highlighted by her singing of a number of new songs, including the persuasive "He's a Bad Man". But the grand climax is her singing of the operatic aria from "Samson and Delilah" which wows society and sends the audience into an ecstacy.



The "tall, dark and handsome" who support Miss West in "Goin' to Town" are well-chosen and more than usually effective. They include, besides Cavanagh, Ivan Lebedeff, Tito Caoral, Fred Kohler, Sr. and Grant Withers.

Four Smart Shorts

Four breezy shorts, typical summertime entertainment have been assembled for exhibition on the same program consisting of a multiple-reel Star comedy, a clever oddity "Sporting Nuts", Freddie Martin and his Aristocrats of Melody, introducing an array of night club entertainers, and "Fire Pupils", a neat and sweet Terrytoon reel completes a splendid program of smart varied screen entertainment.

PROFESSORSHIP OF CHESS

A chair of chess has been set up in the University of Moscow with Professor Lasker, world champion from 1894 to 1931 in the chair. He is a great mathematician, scientist and philosopher.

How long will it be before there is a chair of sport in some universities? Mere athleticism is, however, not allowed to dominate as the academic standard must be maintained. So for a time at least the degree of Bachelor of Sport seems to have little chance of being established.

The Russians have not set up a degree of Bachelor of Chess. There are new types of bachelors as in commerce and other departments of study but chess and sports and many other varieties of knowledge can wait. Just at present the world seems to be thinking of a great many other things.

"THE ROMANCE OF A GREAT PORT"

"The days of sailing ships were colorful and romantic, but all that romantic is not confined to the past. Vision, enterprise and courage is called for in the creation of a great port. The citizens of Saint John, taking pride in the accomplishments of their forbears, might well be inspired by the record of the days of the wooden ships and iron men and pioneer port builders as a whole, interested in what the future holds for their city and the shipping facilities of their harbor."

In these words Frederick William Wallace opens a work with the story of Saint John, New Brunswick, as a port. The work in which he was assisted by Major H. G. Christie and Ian Solandera, is one of the finest from literary, artistic, informative and inspiring aspects which has been seen in a long day. It carries drawings and photographs of the old and new day of this port whose history is commensurate almost with the entire life of Canada. From the village of Ouangondy as the Indians knew it, to the modern city of Saint John, the story is told in brotherly. Here the river joins the salt waters of the sea. Indians fished from here. Then came fishermen, Spanish and Breton and French to hospitable anchorage after months at sea. Hither came Champlain to name the city after a saint. After him came Charnisay, La Tour with his gallant lady, and crafty, wise Villedom. Hither came the English. Then came the hard-trading New Englanders.

A great city grew, a great port developed.

Timber trade began with the shipment of supply for masts for the French Navy and then for the British Navy after the conquest. By this time Canadian colonists were handy shipwrights and wood was cheap and plentiful. A demand rose for large ships to export square timber and mast-wood. The woods started moving towards the sea. By 1833 one-third of all Britain's shipping tonnage, about 600,000 tons, navigated by 16,000 seamen were engaged in the British North American timber trade.

The timber-carrying vessels were fitted out to attract emigrants. The old-time steerage passage costing seven pounds when the ship provided provisions, or three pounds when the emigrant provided his own food. In 1830, 40,000 emigrants were carried by the timber ships.

Ship-building in Saint John had begun in 1760-70 when John James Simonds built a schooner with timbers cut from the adjoining hillside. The iron was taken from an old 64-ton sloop. She was launched and despatched on February 3, 1770 and the next year it was sold for 200 pounds.

The discovery of gold in Australia in 1851 brought fortune to Saint John shipping. By 1874 there were 174 ships and barques of over 500 tons register owned in Saint John of which 70 were of more than a thousand tons. In the early eighties the city ranked fourth among world ports for wooden ship tonnage. Then came the rapid decline before steam as the iron and steel sailing ship and the tramp steamer came. By the eighties the great days of sail in Saint John were over.

The idea of a national port grew. The fire of 1931 which wiped out the entire facilities was the spur which started Saint John on its ambition to rival the greatest of ports. This event is still in the future, but every endeavor is of the fulfilment of the hope is to be seen.

This book by Mr. Wallace is a souvenir of the transportation festival held on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty King George V.

None have more pride than those who dream that they have none. You may labor against vainglory till you conceive you are humble, and the fond conceit of your humility will prove to be pride in full bloom.—Spurgeon.

An apt quotation is as good as an original remark.—Proverb.

Quotation is the highest compliment you can pay to an author.—Johnson.

AN OLD CLAY PIPE

It is old and worn and faded,
That's why I put it away;
The hands that, loving, held it,
Are now, like it, but clay.

Gently I knock out the ashes,
As I close the eyes of the dead,
And ever them both, in my sorrow,
A passionate prayer I said.

For the pipe and dead in my memory
Are linked together fast,
One in the joys and sorrows
Through which we together passed.

There by the open fireside,
I sat while he read to me,
And now the sight of the old clay pipe
Brings back each memory.

—Marian Essley Nixon.

LIFE ISN'T QUITE THE SAME for many Belleville citizens since Big Bertha, or Big Benney, or whatever you like to call it, has ceased announcing the hours of the day and night in that deep-toned, mournful voice which seemed to speak of time and eternity. The Town Clock has stopped striking, for some reason or other—due to old age or infirmity, or whatever it is affects Town Clocks, exposed as they are to every variation of the weather. When it is borne in mind that Belleville's Town Clock has done valiant service for upward of fifty years it can be realized that weakness is liable to affect its innards anytime. Jack Roblin, custodian of the Town Clock, thinks that voice should speedily be restored to the clock even at a bit of expense for Big Benney has certainly earned every attention. Some folks say that the mounting burden of taxation has reached the City Hall Tower and choked the voice of Time. Seriously it is surprising how many citizens miss the voice of the Town Clock, especially light sleepers who have become accustomed to having the night marked into sections by the tolling of the hours from the City Hall tower. Folks who have become accustomed to hearing the Town Clock announce the hours for the past fifty years or so, feel that there is something important missing from their lives now that the old clock is silent. So now the Town Clock Ties but it doesn't Tock. So What?

MOOSENEE, FARTHEST NORTH for the steel rails, where a fine hotel for tourists and others was built, operated for a season, but closed for economic reasons, is to be re-opened this season, and tourists given an opportunity to penetrate the Barren Lands and stand on the shores of Hudson Bay, visit the Eskimo in his igloos and get acquainted with the noble Red Man in the Great Open Spaces as yet lightly touched by the blessings or otherwise of civilization. Col. Mac Lang, T. & N. O. Ry Commissioner, has a touch of romance in his veins and he can visualize the attraction Moosenee, way up by the Arctic Circle, will have for many people, bored to death with the monotony of sameness, and eager to get just such a thrill as a visit to Moosenee can afford. Make it "Belleville to Moosenee or Bust" if you want a real thrilling change. And you needn't Bust either.

Cohen and his wife had been dining out. When he was handed the bill, Cohen scrutinized it closely, and said to the manager: "I say, you've charged us for dessert. We never touched it."

"But," explained the manager, "regardless of whether you ate it or not, it was there for you."

"There you are," remarked Cohen, as he handed over the money in payment of the bill.

The manager counted the money and discovered that it was one dollar short. Upon being informed of the deficit, Cohen replied: "That was for kissing my wife."

"Absurd!" said the manager. "I didn't kiss your wife!"

"Dot's your own fault," concluded Cohen, as he walked out. "She vas there, vasn't she?"

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

Centuries ago the Howeitat came from Hejaz, and their nomad clans prided themselves on being true Bedouin. Emir was their master type. His hospitality was sweeping, except to very ungry souls, inconvenient. His generosity kept him always poor, despite the profits of a hundred raids. He ha dmarried twenty-eight times, had been wounded thirteen times; while the battles he provoked had sent all his tribesmen hurt, and most of his relations killed. He himself had slain seventy-five men, Arabs, with his own hand in battle; and never a man except in battle. Of the number of dead Turks he could give no account: they did not enter the register. His Twenties unquarter him had become the first fighters of the desert, with a tradition of desperate courage, a pride of superiority which never left them while there was life and work to do; but which had reduced them from twelve hundred men to less than five hundred, in thirty years. At home the standard of nomadic riphtist once.

Auda raided as often as he had opportunity, and as widely as he could. He had also, Abdulla, Nasir, Wejh, and Wadi Dawasir on his expeditions: and was equal to be a big enmity with nearly all tribes in the desert, that he might have proper scope for raids. After the old-fashion, he was as hard-headed as he was hot-headed, and in his most dest exploits there would be a cold factor of possibility to lead him through. His patience in action was extreme: and he received and ignored advice, criticism, or information with a smile as constant as it was very charming. If he was angry he never worked uncontrollably, and he burst into a fit of shakiry passion only to be quiet again when he had killed: at such times he was a wild beast, and men escaped from him. Nothing on earth would make him change his mind or obey an order or do the least thing he disapproved; and he took no heed of men's feelings when he had his own.

He saw life as a saga. All the events in it were significant: all personages in circles with him at their ole. His mind was stored with episodes of old raids and forgotten fights, and he overflowed with them on the nearest listener. In indeed listeners he would invent others for them to himself in his tremendous voice, deep and resonant and loud. He had no control over his lips, and was therefore terrible as a foe, as interests and hurt his friends continually. He spoke of himself in the third person, and was so sure of his fame that he loved to shout out stories against himself, as these so seemed aken by a demon or mish-hief and in public assembly would invent and utter on oath appalling tales of the private life of his hero or friends: and with all this he was a modest, as simple as a child, direct honest, kind hearted, and warmly loved even by those to whom he was most embarassing—his friends.

The long pause after Wejh fell had an important effect on my mind, for I was sent on detached duty and had solitude for thinking. I took a remote point from which to regard our activities. Every effort was still directed against the Hejaz way. Newcombe and Garland were near Moaiglaban with Sherif Shakrat and Maulud. They had many Bill, the mule-mounted infantry, and guns and machine-guns, and hoped to take the fort and railway station there. Newcombe meant then to move all Feisal's men forward very close to Medain Salih, and, by talking and holding a part of the line, to cut off Medina and compel its early surrender. Wilson was coming up to help in this operation, and Davenport would take as many of the Meyrlan army as he could transport, to reinforce the Arab attack.

All this programme was what I had believed necessary for the further success of the Arab Revolt when we took Wejh. I had planned and arranged some of it myself. But now, to my leisure, it seemed that not merely the details, but the essential points of the scheme could therefore became my business to explain my changed ideas, and if possible to persuade my chiefs to follow me into the new theory.

The Arab Revolt had three propositions. Firstly, that irregulars would be irresistible, and so irremovable incapable of forcing a decision. Secondly, that they were as unable to defend a line or point as they were to attack it. Thirdly, that their fighting value lay in fact.

The Arab war was geographical, and the Turkish power its servitude. Our aim was to seek the enemy's weakest material link and bear only there, till that link was broken at any length fail. Our largest resources, and therefore our war must be built, were unused to formal operations, but had assets of mobility, endurance, knowledge and intelligence of the country, intelligent courage. With them possible was our strength. Consequently we must extend our front to a maximum, to impose on the Turks the largest possible defensive defence, since that was, materially, the sole contact with our war.

Our duty was to attain our end with the least economy of life, since life was more precious to us than money or time. If we were pa-tient we could accomplish what we could, follow the direction of Saxe and Napoleon, without battle, by pressing our advantages mathematical and psychological. Forutately our physical force was not much as to demand this. We were richer than the Turks in transport, machine-guns, can, high explosive. We could develop a highly mobile, high-powered striking force of the Turkish line, to make them strengthen their flanks beyond the defensive minimum or twenty men. This would be a short cut to success.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 20TH, 1915

Mr. William Ponton has installed a giant mule in his woollen mill on Mill Street. The new appliance is 48 feet long and contains 360 spindles, capable of manufacturing 300 pounds of yarn a day. Mr. Lott will now be able to keep up with the demand for yarn.

Mr. Will Campbell of the Hydro Electric, Niagara Falls, Ontario, is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell.

The Belleville Chess Association has donated $500.00 to the Queen's University Military Hospital. This most generous grant was followed by another grant of $150.00 to the Red Cross Society at Tweed.

Mr. Wilbur McMullen of Calgary is home on a visit to his father, Mr. M. McMullen, Hillside Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stewart, Calgary, are visiting their son-in-law, parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stewart, Pine Street.

30 Years Ago

JUNE 20TH, 1905

Mr. Lewis Pratt, son of Hespler, Ont., formerly of Belleville, has been spending a few days at his home here.

The Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, is spending two weeks in Western Ontario.

Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Ollf of Cambridge, near Boston, Mass., have arrived in this city to spend the summer with Mrs. Gill, Henry Street.

It looked like old times to see the band giving a concert at the corner of Bridge and Front streets last evening. Three cheers for the band.

Many an old boy when he comes home next month will gaze with pleasure and astonishment on Queen Victoria Park, which in the days of old was a sawdust heap, and anything but a thing of beauty. To the energy and aggressiveness of ex-Mayor Johnson we owe it that now when monuments are being built he should not be forgotten.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, June 18.
12 Catherine Street.

The Editor:
Ontario Intelligencer:
Sir—

In reference to your editorial of June 18th, I beg headed "How the Motorist Pays."

One would think from reading it that the poor motorist is unfairly dealt with in the matter of taxation, but you only show one side of the story and have not mentioned at all the country has against this machine, the chief one of the machines, that are the major cause of the depression.

The cost of building roads policing and maintenance, also enough to compensate those maimed and killed annually by those kind can be paid by the motorist.

The loss of markets to the farmer through the replacement horses by cars, compensation should be paid these people, also compensation paid the railroads through loss of business taken by trucks. The other machines should be taxed for the labor they have replaced.

In fact the country's whole relief bill should be collected from the machines.

If less American machines were sold here there would be a much larger circulation of money.

Stringency experts should be jailed for as we would jail a traitor for they thrive on depriving people of work and when they do employ labor by machinery the country has to keep them or put out on the street.

No, the motorist does not pay half enough.

Yours truly,
Chas. Ross.

MEMBERS PASS FIRST OF TESTS

Water Drill Completed by Nine Boys and Seven Girls

At the regular weekly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Swim Club, the members of which have been working hard of late on the National Swimming and Life Saving Programme, a relative number of those kind and nine boys were successful in passing the first of a series of tests for their Life Savers Award. This initial examination will be followed by three more practical tests and also a written thesis on the Schaefer method of resuscitation before the candidates receive their final certificate and crest designating them as qualified Life Savers.

A number of absentees who show equal proficiency in the work will take their test at a later date. The following members of the club were successful in passing the test known as the Water Drill:

Juniors (Under 17 years of age)—Grace Bongard, Marion Dupras, Edna Bush, Margaret Griffin, Doris Ashton, Douglas McBride, Arthur Martin, William Arnold, Fred Plummer.

Seniors: Gladys Maracle, Evelyn Cole, Carl Gruber, Julius Cole, Jack Peoples, Arthur Stelcher, Ed. Plummer.

"DON'T TRUST ANYBODY"

CHAPTER EIGHT

Old Mrs. Heath, the rooming housekeeper, was in the hallway and eyed Judith severely as she started upstairs. Judith flushed under her inquisitorial scrutiny, well knowing the landlady's thoughts, but tossed her head defiantly and kept on. Once in her room, she slammed the door still more defiantly and threw herself on the bed she shared with her roommate, Sally Foster, without stopping to undress. In five minutes she was asleep.

The reaction from her night of excitement and suspense proved a powerful sedative, and her slumber was deep and dreamless. Only on dim realisation of being shaken brought her back to consciousness. Her eyes opened on Sally.

"Well, I declare! said that young woman; taking her head from Judith's shoulder. "Do you want to sleep forever?"

Judith sat up.

"What time is it, Sally?"

"Quarter to six. I just got home from the office, Bob's told me all about last night, Cee, Judy, wasn't it- thrilling? And romantic! Just thing of being rescued by a nice young millionaire! Exactly like a novel or a movie. But weren't you scared with all that shooting and everything? And what d' you know about Harold Stokes? I always thought that fellow was a snake in the grass! Are you going to keep on working in the office, Judie? I suppose not. You'll probably marry the handsome hero- what's his name? Oh, yes, Randall Spencer—swell name, isn't it? And then you'll live in a fine big house, and go to Europe or Palm Beach for the winter, and have all those poor old friends, and—"

Judith's hand over Sally mouth shut off this flow of chatter.

"That'll do, Sally," she said smiling. "Come down to earth, I'm hungry. Where will we eat tonight?" She opened her purse and gave a quick appraisal of its contents. "I saved fifty. Only made money yesterday, so I can afford to treat."

While they were fixing their hair and powdering their noses, romantic Sally could not resist the temptation to reopen the subject of Randall Spencer.

"Bob says he seems to have plenty of money, and is a mighty fine fellow, but he really doesn't know much about him, at that. He's only lived here two or three years. It's kind of mysterious. But, of course, he'll marry you—they all way do in the last reel."

"Bob his last's a movie, silly Sally. And he won't. He's going to marry Miss Harriet Alden Madison. It was in last Sunday's paper. Didn't Bob tell you that?"

Sally looked so blankly tragic that Judith had to laugh.

"Oh! Cee, she's high-bat no end! Aristocratic—cold and haughty and plenty of money—and all that." Sally tossed her yellow curls. "Well, she don't have him. Mr. Spencer hadn't seen you when she rescued him in. You'll put a spoke in her wheel, I'll say you will."

Judith laughed, but gave Sally an affectionate pat on the back.

"Let's change the subject before we both go balty. Tell me about the office. Did Mr. Stokes—Mr. Hezekiah, of course—notice my absence today?"

"He rang for you this morning, and I went in and told him you hadn't come and I'd take his dictation. He fussed a little under his breath and seemed very disappointed. Do you know, I think the old man's got a case on you himself, Judie!"

"Oh, hush, Sally! You're perfectly absurd tonight. The old gentleman's all right, though. He's got a kind heart somewhere under that funny vest he wears."

"And then," continued Sally, "Mr. Randall Spencer himself came in and went into the old man's office, Cee, Judie he is swell—don't you agree with me? Oh, him, I mean them, in loyalty, she added: "But I like you and old Hezekiah Stokes-bite better, of course."

Sally pondered and threw a moment and then went on:

"Mr. Spencer was in Mr. Stokes' office quite a while, and they must have had some words. In fact, we could hear them quite plain—not to understand what they said of course, but they were talking loud and angry-like. And Mr. Spencer was frowning when he came out. All the girls noticed it."

"Perhaps he told Mr. Stokes about Harold's part in last night's affairs," said Judith, "and the old gentleman resented it. Harold is his nephew, you know, and I suppose he is fond of him, I'm sorry if he told him."

"You would be!" said Sally, scornfully. "You're too darned tenderhearted. I hope he did tell him, and I hope the old man kicks Harold out. Serve him right!"

"Yes it would," Judith agreed. "But just the same I'm sorry. Not for Harold, but for the old gentleman. I guess Harold is the only relative he's got left, and he's been trying to make something of him and it's hard to be disillusioned over one you love."

Sally shot a quick glance at Judith, but said nothing in reply to that. In silence they finished their toilets and trooped down the stairs. At supper they talked of other things. Sally sensing that Judith, for some reason, was disinclined to pursue any subject closely or remotely related to last night's adventures. Which was a great disappointment to romantic Sally, who longed to discuss Randall Spencer in minute detail. After supper they took in a talkie and then, Judith pretending to be still tired, they went to bed.

"My gosh," said Sally petulantly to Judith's back, "you're as close as an oyster tonight, Judie, and still sleepy after sleeping all day. I just can't understand it."

Judith simulated heavy breathing and Sally gave up regretfully, turned over and counted imaginary sheep in an effort to forget the vivacious thrills of the past twenty-four hours.

Next morning Judith was again awakened by Sally's vigorous hand upon her shoulder.

"Wake up, dearie," she said. "You're going to the office, don't you? We'll be late if you don't hustle. It's after seven."

"I'm not going today Sally, dear," said Judith, "Got a date."

"Randall Spencer! Oh, Judy!" said Sally ecstatically.

"Naw, again," smiled Judith. "It's a lot worse than that. Captain McAdam of the police force. He's going to put me through the third degree."

"My Gawd!" was all Sally could say. And Judith turned over with her face to the wall and, without teeroh no further information.

Soon after Sally had left, however Judith rose, dressed and went out for breakfast. It was nine o'clock by that time, and Judith telephoned the police station, preferring to make an appointment with Captain McAdam there rather than have him call at Mrs. Heath's lodging house and further arouse that estimable lady's curiosity and suspicion.

Captain McMahon's chesty voice assured her that he would be "delighted" to have her call at his office just as soon as it was convenient for her. Fifteen minutes later the gallant officer was during the best chair in his plainly furnished sanctum and apologizing for the tobacco fumes, of which his visitor detected, windows hadn't yet cleared the air.

"Pipe smoke is fine for a policeman, Miss Miller, but not at all. It's clears the cobwebs out of his head, too. He's very good for a young lady, I know—especially when it's dangle an old veteran like Napoleon here. He plotted in a blackened, stubby briar pipe from desk and grazed at it lovingly.

"Napoleon and I have been close companions for 15 years. I'd hate to part with Napoleon we are such pals, eh, friends." But eyes twinkled at the pun. "But I'd give him a bed on the other room while you're in here, if you say the word."

"No indeed," Judith assured him. "I'm with Napoleon on the hospitality when he is, or put him in your office, Captain. You needn't have gone to all this trouble, I don't mind pipes, and I love to see a man smoking one though he enjoyed it . . . What I say or think I will help you. Captain?"

"To be frank, I hardly know—now, Miss. Yesterday I thought differently but you help us. But after thinking it over, I'm not so sure. You see, Miss Bates, this 'Red Tiger' business is badly mixed up with some other matters I've been working on for a year past. It's —well, it's a mess, that's what it is! The Red Tiger is a sort of a racket, you for one of the toughest and slickest gangs of crooks this town has ever had to cope with. Bootlegers, hi-jackers, con men, and gunmen, we know what all. They've no murders as yet, except the two that was pulled off right before last, an as the victims were both thugs, we've not het up so much about them. But we do have—or in fact, we're afraid it's comin' soon —a feelin' that will put us down by the ears. If we only could find out who this real head of the gang is, we could circumvent 'em. That's what I thought we were on to, but I'm not so sure any more. I've tried to pump this young Stokes. He knows something, I'll tell, but I can't get it out of him. He's mixed up with 'em, that's sure, but the head of the gang is a far smarter man than he'll ever dare to be." Captain McMahon's frown smoothed out a trifle. "There's hope, though. What is it the French say—churches lay females'?"

"Cherchez la femme"—find the woman — I guess you mean," said Judith, suppressing a laugh. "Do you think a woman is at the head of the gang?"

"Naw," said the Captain, "but a quarrel over a woman may show him up in the end."

The captain seemed a bit nervous, as though he had already said too much.

"Really, I don't be-lave there's a thing you can do for us just now, Miss Bates. You seem to have troubled you, and thanks for coming . . . By the way, how long have you known Randall Spencer?"

The question came sharply, abruptly.

"I only met him that night at the 'Red Tiger'," said Judith, and then how piqued at the question. "Why?"

"Nothing special," said the captain. He frowned again, then spoke impulsively;

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mrs. T. J. Connors announces the engagement of her youngest daughter, Helen Dagmar Lindstrom, to Rose Henderson Hogle, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hogle, the wedding to take place July 12.

Mr. Gordon R. Miller, D.D.G.M., is attending Grand Lodge at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne A. Morton of Toronto, are visiting at Mr. Morton's home, Foxboro.

Miss Helen Henderson, Kingston, was the guest yesterday of Miss V. Doyle, 5 Albion Street.

Misses Lenore Stafford, Dorothy Chant and Helen Ackerman, spent the week-end as guests of Miss Barbara Holton, Cedarhurst, Hamilton.

Dr. S. P. Dobson, Principal of Alma College, St. Thomas, and Dr. S. F. Maine of Western University, London, were week-end guests of Principal Howard and Mr. H. M. Anglin.

The choir of John Street Church were entertained at Miss Lena Biggs' cottage at Oak Lake yesterday afternoon. Forty-eight were present and spent an enjoyable afternoon and evening, arriving back in the city at a late hour last night.

Eugenia May successfully passed her year in first year Arts at Toronto University, obtaining third class honors.

Miss Florence Davis, Albert St., was hostess at a delightful pantry shower Tuesday evening in honor of the Misses Rose Middleton and Jessie Ferguson, brides-to-be of this summer.

MRS. A. HASLETT ENTERTAINS L. A. OF SPRINGBROOK

Springbrook. — The Springbrook Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. A. Haslett, 12th Concession, on June 12th, with an attendance of 21 members and 1 visitor.

The meeting opened with a hymn. The president took charge of the meeting with the following devotional period. The 37th psalm read alternately and the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll call, "a verse from a favourite hymn of Charles Wesley" was well responded to and closed by singing one of Charles Wesley's hymns, "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and adopted, also a report of the committee appointed to oversee the entertainment of our circle. A letter was read from Mrs. W. A. Hubbs for the Sowers and sympathy expressed at the time of her husband's death.

Mrs. J. Mallory gave a very comprehensive report of the convention held at Wellington. Mrs. A. J. Williams then rendered a very amusing monologue, "Gossip." Mrs. McConnell gave a reading, "A Child's Definition of a Mouse." The day's collection amounting to $1.90, was given to the 10th anniversary fund. Mizpah Benediction closed this helpful meeting.

Mrs. A. Haslett and Mrs. A. Jeffrey ful lunch assisted by Mrs. Roy Brown, Mrs. Fred Heath and Mrs. Percy Delamont.

Mrs. Wilson and Miss Thompson of Marmora School Staff were week-end guests at Rev. R. W. Paley's.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Ray and Gordon and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ray and Billie Ralph visited Mr. Clarmah Ray in Belleville on Sunday.

Rev. Randall and Mrs. Randall of Springbrook wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reid and family and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Reid motored to Belleville on Sunday afternoon to visit Mr. Andrew Reid's sister, Mrs. Brown, who is quite ill at present.

Mrs. Lillian Weir, of Simcoe is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. C. A. MacConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds were Sunday visitors at Mr. Clarence Rumble's of Marlbank.

A number from here attended the Orange sermon at St. Mark's Anglican church, Bonarlaw, on Sunday evening.

STOP IT! THERE'S AN EASIER WAY—
SAVES CLOTHES, TOO

NOW SHE GETS CLOTHES WHITER WITHOUT SCRUBBING
She's so grateful to her friend every washday! For she told her about Rinso, and now she never scrubs—never boils. She just soaks the wash in creamy Rinso suds, and it comes 4 or 5 shades whiter—safely, in fact her clothes last 2 or 3 times longer since she stopped scrubbing them! And Rinso is so easy on hands, so safe for colours. Millions use it for dishwashing, too—and for all cleaning.

TIBERIUS WINS GOLD CUP RACE

Two And One Half Mile Race at Ascot Keenly Contested

Ascot, England, June 20.— (CP Cable)—Sir Abe Bailey's Tiberius today won the Gold Cup over a 2 1-2 mile course at Ascot. William Woodward's Alcazar was second and M. M. Bousse's Denver third.

Tiberius, brown colt by Tracery out of Glenabraitk, started at odds of 100 to 30. Alcazar, bay colt by Achtot out of Priscilla Carter, was quoted at 9 to 1 and Denver, bay colt by Bantar out of Divine, at 100 to 8.

The highly-favored Brantiome, the French entry owned by Baron Eduard de Rothschild, finished fifth. Six horses ran.

Tiberius won easily with a margin of eight lengths. Denver trailed Alcazar by two lengths.

Speaker Disapproves Holding Rotary Convention in Mexico

Rev. Father G. Hanley of Trenton Addresses Rotary

Trenton, June 20—(Special)—Rev. Father G. Hanley of St. Peter-in-Chains Catholic Church here, was the guest speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Trenton Rotary Club. Father Hanley chose as his subject "Conditions in Mexico as they are today". The speaker said, that it was an opportunity to voice his disapproval of the holding of the Rotary International Convention in Mexico City this year. The convention, we all know, has caused much comment throughout the country. Father Hanley said that he did not speak only in his own capacity as a Catholic priest but hoped he was speaking for ministers of other denominations as well. Mexico, he said, was at present a communistic state and communism was a religion with no God, the state. It rules its head against the first rights of man. The first right, that man has is his right to worship God. This has been taken away from those living in Mexico. Many people think that it was only the Catholics, that were being persecuted in Mexico but the fact, Father said that this was not so, but all denominations of Christianity. Catholics have suffered the most as Mexico is mostly a Catholic country, he said.

Man's next right is that of private ownership. This has been denied today as the state has confiscated property, that was owned by all religious organizations and made it the property of the state, such as churches, hospitals, schools, etc.

The third right of man is freedom of education, as was said before, that all land of Christian ownership had been confiscated and all teachings of Christianity were abolished. De-christianizing Mexico is the main proposition under their communistic government of today. Criticism has been leveled at the Rotary International for holding their convention in a country, that has banned the three rights of man today.

"Let us hope that good will come out of the convention" said Father Hanley. As a conclusion the speaker said, that no doubt the delegates would be shown the beauties of Mexico City under the present government. The officials will likely show them only what they wish them to see, but not behind the scenes. He would be likened to the trip of George Bernard Shaw to Soviet Russia a short time ago. The officials took him on a trip to show the wonderful gains in manufacturing, schools and other projects that the officials wanted him to see. He did not see the conditions that existed that all about nor the peasants laboring under the state. On Mr. Shaw's return he immediately started to write about the wonderful changes for the better in Russia. What he wanted to see, they showed him as in. Maybe this will be the case in Mexico with the delegates stated the speaker. He closed, again hoping that good would come out of the convention and hoped that he had not been taken in offence for his stand on the matter.

Rotarians Ed Simmons and Geo. Chandler moved and seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker on behalf of the club. Vice-President Jerry Snyder occupied the chair during the evening.

The Lake Mrs. William H. Polley

Largely attended by many friends and relatives, the funeral of the late Mrs. William Polley was held yesterday afternoon from St. George's Anglican Church. Rev. F. Arthur Smith, the rector, was in charge of the services. The abundance of floral tributes showed the high esteem in which the late Mrs. Polley was held in the community.

Interment was made in St. George's cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. A. Arnott, E. Wessells, Percy James, Robt. Weddell, G. Bonter and A. J. Collin.

Mrs. Polley passed away at her residence, Murphy St., Monday evening after a lingering illness. She was born in Murray township, seventy-five years ago, daughter of the late Frank and Janet Maguire and had resided in this community all her life. Her husband, William H. Polley, former Collector of Customs at Trenton, predeceased her a few years ago. One daughter, Mrs. Bertha Maguire of Trenton, one sister Mrs. Hugh Colborne of Trenton and a half brother, Harry Lafferty, York Road, are left to mourn her passing.

Maple Leafs Defeat Benedict-Proctor

The Maple Leaf softball team from the Project handed the Benedict-Proctor team their fifth straight defeat last night by a score of 13-8. Hood started on the mound for the silverplaters but was derricked in the big second after the Leafs had gathered seven runs. Nolan by Vlean took his place and buried steady ball that only netted the winners six runs in the remainder of the pastime. "Mickey" O'Dowd, a new face to the pitching line, hurled for the Leafs and he has a very tricky delivery. Kelcher, ron hammered the only homer of the game and it came in the sixth after two men were banished on a double play. The silverplaters have lost every game of the season but have been playing in bad luck. They will no doubt strike their stride soon and upset some of the top notchers.

Gilard replaced Hill in the 6th.

Lemoire replaced Hood in 2nd, Score by innings:

Benedict-Proctor	100 003 1—5
Maple Leafs	270 013 x—13

Umpires—Plate, Jos. Baker; bases Gowan.

would stand a test in the courts. Mr Stevens did not confine his attack to the trade and industry commission bill. He said amendments to the Lord's Day Act were useless and fell far short of the commission's proposals. He also criticized amendments to the Criminal Code and Companies Act.

Many of the proposals relating to livestock were already in effect, said Mr. Bennett. The proposal had been to set up a board which would duplicate functions now being performed by the Livestock Branch of the Department of Agriculture. He told the House every proposal of the commission relating to livestock which was not already in effect provision in the law was covered in amendments before the House.

Attack Problem

Miss Agnes said Mr. Stevens had any of those problems been seriously considered in the House by either Liberals or Conservatives.

"The present Parliament came into office five years ago, Mr. Stevens said. But every time a domestic problem was discovered, a dis-tinctions Constitutional law were given.

"If Parliament," he said, "is to be handcuffed by the B.N.A. Act then for Heaven's sake let us attack that problem."

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett said the British North America Act was the Constitution of Canada and contemplated a Federal and not a Legislative Union. Until the Act was changed in accordance with duty it bound the Dominion Parliament.

"My view is," Mr. Bennett said, "the Constitution as it now stands must be changed." But it was a result of compromise and could not be changed by a stroke.

There was no question that regard the Justice Department more than the Livestock Bill, the Premier went on. Yet, the Commission recommended a Livestock Board, which would result in over-lapping. It was the decision of the Agriculture Department the evil would be corrected better than existing laws like the Marketing Act and the Livestock Co-operative Act. Under the Act, the Government believed it had all the power necessary, "why pass another law to over-lap existing statute?" he asked.

With the adjournment now before the House, and existing legislation ready, Mr. Bennett "there is complete provision to meet every recommendation of the Commission."

It was not open to Parliament to make a thing a crime merely because it chose to do so, the Premier had definitely said so and Mr. Stevens had himself argued to this effect in the House in 1922.

Money Not Idle

As far as financial policy and monetary stabilization were concerned, said Mr. Bennett, if he had to conduct financial affairs during the past five years again he would do it in the same way.

When people talked of the government to spend large sums of money his answer was the country did not have the money.

"When they say start the printing press and get more money," he went on, "my answer is I am not prepared to do it."

The Government has done everything to get out of the depression. It had got money on Treasury Bills at the lowest rate in history.

Mr. Stevens' attack came after an hour's attack on the Legislation, he received many applause from the Progressive corner than from Conservative. The Premier's pounding that greeted the Prime Minister was thunderous in comparison and a rare treat is to acknowledged his effort when he sat down.

GROLL TABLES CORRESPONDENCE

Province Not Interested in Toning Down Revelations

Toronto, June 19 (CP)—Correspondence between Leo Kervin, prospective husband of Mrs. Oliva Dionne, parents of the quintuplets, and Minister of Welfare David A. Croll, chief guardian of the quintuplets, respecting an autobiography Mrs. Dionne has written for a United States syndicate was made public today by Mr. Croll.

Kervin's letter, received by the Minister today, suggested a "settlement" to "tone down" the biography.

Mr. Croll replied in his letter "the Government of Ontario has no intention of having any effect on Dionne nor of attempting to prevent her managers or herself from publishing whatever revelations they succeed in selling to a United States syndicate."

Concluding his reply, Mr. Croll told Kervin he would not enter into any further correspondence with the manager regarding the parents of the quintuplets. Other than this his reply to Kervin's letter, the Minister declined to comment further.

Ruth is Living Life of Riley Since Quitting

By EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, June 20—(AP)—What's become of Babe Ruth?

Ever since he quit Boston Braves cold more than three weeks ago, the great main has been baseball's No. 1 mystery. Nobody knew where he was, what he was doing, or why.

Once he yielded to what must be an eternal urge within him and went near a ball park. That was the last time the Braves played here.

He was as amiable as ever. He shook hands with his late teammates, some of whom he could not call by name and responded pleasantly to the shouts of greeting from the stands.

But what is the big fellow doing? How does he spend his time and what is he thinking about.

The tip off came when a newspaper photographer got the Babe golfing in, of all things, shorts. This called for a bit of an investigation and here is the lowdown:

He Misses Anything

He rises when he pleases. He eats what he likes for breakfast. He hasn't got to worry about anything his aging bones into a monkey suit and chasing fly balls all over the lot this afternoon. After breakfast he lights a cigar and spends half an hour with the papers, the funnies the box scores closely.

Then the afternoon finds the Bambino shooting in the low 80's on one of a half dozen Long Island golf courses. Later on, over the Babe has a highball or two. Then he heads back into his ratz when he pleases for dinner and spends the evening at cards or at the movies. He's also a keen spotting".

The Babe isn't completely happy and says he won't be back in baseball in some capacity. Every day he gets a series and telephone calls from semi pro and touring outfits who want to cash in on his drawing power.

So far, all have been turned down with thanks. He may weaken, but with $30,000 per year coming in for life he can't bring himself to go about as a traveling circus.

PRO BOXING TO BE INTRODUCED

Kiwanis Club Running One Bout With Wrestling Card

Professional boxing will be introduced to local sport fans at the Capitol Theatre on Friday night in connection with the weekly Kiwanis Club's wrestling show, when Frankie Wilson, one of Canada's best boxing welterweights meets K. O. Kelly of Michigan in a scheduled ten round contest. This is to be followed by two main attraction wrestling matches.

Genovese is also the ex-featherweight champion of the Dominion but fighting 145 pound class today and has covetous eyes on the welterweight crown now held by Gordon Wallace of Montreal. Genovese has won 27 out of his last 28 scheduled bouts and is considered the leading contender for the Dominion title, having twice knocked out his recent string of victories. Sadly, the latter was ex-Michigan State champion at his welterweight class when he won four out of his last 36 matches. Both boys are well known in boxing circles and in the treat is in store for the fans on Friday night, when these two meet in scheduled ten meet in a local ring. Naturally Genovese is anxious to win as many victories as possible in order that he may force Wallace into a championship bout so arrangements for which will result in Belleville, Kelly, on the other hand, is one of the tough world renown scrappers as Frankie Klivelle, Billy Townsend and Pete Nebo. The lads will weigh in around the 145 pound mark, the Kiwanis promoters announced today.

Supporting the boxing card are to be two wrestling bouts over the one hour limit, two out of three falls, the first bout is to be Jack Reid of Toronto meet Johnnie Pavloe, the Greek youth who beat Jack Dalton in Dalton's home town, and while the final bout of the evening brings Belleville's favorite wrestler, Johnnie Gyrofty of Hungary, against a new comer to local wrestling circles, George Richards, the Jewish lad who is fast building a reputation for himself in the grappling game. Despite the fact a ten round boxing bout is on the card the bout wrestling bouts are on the card, the Kiwanis Club has not overlooked the price of admission to this all-star attraction at the arena.

BOWLING CLUB NEWS

The attendance at the Tournament on Wednesday afternoon was not as large as expected owing to the uncertainty of the weather. Eight teams however competed and the prize for two High Wins was won by Mrs. Heffernan, Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. McIntosh and Mr. Wallish. The prizes for one Win went to Mrs. Tanner, Mrs. Hodgson, Mr. Sprung and Mr. Hutchinson. The contest consisted of two twelve end games. Miss Hall, president of the ladies' section is planning a very enjoyable afternoon for Friday.

Open Season

Black Bass, 'Lunge

In view of popular demand from interested anglers who desire to take advantage over the Dominion Day holiday of the privileges which fishing for these species affords, and having in mind the fact that the holiday this year happens on a Monday, the Department of Game and Fisheries is making arrangements which will provide that for the year 1935 this open season will commence on Saturday, June 29th, to apply to those waters in which this open season would ordinarily commence on July 1st.

Violinist Sues For Loss of Finger

Toronto, June 20—Miss Justice Henderson reserved judgment yesterday on John Langley's action against the Fidelity Insurance Company of Canada for $70 weekly compensation for loss of his left index finger.

"I have a very clear opinion in my mind as to whether this insurance policy covers the disability," said Mr. Lindsay. There was a doubt, however, as to the time which the provincial regulations regarding the carrying of loaded firearms on the highway might have on enforcement of the policy, he said.

The defendant company had submitted no evidence, relying wholly on the statute for its defence. D. L. McCarthy, K.C., defence counsel, declared there could be no recovery under the policy where the injury resulted from a breach of the law. In support of that convention he cited numerous cases from the English courts.

Boris Hamburg, called as an expert witness for the plaintiff, testified that the loss of the finger ended Langley's career as a professional violinist. Every finger was essential and the index finger was the key finger, he said.

Mr. Langley had been engaged to play in Shea's Hippodrome Theatre in 1933 because of his outstanding ability, witness stated. As a member of the trio he had earned about $400 annually.

INDIANS PUSH WAY TO THIRD PLACE IN LOOP

Split Twin Bill With Senators as Tigers Lose Twice

GAMES RAINED OUT

Cubs Divide Double Bill With Boston Braves

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cleveland Indians have been guilty of some strange inconsistencies this season but at times it looks as if in the long run they might be the club to give the league-leading Yankees the best fight for the American League pennant.

Tribe set-up with a plunge into the second division only a week ago, Walter Johnson's title fought in way clear with four straight victories over the Red Sox, then shook off another heart-breaking blow yesterday to split a doubleheader with Washington yesterday in gain undisputed possession of third place as the Tigers dropped a pair of games to the Yanks.

Cleveland showed plenty of hitting power in both games, gathering 21 hits including five home runs.

But after building up a 5-0 lead in the opener, the Indians finally were forced to yield 11-8 when Thornton Lee blew sky high in the eighth and three successors failed to quell the uprising. Earl Averill's eight-inning homer with two on only stated off defeat as Washington finished up a seven-run ninth inning to decide the issue.

Undaunted by the setback, the Indians went on to slug a pair of former pitchers, Jack Russell and Belve Bean, for 17 hits including Hal Trosky's 10th and 11th homers, and win the second game 10-3.

Winning Streak Ended

The Tigers attempted to make a similar comeback after taking a 13-5 drubbing from the Yanks in the opener, but after 6 scoring innings went down on all counts. The 7-6 defeat not only dropped them to fourth but it ended Tommy Bridges' winning streak after nine straight second victories.

Bridges and Vito Tamulis fought it out evenly until each team collected a 10th inning homer to prolong the battle. Then Pat Malone finished for the Yanks and Bridges weakened in 14th when an error by Flea Clifton put the Yanks in position to score three times. The Tigers nearly salvaged the game in even then when Charley Gehringer poled a home run and Ross Grevenberg followed with another, his 19th of the season, but Cook Bourdo could not finish the job.

The Red Sox and Browns divided the Third American League double bill, Boston winning the opener 8-3 despite the efforts by the stick of Lonian Julius Solters, and one by Ed Coleman, and the Browns taking the afterpiece 6-3 behind Sugar Cain's seven-hit flinging.

National League

In the National League the Braves and Cubs split the only games that escaped the mud swither, a pair of keen, sound duels. Bob Smith got the better of Lon Warneke to give Boston the first clash 3-1 while Bill Lee outlasted Huck Betts in the nightcap, giving only five hits and winning 4-0 as Phil Cavarretta drove in all three Chicago runs.

Rain kept the other six National League clubs and Chicago and Philadelphia American Leaguers idle.

CURRENT SPORT
DAY-BY DAY

Tomorrow evening (Friday) the Stewart-Warners are appearing in Picton for an exhibition game with Jack Doyle's Picton Intermediates. Negotiations for this game were compiled recently and President Charlie Meagher put his OK on the matter Wednesday. Coach Mills feels his charges will play better baseball if they are afforded more games and doubtlessly future exhibition games will follow in the wake of Friday's game, if possible. Manager Young promised the Picton Club that all three Radio hurlers would be paraded before the fans, starting with Jack Williams. Art Calhoun and winding up with Ernie Smith. Although no authentic information was given out from the Picton camp in relation to the probable hurlers, it is thought that Vern Kelly Bishop and Sig Ron Church will split the hurling efforts of the homesters. Incidentally local fans do not want to underestimate the Picton Club, as they have a smart team of ball chasers and will give the Radios plenty to worry about.

Owing to wet grounds, yesterday's Oshawa at Kingston C.O.B.L. fixture was postponed, leaving the league standing: Oshawa, first, three wins and two losses; Belleville second, with four victories and three losses, while Kingston is third, having won two and lost three, and the Petes are trailing in the cellar with three wins and four defeats. On Saturday there may be considerable change in the league standing as the Pambs journey to Peterboro, while the Stewart-Warners are scheduled to appear in the Motor City Stadium versus Teddy Saunders' nine. Incidentally all O.B.A.A. ball games scheduled in this part of the province were postponed, yesterday, wet grounds being the reason given for the B.A.S.A. intermediate city league fixtures. Here are the games against the Gibbards.

Although the local senior club did not what might be termed a slugging team, they are leading the C.O.B.L., in fielding with an average of .943 as compared with .940 for Oshawa, Kingston is next with .938 while the Petes are the weakest fielding team in the loop, but are leading the league in batting.

A rather weird softball game was played in the local senior loop last evening when the Alemites walloped the C. St. Paul nine by the score of 13 to 3 at Central Park. The boys are back at it again this evening, however.

Just whether batting and wrestling will mix well or not is something problematic, but the sport promoters of the local Golf Clubs are always willing to try something that looks good and when they were offered the chance to show Frankie Genereux in a local ring on Friday night, they jumped at the opportunity. Incidentally, Frankie is an older brother of Joe Genereux, who got the unpopular decision over Howard Wheeler in the ring of the Golden Gloves tournament last May. This time K. O. Kelly of Michigan, comes to town highly recommended as a ring performer for Genereux. Incidentally if the fans take to professional boxing, future professional boxing shows are being contemplated by the Kiwanis when they realize that the cream of the pro. boxing ranks will be signed to appear in the local square circle. Of course there is also the wrestling bouts to support the boxing. Of these the Richards-Gyrofty go should be a thriller. Richards is a Jewish grappler of Horsehead strength and has the reputation of being a self-styled badman, slang the likes of Al Demaso.

Playing on a field more fit for water polo than softball, the London Lunch and the Ontario Intelligencer softball teams played to a 20 to 20 tie in the Metropolitan loop last evening. "Can these boys take it?"

Perhaps the Peterboro sport scribe will have a little more respect for Jack Williams nowadays. Prior to Tuesday's game the Lift-lock City scribbler was caught wisecracking about Williams' "old left flipper" and something in relationship to being "all washed up." Well, if Williams is all washed up and ready for the cleaners, we'd venture to say the latter could do well with a couple of "washed up" hurlers like these days.

Continuing their triumphant march towards the league leadership the local Aabas softball team won their seventh consecutive game in the Belleville Senior Softball loop, when they defeated Jerry Quinn's Gordon Steel team at Trowell last evening, by the score of 8 to 5. The score about indicates the play. They tell us Johnnie Rawden, local moundsman, and Bill Gowsell the local homerun boys, hooked up in a pretty pitcher's duel with the Belleville hurler pitching seven hit ball. The teams raced into the seventh frame at even terms, four all. Two runs in the 7th and 8th gave the Bowler-ed man the edge. Timely hitting coupled with a fine pitching effort by Rawden, gave the Aabazas another victory.

The Joe Louis-Primo Carnera heavyweight bout scheduled for next Tuesday night is attracting world-wide attention, more so than did the title bout between Dundee and Baer. Both contestants have practically terminated a heavy training period and are awaiting the gong.

Braddock Never Happier Than on Short End of Bet

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, June 20—(AP)— No Gray of the life of James J. Braddock, doer of the impossible, could be complete without the tale of Corn Griffin, of Georgia, who came from nowhere, went - right back there, and left behind the ghost of a new heavyweight dynasty in his wake.

Braddock was working on the Jersey docks, his fighting career apparently ended, when Joe Jacobs, his manager, Joe Gould, called.

"I got you a fight with a guy named Corn Muffina," he shouted. "Get yourself right in training."

Trained One Day

Braddock quit his job, trained one day, Griffin knocked him cuckoo with a right hand in the rounds round, Jimmy Braddock and Mildred Corn three times before everybody hollered quits.

"I never hit anybody so hard in all my life," Braddock said.

Ever-faithful Gould embraced him in the empty dressing room as Braddock was blaming Carnera, down, winding the title he was to lose later on to this same Braddock.

"Now if I could get that on hash, what do you think I could do with a couple of steaks under my belt?"

"We'll see," yelled Gould. They cashed Jim's cheque for $250 and the comeback was on.

They sat together on the hard benches outside Jimmy Johnston's offices in Madison Square Garden for weeks, waiting, hoping for another fight. It didn't come until July when since no one else was available, Braddock got a return bout match with John Henry Lewis, crack negro light heavyweight. Jimmy won in a close but fortune was with him. Lewis lost three rounds for low punching.

From then on Gould never stopped talking. Braddock had licked Jimmy, silent, sat on the hard wooden mourner's bench in the garden and waited. Suddenly Gould heard someone for Art Lasky, Jimmy got the chance. He was matched to 6 shot as usual, he methodically plastered Lasky all over the garden ring.

Self Chairs Out

The next day he took his seat on the wooden bench again but Johnston, with a flustered, hurried look into the private office, sat him in a big soft chair, for Braddock was back. Jim fingered.

"What's the matter?" Johnston demanded.

"I'm not comfortable any more in these kind of seats."

Jimmy paid back the $300 the government gave him on relief out of the $4,100 he got for licking Lasky. The New York State Athletic Commission named him top-most challenger when, by another freak of luck, Max Schmeling knocked out the German giant, Steve Hamas, and then himself decided not to meet the ocean for the title chance at Baer.

Stevedore days had broadened, strengthened, steeled Braddock for the great test. He trained doggedly for the fighting blood in his camp every day. He went into the ring at 10 to 1, a humbling thing. He licked the magnificent Baer by sheer doggedness more than anything else. He's still the same Braddock and he'd carry your golf sticks tomorrow and think nothing of it if he liked you. His debts paid, there's a trust fund started for the youngsters. Young Jay and Howard are going to Yale, Rose Marie to Vassar.

And as soon as Mrs. Mighty remarked, they should send Baer along with Rose Marie to hold the baby chain.

PRINTERS PLAY TIE IN LEAGUE

Kikes' London Lunch Team Held on Wet Diamond

Playing in what resembled a sea of mud the Ontario-Intelligencer and George Kikes' London Lunch nine battled to a 20 to 20 draw in a regular scheduled Mercantile League game played on City Hall Arena Street grounds last evening, the game being terminated by the umpires at the end of the regular nine innings.

Both teams hit the opposition pitchers hard while good fielding was practically impossible, owing to the water-covered diamond. Jack Cole, elongated righthander, switched for the Intelligencer nine but "Printers" used two moundsmen, Goyer and Doyle. Innumerable errors were committed while the base-runners experienced difficulty in keeping the bases in the mud. Another game is scheduled in this league tonight.

The line-ups:

London Lunch—Kikes, Ostrom, Carter, Cole, Cronkite, McCrean, Hughes, Hall, Faulkner and Ronsky.

Ontario Intelligencer — Kemp, Philp, Oliphant, Robinson, Brown, Ling, Lunberg, Doyle and Goyer.

Scores by innings:

Ontario Intell. 3 0 0 5 0 6 3 0 4—20
London Lunch 1 2 3 4 5 0 1 2 2—20

TORONTO DROPS THIRD STRAIGHT

Albany Senators Win The Night Game After Seven Frames

(By the Associated Press)

If Syracuse Chiefs could play all of their games at home they probably would be a notch or two higher in the International League standings. As it is they are in ninth place with an even .500 percentage but only 1 1-2 games back of Newark Bears and 4 1-2 games to the rear of the pace-setting Buffalo Bisons.

Since starting their long home stand May 31 and which ended today with the Chiefs meeting all of their rivals with the exception of the Baltimore Orioles, Harry Leibold's men have won 13 games against 11 defeats. The only drawback to their consistent ball is that the Clubs above them also have been playing at about the same pace.

Yesterday the Chiefs trimmed Montreal Royals twice with Joe Cascarella and Ray Kremmle turning in a pair of masterful pitching performances. Cascarella held the Royals to five hits, only one of which was longer than a single, while his mates brought his total for the season to 19. The victory, with the Buffalo Bisons being rained out, advanced the Orioles within one game of first place.

The Albany Senators chalked up their third straight triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs in a night game, called at the end of the seventh on account of rain. The Senators made only seven hits off Jimie Barnes but five base on balls and five Buffalo pitchers gave him a pile up the score while Dutch Leiber was blanking the Leafs for six innings. He weakened in the seventh, however, and Ole Haugstad was called in to stop the rally.

LUCKY NUMBERS

To the holder of the Kiwanis Club's lucky number in the ringside seat will be given away at the Belleville Bowl on Friday night when a combination professional boxing and wrestling show will be present. The lucky number here this week are: 24, 76, 184, 225, 276, 286, 294, 295, 340, 580, 582, 674, 689, 723, 824, 836, 1064 1065, 1445, 1425, 1450, 1478 and 1495.

ALEMITES TAKE ST. PAUL 12-3

Vic White Hurls Steady Ball For The Lubricants

Assuming an early game lead Glen Allen's Alemites advanced a notch in the local senior softball league by taking the St. Paul's entry into camp by the score of 12 to 3 at Central Park. Behind the steady pitching of Vic White the "lubricants" played stellar ball defensively, while they pounded on the offerings of pitcher Bagot knocking him out of the box in the second frame. Chuck Barrage accounting the hilltop and momentarily halting the "lubricants."

Opening with a barrage of lusty cious the Alemites scored four runs in the initial frame, added four more in the second stanza and doing things by the quadruple system, banged on four more in the "fourth." From that point on Barrage checked the Alemites. The box and batting:

White had matters well in hand and with a substantial lead coasted to victory.

The lineups:

Alemites: Flagler, Lepenetre, Henn, Dukey, Ethier, McCabe, Morgan, Halsey and White.

Lessmore Now Treating 300 Tons Daily.

According to advices from the North, Lessmore Gold Mines, the Teck Hughes subsidiary and in which Read-Authier owns a large interest, is currently treating 300 tons daily. Extended development is to increase slightly better than $12. Current production is at the rate of better than $60,000 and $100,000 monthly.

It is the reported intention of the company to step up tonnage to 500 tons daily this year with a view of earning at least $300,000 on capital. On such a basis earnings would be at an annual rate of better than 20 cents a share annually. Production since inception up to June first totalled around $170,000.

Financial Service understands that the management of Reno Gold Mines Limited estimates their statement to the end of June will probably show a net after all charges, including depreciation, depletion and taxes, of 14 to 15 cents a share.

Although higher earnings are expected, the point must be kept in mind that since Mr. Lindsay Bell took over, $90,000 has been spent considerable on replacing mill equipment, and $60,000 has been allocated to current operating expenses. The mine also completed during the ninth level and the company has allocated certain sums for the Rainbow Nugget development, all being extra work, but being paid for from profits.

Production is now running at the rate of $83,000 a month from an average of $60,000 in the fall. Earnings are thus running at a higher rate than the average for the year ending on the 30th of the month.

A veteran observer suggests that the present position of Reno is much stock market of the type that exists today where investment demand overshadows the speculative. Insiders and professionals have been left at the back and are not likely to be attracted to any extent. Whereas markets of the past were made by personnel of the floor, today it is increasingly impersonal, with a plethora of investment buying.

The persistent decline in Ford of Canada is attributed in some quarters to selling from a pool that has been accumulating the stock during the past few months. These people, it is believed, have been bought the stock lower down, have been steady sellers for the reason that they would like to have bought the stock lower down, have been steady sellers for the reason that they would like to have bought the stock lower down, have been steady sellers for the reason that they would like to have

Less Labor---More Leisure

HYDRO'S PART IN MAKING A NEW WORLD FOR WOMEN

ELECTRICITY is the greatest contributor to the emancipation of women from household drudgery — electrical appliances have now replaced manual labor in the home.

In this development, Hydro—your Hydro—has played its part. It has encouraged the development of appliances; its consistent low power cost has permitted their use in even the smallest of homes; it has set up safeguards against all risks; it maintains a continuous, unbroken supply of current to make electricity the servant of the home.

Listed below are a few of the benefits of electricity, which lightens household labor and brings more leisure and enjoyment to your home. Other domestic tasks are done for the modern housewife at proportionately small expense by Hydro.

Small as is the cost of Hydro current, whatever the user pays goes back into an enterprise in which she is a part owner. Hydro is a mutual concern in which all users are partners.

WHAT A CENT BUYS IN LEISURE AND ENJOYMENT

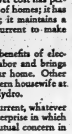
Will heat a toaster one and a quarter hours.

Will heat an iron one hour.

Will heat a grill one hour.

Will run a vacuum cleaner one hour and a half.

Will operate a radio six hours.



Will run a washing machine one hour.

Will run 2 sewing machine three hours.

Will operate a fan three hours.

Will light a 60-watt lamp ten hours.

Based on an average net cost per k.w. hour of 1½c.

A Summer Suggestion

Enjoy the maximum of leisure by using electricity to cook . . . the new and modernly attractive ranges are fast-cooking and most convenient . . . they are safe, cool and clean and they cook meals better . . . under the new Hydro Plan it is easier than ever to own an Electric Range. Ask your Hydro Shop or dealer for particulars.

THEY WERE BOYHOOD PALS

Many years ago, in Amherst, Nova Scotia, lived two young lads. One was named Edgar Rhodes, the other Jimmy Ralston. The two lads were pals; they went to school together, played on the same football teams, went to the same church. Then came the call of politics; they answered at the same time. But Mr. Rhodes is now Minister of Finance while Jimmy Ralston went Liberal. All during their political life they have been opposite camps; Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes became Minister of Finance in the present government; his boyhood pal and former Minister of National Defence became his chief critic. Then Rhodes announced his retirement from politics; now comes the announcement from Ottawa that Jimmy Ralston is retiring too. Perhaps now they will be able to bury their differences and start out together again where they left off at boyhood.

ENTERTAIN FOR POPULAR COUPLE

Amelisburg—A very pleasant social affair was held at St. Alban's Parish Hall on Thursday evening, June 13th, when the friends of Miss Lillie Kirby staged a shower for the prospective bride and groom. The hall was prettily decorated, and everyone had a jolly good time. The gifts were numerous and costly and were much appreciated by the recipient. Mr. Albert B. Pile was chairman of the evening and opened the proceedings by presenting the young couple with the following address which was read by Mrs. Art Cortfield. The address is as follows:

Amelisburg, June 13, 1935

Miss Lillie Kirby:

We, the members of St. Alban's Church and Sunday School and of this community are assembled here tonight to do honor to you in recognition of your genial personality and your readiness to assist at all times in the work of the community with the work of the Sunday School.

During your girlhood days in this community you won the respect and esteem of everyone with whom you came in contact by your cheerfulness and your helpfulness and by your devotion to duty and uprightness of character. You were a credit to the public school here and always stood high in the estimation of your teachers, having taken the highest standing in the township.

We extend to you and your betrothed, our hearty felicitations and best wishes for the future, and wherever your lot may be cast amid the pleasures and turmoil of life's temptations, we trust that the friendships and associations that you have formed in this community may adorn among us may bear fruit worthy of the church and Sabbath School of which you were a faithful and sincere member. Your many friends in this community bespeak for you and your betrothed with the sincere wish that you both may be spared many prosperous years through God's bountiful Providence, always remembering that the golden rule is the foundation stone of all true and lasting happiness in this world and the only real happiness in this world comes from forgetfulness of self through a life of self-denial for the good of others less fortunate than ourselves. Remembering that we get out of life just what we put into it, may your married life be happy in the society of each other with "two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one." A suitable poem was then read.

Signed on behalf of the members of St. Alban's Church and S.S. and this community: Lewis McPaul, George Lough, Church Wardens; Gordon Langstaff, Supt. S.S.; Albert B. Pile, Asst. Supt.; Miss Helen Lough, Sec. Treas.

After the presentation the young couple opened the gifts and thanked those who had so generously gifted them. Short addresses were given by the chairman, also S. A. Amey, W. J. McPaul, E. T. Carson and the Rector, all of whom spoke very highly of the bride and groom and wished them success in their new home. The ladies served a delicious luncheon of fruits and candy and the large gathering rose and sang "For they are jolly good fellows."

The young people enjoyed the rest of the evening with dancing, music being furnished gratuitously by Mr. and Mrs. Laurel Boyd, Mr. M. E. Wood and Connie and Mrs. Shelly Williams.

Observe 90th Anniversary Of Roslin Anglican Church

Roslin, June 20.—The nineteith anniversary of the erection of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Roslin, was celebrated on Sunday, June 16 and Monday, June 17. Large congregations were present at all services.

There was a service of Holy Communion on Sunday morning with Rev. John Fisher of Ottawa, a former rector of the parish as celebrant, assisted by Rev. F. A. Smith of Trenton, also a former rector who was the preacher at this service and based his sermon on Psalm 122: "Take these things hence, make not My Father's house a house of merchandise", John 2:18, and Matthew 21:12-13.

Rev. Smith spoke of the pleasure it gave him to return to Roslin and see again the familiar faces after a comparatively brief absence from the parish where he had spent five happy years. He spoke of the pioneers who had sacrificed to build the church, of the difficulties and hardships which they had to undergo and yet they built a church. Of the purpose and proper use of the church of Christ's cleansing of the temple. He urged the congregation not to be satisfied with past achievements but to press on to greater effort.

The rector, Rev. F. C. Seaser, also assisted with the service.

The church was beautifully decorated with tall trees, potted plants and ferns.

Sunday afternoon a memorial service was held in the cemetery in honor of the pioneers. Many relatives and friends from distant points were present.

The beautiful condition in which the cemetery is now kept was noted by many in striking comparison to the former bad state in which prevailed a few years ago.

At this service the rector, Rev. F. C. Seaser was assisted by Archdeacon Coleman of Kingston and Rev. J. Fisher of Otiawa.

Short addresses were given by Rev. Fisher and Rev. Seaser.

Archdeacon Coleman led the prayers. The following hymns were sung during the service: "Ever bright these glorious spirits shine," "For all the Saints who from their labours rest," and "On the Resurrection morning."

At the evening service the special preacher was Archdeacon Coleman of Kingston, who chose as a text for the sermon, 1st Samuel 7-12: "Then Samuel took a stone and set it between Mizpah and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

Rev. Coleman spoke of his Father who was Rector of the parish when he was a small boy, and of his son also having been in charge at Roslin for a period of 5 years.

He told of the setting up of the stone by Samuel as a witness and compared the building of the church 90 years ago to this. He spoke of incidents which influence our lives, although we may be unconscious of them at the time.

Monday afternoon owing to the heavy rain, the programme of sports which had been arranged, was cancelled.

Monday evening from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. the ladies of the Church served a delicious supper to about 200 people, in the new and spacious hall, which was gaily decorated with flags and evergreens. On the long tables, cut flowers were arranged.

After the supper a service of thanksgiving was held in the church.

The choir of Christ Church, Belleville, was in charge of the musical part of the service.

The following clergy were present and brought greetings and good wishes from their parishes, each giving a short address: Rev. Rural Dean Caldwell, Marmora; Rev. A. S. McDonell, Stirling; Rev. W. G. Hope Swayze, Tweed; Rev. G. G. Wright, Belleville; Rev. A. R. Beaney, of Kingston and His Lordship, Bishop of Lyons, Bishop of Ontario who was at one time Rector of this parish.

Bishop Lyons presented the church with a water color sketch of the church, painted by himself, as a member of the congregation, and given him during his stay here.

Rev. And Mrs. F. G. Jobin En Route to Leave Rawdon Circuit

Rawdon—On Monday, June 17th, despite the downpour of rain Mount Pleasant Church Hall was the centre of much activity from early morning till late in the evening when the ladies gathered and quilted three quilts.

Four were pieced by Mrs. F. G. Jobin and the other was an autograph quilt. This was made in blocks of yellow and mauve broadcloth with black lettering. Mrs. George Weaver set the block together and worked on the names which later embroidered in outline stitch.

At noon Miss Erina Thrasher, leader of the Mission Band and the Misses Eileen Macmillan, Frances McKeown, Faye Andrews, Helen Spencer and Mrs. Harold Rowe served a delicious pot-luck dinner when the Band realized the sum of three dollars with the ladies each bringing one dish of food.

The girls also served the leftovers very attractively to the twenty-three who remained to finish the quilts.

During the afternoon Mrs. F. G. Jobin, wife of the pastor, who has been such a faithful worker in the church organizations, whenever her health permitted was asked to be seated at the front of the hall. Mrs. Arthur Phillips president of the W. M. S. briefly called the gathering to order and Mrs. Roy Thrasher read an appropriate address and the autograph quilt was formally presented.

Mrs. Joblin suitably replied to this gesture although she was greatly surprised as she was expecting to buy the quilt when completed. However she was much pleased with the kind thoughts which prompted this remembrance and she invited all to visit her at her home at Scugog Island.

Mrs. Joblin was instrumental in organizing the Mission Band about twelve years ago and later she was president of Mount Pleasant Auxiliary and during her illness she has always donated generously to the bales for the needy. She will surely be missed but our loss will be another's gain. The address follows:

Mount Pleasant, June 17, 1935

Dear Mrs. Joblin:

We, the members of Mount Pleasant Women's Missionary Society, Mission Band and friends of the community have gathered here today to spend a social time with you and complete this work you have given us the privilege of doing for you before you leave for your new home.

Owing to your ill-health for the last number of years, you have not been able to be with us as much as you would like to have been, however though you have not been with us, we have greatly appreciated the very willing help you have always given us both in the society and the Band.

You all know there is an old saying that rumors are allowed to change their minds. We started to make this autograph quilt, as you proposed, if we would make a one you would buy it. In thinking it over, we would be a pleasant remembrance to give you this quilt from the Mount Pleasant community and we ask you to accept it as a token of our appreciation.

When as the years go by, you read these names, may they ever keep fresh in your memory the friends you made at Mount Pleasant.

May God bless you richly in your new field of labor, is the wish of your friends here. Signed on behalf of the community, Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Pres. W.M.S., Mrs. George Weaver.

MISS MATTHEWS ADDRESSES W.M.S. OF ST. ANDREW'S

Tells of Mission Work in Red Deer District

Stirling, June 20—The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Foster under the direction of the 1st Vice President, Mrs. L. Rodgers, the meeting was opened with a hymn and Mrs. W. L. Anderson read the Scripture lesson which was taken from the 103rd Psalm. Mrs. Thos. Spry closed in prayer. The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Matthews, Presbyterian deaconess of the Red Deer district gave a splendid address on the work there. One of the outstanding achievements of last year was the installation of a library with 300 books for young and old, an annual strawberry festival is staged by the younger girls of that district as a means to raise funds for the Mission Band. Miss Matthews conveyed to the gathering on behalf of the people of Red Deer the deep sense of gratitude for the boxes received from Stirling. Mrs. Shillington and Foxboro. Miss Matthews also spoke of the General Assembly which was held recently in Montreal, stating that at the assembly, one evening was devoted to home missions and another to foreign missions, mentioning that Mrs. Matthews would be here to leave shortly to take up the work of Mrs. and Rev. Donaldson Cofcrth in China. After the singing of another hymn the meeting was closed with prayer by Miss Matthews. Mrs. Foster served lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Italian Import Tax Means $108,000 Year

Ottawa, June 20—(CP)—On the basis of the last fiscal year's exports the new three per cent and ad valorem import tax which, according to despatches, Italy has now imposed will affect Canadians to the extent of $108,000 a year, Canadian exports to Italy last fiscal year had a value of $3,630,830.

Wheat, nickel, copper and dried codfish made up the bulk of the exports from this country.

Daily Short Story

Honeymoon Recess

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Whenever Pete Fenton is sent out of town on a newspaper story he's glad as long as Joe Wheeler is along. Joe takes care if him, writes his stories for him when necessary and generally looks out for him.

Because Pete is somewhat of a "mark" which means that he is what he himself calls a "drinking man." That, perhaps, is all right in its place but the place, from the viewpoint of his paper, is decidedly not where he is supposed to be working on a story. A typewriter can't be oiled from a liquor bottle, all popular beliefs to the contrary, and Pete was close to being fired when Joe began looking out for him.

He felt that he owed it to him. Joe had known Pete for several years when, working for different papers, both were assigned to cover the Bronson trial in a town nearby a hundred miles from their home city. It was an important trial. At it, working for a third paper, was Alice Denny. Joe had known her, too, but only slightly.

Mystery of Love

Just how slightly he soon began to realize. It was to him a wonderful and startling thing that two people, casual acquaintances, should suddenly fall deeply in love. It has happened thousands of times before and will happen again. But Joe wasn't thinking of that. All he thought about was that it had happened to him. And what to do about it.

There was only one answer to that question, Joe.

"But how can we?" said Alice when he suggested it. "The trial is likely to last four or five weeks more. And with the court sitting on Saturday we'd have only one day—Sunday. We couldn't even go on a honeymoon—it would be too embarrassing not to go away for a couple of days. If only that judge didn't hold court on Saturdays."

But Judge Bryant did hold court on Saturdays and his holding court held Pete, Joe and Alice right on the job. Sunday was their only free day. Joe and Alice waited and waited, of course, until the trial was over. They could also have waited twenty years but neither wanted to do either.

It was Pete who made it possible. Pete and ten dollars that Joe loaned him. Pete never paid back the money and Joe never asked him for it. Joe considered that if any debt was due he owed it to Pete.

It was on a Friday evening, shortly after court adjourned, that Joe led Alice into the court clerk's office, obtained a marriage license, sworn to by clerk in at least temporary secrecy and then found a clergyman. Ten minutes later they were married.

A Recess

It happened so fast that Alice hadn't a chance to ask questions until Joe told her to pack her things so that they could take the 6.05 train back to the city.

"But we can't," she protested. "Judge Bryant is going to hold court tomorrow and—"

"Don't you worry about Judge Bryant," interrupted Joe. "He just thinks he's going to hold court. Pete Fenton thinks it will recess until Monday morning. And my money's on Pete."

Alice realized that both their jobs also depended on Pete. Pete the "lush." But she didn't say anything about it. An argument was no way in which to start a honeymoon.

On their way to the station Joe stopped the taxi. "Wait here a minute," he said. "We'll be right back." Then, to Alice, "I want to show you something."

He led her into a hotel, through the lobby and to the door of the bar in the rear. "See that," he said. All that Alice could see was three men sitting at a table. One of them she recognized as Pete but doubted that he recognized her. For Pete was past the recognizing stage.

"They gone the Saturday court session," said Joe. "Come on, we'll miss that train. Know what that is with Pete?"

Alice shook her head.

"Two witnesses that the prosecution plans to put on the stand tomorrow," explained Joe. "When they finish this session with Pete both of them are going to repeat sick and they'll be sick, too, plenty sick. So the prosecutor will have to ask for a recess until Monday and the court will grant it. Pete and I fixed it up."

That's the way it happened.

FRED PEERNOT AMONGST THE PLOTTERS

Act 1.

Scene, inside the palace.

King. Darn it all how can I sleep with a big mosquito in my room sounding like a bulls going passed me every minnit? I've thrown my alarm clock and my crown and everything else at it, but it must be a better dodger than what I am a thrower.

Fred Peernot. (Under the bed) Peace! Dear!

King. There it goes again just when I thave I was asleep. What a nite! What a life!

Fred Peernot. (Under the bed) Peace! Dearie!

King. There must be a hole in the window screen. I'll have somebody beheeded for this, I dont care who. Here goes my 2nd pillow after it.

Fred Peernot. Oyich, its in the stumnick. I mean bum.

King. So it's you, is it? What the royal heck is the meaning of this?

Fred Peernot. There are plotters afoot your majesty. They are going to kidnapp you as soon as they hear your royal snores, and hold you for a King's ransom. So I sent if I pretended to be a mosquito it would be a good way to keep you from snoring.

King. Get out of here and stay out. I dont care what happens, I'm exhausted.

Act 2

Scene, the next morning.

Newsboys Extar! Extar! All about the king being kidnapped. Buy a copy. Extar!

Fred Peernot. Well, I tried to do my duty.

The end.

FIRST BLAST TO KNOCK OFF LEDGE

Famous Sightseeing Spot Will Soon Disappear

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 20—(CP)—The first of the blasts which will knock table rock, famous sightseeing spot, from the edge of the Niagara Falls, was fired shortly after noon Wednesday, loosening shale to lop of the hard rock.

Wednesday's blast was a small one. Twenty pieces of dynamite, each three-fourths of a stick, in a line of holes three feet back from the lip of the rock, were fired simultaneously.

The explosion was well "blanketed" with railroad ties laid on top of the rock and nothing flew into the air. There was no shaking.

Engineers have considered the dangers of rock slides on the face of the falls if any earth-shaking explosions were fired and the series of blasts which will remove the rock are expected to be light ones.

Making of Wards Mistake Dionne Quotes Croll Saying

Oliva Airs Several Grievances, Mentioning Interview

Callander, Ont., June 20 (CP)—Hon. David A. Croll admitted to him on May 28 passing of the Ontario Legislature Bill making the Dionne quintuplets wards of the King was a mistake, Oliva Dionne, father of the babies, said today.

He was commenting on the publication by the Ontario Minister of Welfare of an exchange of correspondence with Leo Kervin, Dionne's manager, and the terms of an offer made to the Dionnes to bring their family under one roof.

"We all make mistakes," Dionne quoted the Minister as saying in an interview here on the babies' first birthday. "You made yours in signing that Chicago contract, and I made mine in passing that bill through the Legislature. Let us forget all that, make a settlement and start all over again."

Dionne said he had asked Mr. offer of the Minister to build the family a new home. "I told Mr. Croll we didn't want that," he said. "All we want is our babies." Mr. Croll, he said, then accused him of wanting only the quintuplets' money.

Dionne said he had asked Mr. Croll why the Guardianship Bill was not discarded and had been told that couldn't be done because it had been put through the Legislature.

"Yet in almost the next breath he told me he would withdraw the bill if I would do what he asked," Dionne said.

After mentioning several grievances, Dionne put forward a list of questions for the Minister to answer. These asked why help at the babies' hospital was discharged when they showed signs of becoming friendly with the Dionnes and whether it was not true flashlight photographs had been taken at the hospital, May 8, when one of the babies was running a temperature of 104.

CROLL SUGGESTS DIONNE REUNION

Large Home For Quints And Other Members of Family Proposed

Toronto, June 20 (CP)—Reunion of the Dionne quintuplets and other members of the family in one large home and transformation of the present Davie Hospital into a schoolhouse has been suggested by Oliva Dionne, father of the babies, to Minister of Welfare David Croll, but no reply to verbal or written proposals was received, says Mr. Croll.

Chief guardian of the babies, Mr. Croll revealed the Government's proposals last night.

Suggestion for reunion was first made by the Minister at the babies' birthday celebration May 28 and he invited Dionne to consider it and come to Toronto for discussion. He said he had not seen Dionne since and later wrote him a letter.

In this letter offering to build the house, Mr. Croll listed two conditions to the offer—Government control of the quintuplets' business affairs and retention of Dr. Allan Dafoe as the babies' physician.

REIGN OF CALLES, MEXICO'S DICTATOR, NEARS END?

FUGITIVE SHAW, DISGUISED, CAUGHT IN TORONTO

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Guelph, Ont., June 21—(CP)—No police court session was held yesterday as not even a traffic case was listed on the roll.

St. Thomas, Ont., June 21 (CP) —The reason for the failure of the pamper ad recital test experiment tests has been revealed. A fireman's hat was plugged in the suction hose.

Willow Springs, Ill., June 21—(CP)—When night watchman Edwin Stringer found a drunk who was unable to walk he carried him to the city jail on a wheelbarrow. The next day in court Judge Herman Ganschow set only fined the prisoner, but ordered the second wheelbarrow to be left at the jail for future use.

Detroit, June 21 (CP)—A black and white monkey named Billy made a personal appearance in probate court to prove he was very much alive until entitled to a month support money left to him in a fund by his mistress, Miss Josephine St. John, when she died in 1931. Other heirs of Miss St. John's estate contested the original Billy had died.

Edwardsville, Ill., June 21 (CP) —A new farm threat—an epidemic of "sleeping sickness" affecting horses—is disturbing farmers in this vicinity. The disease, equine encephalomyelitis, is far more than a dozen horses near here, W. G. Moore, veterinarian, said today. Only one animal has died.

Los Angeles, June 21 (CP)— Mother of 13 puppies last October 11, Sadie, a Great Dane bred, received veterinarian by giving birth to 19 more this time. Leola Kyzma, owner of the dog, has asked veterinarians to work out a contraceptive. Some of the litter must be fed by bottle.

New York, June 21 (CP)— An idea born of Ohio mill riots in 1894 "a policeman's electric sleve" for handling disorderly crowds was demonstrated to police by Chris Hemphauser of Havana, Cuba. Operated with sleeves and batteries, the glove will incapacitate a person without injuring him, Diaz said.

Shanghai, China, June 21 (CP) General Wu Te-Chen, Mayor of Greater Shanghai, and supporters of the rightly successful mass marriage scheme, has suggested Shanghai should have a "Greater Shanghai Municipal Carnival Day" and this city should have a song of its own to be known as the "Greater Shanghai Song."

Blythe, Calif., June 21 (AP)— Little Betty Jo Lacey, newly arrived baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lacey, has an effect fingers on each hand and six perfect toes on each foot.

Canton, China, June 21 (CP)— New regulations formulated by the Kwangsung Provincial government and designed for the financial protection of the workers in government factories will shortly be enforced. The regulations provide for the compulsory saving of money by employees, equivalent to them to put aside from one to 10 percent of their earnings.

Traverse City, Mich., June 21— (CP)—Science recognizes three definite stages of intoxication, Dr. W. L. Border told the Michigan Prosecuting Attorney's Association, but a man may be drinking intoxicated or polished.

"When the blood contains one and five tenths milligrams of alcohol to each cubic centimeter of blood the man is considered to be drunk. If the blood contains more, he is polished, and if less, he is only intoxicated.

Manitoba — Mostly fair, with showers the same temperature.

Saskatchewan — Partly cloudy, with winds the same temperature; possibly scattered showers in south portion.

SPOT DISGUISE JAIL FUGITIVE IS APPREHENDED

Fred Shaw, Who Broke Jail in Cobourg Taken in Toronto

HAD HAIR DYED

Police Expect to Soon Effect Arrest of Alex Cross

Toronto, June 21 (CP)—Fred Shaw was remanded until June 28 when he appeared briefly in Magistrate J. J. Jones in police court today.

Shaw, who with Alex Cross, escaped custody in Cobourg June 8, was captured in Toronto last night after an exciting chase by police. Nine separate charges will theft face Shaw, in addition to a charge of escaping from custody.

Cross is still at large.

TORONTO, June 21.— (CP) — Police today were gathering up loose ends of the trail of Alex Cross, escaped youth, and his sister was expected soon, after a whirlwind last night ended in the arrest of Fred Shaw, his companion in the Cobourg jailbreak, June 8.

The blonde Shaw his butler-colored hair dyed a raven black, and his wife denied, when taken to the Parkdale District in West Toronto after he had for a moment eluded his pursuers, Today he faces nine charges, chief of which is the North York Municipal Building robbery in which $4,000 in cash and $60,000 in non-negotiable cheques were stolen.

With him a youth whose name police refused to divulge was arrested, held on a vagrancy charge.

A man believed to be Cross escaped police net last night.

Shaw was nonchalant after his arrest.

"I think I've seen you before," he said to Chief Constable Roy Rise-borough as he went to shake that officer's hand in a precinct police station.

Chief Risebrough of North York, Inspector Charles Scott and several detectives were active in the district in a police car on information the escaped youths were hiding there.

Suddenly Chief Risebrough shouted "there's Shaw" as he saw the 21-year-old fugitive and another crossing the street. The youths saw the police at almost the same instant.

Caught in Building

They ran down lanes, zig-zagged their way around the district and then apparently disappeared.

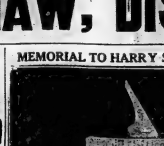
But officers were putting an apartment building, however, police saw the youths entering from a side stopping, the officers guarded all entrances. Just as two of them were about to enter the front door a man bolted from the building. They grappled with him and found a pair of handcuffs on the youth. It was Shaw.

A few minutes later the second youth was arrested.

Police announced that in addition to the North York robbery of June 11, nine charges had been preferred against Shaw. He is also charged with breaking into the office of J. Lewis Duncan, Hydro solicitor and stealing Hydro documents, breaking into six other buildings and stealing cash and goods.

Shaw and Cross were arrested in Montreal, June 8, Together with two young women, Mrs. Shaw and Cora Hart, at present held here on common on a theft charge, they were being brought back to Toronto on the day, when the escape occurred.

The two youths locked in one cell and the girls in the other, in the Cobourg town jail, while the officers had supper. While they were eating the youths put their weight against the door and the side of the cell. The jail gave enough to allow the bar of the lock to slip its socket.



LORD FITZMAURICE DIES

France Raises Protest But "No Rift" Appears

Laval Tells Eden France Wants Higher Naval Ratio

SEEKS PEACE PACT

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

By The Associated Press

Paris, June 21—Premier Laval told Captain Anthony Eden of Great Britain today France was disatisfied with the Anglo-German navy agreement and their conversation was interrupted in the middle of the afternoon.

The Premier avoided anything approaching an open breach but "reserved" the French note and withheld newsed his reservations" regarding the accord by which Great Britain granted Germany a fleet 25 per cent as large as her own.

Having expressed his strong dissatisfaction to Eden, Laval roused the question of the conclusion of a general armaments pact, saying France was ready to proceed to-ward a general peace agreement.

He was understood, however, to have insisted on Britain's support for a higher naval ratio for France than at present in the face of Germany's 400,000 tons.

The Premier emphasized there was no real rift, saying France and England had agreed to work "closest co-operation."

Mother Halts Theatre Marriage

Topeka, Kas., June 21 (AP)—An irate mother halted the wedding of her daughter in a theatre here last night.

As the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march faded away and Miss Ruth John of Golden, Kansas, bride-elect, started to read the ceremony, Mrs. Mary Graham climbed upon the stage and demanded the marriage of her daughter, Elizabeth, to Charles Wells, 22 be stopped.

The minister acceded to the demand and the mother gave the theatre manager a longue lashing for promoting the public wedding. Mrs. Graham claimed Elizabeth was but 17 years old.

The minister went ahead, however, with the marriage of Elizabeth's sister, Dorothy, to Wells, she was of age, to Paul Wells, brother of Charles.

VALUABLE DIAMOND FOUND

Stavely, Alta., June 21 (CP) — Mrs. Tony Santi of Sioux City, Ia., is wearing her $2,500 diamond ring again. Lost in a hotel here seven months ago, it was found in an ash can as heap after the furnace was given its annual spring cleanout. It is believed it, fell into an air pipe, thence to the furnace pit.

RELIGIOUS ISSUE CAUSES BREAK-UP PARTY MEETING

R. L. Calder Walks Out of Mount Royal Riding Convention

5 HOUR MEETING

New Meeting Will Be Called, Says Party Organizer

MONTREAL, June 21.—(CP)—A new convention was expected to be called shortly to nominate a Conservative candidate in Mount Royal riding, the meeting which lasted five hours last night having broken up in disorder early today.

R. L. Calder, K.C., walked out of the meeting, stating under the circumstances he would not stand for election after the religious question had been raised, and a motion had been shown to have voted in the balloting without being an official delegate.

Calder's principal opponent, Gilbert Layton, then declared he would not consider running unless chosen by a number of ballots and one which was made unanimous. With both the rival candidates thus dropping out Senator J. H. Rainville, Party organizer for the province, declared the meeting postponed. Another would be called at a later date.

With six candidates originally nominated, three withdrew briefly. In the first two Mr. Calder led by a wide margin but without the necessary number of votes to be declared elected.

Wentworth Retirement

The six, in addition to Mr. Layton and Mr. Calder were Allan A. Magee, Murray, Mr. Layton's brother-in-law; Lt.-Col. Harold Carroll and J. A. Whitaker. Before balloting Mr. Magee dropped out and Mr. Whitaker with a statement he is a Catholic and did not think it fair "to intrude in a Protestant seat", refused to run.

After two more ballots in which the vote was Calder 128; Layton 78; Walsh 49 and Carroll 47, Mr. Carroll took the platform to announce he retired in favor of Mr. Layton. "I feel that this should remain a Protestant constituency" he said in another effort to put Mount Royal to be the laughing stock of Canada", Lieut.-Col. Harold Carroll, Mr. Carroll finally apologizing.

Mr. Whitaker declared there could be no question of religion. Mr. Walsh dropped out, supporting Mr. Layton.

Badge Handed to Woman

A little badge was then given resulting in Layton 127; Calder 126. Royal Vivian, K.C., charged there had been irregularities, stating one woman who was not an accredited delegate had been given a delegate badge and had voted.

Told the matter the woman he did so. She admitted she had been handed a badge.

Mr. Calder then stated it was impossible for him to continue. He was a Protestant, he vehemently of it. "If accident of birth is to be considered a crime, I am innocent when in God's name will we be a country?"

Mr. Calder then left. Mr. Layton announced he would not speak or run. Meeting then broke up amicably and the meeting broke up.

The six candidates were: Mount Royal, R. B. White, Conservative, has accepted nomination; Mount Royal, F. Stanley formed riding, St. Antoine-Westmount.

CROWN ATTORNEY ORDERS PROBE

Disappearance of Mrs. Ryan And Children to be Investigated

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., today ordered a thorough investigation into the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Michael Ryan, 35th concession of Sidney, farmer's wife and her two children, Marylyn, age six and Walter, age four, who were last reported to be seen when they left a Belleville bus in Belleville last Saturday morning.

Spokes in the mystery and the missing persons was ordered today by Mr. Donnan as he instructed the Provincial Police to take charge with numerous international-boundary officers to enter into immediate communication with the police of New York City, where Mrs. Ryan originally lived. Provincial Police today revealed that Mrs. Ryan, who married Michael Ryan, Sidney farmer in New York City last autumn, left behind her husband and children of a previous marriage, she when she left her home, but Ryan, hit had not taken any of her per-

Province-Wide Plan Laid To Bring Swimming and Live-Saving Art to All

Premier Hepburn And Others Endorse Program of Swimming Assoc.

WORK IS UNDERTAKEN

Deaths by Drowning Are More Numerous Than Car Fatalities

Hamilton, Ont., June 21 (CP)— Because of the large number of deaths from drowning in Ontario every summer and the fact statistics reveal during the summer 1934 there were more fatalities from this cause than there were from motor accidents during the entire year, a comprehensive plan to bring swimming and life-saving instructions to men, women and children throughout the Province will be immediately undertaken under the auspices of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, (Ontario Branch), announced today by Director of Hamilton, announced today.

Endorsation and hearty approval of the program contemplated has been received from Premier Mitchell Hepburn, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Public Highways, many influential members of the Government, and organizations including the Royal Life Saving Society, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, Ontario Safety League, Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and Canadian Red Cross.

BANDIT CHIEF GUILLOTINED

Andre Spada, Corsican, Convicted of Six Slayings

Bastia, Corsica, June 21 (AP)— Andre Spada, Corsican bandit chief and "last of the Brigands," died at dawn today on the guillotine.

The arms bound, the man convicted of at least six slayings, walked steadily and silently to the guillotine from a cart in the prison square.

Awakened from a sound sleep, the condemned bandit refused the traditional glass of rum and the rum before going to his death. Apparently that ceremony was lacked."

After Communion in his cell Spada had given his jailers a religious harangue, concluding, "what is for me—no whimper for I have been touched by Divine Grace and that is not given to everybody."

President Albert Lebrun had declined to consider a plea for mercy from the "tiger man."

Col. Lindbergh Invents Artificial Heart, Lungs

Age-Old Search Rewarded by Mechanical Genius Of Air-Ace in Collaboration with Nobel Scientist-Medical Men Call it Boon.

New York, June 21 (AP)—The mechanical genius of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, switched to science, inaugurates a new cycle in medical progress announced today. He has perfected a new mechanical heart and lungs at the Rockefeller Institute.

It enables surgeons to remove a whole organ, such as kidneys, heart, spleen or lungs, keep it alive indefinitely and study it at leisure, or keep it growing independently, in an artificial chamber.

Such a chamber is the mechanical side. He teamed with Dr. Alexis Carrel and with him signed the announcement made in science. Dr. Carrel won the Nobel Prize for achievements in keeping tissues alive outside the body. But this new work is in no sense the old Isaac culture.

Whole organs not only live but grow. They offer a new field of discovering the nature of disease and its cure, its immediate cause directly visible under the scientist's eye.

Twenty-six times, the announcement shows, the new Lindbergh pump has worked successfully. Spleen, liver, kidneys, thyroid, ovaries, and suprarenal glands were served, refreshed, studied. They were taken from animals an hour after they had bled to death.

Then, after, they had been artificially kept alive for days in the new pump solves this problem, being so mechanically perfect that no infection enters.

FARMERS REPORT NUDIST COLONY

Kitchener, Ont., June 21—(CP)— farmers in Mannheim district declare a nudist colony is in operation there. On several occasions farmers have been startled to see a nude man running down the woods. Whether this is a one man nudist colony or a prospective member in training for the colony reported to be forming at Galt could not be learned.

EIGHT STRIKERS WAIT INTERVIEW

It is Unlikely They Will Meet Premier Before Saturday

Ottawa, June 21 (CP)—Representatives of Western relief camp strikers, encamped in Regina, who arrived here today to present their demands to the Government for changes in operation of the camps were told by Premier Rt. Hon. Mackenzie R. B. Bennett and his Cabinet before tomorrow. This was indicated by the heavy routine of business on the Prime Minister's program.

The Prime Minister was occupied with the Grain Board Bill now in committee during the morning hours with prospect of Cabinet Council intervening before the afternoon of Commons met at 3 o'clock.

Meanwhile the strikers' delegation rested in their hotel where they were guests of the Government. Their spokesman, Arthur Evans, British Columbia organizer of the Workers' Unity League, stated the men sought an interview with Labor Members of Parliament before meeting the Government.

"As a labor man I would be pleased to meet the delegation," J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader said today. "I would meet them as a delegation of unemployed and not as representatives of any Communist organization that is generally understood," he added. Mr. Woodsworth stated he was opposed to any Communistic methods being used in organization of the strike.

"Of course there are some Communists among the men," Evans said. "But there are also C.C.F.'s, Liberals, Conservatives and all shades of political opinion, among the 3,000 men we left in Regina."

DOUBT ITALIANS MAY BOLT LEAGUE

London, June 21—(AP)—Government sources said today they regarded the Italo-Ethiopian crisis as a real danger Italy would bolt the League of Nations despite the alarming reports printed by admittedly authoritative portions of the Italian press.

Official sources stated they regarded these reports as "a bluff" and said they were not to be taken seriously in view of Premier Mussolini's reaffirmation at the Stresa conference of his loyalty to the League.

HARMONY, SPEED DOMINANT NOTES IN PARLIAMENT

Rapidly Winding up Business of The Final Session

Life of Radio Commission Extended by Vote of Members

OTTAWA, June 21.—(CP)—Although two contentious bills hover in the background the House of Commons is rapidly winding up the business of its final session. After passing the Dunning loaches to receive Bills and passing all the remaining main sessional estimates last night the commons today went into Committee Act amendments, the last of the Bills based on the report of the Price Spreads Commission still on the order paper.

Harmony and speed were the dominant notes in yesterday's sitting. Besides passing Bill after Bill without a dissenting voice an unusual demonstration of solidarity was provided in the one formal division.

In that the vote was 121 to one in favor of third reading of the Bill to establish a Dominion Trade and Industry Commission. The one dissenter was E. J. Young (Lib., Weyburn) constant champion of Free Trade and non-interference with business. Hon. H. H. Stevens, former Minister of Trade and Commerce, who criticized the Bill the day before was absent.

Try Alternative Vote

The two remaining contentious measures are the Bills to establish a Grain Board and to try out the alternative vote in Saskatchewan. The Grain Board Bill is still before a special committee and the Saskatchewan election law change will not be called today.

Continuance of public control of radio under the present Radio Commission until the end of next March became assured last night when the Bill to extend the life of the Radio Commission was passed. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett said although progress in establishing and improving radio facilities might have been slow the people had reason to be proud of their publicly-owned system. He expressed the hope the principle of public ownership and control would not be gradually facilities would be improved.

Mr. Bennett said he was not opposed to revision of the radical structure of the Canadian National Railways but believed in any revision the amount of public money invested in the system should be shown. He also said in view of discussion in behalf of Grand Trunk shareholders no change should be made at the present time.

Amendments Passed

Amendments to the Criminal Code providing severe penalties for employers, who work their employees longer than the 48 hour week, hours or pay less than legal minimum wages and for combinations in trade were passed with only formal opposition from Communists from the Liberal side. Earlier in the sitting these were the cause of heated debate.

The change in the Combines Investigation Act, giving this branch of Governmental activity under the proposed Trade and Industry Commission also went through without objection. It is the implementation of another proposal of the Price Spreads Commission.

At 12.40 a.m. today last night, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice for the House, said the Government was ready to call it a day but Liberal Leader Mackenzie King suggested a few sentences should be passed. If the remaining fifteen minutes of the Bill dealing with estimates were cleared up although there were only one or two ministers present.

The Joint Committee yesterday received reports of the Special Committees which studied methods of revising the British North America Act during the session. The Committee recommended an Inter-provincial Conference at as early a date as possible to discuss the matter, reported a number of suggestions made to it and refrained from suggesting any definite method of procedure.

City and District News

COURT DISMISSES CHARGE OF THEFT

George Semart of this city, who faced a charge of breaking, entering and theft in the Northern County police court, was acquitted without evidence being adduced against him when no one appeared to take the stand on his own behalf. It was definitely established by police in Belleville cleaning that Mr. Semart was in Belleville at the time he was alleged to have stolen a few cigarettes. City officials said well a number of citizens provided Mr. Semart with credentials.

PARTRIDGE BROWSE ON SIDE OF ROAD

Partridges are fairly plentiful in the northern part of the county it was stated today by a resident of that section, in many cases the bird appear so tame they show little hesitation to fly at the approach of humans and hover contentedly at the side of the roads. One theory is that many of them have been driven into this wooded district by fires throughout other sections of the north.

Rainy Weather Hard On Corn-Hunting Crows

A farmer in Sidney township was not to be disheartened by the rain yesterday. Said he to a newspaper man:

"The corn is just begining to show up, but the ground is so wet that the clay is so slippery that the crows cannot get a foothold to pull it out."

LOW AGGREGATE FOR BELLEVILLE TEAM

Six women members of the Belleville Golf Club were successful in winning the low aggregate at a field day sponsored by the Kingston Golf Club on Thursday afternoon—a like number of Belleville, Napanee took part. Miss Leavens of Picton was the low gross. The members of the Belleville team were: Mrs. W. Ponton, Mrs. O. H. Scott, Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Mrs. A. H. Ketchaven, Mrs. J. E. Calbar and Mrs. L. J. Train.

RATEPAYERS TO PROTEST PURCHASE

Discussion of any contemplated purchase by city council of the Waterfront Fire pumper, together with an suggested protest against such action, will feature a meeting of the Ratepayers' and Property Owners' Association being held in the city hall this evening. Other civic matters will also come under discussion at the general meeting open to all citizens.

PROGRESS MADE BY NEW BOARD

Member of the Bay of Quinte Tourist and Publicity Association recently formed are making considerable progress in their effort to secure recognition as a member of one of the better known tourist centres. Mr. Ross Gerry of this city active president of the new association is spending considerable time in executive work through the district. Last week he was in consultation with Mr. A. E. Desrenio secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

GROUND CAN HANDLE AMOUNT OF RAIN

Draining rain still seeping over the district today would not be welcomed by berry growers of the district, who point to the fact, that sufficient has fallen to have benefitted this week, but the downfall is having little effect other than good on the majority of crops, according to statements by agriculturists of the section. "Any harm that is being done by it is being overshadowed by the good it is having", stated Mr. Wm. Mitchell, district seed inspector, today.

PAID FOR FLOWER SEED GOT WEEDS

A Charles Street resident of this city is spading up his carefully laid out flower beds and garden this week, reflecting sorrowfully as he works, that there are still people in the world who live by the honesty and gullibility of others.

For where he planted "peonies and roses and asters after" buying low "guaranteed to grow" seeds pf highly lithographed packages from a suave, smiling salesman who called at his door some time ago, only straggling vines of some as yet unidentified growth, and rank and luxuriant weeds have appeared above the ground on his flower beds. And where he carefully sowed his real garden with what was believed to have been genuine seeds of other well known vegetables, still straggly weedy growths appear above the ground.

In spite of the efforts of himself, his neighbors and friends, the rank weeds from the salesman's seeds have not yet been classified, although some of it looks strangely like ominous mustard.

HEN'S EGGS HATCHED BY PARTRIDGE

Turkeys have been hatched and reared successfully by the common barnyard biddies, and even grouse have emerged from their eggs placed under a maternal commen hen, but the latest successful hatch was made on the farm of Mr. Sherman Prince Edward County when a partridge reversed the order of things and hatched four hen's eggs together with a chick of her own. When discovered, the partridge was heroically attempting to lead and mother the chickens as well as she had seen brood of partridge. It is believed that a stray hen used the nest as a place to deposit her own eggs.

TODAY LONGEST ONE OF YEAR

Daylight will linger longer on the North American continent this evening, there will be more time for residents of the north to enjoy their golf, tennis and other sports in the open. Went birds in the trees are due to send a trifle later than usual for today is officially registered as the longest day of the year. Today the sun is at its farthest northern remove from the equator, but after today the slow eclipse on its return trip south again will commence, the days growing correspondingly shorter until December 21st, the shortest day.

TWO CARS STOLEN ONE IS RECOVERED

Two locally owned automobiles were stolen in Belleville last evening, one of them being recovered in Toronto early today. Late yesterday afternoon Mr. R. W. Carroll, Charles St., parked his Buick sedan, license No. W-2007 on Pinnacle St., locking the ignition of the vehicle. Upon his return to the car about 6 o'clock he found it gone. A description of the automobile was communicated to Toronto police departments with, the result, that the vehicle was recovered abandoned on Wednesday early today.

About 4.30 p.m. last night Mr. Joseph Wolan, Catherine St., parked his Chevrolet in front of Bridge Street Church, while he entered that building for a few moments. Upon his return, however, the vehicle was missing, the theft of which has been received since. A description of this car was also communicated to outlying police departments last night.

TALL ARREARS MUST BE PAID

Committee of Council Allows Only Fifteen Days To Settle

Members of the city council spent many hours in committee at their regular meeting on Thursday night considering the estimates for the year with no decision arrived at. It is expected, that the estimates will be brought down at the regular meeting on Monday night and the rate struck for the year.

In order to clear up outstanding debts owing the city from the market, the following recommendation was submitted by Chairman Mr. Wm. Mitchell, property chairman T. H. Marshall: "That the market clerk be definitely instructed that all arrears for market stalls and tolls be collected in full forthwith and that unless payment within fifteen days from date, all arrears be collected, the privilege of the said allotted space is declared vacant and subject to reallotment."

That all the lands south of the McColl Frontenac service station on Front Street will be replaced with a new concrete sidewalk, two thirds of the cost to be borne by the McColl Frontenac Service Company, and one third to be paid for by the Public Works Department, according to a recommendation passed by the committee. The same ordered for the sidewalk in front of the British American Oil Company's station on the corner of Dundas and Dundas and Front Streets. This will be started on Tuesday next after the recommendations have been accepted by the council in regular session.

Schools "Let Out" On Friday, June 28th

Favorite swimming pools are beckoning, leafy glades in nearby woods and the call of the open is even yet more intriguing for the younger population of the city, but four blank days, depressing examination papers and plenty of hard work is still ahead of school children of Belleville before the summer holidays are called and school doors are thrown open next September.

Today, it was pointed out by the principals of the schools today, will start a period which includes the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

This week classes are being prepared for the examinations which will be held during the four parts of the coming week. In the majority of the schools promotion examinations will commence on Monday and will be concluded on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday undergo their examinations during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

POLICE COURT

Today's police court proceedings proved very interesting, only two minor cases being presented before Police Worship, Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. A local trucker pleaded guilty to a charge of displaying license plate on his truck not purchased for that particular vehicle. The minimum fine of ten dollars was paid.

Two local youths became entangled in a slight argument at Coley's Park recently with the result that one of them received a slap in the face. A charge of assault was laid by the recipient of the slaphand and the matter was aired in today's police court with the defendant being given a month's suspended sentence. The matter proved rather trivial.

During the court procedure Magistrate Butler brought before the authorities the fact, that large transport drivers are making a practice of parking their transports along the curve at what is generally termed as the Devil's Elbow on Highland Ave. "This practice endangers the lives of passing motorists as they pass directly on a sharp curve," pointed out His Worship. The matter will be thoroughly investigated by local authorities, it was intimated by police officials.

Fourteen translents slumbered peacefully in the cell block at the police station last night.

A belated session of police court was held at the Court House shortly before noon today when George English of this city pleaded guilty to a charge laid under the Excise Act. English was arrested by the R.C.M.P. and charged with having possession of mash suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor. After entering a plea of guilty the minimum sentence under the act was passed, one hundred dollars fine, plus costs. The fine was not paid. English being committed to the common jail for three months in default of payment. The case was investigated and presented by the R.C.M.P.

2nd Battalion Annual Re-Union For City Aug 31

The 2nd. Battalion, O.E.F., so well known in Eastern Ontario military circles, will hold its annual reunion in Belleville on Saturday, August 31st of this year, it was decided at a regular monthly meeting of the 2nd Battalion Club held in the Y.M.C.A. (Capt. D.) last evening at which time Col. L. T. McLaughlin, C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., the commanding officer of the battalion, was present and spoke at length on the coming reunion.

A full committee was named to look after the arrangements, which is expected to see a large gathering of ex-service men, many of whom are active service with the 2nd Battalion to convene locally on August 31st. Comrade W. G. Jack, D.C.M., M.M., with ben president of the local 2nd Battalion, occupied the chair for the evening and welcomed the speaker of the night. Other military notables throughout the district were also present and commented favourably upon the suggestion of holding the annual 2nd Battalion re-union in Belleville in 1935.

The reunion in Belleville will be followed by a memorial church service on September first, in St. Paul's Church, Bowmanville, where the battalion colors were deposited on January 30th, 1920, and which is the reunion in this city, and to be followed by a memorial church service in Bowmanville of the largest gatherings of the battalion and ex-service men, drawn in years is expected in Belleville next August.

A large delegation of members of the 2nd battalion and other ex-service men attended the regular monthly meeting at the Memorial Hall.

Terms Are Imposed For Setting Out Fires

Mr. Frederick Tweples and Mr. Stanley Delain, both of the Township fo Griffith appeared before Magistrate McGregor in Renfrew Police Court on June 19th and were convicted on charges of setting out eight fires in forests of the Township of Griffith.

They were sentenced to six months determinate and six months indeterminate in a reformatory.

Charges were laid following investigation by Provincial Forest officers and officers of the Ontario Forests Branch.

200 GARDEN PLOTS ARE CULTIVATED

A total of 208 garden plots scattered throughout the city, planted and tended by the city's workless are in excellent condition it was reported by relief officials of the local office following a check-up of the gardens recently completed. Although fewer gardens have been taken over by the unemployed this season, favorable growing conditions will result in the majority of owners harvesting sufficient vegetables to keep themselves and families during the greater part of the coming winter.

Obituary

JOHN FITZPATRICK

Following an illness of only two weeks duration, the death occurred at Chambers' Memorial Hospital, Smith's Falls, Ont., on Tuesday last of John Fitzpatrick native of Belleville who had highly esteemed resident of Smith's Falls for the past 25 years. Deceased had been in ill health for only a brief period and news of his passing occasions deep and lasting regret.

The late Mr. Fitzpatrick was born in Belleville, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzpatrick. He received his education in the Separate schools there and later took up the baking trade, going to Smith's Falls 26 years ago. Possessed of a kindly, chegerful disposition, he was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends and his sudden passing is much regretted.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Miss Rena Gordanley of Belleville, one daughter, Mrs. Jack Stilwell, of Smith's Falls and three sisters, Mrs. J. Black, Belleville; Mrs. Mary Shea, Tweed, and Mrs. Fred Durand, Chicago, Ill.

The funeral was held on Thursday morning from his late residence Maple Avenue, Smith's Falls, to St. Francis de Sales Church where Very Rev. J. T. Hasley chanted Requiem High Mass. Interment was in Hillcrest Cemetery, Smith's Falls. Numerous floral and spiritual tributes testified to the general esteem in which deceased was held.

How City Celebrated Queen's Golden Jubilee 48 Years Ago Today

Tuesday, June 21st, 1887, forty-eight years ago, was a gala day in the pupils assembled at their Belleville, the event being the respective schools and marched to celebration of the fiftieth anniver- the market square. At half past sary of the accession of Queen nine a procession was formed and Victoria to the throne of England, at ten o'clock the parade moved up The day had been eagerly looked Front Street to Metal Street (now forward to by the school children, Victoria Avenue), up Hotel Street who took a prominent part in the to Church Street, thence to Bridge proceedings. Street, up Bridge Street to George Street, thence to Queen Street, along Queen Street to Victoria Park at the northeast corner of William and Queen Streets.

The order of the procession was as follows: Chief Marshal, Union Jack, Cobdenites' Band, Public Schools, High School, Students at the Ontario Commercial College, Professors at the Ontario Commercial College, Professors at the D. and D. Institute, Students at Albert University, Professors at Albert University, the Board of Education, Sons of England, other representatives, Civic officials, the Mayor and Corporation, 15th Battalion, Argyll Light Infantry.

At the park a large grandstand had been erected for the school children and a platform for the speakers and prominent citizens. The chairman of the gathering was Mr. Wm. Johnson, Chairman of the Board of Education; the musical director was Professor H. Canfield, and the conductor of the Cobdenites' Band was Professor W. B. Biggs.

The proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. J. W. Burke, Rector of St. Thomas' Church, followed with the singing of a hymn. His Worship the Mayor, W. H. Biggar made an address after which was sung "Rule Britannia". The Rev. John Learoyd, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, followed with an address at the conclusion of which was sung the Jubilee Hymn, "O God the King of Heaven". Rev. Mr. Robertson, M.P., was the next speaker and his address was followed with the singing of "The Red, White and Blue." Shortly before noon the proceedings came to an end with the singing of "God Save the Queen." Promptly at noon there was the Fus-de-joie by the 15th Argyll Light Infantry.

In the afternoon running races and various sports were held at the park.

The event was in every way most enjoyable; the hundreds of school children with their waving small flags presented an inspiring scene, and under the direction of Prof. Canfield they sang remarkably well.

Following are the names of the officers in charge of the celebration: Executive committee, the Rev. J. W. Burke, chairman; the Rev. Mr. W. Maclean, Thos. Wills, Esq.; Irving Diamond, Esq.; Hugh Walker, Esq.; J. H. Simpson, Esq.; W. Jeffers Diamond, Esq. Carnival sing committee—W. R. Carmichael, Esq.; J. H. Simpson, Esq.; Fred H. Endeavour Leads Yankee Ere Mishaps Began

A strong wind and rough seas played a chain of mishaps to big yachts competing at Southern Beach, England, when the American schooner, Yankee, met her first test from British craft in their home waters. Yankee had to give up because of rough seas; Astra found it necessary to withdraw; Shamrock and Candida did not start, and Endeavour II was the only British boat to finish the day's misfortunes, T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, last year America's Cup challenger, was her mast and had to be towed into port. The accidental aerial photo shown was taken as Endeavour led Yankee through the rough seas before the chapter of accidents began. It is a view of yacht racing at its best.

West Huntingdon—The weather man has surely a joke on the crop who said this was going to be the driest summer in 35 years. The rain on Monday and Wednesday of this week has been of the heaviest amount in years, and while it was much needed the cold that has accompanied it is changing the farmers' program somewhat. A number have finished cutting their hay clover and alfalfa meadows this week, and now the problem arises. Will the clover become matured and large with the excessive rains. The corn is also making slow progress and those with strawberry plantations are finding it difficult to find an opportunity to pick the berries.

That portion of Front St. that has not been paved, received a coat of oil last week.

A large number of people attended the funeral of the late Mr. Alex Parger of Stirling on Thursday. Mr. Parger lived here all his life, but some until his retirement from the farm to Stirling a year ago. He was held in high esteem and his family have the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. John Moorcroft has been ill for the past week and was unable to attend to his farming duties.

Mrs. Endeavor S. Clark attended Mr. and Mrs. Moorcroft are numerous friends.

Members of the L.O.L. No. 788 and also the ladies representing the congregations of St. Andrew's and United Churches met at Kedge Room on Monday evening to complete the plans for the meeting they are expecting on the 12th day of July. A bee will be held this week to arrange Mr. Sherry Thompson's woods for the celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Bonter and Miss Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hall of Bayside and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott and family of Shannonville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Sarles.

Miss Mildred Adams of Thomasburg is renewing acquaintances here.

The college prayer meeting was held at Mr. Melville Dunnett's home on Thursday evening and was largely attended.

Mrs. Frank Ashley, Mrs. Geo. Cooke and Mrs. Geo. Fox attended a W.M.S. meeting at Zion's Hill on Wednesday.

Mr. Philip Carr attended County Council at Belleville last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis and Peter of Toronto spent a couple of days recently as guests of Mr. Sarah Parger.

Mr. and Mrs. Gen. Rupert and Russell of Arnon attended service at United Church on Sunday morning and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. Wilson, of Victoria Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hillman of Glen Ewart were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. Sarah Parger.

Miss Hilda Haggarty is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Samuel Forsythe of Consecon.

Friends here were sorry to hear of Mr. Forsythe's serious accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson of Belleville, and Mrs. Pryor Sherrold of Zion Hill were recent guests of Mr. Jas. A. Wilson of Mill St.

The Murray farm has been sold by Mr. Donnelly of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bray of Belleville were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Bray.

Mrs. Frank Cosby of Campbellford spent a few days as guest of her brother, Mrs. Sarah Parger.

Mrs. Samuel Dunnett, Mrs. Lester Sills, Mrs. Geo. Cooke, Mrs. R. Ashley and Mrs. John Wright attended the W. I. convention held in Stirling recently.

The Endeavors Class held their monthly meeting on Thursday evening at Mrs. A. J. Wilson's home in Stirling. The devotional period was conducted by one of the hymn and prayer by Mrs. Wilson. Recognize Demon was read and explained by Mr. Philip Carr.

Roll call was answered by 17 members by a letter of their own composing name of tree that corresponded to the first letter of their name. Readings were given by Mrs. Frank Ashley and Mrs. Thomas Elliott and Mr. Sandy McClelland. Solo was rendered by Mrs. W. Pitchett and Mrs. J. A. Wilson.

In the business period as Sec. and Mrs. Howard Truscott of Lonsdale (a former pastor) are invited as guests and a special feature of the program will be the baptizing of seven children.

BENNETT, RALSTON FIGURE IN CLASH

Special Committee of House Studies Grain Bill

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)—The special committee of the House studying the Grain Board Act ended today with a clash between Premier R. B. Bennett and Hon. J. L. Ralston (Lib. Shelburne-Yarmouth) on a motion to have the evidence printed.

The Prime Minister took the view the committee should proceed at once with hearing evidence, that the question of printing evidence was not within the terms of the reference from the House to the committee.

"I submit you are treating this matter too lightly," Col. Ralston replied. "The public is keenly interested in the proceedings of this committee as it appeals to the wheat situation."

The new Board would either continue the policies of John I. McFarland or it would not, Col. Ralston said. The committee should obtain information on that point. Mr. McFarland had taken over 70,000,000 bushels of wheat and this had grown to about 225,000,000. The committee should consider whether the policy which had brought this about was a wise one.

"Do you not think these observations should be made at the proper time and let us get on with the business of the committee?" Mr. Bennett asked. It had been agreed to hear certain witnesses today. They were present and should be heard now.

Col. Ralston objected; the question he had raised, he said, was "the business of the committee." He was prepared to let it stand but he protested against its being ruled out without discussion.

"I do not wish to indulge in hair-splitting," Mr. Bennett replied and the committee started hearing evidence.

RAWDON PARISH HOLDS GEEN CUP

Hastings Deanery Again Wins Attendance Trophy

Hastings Deanery has once more won the Geen Cup by virtue of largest percentage attendance at Rural Deanery School and Rawdon Parish on account of being chiefly responsible for this large increase have the honour of keeping the cup during the ensuing year. Rev. Canon Wright, rector, presented the cup to St. Mark's Church, Rawdon, which Sunday school on Sunday last and urged both schools to continue the good work and show a large increase during the coming year also.

St. Mark's Church was filled to capacity on Sunday evening when Canon W. G. Swayne preached to the members of the Orange Order from the surrounding district, Mr. Swayne's address was thoughtful and enlightening. During the offertory Mr. Baker and Miss Allen Hall accompanied by Mrs. (Rev) W. G. Swayne, organist.

On Thursday evening of last week a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Huff and "showered" their daughter Miss (now Mrs. Robbins) with many lovely presents. An address was read by Miss Eva Brown, expressing regret that Mr. and Mrs. Robbins will not be residing in the community, also the bride and groom both replied in a few well chosen words and thanks. A most enjoyable evening of many beautiful and useful gifts. Dancing was then indulged in and the ladies served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Caverley of Toronto were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Baker several days last week.

Miss Elspeth La Prad of Tacoma, Washington, arrived at Bonarlaw on Friday last, She will visit relatives and friends in this vicinity for several weeks.

Mrs. Isaac Brown met with a very painful accident on Friday evening of last week when she slipped and fell just outside her own door breaking her arm. An X-ray examination revealed that both bones of the arm were fractured.

On Saturday last the girls of St. Mark's Junior W. A. held a picnic at Charity Bridge and all report a wonderful time.

ZONE RALLY FOR CANADIAN LEGION

200 Veterans to Meet in This City on Wednesday

For the first time in history of the local organization, members of Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion of this city will be hosts on Wednesday, June 26th, to an approximate number of 200 veterans of Zone 16 of the Ontario Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion.

The zone from which legionnaires will assemble in this city on the largest convention yet held will be between Trenton on the west, Gananoque on the east, Picton on the south and Marmora, north. Full preparations have now been completed to ensure the last detail being in readiness for the visitors.

At two o'clock in the afternoon, members of the Legion will assemble at the Armouries where various degree teams from each branch of the Command will enter the contest in the initiation ceremonies. The winning team of this contest will be awarded a large silver cup which will be retained by them for one year. Following this, and at five o'clock in the afternoon, regular business of the Command will be transacted at a meeting also held in the Armouries. At this meeting a zone representative for the current year will be elected.

The day, most memorable in the annals of the local Branch, will be concluded by a banquet which will be served in Memorial Hall, open to all ex-service men, whether Legionnaires or not. Music, special features and addresses, chief of which will be one from the president of the Ontario Command, will be given. Some fifty members of the local branch who will be assisted by ladies of the Ladies' Auxiliary Corps and members of the local Army and Navy Veterans' Association.

CALENDAR REFORM

The Rational Calendar Association of Canada, whose headquarters are in Toronto, believes that less than four years from now the world will see the adoption by the world of a simplified calendar. The change may take place Jan. 1, 1933. These changes are now at the threshold of legislation, says "Canada and the Calendar", a booklet which the association has published to explain its attitude in the movement for a revised calendar. It says, "Our calendar is patently not an efficient basis for calculations of any kind. The development of industry, mechanization and modern conditions of every type have made comparative statistics invaluable. In computing these we are faced with unequal quarters, half years, number of weeks and the impossibility of comparing any day of 1935 with the same day in 1934 or 1936."

The booklet points out how a month may have four or five Sundays, Easter date fluctuates as do many religious festivals, working days in a month vary greatly, and important bills in fact there are either fifty-two or fifty-three paydays in a year.

The Rational Calendar Association of Canada proposes a thirteen month reform, approves the Twelve Month Equal Quarter Calendar.

Today we are using the Julian Calendar as set by Julius Cæsar except as modified when Augustus took one day from February to make the month August, named after him, as long as his uncle's, the month of Julius, namely 31 days. Under the Gregorian calendar time was advanced owing to the 11-minute variation under the Julian system.

The calendar is man-made, the hours coming from Babylon, the months from Egypt and the adjusted months from Rome with the leap year's extra day. The seven day week is of Jewish origin, the names of the days originally Greek being subjected to Teutonic influences.

This world calendar as proposed consists of an equal number of days in each quarter, namely 91, the first month of each quarter being 31 days in length and the others thirty days. This makes an equal number of weeks in each quarter, and the same number of days in the week and the same number of week days in every month, the months with 31 days having in every case five Sundays. One day has to be added at the close of the year as Year End Day and then Leap Year Day coming once in four years would be placed between the 28th and 29th June instead of in February.

It must be seen by this that January, April, July and October have 31 days each, and the rest thirty days.

Another calendar has been proposed, the Thirteen-Month Calendar by which every month would have four weeks only. The Thirteen-Month Calendar would be fixed, but this is a radical departure from the present system, it would have a Year End Day.

Experts have offered all kinds of proposals to standardize the year, a ten-month year, twenty-month year, a year without months; weeks from five to ten days and thirteen-month years, but these altogether, but the Twelve-Month and the Thirteen-Month plans are most seriously considered.

The Rational Calendar Association points out the merits of the Twelve Month Equal Quarter scheme as: It leaves the calendar much as it is today in appearance and operation. Seven small adjustments of days give equal quarters of 91 days conforming to the natural seasons. The half year is equally divided. Every month has the same number of week days on each day, year after year falls on the same date. Sunday begins every week. Christmas remains on Monday making possible a long week-end festival. Easter is stabilized according to general church approval, says the booklet, on April 8th. "Balanced in structure and perpetual in form, the Twelve Month Equal Quarter Calendar is an economic saving, neither adding expense nor increasing labor," says the booklet.

Of the Thirteen-Month Calendar, it is said it disregards the seasons of nature on which agriculture depends, and is purely for commercial purposes. Instead of 12 stock-takings it means 13. It also means 13 collections, 13 rent days, quarterly, and half-yearly payments of principal, dividends and interest would be irregular as 13 permits no division by quarters, and everything that is now done 12 times would be done thirteen times. There would be 13 "Fridays the thirteenths" every year. Dominion Day would fall on July 14th. May 24 would become June 4th under the thirteen-month rule and Christmas Day would become a single mid-week Wednesday holiday.

Look upon the rainbow and praise him that made it. Very beautiful it is in the brightness thereof; it compasseth the heavens about with a glorious circle, and the hands of the Most High have bended it.—Ecclesiasticus.

SOME BOYS, like Peter Pan, never grow up, and this fact is exemplified by the interest taken in the return of the circus by kids from six to sixty, seventy, eighty and over. Before the earthquake hit Wall Street and threw a chill into so many thousand embryo financiers who were certain that whatever went up would never go down, the circus was a regular visitor every year, a part of home life, looked forward to with pleasurable excitement by the young folks who were certain that Daddy would take them to see the sights—not that Daddy cared a durn about the circus, not he, but he wouldn't let Junior miss it, no sir. Catch Daddy missing it even if Junior had the measles. When you see men of seventy-five and over, big kids, eagerly examining the circus posters and discussing circuses they have seen from Barnum and Jumbo, Adam Forepaugh and his whitewashed elephant, and all the lesser lights of the circus kingdom since, it is realized that the circus is an established institution in the minds of the many—and the Old Timers will even tell you that the old one-ring circus gave more satisfying entertainment than the three to five rings and platforms of today, and when you hear Grandpap tell of his experience trying to ride the trick donkey in the little old circus of his youth you are inclined to agree with him that the real old circus thrills are not possible in the present day world which has been treated to so many wonders that it is bored to a mental condition which considers that there is nothing new under the sun and less under the moon. However, Grandpap says that the best shows he ever see were the ones held in the barn after the visit of the circus,—ten pins to one cent admission—gosh, didn't we have fun?

FATHERS WHO WERE REMEMBERED

Father's Day are asked to report to this column. The writer scored a pair of fine, comfortable leather house slippers, and naturally considers that Father's Day is a success. However, not having heard any general sounds of rejoicing from the fathers of the nation we were just wondering if it were worth while to continue the celebration. If fathers are not appreciated enough to have one day in the year set apart for their glorification then it is best to call a halt and consider the situation. We fathers must stand together—together we stand or singly we fall, like the old gas street lamp quartette wrestling with "Sweet Adeline."

CHAPTER NINE

"My, but you're glum!" said Sally next day as they were eating their noonday lunch in one of the stalls at the Owl Drug Store. "Cheer up dearie; nothing can be so bad as your face would make one think. What's the matter? What did that policeman say? Make you so sore? Tell me!"

"It isn't so much what he said; it's what he left unsaid that worries me," said Judith. "I'll try and forget it."

"My, you're mysterious!" Sally pouted, and melting ice cream drivelled from the end of her poised spoon. "Honest, if I had a mystery I'd tell you all about it. Aren't you ever going to confide in me any more, Judith?"

Judith smiled wearily.

"I'm sorry, Sally. I can't—not just now."

"Well, don't grieve over it. You're not on a diet, are you? You haven't touched your lettuce sandwich."

"I'm not hungry," said Judith pushing the plate aside. "If you're through, Sally, let's go."

"Why—and where?" Sally protested. She glanced at her wrist watch. "Gee, Judge it's only a quarter to one. D'you think I'm going back to work before one o'clock? Not for Stokes, Anderson & Stokes, you may be sure. Those birds get enough out of little Sally from 9 till 12 and one to five without cutting off ten minutes from her lunch hour. I'm going to sit here and rest and you'd better, too. You're nervous. I declare things are even getting on my nerves. You know I had a date with Ben last night—his night off—and he was almost as glum as you are. What is the matter? I tried to pump him, but—let once in my life I failed. He was as dumb as an oyster, and whenever I said anything about you or Mr. Spencer, or 'The Red Tiger,' he tried to laugh it off and change the subject. Look here, Judie, there is something phoney about all this. You can't fool me. How come the Sun didn't make a big spread over all that shooting—and with Bobbie right on the scene? I asked him that and he said they had printed facts, and the two men shot were just common crooks and nobody cared much, and the police had asked the Sun not to make a lot of fuss about it, because it might interfere with their investigation. And do you know what I told Bobbie when he said that? I just said, 'Applesauce!' He can't pull the wool over my eyes. There's something in the wind, and you and Bobbie know all about it and you won't tell me, and I'm just dying to know, and I wouldn't breathe a word about it to a soul, but neither of you trusts me, and I think it's a shame! I do, Judith, there's Mr. Spencer! He's looking for somebody. It's Judie's coming this way. Please introduce me, Judie, like a good girl!"

The last part of Sally's long speech was in a whisper, emphasized by a surreptitious squeeze of Judith's hand. Randall Spencer had indeed risen and was approaching. To Judith's quick, appraising look he seemed less debonair and haunty than usual. She thought she caught a worried look in his eyes and the suspicion of a frown on his face. She strove to hide her own traces of care and to smile as he came to them. She did not know whether the effort was successful or not.

"I'm glad I found you," were his first words as he held her hand for a fraction of a minute. "They told me at the office that you might be lunching here. I'd like to talk with you for five or ten minutes."

Mindful of Sally's plea, Judith said:

"My roommate, Miss Foster, Mr. Spencer."

Sally beamed, and Spencer, for all his worry—if he was worried—was not forgetting his gallantry. He bowed and pressed Sally's little hand. "A great delight."

"I'm more than glad to meet any friend of Judith's," he said gravely.

Sally gave an ostentatious glance at her wrist watch.

"About time for the afternoon grind," she said. "But don't you hurry, Judith. I'll tell him you're unavoidably detained if the old gentleman asks for you. Mr. Hezekiah Stokes won't have anybody take his dictation but Judith, if she is available," Sally explained to Spencer. "Awfully glad to have met you, Mr. Spencer." And she was off, generously if regretfully. Spencer took the chair she had vacated, smiling after the departing girl as if he were fortunate now, momentarily at least, forgotten.

"Sue Harley's girl, isn't she? I've seen them together. She's a good fellow, and she seems right nice. What does she think of your recent adventures?"

"I haven't told her much," said Judith, a little vexed for some reason which she could not define. "Of course she asks a lot of questions."

Spencer grinned.

"Aren't you rather cruel not to gratify her curiosity?"

He noticed a slight quiver of her lip and hastening to add "Forgive me. I can appreciate your reticence.

And Bob has acted like a brick. It must have been tough for [illegible] reporter to have forgone the pleasure of realistic writing. As it was, the Sun only published a short story of the shooting. Of course, I know Bob would suppress any reference to your unfortunate part in the night's adventures, but I was [illegible] his evening paper would get a hold of it. They didn't. Bob must have got McMahon to keep mum. By the way, what did McMahon want of you?"

Judith hesitated to answer. She rather resented this catechism, so obviously [illegible] to [illegible] which would appear casual to her. McMahon's warning: "Watch your step. Don't trust anybody or, for [illegible] hours' acquaintance," rang through her head. McMahon, had suddenly come to distrust Randall Spencer. And now Spencer's obvious effort to find out what McMahon had said to her without appearing to be particularly interested was a severe strain on her own conviction that McMahon's suspicions were groundless.

Spencer, watching her closely, was instantly aware that some mental conflict was wrecking her.

"Don't tell me if you don't want to," he said quietly. "I think I can guess. Shall I tell you?"

Judith did not reply.

"All right, I will. He warned you not to trust me, didn't he?"

Judith nodded her head. She was afraid her eyes were going to fill with tears.

"And you're going to take his advice, aren't you?" His voice was low and [illegible]

"I don't know what to think," she said, desperately.

"I know," he said. His lips quivered slightly and then was firm again. "I'm not asking you to trust me until—until certain things are cleared up. I'm only asking you to reserve final judgment, Judith. I want your opinion more than you have any idea of. Am I asking too much?"

"No," she said tremulously. "Captain McMahon did not accuse you of anything. He only seemed to—to doubt."

"I know." Spencer smiled slightly. "The accusations will come later," he added grimly. "Let me see," she demanded, impulsively. "I don't like [illegible] suspicion and uncertainty. I want to trust you!"

"I wish I could tell you what it's all about, but I can't just now, Judith. I'm afraid your good opinion, if I am to be fortunate enough to possess it, is going to be terribly shaken before things are cleared up. But they will be cleared in the end, and I want you—not to trust me, as I said before, but to reserve judgment until later. How much later I don't know." He rose from the table and took her hand again. "And, Judith, she seems a dear. Good-bye. I won't try to see you. It is better that I should not."

She felt the warm pressure of his hand on hers long after he had gone. She sat at the table and stared ahead, nonplussed, frightened. Why? She asked herself together and walked wearily back to the tall building that housed the law firm of Stokes, Anderson & Stokes.

"Gee—glum yet, after all that talk with your sweetie?" Sally whispered. "He's a perfect darling, Judith. If Bobbie wasn't such a good old thing, for all his red-headed stubbornness, you'd have a rival for Bobbie's affections."

Judith smiled wanly. Her bell rang.

"For heaven's sake, go and see what's ailing the old man!" exclaimed Sally. "He's been few minutes ago and I went in and looked at the mail preparatory to his [illegible] me. I want Miss Baker was all he said. Where is she? Why does not she come?"

Judith hurried to answer the summons, striving to compose herself as she walked toward Hezekiah Stokes' private office.

The old man looked up as she entered almost pitifully. It seemed to Judith. It was as though a dark cloud passed from his face as [illegible] he saw that it was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

HOWARD GORSLINE DEMORESTVILLE BEST JR. JUDGE

Holstein Clubs For Quinte District Held Field Day

BETTER HERDS, PLEA

John Black, P. E. County Wins Award Best Senior Judge

Twenty seven boys were entered and participated in the Junior section of the Holstein Clubs of the Bay of Quinte District at their annual field day and judging competition at the Belleville Fair Grounds yesterday. Judging of prize Holstein cows and bulls by the junior and senior members and also by experts from the Ontario Government constituted the major part of the day's activities, that were terminated by speeches by expert Holstein cattlespeakers from various parts of the province and also from the Provincial Government. H. Hobbs, of Bloomfield and a director on the Ontario Holstein Breeder's Association officially welcomed all present.

In the junior judging class Howard Gorsline of Demorestville was declared the champion junior judge of the day, while W. O. Cairl's Holstein calf was placed the best on the grounds with the year old bull, entered by S. S. Dodds, of Picton taking its class for the major prize in the junior class. One of the paramount reasons for interesting the junior members in a create better understanding of good Holsteins among farmers, government officials and breeders generally. The keen attraction of the day proved the junior cattle judging with 130 boys being the contestants for a series of points that could be attained. The placings in this judging followed: Howard Gorsline, Demorestville, 141 points; James Alexander, Milford, 140; Roger Thomas, Bloomfield, 137; Jack MacFarlane, Odessa, 136; Harold Mosley, Belleville, 135; Gordon Cottell, Bath, 130; Ross Sirrett, Brighton; and Walker Bird, Odessa. The boys were asked to judge four Holstein cows and an equal number of Holsteins.

In the senior or adult class the judging contest was with six Holstein cows and resulted in John Black, Prince Edward County, first; Wm. Hollinger, Northumberland County, second and T. H. Palmer, Prince Edward, third place. Attendance then present to give expert advice to local breeders were such men as John Bain, premier Holstein breeder from Chipawa, George Clendenan, secretary of the Canadian Holstein Breeders' Association and numerous other officials who were also agreeably surprised with the amount of enthusiasm and the class of stock being shown in the Quinte area. A demonstration of "hoof trimming" was given by Dr. C. K. Goodwin of Picton during which a large bull was thrown and properly trimmed about his hoofs before a large gathering of interested Holstein breeders, assisted by two experts, that many details in the breeding of better Holstein cattle were discussed. Breeders were invited to ask questions as Mr. Holtby and Mr. McPhail gave their various talks on breeding, the care of the young calf and other items of interest to the Holstein breeders. These two experts also judged the cattle in the contest.

Prize Winners

The number one year old bull on the grounds to be entered by a junior went to R. S. Dodds of Picton the second bull was entered by Murray Reynolds of Foxboro, third by Donald Spencer and Bruce Spencer of Redneersville and the fourth by Ames Hudgins of Picton. The winning Holstein cow of the day was entered by Mr. W. O. Cairl of Bloomfield and is reported to give in the neighborhood of 60 pounds of milk per day.

Following the contests the local breeders were asked to interview the visitors on the grounds in relationship to any difficulties that confronted them in their endeavors to raise a better class of Holstein cattle. Mr. McPhail of the Provincial Government commented on the splendid showing made by the junior members of the day and urged all breeders to raise a better standard of cattle. "There is a great demand for tested cattle today and the better bred you can raise, the better prices on the open market you can demand," stated Mr. McPhail. Other officials of the local county associations assisted in making the day a success. Sports and refreshments followed the regular programme.

AIRPORT PLANE FORCED TO LAND

Engine Trouble Forces Pilot to Land on Bay Shoreline

Trenton, June 21.— (Special)— Plenty of excitement was given Trenton citizens yesterday afternoon, when the news spread that a plane from the Royal Canadian Air Force had fallen into the bay. It was only a forced landing, that had it happened on the land, nothing would have been heard of it At Allen, piloted by Flight-Lieut. W. VanVleit and carrying L.A.C. F. Wilkinson as observer, landed in the waters of the Bay of Quinte about three o'clock yesterday afternoon after engine failure. Soon after the plane took off, headed west from the field, engine trouble developed and with no fields available, and unable to turn back, the pilot was forced down in the water some miles west of Trenton near the mouth of Dead Creek. Neither of the occupants were injured.

Gerald E. Howe, who lives on the Carrying Place road, saw the plane land in the water about a hundred yards off shore and he immediately set out in his boat to rescue. He brought Flight-Lieut. VanVleit to shore and by that time hundreds of people were hurrying out the Carrying Place road to see the accident. Hearing of the forced landing at the airport, the ambulance and the fire engine were dispatching to the scene but on their arrival the pilot was strolling along the shore waiting. Mr. Howe's boat took part in the salvage crew of the crippled plane, while a speedy outboard raced to the scene. Lieut. McKee of the R.C.A.F. soon arrived with Flight-Lieut. Elliott. L.A.C. Wilkinson was taken ashore and salvage operations were begun.

This was the first accident of this kind since the formation of the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton.

Canada 5—6—L.A.F. 6

The Canada Bud softball squad continued their unbeaten string of victories this night when they defeated the boys from the R.C.A.F. by a score of 6-5. Ken Dunning, veteran hurler on the mound for the beer boys, was the chief tormentor of the flyers in the seven inning contest. Tough started for the airmen but was relieved in the third in favour of Broadbent. Bill Miller, catcher for the Canada nine turned out the only homer of the game in the first with two runners on board. Phil Wilkinson, who earlier in the day was in a plane forced down in the bay, was at the keyside catch for the flyers.

Garden Party At Nurses Home

The Nurses' Alumnae of Belleville General Hospital entertained at a Garden Party yesterday to mark the fifty-first anniversary of the building of the Hospital. In spite of the unpleasant weather, many visitors graced the delightful event's function. The lawn of the Thomas Ritchie Memorial Home for Nurses was an ideal spot for the party, with the many beautiful trees in flowers and its view of the Bay. Colored pennants, flags and lights were strung about the grounds and with gay dress of the guests made an attractive scene. During the evening, the Salvation Army Band provided an excellent musical interlude. The guests were welcomed by the nurses and by Mrs. R. S. Bell, president of the Women's Christian Association, and a member of the Association when the Hospital was built. Mrs. W. C. Mikel, past president, also assisted.

Tickets were sold on a quilt beautifully worked by Mrs. Arnold Chase of Campbellford, an eighty-four-year-old needlewoman. The pattern was the "Dresden plate" and was very attractive. The tickets were sold by Miss Yeomans and the lucky winner was Miss Amy McPherson. Mrs. Dowsett was in charge of the tickets on a cake in which a valuable article was hidden. The guessing correctly which article the cake contained was the winner. This was Mrs. Lewis Wilson of Trenton, and the article was a silver napkin ring donated by Miss Collier.

Those who assisted on the various committees were: Refreshments—Misses Fayer, Soutey, Allen, Kershman, R. Fitzgerald, Mackey. Tea: Publicity—Miss Kershman, Novelty—Misses Collier, Windsor, Kershman, R. Fitzgerald, Fortune. Telling—Miss H. Fitzgerald; Miss Wade. Treasurer—Miss Sine; Decoration—Miss R. "Naughty Marietta"
Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy Star in Victor Herbert's Operetta

Drama, romance, thrills, and the gorgeous music of Victor Herbert's greatest operetta are blended in "Naughty Marietta", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular romance of Creole days in New Orleans, which brings to the screen Jeanette MacDonald, glamorous heroine of "The Merry Widow" and Nelson Eddy, famous American singer, in his first screen appearance.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke, of "The Thin Man" fame, it tells a graphic story of the settlement of New Orleans by the French in the days of Louis XV and of the love of a disguised princess, seeking escape from a marriage of state, and an English officer.

Perils And Adventure

The new photoplay is based on the Victor Herbert operetta in which Emma Trentini and Orville Harrold first starred on the stage. The dramatic side of the adventure, thrills and perils of the period is stressed as a thundering background for the glamorous music.

Such song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", "I'm Falling In Love with Someone," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "Italian Street Song" and all the original music of the operetta is retained with new lyrics by Gus Kahn and Italian song team of Donaldson and Kahn.

Interest in a large cast in support of Miss MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are Frank Morgan as Governor D'Annard, Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Charles Laughton) as Madame Annard, Douglas Dumbrille as Joseph Cawthorne, Cecilia Parker as Governor's darling sister in "The Painted Veil", Walter Kingsford, Cecil Cunningham, Akim Tamiroff, Harold Huber and Edward Brophy.

Among the dramatic highlights are the flight from Paris, the battle with the pirates at sea, the capture of the Cassquite by the pirates, the running through the everglades, the routing of the pirates, the New Orleans gypsy market where the girls are sold in marriage, the sensational "confession" of the princess, and the disillusionment of her officer lover.

The Dramatic Punches

Other dramatic punches are the princess' secret identity, which she unmasks at the king dome ball-room with Natchez Indians, the Mardi Gras show girls, etc., finally, the flight of the lovers from the king's army on the French coast.

An unusual detail is the bevy of forty Cassquite Cibla, selected from among the most beautiful of the younger players of Hollywood. Quaint and romantic costumes of old New Orleans and other lavish details are interspersed with comedy relief through which the central thread of romance runs.

Short Subject Treats

A selected program of junior features will embellish on the same program including Popeye, in "Be kind to Animals", and the screen's newest, Bella Artist Town, revealing pictorially the latest important events garnered the world over. Rex, King of Wild Horses and Rin-Tin Jr., the screen's wonder dog are featured in the daring adventure story, "Law of the Wild" to be exhibited at the Belle matinee performance.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Black Fury"
Daring Drama Exalted Four Stars by Liberty, Packed With Action

"Black Fury", heralded as the one picture Paul Muni has made which is comparable to his notable success in "I'm a Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

Based on the story "Jan Volanski," by Judge M. A. Musmanno, and the play "Bohunk," by Harry R. Irving, "Black Fury" brings realism to the screen as it outlines the home life, the battles, the sorrows and joys, the hope and despair of those men and women whose lives are devoted to bringing forth fuel from the earth.

Screened to a large part underground in the interior of one of Western Pennsylvania's greatest coal mines "Black Fury" shows with startling fidelity, the dangers and hazards encountered hourly by those intrepid men to whom death is a constant companion.

Muni has the role of Joe Radek, a burly Slav miner who has arranged to buy a farm on which he expects to live with Anna, a neighbor's daughter. Anna, the role portrayed by Karen Morley, runs away with a coal mine policeman with whom she has been having a affair, and Joe, grief-stricken and embittered, falls easy prey to the machinations of a group of thugs who foment a strike in order to get the job of managing it.

Swayed by the agitators, the miners rise until the operators are forced to employ guards and evict the strikers from the town and their homes. Throughout a bitter cold winter these hundreds of men, women and children exist in makeshift huts, almost starving, and bitterly hating Joe, whom they blame for their troubles.

Anna returns to Joe after he has been severely injured in a fight, and helps him grow brave in the company's dynamite storage house, and load a hand car with explosives, which he uses to barricade the mine until his demands are met.

"Black Fury" is said to be a picture the magnitude of which cannot be described in type and which must be seen to be understood.

The balance of the programme includes a Buster Keaton comedy, "Heyseed Romance", an amusing cartoon "Slow But Sure" and the Capitol News showing up-to-date events of interest.

Complete shows 2.30; 7.00; 9.10.

The Figure Men Admire

Slim and Active through a Daily Dose of Kruschen Salts

It is often said that fat girls must take the "leavings" when it comes to choosing sweethearts. That may be an exaggeration; but certain it is that most men, in this year of grace 1935, do prefer a slender, winsome girl. After all, can you blame them?

Fortunately, there is a simple and a safe recipe which assists towards that much-desired slim and attractive figure. The recipe is:—Every morning in a cup of hot water dissolve Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c, and 75c, a bottle.

Kruschen blend of various mineral salts which help the internal organs to function properly, and to throw off regularly harmful poisons and waste matter. Kruschen actually builds up health and energy—it makes you more active—and with the increased activity there comes a wonderful improvement in your figure.

McManus Helps To Recover Body

Huntsville, Ont., June 21 (CP)—The body of Thomas H. Smallman of Toronto, was recovered today from Hollow Lake near the spot where he drowned Sunday.

Smallman, 28-year-old son of J. E. Smallman, noted London horseman, was with his wife, Danny McManus and Miss Dorothy Cluff, all of Toronto, when their outboard motor boat capsized in Hollow Lake, five miles north of Dorset.

The cold waters of the Muskoka district lake prevented too much for Smallman and he drowned when he was forced to relinquish his hold on the side of the boat. The other members of the party managed to reach shore.

The body of Smallman was found by the Superintendent Hilliard Laing of the Toronto Life-Saving Service assisted by Danny McManus. The body was taken to Holland Landing where it will be sent to Toronto.

FATHER, SON TO DIE ON GALLOWS

Barring unexpected commutation, Frank Temple, 53, LEFT, and his son, Fred, 31, will die on the gallows in St. Thomas, Ont., for the slaying of Policeman Colin McGregor, on June 27. According to authorities the aged man shot the officer while resisting arrest on a minor charge and the son helped his father disarm one of the policemen during the gun battle. Both men find consolation in religion as they await their doom in cells,—indicated by arrows in the Eight-county jail at St. Thomas, shown below.

Witness Says Carried Away By Optimism

Toronto, June 20 (CP)—Declaring "optimism was electric" in 1932 when Manufacturers Finance Corporation was formed, Senator J. A. McDonald today told the inquiry into the defunct organization "I'm free to admit I was carried away with the spirit of the times."

Testifying at Commissioner John M. Godfrey's inquiry into the defunct concern, the Senator sketched the steps leading from his position as a piano retailer in the Maritimes to his association with the Finance Corporation.

Senator McDonald followed W. M. Hardy of Windsor, President of Hardy-Lusby Piano Company, who testified Manufacturers Finance sent out men to his territory to institute a campaign for raising renewal notes on instruments sold by the company.

Hardy made the statement to Salter Hayden, Assistant Commissioner, and counsel interested in contention during cross examination during cross examination by Peter White of Toronto, Counsel for Senator J. A. McDonald.

C. F. Ellard, Assistant Secretary of the Corptration, said in reply to question by Mr. White he did not know of this although J. R. McDonald, son of the Senator had visited the Hardy-Lusby stores.

4 KILLED IN WRECK

Humboldt, Sask., June 21—(CP)—Four persons were killed today as result of their automobile colliding with a Canadian National Railways passenger train on a level crossing in Humboldt, 125 miles north of here.

T. H. Tegenkamp, 55, Bruno garageman, and Mrs. Eleanor Bird, Bruno, were killed instantly and Tegenkamp's 12-year-old daughter Annie died from injuries received.

EMANCIPATOR

Miss. Zonra Nokray (ABOVE) is the first woman of Persia to not only discard the veil, but to travel unchaperoned on the highways of the world. She is remarkable in many ways and is working towards the complete emancipation of women in her native land. She says that she was a grown woman before she ever saw a man with the exception of her father and brothers.

Washington, June 21 (CP) — Little Mrs. M. B. Hall wants it known she isn't afraid of six-foot-three Senator Connally (D-Tex) and doesn't like his right to keep her sen. Rush (D-W Va) out of the Senate.

After listening to Connally say that Hall should be denied a seat as being too young, Mrs. Hall, a country school teacher before her marriage, said:

"I fell as though I could have come down there and wrung his neck."

Look Out! Here Comes Helen Again!

HELEN JACOBS

HELEN WILLS MOODY

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Helen (Wills Moody is in England tuning up for a come-back at Wimbledon in the English women's singles, beginning June 17 and it ought to be quite a show.

More than that, it will be Helen's effort to prove to the world that her default to Helen Jacobs two years ago when she walked from the court trailing sobs in gamne really was the result of inability to carry on because of a back injury rather than unwillingness to take a backet at the hands of her keenest rival.

Comeback at 39

The world will be watching when the two Helens come together again. Many who were skeptical of Mrs. Moody's physical incapacity still ask the question, "Can she take it?" Others will want to know whether or not the player who came east 12 years ago as a girl in pigtails to dominate women's tennis for a decade can come back at 39.

Experts who have watched closely Mrs. Moody's play in the last few weeks—in California and just before she sailed from New York and now in England where she has been going some guns—think Helen Jacobs is in for lots of trouble. Both Wimbledon and in August at Forest Hills.

Miss Jacobs is out to prove that she has become a better tennis player than Mrs. Moody, and that she can continue as queen of women tennis in America, a reign she started in 1933 in a tournament in which Mrs. Moody did not compete.

The two Helens have met twice in Wimbledon's finals, and each time Miss Jacobs was put to rout. The first bout was in 1928 when Mrs. Moody won 6-1 and 6-2. Three years later the score was 6-3 and 6-1.

Suzanne and Mella

Another victory for Mrs. Moody at Wimbledon would be her seventh conquest, which would shade the record of Suzanne Lenglen by one year. Suzanne ruled the British courts six years, too, from 1919 to 1925. Helen has won the United States championship seven times, since her first victory in 1923.

Only one woman has a better record. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, eight times winner, and this year Helen can tie that.

Certainly her showing to date in the few tournaments in which she has appeared, indicate that Queen Helen has again made up her mind to ascend the throne. Her entry will give the Wimbledon matches an added note—particularly if and when she meets her arch-enemy, the other Helen.

DIZZY COULDN'T BEAT THE PONIES

All the "bearing down" that Dizzy baseball duty and arguments with Degar did not help when he faced Frankie Frisch. He was tried to beat the ponies at Salem,shut out at the mutuel payoff window, when he took a day off from down. Mrs. Dean is seen with him.

COL. EATON BURIED

Toronto, June 20—(CP)—Colonel William Fletcher Eaton was buried from his Carlyle home today at a simple service attended by members of the family, associates and close friends.

Colonel Eaton, in his 56th year when he died Tuesday, was manager of the Hamilton factory of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., and the last surviving son of the late Timothy Eaton.

Interment took place in the family mausoleum, Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Quick Relief for Women

Women need not endure periodic pains and headaches. They can spare themselves this suffering by taking ZUTOO TABLETS. Mrs. Allen Wright, of Fulford, who was relieved in 30 minutes of severe pain and headache, wrote saying: "Every woman in the land should know about ZUTOO TABLETS and what they will do." Just try the tablets and know for yourself how quickly they stop the pain.

HILCHER THROWS 2 HIT CONTEST

Toronto Leafs Earn a Shutout Over Senators

(By the Associated Press)

Barring something on the order of a complete debacle or storm, Walter Hilcher of the fourth-place Toronto Leafs appears destined to win the pitching palm in the International League this season.

The blonde right-hander, who was just a little better than so-so among the more active hurlers in the 1934 campaign with a finishing average of .542 fashioned from 13 victories and 11 defeats, today stands out as the League's leading pitcher from the standpoint of consistency and effectiveness.

Actually, however, the honor based on percentages points belongs to Ted Kleinhans of Newark, whose six wins and one defeat to date give him an average of .57, but Hilcher is only eight percentage points behind with 11 triumphs in 13 starts.

Hilcher added to his impressive record last night at the expense of Albany Senators. He set them down with two hits as the Leafs registered a nine run shutout. All the Toronto gathered ten hits from the offerings of Beryl Richmond and Mark Filley, a pair of Senator pitchers.

Orioles Creep Up

Baltimore Orioles defeated the Newark Bears 4-0 and crept to within a half game of the League-leading Buffalo Bisons, whose game with Rochester Red Wings was rained out. Fred Schmidt-Blake held the Bears to seven harmless hits. Three Newark twirlers did the same between them but the difference was Irvine Jeffries and Woody Abernathy accounted for three home runs for Baltimore, Jeffries getting two of them.

Pitchers Jack Wilson and Fred Fussell made a gift of the last of a four-game series to Montreal Royals as Syracuse lost 7-3. They issued seven passes and six hits before they took the mound in the ninth to relieve Fussell. Montreal's Kay Mangum gave up ten hits but several sensational catches by Ripple and Seeds forced the Chiefs to leave 13 runners on bases.

KINGSTON WINS IN LAST FRAME

Defeat Oshawa 4-3 And Belleville Moves to Top of Loop

Kingston, June 21.—(CP)—Kingston Frontes went up into a tie for second place with Oshawa in the Ontario Central Baseball League when they defeated the Brewers here Thursday night 4-3. The defeat knocked Oshawa out of first place, and the teams of tonight's game have now only half a game between the league leading Belleville team.

Kingston won the game in sparkling fashion in the last of the ninth on Smith's hit and run on Elliott's error and was forced by Quinn. Quinn walked and Clancy singled to fill the bases. Scratton then hit to Johnsonville, who threw poorly to the plate and Quinn scored the winning run.

Pitching honors hung in ball on a field that was thick with mud and they looking better than in any previous game. Collins, Kingston's right-field, led the players with the bat, smashing out two doubles and a single.

REDWINGS WIN FROM ACES 16-15

Postponed Midget Section Game in Ki-Y Loop Played

Playing at Queen Alexander Grounds last night a postponed game from the start of May, the Redwings won a Midget Section fixture from the previously unbeaten Aces and thereby caused a three cornered tie in the first half of the schedule. The Redwings, Aces and Blackhawks each having won four, and lost one game, will play-off the title to determine the winner of the first half of the schedule. As already have clinched the second half honors, winning all games save one a piece, will meet the winner of the first half in the final play-off, unless they also succeed in winning the deferred play-off of the initial half, in which event they will become Midget Champs, for 1953.

The lineups:—

Redwings—Folwell, Brant, Davis, Asselstine, Martin, Storms, Samalin, Collins Mcdonald, Mc Cann.

Aces—Stone, Loggie, Mc Clare, Mitchell, Wright, Emery, St. Clare, Christie, Ridley, 15.

WITH THE

LAWN BOWLERS

by

McElheran & Watkins

A team composed of the following players took part in a tournament of men's rinks at Memorial Wednesday afternoon: John Shaw, Carl Fisher, Bob Dewar and William Fox, skip. Lack was not with them but they beat Gordon Gimbelli rink from Peterboro and that is a task for any team.

Only nine teams played at Madoc on Wednesday, it would seem that the high priced tournaments are not going to be a very big success this year.

A game of triples was played on Tuesday, the following players taking part, C. Nathan, D. Fisher, C. Sulman, J. O. McIntosh, C. Stoppa and Geo. Welch. The Sulman rink winning 38-16.

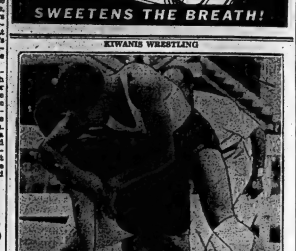
Have you paid your dues yet only 10 more days to July 1st.

A competition for married couples, prizes to be donated through John Shaw will commence as soon as entries are made. These games will be drawn, get your entry in to Geo. Welch as soon as possible so that schedule can be drawn up and the games under way. Phone 2235J.

Newt Wilbur informs us this morning he is getting a large entry for the new members doubles. Go to it Newt the more you get the better the games.

A word to the old members of the club. When you see a new member standing around not playing get him in the game.

As soon as weather permits we are going to start Rinkys.



Last year our greens were not in shape until late. This year we had the greens real early. What I want to say is that is back is responsible for this weather.

The winners of Wednesday's mixed games were as follows, Mrs. Heffernan, O. J. McIntosh, Mrs. Hyde, W. Walsh, skip, and Mrs. Tavner, Mr. Shrum, Mrs. Holgate, A. Wannacott, skip.

We want everyone out for our club game tonight, weather permitting.

KIWANIS WRESTLING

A demonstration of one of the many holds made famous by George Richards, the Prairie exponent of the art of Jui Jitsi wrestling, will appear at the Belleville Arena tomorrow Johnny Gyrgis in the main bout of tonight's all-star boxing and wrestling under the auspices of local Kiwanis Club while Jack Pearl and Johnnie Pavlos, of Greece, meet in the semi-final match. The feature attraction, however, will be between one of Canada's better known boxers, Franklin Genovese and K. O. Kelly of Michigan. The boxing bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

Johnny Allen, Yankee Hurler, Stages Comeback After Year Of Retirement With Sore Arm

Only on Provincial Contract at One Dollar a Year

INDIANS SECOND

Giants 6 1-2 Games in Front in National League

(By Orlo Robertson)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Many reasons have been advanced as to why the New York Yankees are out in front of the American League pack by 5 1-2 games, the least of which is not Johnny Allen the man who came back.

At the start of the season, the 30-year-old right-hander was pretty much of an unknown quantity, despite two brilliant years on the mound in 1932 and 1933. His arm had gone bad early last year with the result he was offered a contract contract calling for $1 a year until such time as he showed Boss Joe McCarthy he had regained his effectiveness.

The statistics tell the remainder of the story. Johnny has chalked up six victories as against only two defeats and ranks second only to Vito Tamulis as the leading hurler on a team that boasts such great stars as Lefty Gomez and Charley Ruffing. Yesterday he was assigned the task of stopping Detroit Tigers and stop them he did with five hits as the Yankees turned back the circuit champions for the third straight time and boosted their sixth successive victory by 5-3.

Struck Out Six

Allen struck out six men. Hiwalking four but in that phase was beaten by young Joe Sullivan, who while holding the League leaders in six hits in the seven innings he worked, handed out seven free passes to first and hit Bill Dickey on the head. An X-ray examination at the hospital showed nothing more than a slight concussion, however, and he is expected back in the lineup within a few days.

Cleveland Indians climbed over Chicago White Sox into second place by trouncing Washington Senators 8-6 while the Pale Hose were dividing a pair with Philadelphia Athletics.

Johnny Sain's 12th home run of the season with Bob Johnson on base in the 10th decided the fate of the Philadelphia-Chicago doubleheader in favor of the A's by 5-2. The nightcap also went to extra innings, successive singles by Rip Radcliffe, Jack Hayes, and Mule Haas giving the Sox a 2-1 victory in the 12th.

National League

Home runs also played an important part in New York Giants' 8-3 victory over the second place Pirates—a triumph that increased their advantage of 6 1-2 games. Bill Terry and Joe Moore drove in just half of the Giants' runs with circuit wallops.

St. Louis Cardinals moved within five points of second place by defeating the Phillies 7-5 behind the five-hit hurling of Dizzy Dean and Harry Brecheen who finished with one mate on base. The victory was Dizzy's 10th of the season as compared to five setbacks.

Two big innings left Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds all square after their doubleheader. The Reds counted five times in the seventh to win the opener 6-1 and the Dodgers put over six in the eighth of the nightcap to win, 7-1.

The Cubs-Braves and Red Sox-Browns games were rained out.

Softball Trophy Is Retained by Local Kiwanians

Belleville Kiwanis Club members were prominent in the prize list at the Oshawa Kiwanis Club field day held on Wednesday in the Motor City. The softball team retained possession of the handsome trophy awarded for this sport and each member of the team was presented with a piece of silver. Addison Leard and Ross Silver were the winning combination in horse shoe pitching defeating teams from Lindsay, Peterboro, Oshawa and Kingston. Each of these players received Kenwood blankets. The luncheon at the Genosha Hotel in the evening was a brilliant affair and a most enjoyable time was reported by everyone, who had the privilege to attend. Those, who did not play golf or other sports were taken on a tour of inspection through the General Motors and they marvelled at the completeness of the plant. The party returned home in the early hours tired but happy and ready for the next outing.

The softball team deserve a special word of mention for they were pitted against real opposition, "Iron Man" Frank Domenico pitched both games for the Belleville team and they say he had a world of stuff and a baffling change of pace. In the second game it was put and tuck until Herb Fox ended the proceedings with three fly outs in the last frame to win the contest.

On Tuesday evening the Club journeyed to Oak Lake, where they held a chicken dinner on the edge of the lake, supplied by the Ladies' Aid of Marsh Hill Church. Abundance of everything in the culinary art was placed upon the tables and it is safe to say justice was done to the good things provided. The weather was not pleasant due to a heavy downpour of rain, which fell before the meal had been completed. The party repaired to the dance hall and there enjoyed a game of bridge and dancing until the early hours. Everyone present reported a most enjoyable evening.

With the Punts

With scuppers awash, centre boards sheathed by the greasy paint of the contest, and youthful skippers perched perilously on the gunwales of the boats one of the most exciting punt races of the season was held in the Bay of Quinte yesterday afternoon. Attracting the rube or seeing the boats upset in the light breeze that was blowing, scores of citizens lined the shores to see the event, watched the races from various points along the government dock and other docks and wharves.

Upsets, broken spars, and other accidents forced several of the boats out of the race. Others completed their course, but the fastest time so far this season.

In A Class the Ann C tackled for vantage point, bested over always by the start and captained. None of the crew however are in danger. Ann C. After You, after completing one lap withdrew. Ann C. rounded a buoy, and the Joka only finished the course. No time was given.

In B Class the bare margin of a half lap, the trim Dorothy defeated her nearest rival, the Let's Go, by a scant margin.

In the 16-foot class, only the Spray managed to finish, with the Scotia, capsizing and the Serpent withdrawing.

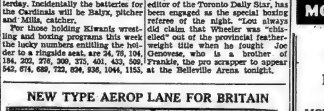
Two finished alone in C Class.

In D Class the Ron Wallace maintained an early lead over her rival, Romido with Davison and Patterson following.

Romido finished the race in the Snipe Class.

CURRENT SPORT

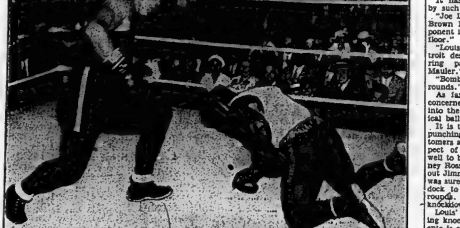
DAY BY DAY



When the Ponies tanned the Oshawa nine by the score of 4 to 3 last evening in Kingston the Brewers' loss dropped them into second place and elevated the Ponies from virtually the cellar into a tie with the Oshawa team, while the Stewart-Warners are now back into sole possession of the top rung in the league ladder. Just one-half game in front of the Motor City crew. Incidentally the competition is pretty keen in the O.B.L. Today the Radios have won 4 and lost 3, the Brewers and Ponies are even-stephen with three and three while the "Gas Horses" from Peterboro have lost four, while they won three, making just one game difference between the first and last place club in the loop. Without fear of contradiction we might say that the C. O. B. L. is the best balanced senior circuit in the province and is providing the best calibre of ball.

Weather permitting the Radios will play an exhibition game in Picton this afternoon while tomorrow they journey to Oshawa and tangle with the "Brewers". All three local fanciers will be used in addition of the game this afternoon, while doubtlessly either Doug Smith, who held the Motor City crew to one run, in defeat, at our last showing in Oshawa, or Art Calhoun will be called upon to hurl for the locals. While Jack Williams can rest up for Tuesday night's game with the fast moving Ponies here in town. Incidentally local business men, merchants and citizens at large have put their shoulder to the wheel and are assisting the B.A.B.A. in their efforts to have Bob Weir returned to Belleville on the railroad as he may Belleville for outright duty. It is understood that certain C.N.R. officials have signified their willingness to assist in securing the release of Alex's services for the remainder of the season. Incidentally the Belleville and Napanee International game, that was rained out on Wednesday, will be played on Saturday afternoon at the Gilbbard Memorial Park in Napanee.

Jimmie Milk, manager of the East Hill Cardinals, visited the sports department again last evening to inform us that a "pepper-weight" ball game would be played between his "Cards" and the "Tigers" of the West Hill at the Alexandra Park on Saturday afternoon. "We beat the Starlights from across the river last week, 16-1, the Tigers are a better team and we should have no trouble to beat 'em" Jimmie confidentially informed us yesterday. Incidentally the batteries for the Cardinals will be Bailey, pitcher and Mills, catcher.



For the holding Kiwanis wrestling and boxing programs this week the lucky numbers entailing the holder to a ringside seat, are 24, 76, 104, 184, 203, 276, 300, 375, 401, 433, 509, 542, 578, 688, 722, 804, 936, 1044, 1153, at the Belleville Arena tonight.

NEW TYPE AEROP LANE FOR BRITAIN

A special model of the Avro 626 (Middeley Lynx engine) for which an order has just been placed by the British air ministry, in collaboration with plans to build huge air force for Britain. The aeroplace will be used for navigation instruction in the R.A.F., and it is fitted with all necessary equipment, including a camera so that ground photographs can be taken of portions of routes chosen for navigation flying.

CARNERA SHOWS "KILLER" INSTINCT IN TRAINING

This picture from Primo Carnera's training camp at Ovazoo Lake, N. Y., was imposed and therefore should give an indication of the true condition of the giant Italian preparing for his bout with Joe Louis. He has apparently found the one ingredient supposedly lacking to place him among the "greats" of fistiana—the killer instinct. Willie McGee, a sparring partner, is in trouble on the canvas with his Preem standing over him. Carnera's huge hamlike hands have been slaying his sparmates unmercifully as he works out in earnest for this fight.

Expect Louis Will Knock Out Primo Carnera

(By Alan Gould)
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, June 21.—(AP)—The expectation that Joe Louis, unemotional negro pugilist, will reduce huge Primo Carnero to a punch-riddled heap in the ring at Yankee Stadium Tuesday night seems to be widespread among metropolitan followers.

Joe has been prompted no doubt by such headlines as these:

"Joe Louis' punch is magnet;" "Brown Bomber has had every opponent in his professional career on floor."

"Louis like Black Dempsey; Decision destroyer merciless on sparring partners as was Manassa Mauler."

"Bomber sees Kayo victory in five rounds."

As far as offering a forecast is concerned, all this can be tossed into the waste basket. It's the logical ballyhoo for the fight.

It is true that Louis has a great punching record and the cash customers are being lured by the prospect of modified slaughter, but well to bear in mind, however, Barney Ross was confident of knocking out Jimmy McLarnin and Max Baer was thoroughly put Jimmy Braddock to sleep inside a half-dozen rounds, and neither was even a knockdown in either fight.

Louis' reputation for annihilating knockout wallops to his opponents is such he may handicap himself by trying too hard and too soon to bring down the giant Italian.

For all his rapid and spectacular rise, Louis lacks experience. His record of 18 knockouts in 22 professional fights within two years is impressive until the list is examined. It does not include many victims with familiar names.

Carnera, of course, is a difficult target to miss inside the ring. He is apt to become flustered under the stress of his bulk and his clumsiest weakness, when solidly hit, but for all his crudity and power, of course, Primo has improved his defensive ability and shown many gameness. Max Baer had the giant on the floor eleven times but could not keep him there.

◆ YESTERDAY'S STARS ◆

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Myers, Reds and Dessy Vance, Dodgers: Myers hit triple, double and two singles in first game of doubleheader. Vance pitched and batted the Dodgers to victory in second.

Dizzy Dean and Rip Collins, Cardinals: The former limited the Phillies to five hits for his 10th victory of the season, and the latter's 11th home run with one aboard gave the Cardinals a 7-5 victory.

Joe Moore, Giants: Hit 11th home run of season in aiding Giants to drub Pirates 8-3.

Mule Haas, White Sox and Jimmie Foxx, Athletics: Haas' single in 12th inning enabled the White Sox to win second game of a double-header 2-1 after Foxx's 12th home run of the season with one on base in the 10th inning gave the A's the opener 5-3.

CLUB MEMBERS PASS TEST

Four more members of the Y.M.C.A. Swimming Club passed their initial life saving test in an examination held at the Y Pool yesterday. Three juniors and one senior were included in the group, the juniors being Frances Gardner, Ross Clare and Mark Storms while Doris Gardner passed the senior test. To date 20 have been successful in passing their first examination, but are faced with the hardest test of the four yet to come.

Automobile Accidents

The season for accidents is now at hand, and if you have not yet taken out insurance, you should do so. You can purchase a policy for SIX MONTHS without additional cost. You can also purchase for $5 an Auto Accident policy. This will pay $1500 in event of your death, and lesser sums for serious injury or dismemberment. It is very cheap and very good.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, June 21.—(CP)— Ford of Canada, Distillers Seagrams and the Metal shares swung into a strong upward movement today on the Industrial section of the Toronto Exchange and after early hesitancy the rest of the market followed. The market closed with a decided preponderance of gains over losses. In the general list trading continued on a small scale.

Casting off some of its gloominess, the Industrial share market displayed enthusiasm for the advance today, led by a renewal of buoyancy on the New York board. Strength appeared mainly in the Metal shares, Ford A and Distillers Seagrams but over the Board gains had the edge on declines this afternoon.

Ford A was showing better than a point gain on good turnover and Distillers Seagrams was crowding the 18 mark for a gain of about 3-4. Other liquor stocks registered smaller gains. Nickel sold at up to 36 and Consolidated Smelters at 19⅝ was up 3. C.P.R. did better and Brazilian and the Oils were up unchanged to 1-4 down except International Petroleum which added a small fraction.

Steel shares moved up with the trend.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, June 21—(AP)— The stock market shook off its "distribution of wealth" tax nervousness today and once more resumed its pilgrimage to the higher-price territory.

The majority of commodities improved, but grains and cotton were narrower. Secondary issues followed stocks upward. Leading foreign exchanges were moderately mixed.

In the Canadian section of the market, Dome was about even, while Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel improved slightly. On the curb Lake Shore and Hiram Walker were narrow.

Dominion government bonds were inactive. Canadian funds held unchanged at 99 15-16 cents.

Air Reduction gained 2 points, while American Can, Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon and Commercial Solvents, Celluloid, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Smelting, Union Carbide and Texas Gulf were around 2 to 3 higher.

Among gains of fractions to a point or so were U.S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Westinghouse, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

TORONTO MINES CLOSE

Toronto, June 21 (CP) — The small group of silver stocks assumed the leadership of the mining market today as inflation sentiment became more pronounced and buying for a rise got under way. A report that the Washington silver bloc was active again started the silvers and buying in the group increased as prices swept upward. Base Metals and gold stocks trailed along but their advance was more hesitating. At the close prices were well up for the day.

With the silver shares in the lead, the mining section displayed broad tendencies today with volume expanding on the rise. The first hour was slow with only 1,000 shares turning over but more than 100,000 shares changed hands in the afternoon, the trade concentrated mainly in the silver, base metal and a few of the secondary gold issues.

From an opening price of 81.86 where it closed yesterday, Sherritt moved up to 3.10 while Castle gained 7 to 81.12 and Bear 2 cents to 3.35. Other silvers did better. Buying in the group was stimulated by a report that President Roosevelt had agreed to confer next week with the silver bloc in Congress.

Noranda dipped in the morning trading but recovered and higher prices were boarded for Falconbridge, Mining Corporation, Base Metals Corporation and Sherritt.

NEW YORK

New York, June 21.—(AP)—The Stock Market today brushed aside misgivings and doubts and prices engaged in one of the most substantial upturns witnessed in some time.

Highest Grade Industrial Specialties, Rails, Utilities, Motors, Steels and Mining issues participated in the advance which lifted the leaders 1 to 4 or more points.

Among the more active offerings were Air Reduction, American Can, Allied Chemical, Columbian, Carbon, Union Carbide Du Pont, Auburn, General Motors, Chrysler, U.S. Steel, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, American Telephone and Consolidated Gas. The late tone was strong. Transfers approximated 1,800,000 shares.

STOCKS

Toronto, June 21 (CP)—Bacon hog prices remained unchanged today at all reporting market points in a range of $9.25 to $9.50. Sales were: Toronto, Hunter Bros. and Harris reported $9.50; Hull $9.40 and Brantford $9.25. London supplies sold at $9.25.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigar and Crawford by Financial Service.

SHAWKEY GOLD.

Shaft sinking is progressing at Shawkey Gold Mining Co. and the bottom of the two new levels to be opened up will have been reached next week. The shaft will immediately be continued to 275 feet and lateral work will commence on both levels as soon as the equipment is received early in August.

The market continues to see-saw back and forth under lack of market leadership. As yet the movements in Wall Street has found very little encouragement, the only definite basis being the report that the Steel Corporation is preparing to issue a subscription privilege seeking an outlet. The last two months should be a period of accumulation of the better class dividend payers on good-sized reactions in anticipation of higher levels in the fall.

MASSEY HARRIS

Massey-Harris Co. Ltd., one of the largest manufacturers of agricultural implements in the world, with factories in Canada, the United States, Germany and France, is understood to be doing better this year, continuing the improvement of last year, but under way in a very moderate degree. Massey-Harris shares appear to offer interesting speculative possibilities.

Net profit for the year ended December 30, 1934, Massey reported a net deficit of $2,296,000. This was nevertheless the best showing since 1930. The company's deficit at the end of 1933 was $4,592,000 and back loans on holdings left in the hands of creditors amounted to $6,256,000 on December 30, 1933, so that in the short space of 24 months, Massey-Harris improved its position by over $6,000,000.

Shareholders will be interested to learn that the company made a large factory production this year, which should result in a substantial profit. Even greater profit will result from the reduction in overhead or idle plant expense.

It will be recalled that at the annual meeting held in March it was pointed out that the outlook for the company was the best in many years. Sales in the first two months were more than a year ago and in fact, was the best since 1931. Also a pick-up demand for agricultural implements; the quality of Massey's machines is generally improved; the prices for grains, cattle, and cash in the hands of farmers are headed for higher level; governmental aid to agriculture is on a large scale; the Canadian Government has increased to the extent with respect to subsidies, price guarantee, debt adjustments, reductions in interest rates, loans, etc.

The outlook for the Dominion this year is for a fairly large crop, and with the higher prices for grains, there is satisfactory profit in sight for Massey-Harris and the other Canadian implement companies would be greatly improved not only through the purchasing power of farmers, but in the liquidation of a part of outstanding bills receivable.

BEEF ON HOOF SCARCE IN U. S.

Beef on the hoof is still scarce south of the border, and United States buyers are continuing their rounds of the district offering high prices for cattle purchased. Among the recent purchases made by I. B. Chitoff, Pittchburg, Mass., of pure bred Holsteins in the section, are those owned by Lorne Bailey, Hubert Clifford Raynor, Wellington, two; Lorne Lemon, Lees Corners, Bloomfield; and others have also contributed to the sale.

Grain Growers Favor Short Sale Regulation

Ottawa, June 21 (CP) — Special regulation of short selling on Winnipeg Grain Exchange enforced by a government market supervisor, aggressive efforts to enlarge the market for Canadian wheat, and appointment of a special commission to dispose of the government's holdings and protect producers from low prices, were recommendations made today to the select Senate Committee on the Grain Board measure. They were advanced by R. S. Law, president of the United Grain Growers, Limited, of Winnipeg.

James Richardson, head of one of the large Winnipeg exporting firms, also presented a brief in which he was entirely opposed to passage of the bill and maintained an open market should be permitted for the disposal of Canada's grain crop.

'GHOSTLY' VOICE BRINGS CONFESSION

Martinez, Calif., June 21.—A mechanical "ghost" returning to the scene of the alleged guilt of a Mexican prisoner held in jail here led to his confession of a slaying, Sheriff John A. Miller said.

The device was a loud speaker secreted in a drawer in a cell occupied by Anacleto Torres, railroad section hand accused of the slaying of a companion, Ana Cabera. The voice monotonously droned:

"I am Ana's ghost. I am Ana's ghost. You had better confess. You know you killed me."

Bacon Hogs Advance 20 Cents at Toronto

Toronto was the only major Canadian live stock market to show an advance in bacon hogs yesterday. Prices on that market were up 20 cents per cwt. on truck basced. Winnipeg and Montreal were unchanged. Toronto paid $9.50 for bacon hogs, with country points getting 10 to 15 cents, while the remainder of the Canadian markets paid $9.25.

Off truck bacon hogs, the only type handled at Winnipeg, were 25 cents per cwt. higher at $9.25. Montreal dealers were unchanged at $9.25 per cwt. with heavies $1.50 per head. The market was reported fairly active. Receipts were light at 226 head.

Winnipeg, June 21.—Hog prices were unchanged at the Winnipeg Stock Yards today as the run of 2,000 consisted of 813 heavies, 28.25, lights and feeders 29.00 and sows 27.00. Cattle receipts were light at 250 head.

Montreal, June 21.—Bacon hogs steady at $10.00 to $10.25, fed and watered, on the Montreal Stock Yards today. Sheep, butchers, heavies and lights were $7.50 to $8.00, and spring lambs $10.00 to $11.00. Calves were steady at $6.00 to $7.00. The market advanced 20 to 25 cents per cwt. during the week. Receipts yesterday for the week amounted to 2,227 head.

Eggs are Firmer On Montreal Mart

Montreal, June 21.—There was a slightly firmer tone to the local egg market yesterday, with moderate receipts and a better demand evident in fluences. Prices were unchanged for the market as a whole, with prices generally ranging as follows: Fancy selects 21½c; No. 1 extras 20½c; No. 2 extras 19½c; No. 3 extras 18½c; No. 1 firsts 18½c; No. 2 firsts 17½c; No. 3 firsts 16½c; and No. 4 firsts 15½c. Dirties and trade were quoted by jobbers at 20c to 20½c for extras, 19½c to 20c for firsts, 18½c to 19c for seconds and 16c to 18c for thirds. Wholesale prices were 1c higher when buying from producers and there are not enough A-1 eggs yet coming in to form a market.

The butter market was generally steady at 24½c to 25½c per pound for cartons or 1-c.l. lots of No. 1 creamery, while jobbers were asking retail prices of 26c to 27c per pound. For solids and 25½c for prints.

Cheese prices showed little change. No. 1 Ontarios being generally 19½c to 19¾c, while Quebecs sold at 19½c to 19¾c. Receipts, 1,098 boxes.

sonal belongings when she left for Belleville, on a shopping tour, she informed her husband.

When interviewed by Provincial Constable John Reid this morning, Mr. Ryan, the perplexed husband, could throw no light up on the mysterious disappearance of his wife and two step-children. "To my knowledge Mrs. Ryan had only large amount of money," stated Mr. Ryan yesterday. police later disclosed that Mrs. Ryan had a personal income of her own. Despite the fact, that all movements of the missing three have been traced into Belleville last Saturday, they completely disappeared at this point and are known to have returned to their home on the motor bus in which they came to Belleville.

The Provincial Police communiqued a description of the missing three to the New York City police department today and also supplied that department with Mrs. Ryan's previous name—Mrs. A. Cummings.

It is also believed that Mrs. Ryan York. No answer had been received to 2.30 p.m. today. Mrs. Ryan's missing trio suddenly returned to their native city or have met with foul play, police have as yet failed to disclose late this afternoon. The disappearance of Mrs. Ryan and her children was not disclosed to the authorities until yesterday.

COL. LINDBERGH INVENTS DEVICE

The pump, an artificial heart and lung machine, is a glass cylinder. At the institute information about it was guarded with the statement that it will be divulged later in the institute's own publication.

Lindbergh Began in 1931

However, the announcement revealed that Lindbergh began the first step in 1931, and he was the author of the first work recognized in Science describing a new apparatus, the Rockefeller Institute's division of experimental surgery.

The picture then published, shows the amazing delicacy of the glass. It illustrates dramatically the mechanical principle which is also Lindbergh's contribution to the Rockefeller Institute.

It is a glass coil set on a table which both rotates and rocks. Resting in the coil is what looks like a Roman candle. And the fluid in the tube which circulates in a completely closed system, without any pump or motor.

Fluid Is Key. For air is forced into the coil as desired while it rocks.

This first heart and lungs failed however, and improvements have been made. The first one was made this year and the institute's managers say it is quite different from the first.

Fed to 'it, instead of blood, it carries a mixture of protein—split products, famous as "milk of life" and an emulsion of blood) cystein (body sulphury inacin, thyroxin (the thyroid hormone) adrenalin (which greatly enables fats to use oxygen) vitamins, salts, sugar, hormones, fluid and blood serum.

The mixture is colored with the dye, phenol red.

Pump Functions as Lung

The Lindbergh pump is also a lung. It carries a mixture of gas, mostly oxygen, plus a little carbon dioxide, the rest nitrogen.

This gas is kept in tanks under pressure, regulates pressure. It carried also glucose and bicarbonate and in order that these two may be in sufficient quantities to for several days of artificial living the original fluid has to be 2,000 times more in volume than the tissues removed from the body.

"Its ultimate purposes," the announcement stated, "are manufacture in vitro of the secretions of endocrine glands, the isolation of substances essential to the growth, differentiation and functional activity of those glands the discovery of the laws of associations of organs and the production in vitro and the treatment of organic and arterial diseases, etc."

The thyroids get free substances which markedly stimulated white blood cells, or disease scavengers. The whole life of these organs so far observed is filled with complex changes.

The idea of whole organs living artificially outside the body in 1912 by the physiologist, Le Calliek. In 1926 Dr. Gunn kept the heart of a frog beating 44 hours. In 1932 Brown-Sequard removed partial temporary life to a decapitated head.

VITAMIN DISCOVERY

IS MADE BY DR. BEST

Toronto, June 21.—Discovery of a vitamin, which may play a part in the further control of diabetes was credited here to Dr. C. H. Best, head of physiology at the University of Toronto and associate of Sir Frederick Banting in the discovery of insulin.

It is now shown that diabetes may not depend upon a liver disorder rather than a disorder of the insulin-producing mechanism of the pancreas. The latest discoveries are designed to show that lack of choline causes serious condition of the fatty liver.

Body is Exhumed Of Woman M.D.

Boston, June 21 (AP)—Conflicting opinions today featured testimony on the cause of the death of Dr. Ellen G. F. Welch, 60-year-old physician who died in Jacksonville, Fla., three years ago after surviving nine operations.

The body of the elderly physician buried in Forest Hills cemetery here, was exhumed at the request of Dr. Welch's will and Dr. Charles Branch reported "without doubt" death was caused by cancer."

A certificate of death, issued May 17, 1932, gave pneumonia as the cause.

Holy Grail Discovered In Antioch is Belief

LONDON, June 21.—Experts believe the centuries-long search for the Holy Grail, or chalice, used by Christ at the famous "Last Supper", may have ended with its discovery south of Antioch, in the Holy Land.

A report was received by the Palestine Bible Lands Exploration here that has been found by a party of archaeologists excavating for ancient relics in Palestine.

The dispatch said the excavations in a cave have yielded a small case containing a glass chalice which experts described as a fine Roman work. They dated it roughly from about 100 B.C. to 100 A.D.

Experts believed the cup was the famous Nicodemus chalice which is famous in the tales of King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table. It was the object of the quest by the knights of that name famed through the English translation of the French work, "Quete del Saint Graal," in which it is the Cup or chalice of the Holy Paschal Lamb was served to Jesus.

MATINEE OR NIGHT; IT'S JUST THE SAME AT CIRCUS

CHARLOTTE RAN KIN AND SULTAN

In spite of the fact that the night performances of the big circuses are usually longer, as seats are required to be exhibited at the afternoon shows there are many people who hold views to the contrary.

See they are taking part of it away," someone will exclaim as he notes a string of red cages appearing their way toward the railroad yards just about the time darkness is falling.

"Oh, yes," answers another, "one never see the whole show at the night performance."

The conclusion is entirely erroneous. It is true that the management takes part of it away from the show grounds in the late afternoon, but that which is removed is in no way connected with that which the public sees. Simply in case containing a glass chalice which experts described as a fine Roman work. They dated it roughly from about 100 B.C. to 100 A.D.

Rev. F. G. Joblin Preaches Farewell Sermons at Stirling

Stirling, June 21—On Sunday evening the service of St. Paul's United Church was conducted by Rev. F. G. Joblin who for the past twelve or thirteen years has made his home in the village of Stirling as he ministered to the people on the Rawdon circuit. Mr. Joblin has accepted a call to the Scugog Island charge and will leave within the next few weeks to take up his duties there. During his many years of service on the Rawdon circuit Mr. Joblin has resided in Stirling where he made a host of friends and in his departure Stirling loses one of its most beloved citizens. Before leaving it was so arranged that he could take the services of the St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, and once more address his friends in Stirling before leaving. Rev. R. W. Rowland exchanged pupils with him for both services on Sunday.

"WHAT DID YOU SAY, DOCTOR?"

Powder my baby with DURHAM CORN STARCH?

..."YES, MADAM!"

YOUR doctor knows of the extra healing properties of pure Corn Starch. He will tell you how safe it is for baby's sensitive skin. Try this thrifty, time-proven method for powdering your baby. Do as your mother did. Use the best and purest—Durham Corn Starch—famous for three generations. Use pure Corn Starch as you would a talcum powder. Use it because of its added healing properties. See how smooth and lovely it keeps baby's skin. Durham Corn Starch prevents and heals chafing—keeps baby's skin satiny soft and free from redness or soreness. It pays to be thrifty in this practical age—especially when you know Durham Corn Starch can be used for powdering baby with your doctor's endorsation.

EXCELLENT for SUNBURN

Here is another thrifty and effective use for Durham Corn Starch. Save money by using this excellent corn starch to relieve sunburn. Apply liberally so that the sunburnt skin is generously covered. Gently cooling and relieving—quick and reliable—the corn starch will relieve the sting and smart of sunburn. Durham Corn Starch for culinary use is unequalled in quality, purity and absolute uniformity.

INTREPID R ELIEF STRIKERS DECLARE THEY WILL CONTTINUE MARCH TO OTTAWA

From Ottawa comes report that the 2000 relief camp strikers trekking across Canada to the capital will be stopped at Regina. From Regina, the strikers say they will go to Ottawa despite officialdom. Meanwhile Prime Minister Bennett has dispatched Messrs. Weir and Manion of his cabinet to see the young men in Regina and hear their disputes. The strikers have gained much public sympathy by the orderly and well-organized manner in which they have conducted themselves. STORM DAMAGE IS HEAVY IN EAST

Dundas, Ont., June 21—(CP)—Damage of $1,000 was inflicted and the town cut off from Hydro power for several hours when the big ice house owned by W. Cowper and Company was destroyed by fire early Thursday. Firemen believe the blaze was caused by transients sleeping in the hayloft.

The main Hydro feed lines pass the spot and were burned through, plunging the town in darkness. Hundreds of tons of ice were melted by the intense heat.

ONLY ONE IN THREE ESCAPED DEATH IN QUETTA QUAKE

With whatever miserable little possessions they could salvage from their earthquake ruined homes, the comparative handful of survivors who escaped from Quetta, the city of the dead, are shown (TOP) at the race track near the city. Of the 60,000 who lived in Britian's mountain doorway of India, only 20,000 escaped death. They are living in the open on the nearby plains. To prevent cholera the demolished city has been sealed like a drum and only a few soldiers (survivors of the 200 in the barracks), are patrolling the grim ruins. BELOW, as if some mighty giant had punched a hole in it, this railroad station is a mass of tumbled bricks. It was not spared any more than the other structures.

BREEDERS MEET JUDGE HOLSTEINS

Four Counties Represented at Picnic Held in Belleville

A cool wind and clouded sky showing signs of impending rain, ushered in the Holstein Friesian Breeders' Association picnic at the Fair Grounds at 10.30 Standard Time, this morning.

The Association takes in the four counties of Hastings, Lennox-Addington, Northumberland and Prince Edward. M. C. Reynolds is president of Hastings; Robert Merrill, Lennox-Addington; S. P. Dodds, Prince Edward and E. O. Butler, Northumberland. Also present and taking prominent part were R. M. Holiby, Port Perry, field-secretary for Eastern Ontario, F. J. Webster, Picton, Ontario, chairman of proceedings and Fred H. Hubbs of Bloomfield, director in the Association for this district, who is also 4th Vice-President of the Association in Canada.

Judging of milch cows and bulls took up the morning session. There was a fair representation of live stock present. Clifford Ketchenson, Sidney, W. H. Gough, Bloomfield, Fred Mubee, Bloomfield and the House of Refuge had entrants in the Holstein milch cows. There were six bulls entered, Rose and Dodds of Picton, Amos Hudgins, Picton, Donald Dafoe, Redneyville, and Murney Reynolds, being the owners.

Three Holstein milk cows, two six-year-olds and one four year old, were judged, followed by four yearling bulls. The judges were young men of twenty-one years of age and under. They carefully scrutinized the entrants as to build, milk veins, looseness of hide, etc.

The judges were Walter Thurlow, Odessa; Earl Jackson, Odessa; Edwin Brown, Wilton; Raymond Campbell, Odessa; Jamie Alexander, Hillier; Harold Motley, Belleville No. 7; Douglas Black, Belleville No. 7; Percy Lough, Belleville No. 7; Arthur Perry, Napanee No. 1; Rose Cundell, Bath; Lynn Perry, Napanee; Harold Gorsline, Demorestville; Robt. McFarlane, Odessa; Jack Anderson, Napanee; Arthur Calvert, Belleville No. 2; Roger Bloomfield, Bloomfield No. 1; Alexander Hillier; Howard Evans, Norman Carrol Bloomfield; Stanley Henry Wallbridge Belleville; Vincent Corrigan, Frankford; Harvey Hamilton, Carrol; Mrs. Brighton; Donald Longwell, Foxboro.

98 CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED

Saint John, N.B., June 20 (CP)—At the close of nomination day proceedings in New Brunswick today 98 candidates were officially in the field for the Provincial elections next Thursday.

Straight fights between Conservatives and Liberals will continue in all of the 17 constituencies except Madawaska where two Independents also had their nominations made official. Thus the Conservative government under Hon. P. J. Veniot and the Liberal opposition led by A. A. Dysart have candidates in the running for each of the 48 seats.

163 'Foreign Firms' Selling Narcotics

Peiping, China, June 21—(CP)—The charge often made by Chinese that foreign drug peddlers are ruining the demilitarized zone north of Peiping with cheap heroin and morphine, seems to be substantiated by reports from missionaries.

Miss Muriel Lester, founder of the famous Kingsley Hall settlement house, East London, has just returned from a stay with missionaries in Changli County, where there are, according to Miss Lester 163 shops called "Yang Hang," or "foreign Firms", which are openly engaged in the sale of opium, morphine or heroin. Of the total, 97 are owned by Koreans, Japanese subjects, and the rest, or 116, are owned by Japanese.

In Tangshen county conditions are worse, with 550 shops selling habit forming drugs.

Daily Short Story

SUBWAY LADY

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"There she is again," Leslie whispered ecstatically to himself. He was in a crowded subway car, but it seemed to him, there were only two people alive and important in all that motley crowd. The pretty girl with the little blue hat, perched precariously on one side of her lovely blond head, with her dancing, smiling blue eyes, intrigued him.

His kept standing short, nervous glances at her, afraid she might think him impertinent. Above all he wanted to avoid that, for he had made up his mind to marry that girl. The difficulty was that he did not know her although almost every morning they both got on at the same station.

Often during the day's work at the art agency where he worked as painstaking fourth grade to lettering for those selfsame subway cars, his mind would revert to his "Lady of the Rush Hour." It seemed to him that none of the professional models could compare in loveliness to her. A strange thing it was that all the pretty girls he drew had her pert eyes and blond hair, and were always enhanced, in his estimation. His would dawdle at his painting, trying to devise ways and means of becoming acquainted with her without offending her. Some of these plans were ingenious, but were dismissed as too far-fetched and impracticable.

"Oh, Les," the office boy called, "the big boss shows symptoms of having an idea; he wants to see you right away."

An Idea

Leslie barged into the office of the manager with the confidence of a man who knows his stuff. "What's on your mind, to the firm. You wanted to see me?"

"Yes, sit down, Les," George V. Trump said, "as you know, the Kleenlax Toothpaste account has been championing at the hit. Their vice-president in charge of advertising, must have results he says. Furthermore, he has certain intelligent idea. It's a sure-fire, sales-getting idea," he says.

"In other words," Leslie grinned, "it's a grand idea, he says. What is this grand idea?"

"I'll tell you. Trump replied. "It is Vice-President Hoff's idea to start an advertising campaign to notify the palpitating public that a committee of famous artists is going to select a gal from the audience crowds in the subway to adorn the posters and subway ads advertising Kleenlax Toothpaste. Said girl will receive $1,000 and a tube of Kleenlax as a prize. Isn't that ducky? Now, of course, it will be your distasteful duty to put the finger on some subway flapper that isn't too homely and who has a monopoly of teeth. You can't expect high-priced artists to tour the subway and get pinched for flirting. You see, ducky?"

"Whoopee!" Leslie shouted, springing out of his chair as if it were a bucking broncho.

"Well, I suppose I admit it isn't a bad idea, but I didn't think it was that ducky," Trump commented dryly, and then, with sudden suspicion, "Now, mind no funny business."

"No sir; no funny business," Leslie chortled in glee.

Leslie did not get much sleep that night. He had found a solution to his problem. He had originated and rejected literally hundreds of plans to meet the blue-eyed goddess and suddenly the means had been handed him on a $1,000 fold-plated platter. It dawned daylight would never come, but at last a reluctantly peeped in at the window. Leslie was up like a flash. He shaved, shaved, primped and fussed. He changed his tie several times, slicked his hair and shined his shoes. He bolted his breakfast and, was out of the house like a shot.

Then started a long, tiresome wait. It seemed she would never arrive. Of all the days in the week she would pick this particular day to be late." Leslie muttered impatiently; then, glancing at his watch, he grimaced foolishly. "Well, for the I'm still half an hour early."

Now or Never

Finally with a tremendous thump of his heart, he recognized her swinging along the platform and coming to a halt at her accustomed spot. Leslie dexterously maneuvered himself into close proximity to the girl that train. He came to a stop. Several times he started to speak, but his tongue stuck to the roof of his mouth. After several unsuccessful attempts to get his tongue unhinged, he was amazed to find that they were in the Times Square station. Here he soon found himself ejected by the crush of the crowd.

"Now or never," he muttered and screwing up his courage, he tapped the fair lady upon the shoulder. She turned with a wide, innocent, baby stare, and he let loose with the words tumbling over each other in his eagerness to have them said. "Miss, I represent a committee of artists for the Kleenlax Toothpaste Co. It is my pleasant duty to inform you that you have been picked as "The Most Beautiful Subway Girl." Your face will adorn the company's posters and a check for $1,000 is yours. There!"

The blue blond girl gaped but said nothing. Leslie, obsessed by some sinister foreboding, continued doubtfully. "By the way, miss, would you mind telling me, for publicity purposes, your name and what you expect to do with the prize money?"

"Sure, my name Helga Swenson, and my sweetheart, Olaf Olafson, he marry me when I half saved $1,000. I half saved $1,000; now I got $1,000 more, so now we marry. That is good, no?"

"What is good, yes!" Leslie answered wearily, and collapsed onto a bench.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was making a cake in the kitchin and I said, May ma, Nora's day off, and I said. May ma, can I have some old rags out of your bag.

There are none there for you to have, ma said. When I was a girl there was always an overflowing ragbag in my mother's room, but these present modern days seem to be different alaar, and the so called emancipated woman cant even reach out her hand and know where to find a rag. What do you want with rags? she said, and I said, O, I just thawt I mite start a collection. So can I start with those ones in your room, ma? I said.

There aren't any in my room, I told you for goodness sakes dont you ever listen? ma said, and I said. Yes mam, O, my sure there is, ma, there's some pink rags that used to be that pink thing you wear in the morning sometimes.

What, my pink negleejay? What's happened to my pink negleejay? ma said, and I said, Well Artie was around a little while ago and me and him started to play Siamese twins by pulling your negleejay on us at the same time, and then we pertended the Siamese twins was having a fite, and the next thing we knew your pink negleejay was pink rags. Henry smokes ma, it couldn't of been very strong, I said.

If I didn't have my hands full of dough I'd give you a good smack and I promise you you'd find that strong enough, ma said. As it is I'm going to tell your father, she said.

With she did when he came home, and he thawt it was funny, especially the part about the rags, and ma said, Laugh on, McDuff, but it's an ill wind that has no silver lining, and I've been putting off buying a new negleejay for reasons of economy, but now I can see you open the bill for one with a clear conscience.

Say, the thing has its serious side, pop said, and I said, Well O, pop, yeah, you've had your laugh now.

Pop not being able to think of a good mad answer, and we all went back and ate supper.

Three to Reformatory For Auto Accident Death

LONDON, Ont., June 20.—(CP)—One to two years in the Ontario Reformatory was the penalty imposed on three London men today by County Judge William for the death in an auto accident of Alexander Walker. The trio, Peter Lenehan, Patrick Murrell and Leonard Nichol, were found guilty Wednesday of criminal negligence.

Before a courtroom crowded with their friends who had been witnesses and interested listeners during the trial, the prisoners received their sentence without much show of emotion.

"The Turcoman chief, half-civilised himself," said Ogra to Roger, "seemed filled with superstitious awe at this unexpected addition to his tribe and so my life was saved. I was given food and drink.

"I became another human drop in the moving tide of life seeking the green steppes ahead. I was not treated unkindly nor given more hardice as days went on. With recovering strength my spirits also revived.

"Love of life was strong within me; even though it was filled now with toil and monotony. The youth and maidens of the tribe became my companions and time, lost track of, meant nothing to me.

"Though I lived each day not knowing what the night would bring, courage and hope never failed me, until my fortunes dropped to even lower depths." The girl paused before continuing her story, as if the thought of those past days was painful to her.

84 Year Old Visitor Adept At Fine Art of Quilting

Mrs. Jane Hoard, Rawdon, Takes Active Part in Quilting Bee

Rawdon, June 21—On Friday evening a goodly number of Rawdon young people with their pastor Rev. H. A. Foley of Springbrook journeyed to Mount Pleasant to enjoy a friendly visit.

Mr. John Coggins welcomed the visitors and all joined in the Epworth League hymn with Mrs. C. Chambers presiding at the piano and Rev. Foley offered prayer.

Mr. James Barnett, president of Rylestone replied to the welcome, thanking the friends for the invitation. Mr. Mehlenbein presided at the piano and all joined in "Auld Lang Syne" and Mr. Melville McKeown offered prayer. Miss Vera Stewart read the Bible lesson.

Mr. Grant McMeekin outlined a splendid topic on the subject "The Purpose of Life."

His whole address was based on the Bible quotation "Ye are the Salt of the Earth."

Mr. Arthur Reid in a current event paper gave "Important Items of Canada." Miss Jean Stewart recited "The Best of the Bargain."

Rev. H. Foley gave a brief "Lord," and urged the young people to cultivate the flowers of life rather than the weeds and to give a devotional message based on the hymn "The Word is Like a Garden" spiritually and socially. He advised that each one read at least two good books during the summer.

Rev. F. G. Joblin also extended a hearty welcome and depicted the importance of little things.

A beautiful duet number was given by Miss Laura Foley, pianist, Miss Vivian Mehlenbein, soloist and Mr. G. Mehlenbein, soloist, with "Hush-a-Bye my Baby."

After singing "Softly and Tenderly" a contest "Names of Men's Wives" was enjoyed.

The young people of Mt. Pleasant served a dainty lunch and delicious cookies completed the feast. The attendance was good despite the heavy rain and electric storm.

Rev. F. G. Joblin attended an ice cream social at Foxboro on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan, Mr. and Mrs. H. Donnan and their respective families were guests of their parents Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sharp on Monday.

Mrs. J. Roark who will be 84 years of age on the 4th of August attended the quilting at Mount Pleasant hall on Monday and was as active quilter practically all day.

Owing to the deluge of rain on Friday evening the lawn social to be held on Mr. John Heagle's lawn at Wellman's was postponed.

Rev. R. W. Rowland took charge of the services on Rawdon circuit on Sunday while Rev. F. G. Joblin preached farewell services to the Stirling people. At Mount Pleasant Rev. Rowland based his address on "The Consummation of Union." The choir sang "Brother Let Me Years go By," and a duet "Lift up Your Eyes," was given by Miss M. Thrasher and Mr. John Coggins with Mrs Frances McKeown as pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Rooney Wright, Shirley, Mr. and Mrs. D. Donohue, River Valley, visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sloss on Sunday.

Mr. Kenneth Holmes had his tonsils removed on Tuesday. Dr. Chant of Belleville performed the operation.

The June meeting of Mount Pleasant Women's Missionary Society was held at the church with an attendance of twenty.

The service opened with quiet music "In Christ There is no East Nor West," played softly by Miss Frances McKeown and the president, Mrs. Phillips opened with "The call to Worship." All sang "The Church's One Foundation", as a tribute to the long years of union followed by the Lord's prayer in unision.

Plans were made to entertain the Band in July. Many members also were roll call. The corresponding Secretary read a letter from Mrs. Travis, sectional Vice President.

Mrs. Don Campbell read 146th Psalm and Mrs. Percy Maddigan gave a devotional talk "Your Work and Mine" based on Mrs. Smyth's address given at last meeting.

Mrs. Allan Bailey read a selection from the Monthly Letter "Hold Fast Only."

Miss Erma Thrasher rendered a vocal solo with guitar accompanist "I'll Trust Every Step of the Way."

Mrs. Hicks Bailey outlined another chapter of the Study Book dealing with the lives of Indian missionaries and the establishment of the Sunday schools.

Mrs. Edgar McKeown sang a vocal solo "Building For Eternity," with Mrs. C. McKeown as accompanist.

Mrs. John Holmes gave a splendid report of the recent branch conference held in Belleville and was tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

Mrs. F. G. Joblin closed this meeting with prayer, which was most fitting considering that in the near future she is leaving for another field of labor.

Messrs. Victor Taylor, Roy Walker and Charlie Carter attended the funeral of Mr. Alex Fargey under the auspices of the I.O.O.F.

Great improvement is being made on the Campbellford highway better known as the Dropkick Trail. Several trucks are now covering the road bed with a coat of crushed rock.

Mrs. Edith Sharp, Mr. Clifford Sharp and family and Mr. James Sharp of Wellman's, Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson and Lela, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Johnson of Belleville were among those who attended the funeral of Mr. Allan Sharp at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Friday.

Miss Rosalie McMullen of Springbrook spent a few days last week with her grandmother, Mrs. Alley Sharp.

Mr. and Mrs. James Honeywell, Castleton, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Weaver, Belleville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnson on Friday.

Mr. John Coggins, Misses Edna Thrasher and Mildred Sharp attended the Lucky Seven tea at Carmel on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Women's Association. Mr. Coggins rendered three solos with Miss Thrasher as accompanist. They were "Cohankus Butcher Shop," "Sally Lee" and "Father's Whiskers."

Miss Jessie Johnson of Wellman's was a supper guest Friday evening of Mrs. Harold Rowe and attended the league service.

Mrs. R. Macmillan visited Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Babcock of California, and friends of Consecon visited Mrs. Charles Sharp on Saturday.

Mr. Herb Higgs and Miss Faye Andrews were supper guests Sunday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Johnson of Campbellford spent a couple of days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Johnson.

Mr. Claude Sharp, Miss Mildred Sharp, Mr. O. Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sharp and Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharp, Mrs. Harold Rowe, Mr. Jack Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown and Frances, Mrs. Sarah Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey, Mrs. Emma Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Sharp and sons, Mr. Robert Sharp, Mrs. Charles Sharp were among those who attended the funeral of Mr. Allan Sharp on Friday afternoon in Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McConnell entertained in honor of the former's sister and husband Mr. and Mrs. Don Rose on Friday evening and those present enjoyed a delightful reception tea. The guests included Mrs. Vera Rose of Sudbury, Mr. Norman McConnell, Misses Isabel Turner, Muriel Millgan, Frances McKeown and Edna Thrasher of Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Andrews.

Mr. George Weaver attended the funeral of Mr. Alex Fargey at his late residence on Thursday afternoon. Deceased was Past Master under the auspices of the I.O.O.F.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharp, Madoc and Arden spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Post at Springbrook.

On Wednesday evening the boys of Centenary paid Mount Pleasant a visit and returned home with a score of 28-14 in their favor.

Mrs. Maudsley was a guest of Mrs. Thomas Andrews on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Muriel and Doris of Salem spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Montgomery entertained relatives from Marmora on Sunday.

Mrs. John Reid is holidaying with her sister at Welcome near Port Hope. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on Friday, June 14th.

The Sunbeam Mission Band held their June meeting at the church with a good attendance. The service opened with a quiet musical prelude, call to worship and recitation of "When He Cometh." Miss Edna Noble read the Bible lesson. The leader Miss E. Thrasher outlined the worship story entitled "The Beautiful Gate." Misses Gladys Summers and Evelyn Melville gathered the offering amounting to forty-two cents.

Miss Frances McKeown took charge of the study story entitled "A Ride in the Night." Misses Marie Sharp and Winnie Phillips rendered a duet and Miss Eileen MacMullen read a selection. This helpful meeting closed with the Band prayer.

SHAGGY BEAR VISITS MARMORA

A shaggy black bear, lured perhaps from the bush at the fringe of the village by the aromas of a fat pig in a pig pen owned by Mr. Jack Gray, nearby invaded Marmora yesterday morning. Of course the best is the first time in the recollection of the oldest resident.

Entering the village the bear made his way in the direction of the Gray pig pen and after snuffing around for a few moments outside the barricade was sighted by Mr. William Wright, elderly resident. Scared by his approach, the bruin scampered across his path and disappeared along a path in the direction of a nearby woods.

"First bear I've ever seen around here," commented Mr. Wright later,

SEARCH ENDED FOR MRS. RYAN AS NOTE COMES

Missing Woman Sends to Stirling P. M. Address For Mail

BOARDED TRAIN

Police Awaiting Reply to Inquiry Made in New York City

"Kindly forward my mail to 290 Nicholas Street, New York City."

These words in a letter received this morning by Postmaster S. T. Wells, Stirling, and addressed personally to him, dated from New York City, June 18, with an 8.00 p.m. o'clock cancellation mark, ended today a continent-wide search by police of this country and the United States for Mrs. Michael Ryan of the 8th Concession of Sidney, who, together with her two children, Marjorie, 11, and Walter, seven, had been missing from their Sidney home for the past week.

Provincial Police of the local detachment, who yesterday were advised by Postmaster Hollin of the receipt of the letter received communication with Mr. Ryan of Sidney who originally met his wife in New York on June 5, 1924.

Mrs. Ryan is at the home of Mrs. Bridget Roderick, 280 St. Nicholas Street, New York, where her mother resides.

Mrs. Ryan and her two children, Walter and Marylean Cummings here last week by motor, arrival in Belleville last autumn, after marrying Michael Ryan, Sidney farmer in New York City, had requested the whereabouts of "my husband and my Canadian home," as she termed it. Authorities were inclined to believe today that Mrs. Ryan had returned to her previous home in New York City, without informing her husband of her intentions. Provincial Police are hourly awaiting a reply from New York to the effect that Mrs. Ryan has been located in that city with her two children.

NATIONAL CHURCH IDEA IS OPPOSED

Presbyterian Moderator, Rt. Rev. Dr. McKerroll, Voices View

Toronto, June 22 (CP)—Rt. Rev. D. T. L. McKerroll, D.D., Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, today voiced his opposition to proposals for organic union with the protestant denominations in the Dominion.

He said: "I do not believe in the principle of large mergers of any kind either in business or business and I do not believe a national church would be the best interests of the Dominion of Canada or of the Kingdom of God which knows no national boundaries."

Other Presbyterian clergymen expressed a similar opinion.

ARMED POLICE PATROL STREETS

66 Californians Held Under Rioting Charges

Eureka, Calif., June 22 (AP) — Heavily armed police patrolled the streets here today to prevent another outbreak of lumber strike rioting which resulted in the death of one man and the probable fatal shooting of two others.

Sixty-six persons were held under charges of rioting and assault with deadly weapons as a result of the disorders which followed the start of strike pickets and 300 workers at the Holmes-Eureka lumber mill.

W. H. Kaarte, 42, Eureka, was fatally injured. Little hope was held for the recovery of Harold Delong, 33, shot in the abdomen, and Paul Lampella, 31, shot in the head.

Ten persons were wounded by police gunfire and five policemen were injured. Four civilians also were injured in various ways.

Floods and Winds Spread Death and Loss in U. S.

Chicago, June 22 (CP)—Floods and near-tornado winds spread death and destruction through the United States mid-west today. Texas and Arkansas were hardest hit.

A fourth victim was added to the death list in Arkansas after a tornado which swept the Texarkana region causing property damage of $500,000 in an area two by thirty miles. About 1500 head of livestock were reported drowned.

Another two thousand men Arkansas acres were submerged when a crew of 100 abandoned efforts to save a levee on the Arkansas River above Kentucky and Illinois watched the first day of summer add to the havoc. Torrential rains swelled rivers, swept away bridges and inundated farm lands in both states.

High winds added one death in North Dakota as lightning took a life in Missouri.

STANDARD PRICE IS SET FOR MILK

Ttentative Agreement is Reached by Producers And Manufacturers

Toronto, June 22.—(CP)—Tentative agreement has been reached between Ontario Milk Manufacturers and Milk Producers for a standard minimum price to be paid by the manufacturers, it was announced today by the Milk Control Board following a series of conferences.

Another conference will be held to work out details but present plans call for the agreement to extend for a nine-month period, subject to cancellation at 30 days' notice by either party.

While the prices will be stabilized throughout the industry, the figure reaching was not announced but a Board official said it would be on a formula basis similar to that obtaining under the agricultural adjustment administration in the United States.

The agreed price will not mean an upward revision, it was explained, but had this price been paid over the period of months after the agreement would have been material improvement in the price paid the producers.

FOUND PARALYZED ON CABIN FLOOR

Sudbury, Ont., June 22 (CP)— Found lying on the floor of his cabin at Copper Cliff where he had been for a week in a semi-paralytic and unconscious condition, Adam Chaki is in St. Joseph's Hospital here today. His condition tho' slightly improved this morning is very serious.

Held lived alone and June 12th made a trip to Creighton, eight miles away, for provisions and apparently collapsed shortly after his return home. A Finnish farmer from whom he purchased milk missed him Thursday and investigating, found him unconscious. The roads were practically impassable and the man could not be moved that night.

Held's story, though somewhat incoherent, indicates he lay in the same position on the floor for a week except for one journey to a well nearby to get some water.

OPEN VERDICT GIVEN BY JURY

First Inquest to be Held at Michipicoten Since 1905

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 22 (CP)—Death by drowning in the Parkhill Mine June 2 "by a person or persons unknown" was the verdict of a coroner's jury at Michipicoten last night.

The inquest was the first to be held in the Michipicoten country since 1905, Coroner Dr. J. F. Keith presiding and Attorney J. L. O'Flynn, K.C., of the Sault were in charge. Together with Inspector A. H. Palmer, Sudbury, of the Provincial Police, they made the trip to Michipicoten last night.

Lyall's death has been the subject of intensive investigation by police ever since his body was found lying on the floor near Parkhill Mine about one o'clock in the morning of June 2.

CIRCULAR LETTER SENT TO POLICE

Requests That Infringements of Traffic Laws be Punished

Toronto, June 22 (CP)—Declaring greater strictness was required in enforcing provisions of the Ontario Highway Traffic Act respecting the condition of vehicles and equipment, Attorney General A. W. Roebuck and Minister of Highways T. B. McQuesten have addressed a circular letter to police throughout the province.

Reason for the statement was the increase in number of accidents and complaints by the public, said the letter, which states most complaints came respecting glaring headlights. Other prominent causes were automobiles with only one headlight and others without a tail light.

ROSS SOMERVILLE SIX UP AT 18TH IN GOLF FINAL

Gordon Taylor of Toronto Opponent at Ancaster

FINE WEATHER

"Sandy" Qualifies For Eighth Title by Win Over Leonard

Hamilton Golf and Country Club, Ancaster, Ont., June 22.—(CP)—Ross "Sandy" Somerville of London today set up on Gordon Taylor, Jr., of Toronto, at the end of 18-holes in the 36-hole Canadian amateur golf championship.

Hamilton Golf and County Club, Ancaster, Ont., June 22.—(CP)—C. R. "Sandy" Somerville of London, Ont., will link big for the Canadian Amateur Golf Crown was two up over Gordon Taylor, Jr., Toronto, at the end of nine holes in the 36-hole final here today. Somerville won the first hole but lost on 39.

Second Hole—450 Yards, Par 4

Again Somerville's drive was straight and he looked for a 3 up. Sandy's second, a long brassie, was sliced and struck a tree or would have gone out of bounds. Taylor came out of the trap but was also sliced and his ball in the trees overshot the green with his third. Sandy, closer to the green, but in the rough, was two over. Taylor three putted while Sandy needed only two for a birdie and won the hole up. Somerville 5, Taylor 6.

Third Hole—360 Yards, Par 4

Sandy's tee shot hit a tree and bounced back on the fairway. Taylor's drive fell short of the green with an uphill lie with his second. Somerville's second was on the green 15 yards off the green. Both were on with their third and Sandy's pitch six inches short with a long putt. Taylor was over three feet first missing the cup. They halved the hole in five.

Fourth Hole—530 yards, Par 5

With a 260-yard drive and a wonderful 240 yard spoon second Sandy was four feet from the pit shooting for an eagle. He took a birdie instead and went three up when Taylor's 40 foot first putt stopped three inches.

Somerville 4, Taylor 5.

Fifth Hole—415 Yards, Par 4

Taylor was on in two. 18 feet by and Somerville's was five away with his second. Sandy's putt left him 18 inches and Taylor's hit the back and bounced out.

Taylor 4, Somerville 4.

Sixth Hole—345 Yards, Par 3

Somerville's tee shot carried over the green and Sandy's was short. Taylor's was but short and his first putt took him to within four inches. Sandy chipped on and holed a four footer. Taylor sank his to halve the hole.

Somerville 3, Taylor 3.

Seventh Hole—360 Yards, Par 4

Both were on in two with nine inches and he hit edge of the green, Taylor holed out from 12 feet for a birdie. Somerville putting his 14 footer by an inch and was then two up.

Somerville 4, Taylor 5.

Eighth Hole—135 Yards, Par 3

Taylor's tee shot was ten feet from the cup. Sandy's was just over the green, 30 feet from two feet away.

They halved the hole in five threes when Taylor's first putt stopped two feet from Somerville's 3.

Ninth Hole—425 Yards, Par 4

Into the trees on Sandy's first putt, a long allcamp, went five feet from the cup. Taylor's tee brough him 18 inches away and he holed out to halve the hole.

Taylor 5, Somerville 5.

They made the turn with Sandy two up.

Tenth Hole—365-Yards—Par 4

Three were on in one after 360 yard tee shots. Both were short with their putts and Sandy halved the hole in par.

Taylor 4; Somerville 4.

Eleventh Hole—Yards—Par 4

Taylor's second was short and Somerville's was on with his second a an uphill lie. Sixth got on in three and Sandy's was on in four.

Taylor dropped his three footer to halve the hole.

Taylor 5, Somerville 4.

Twelfth Hole—378 Yards—Par 4

Taylor's drive on this second at the well trapped 12th green. Sandy's drive was short of the green by inches and stymied Taylor, who put his 30 footer also two inches away for a half in five.

Taylor 4; Somerville 4; and Sandy was still two up.

Thirteenth Hole—385-Yards—Par 3

Taylor's tee shot was short and Sandy's went over the far edge of the green. Taylor chipped five feet by and pin and Somerville went three inches past. Taylor holed his putt and Sandy dropped his to take the hole as he three up again.

Taylor 4; Somerville 3.

Purchase of Fire Pumper Protested by Ratepayers Committee to Meet Mayor

Alderman McCreary Presents Needs of Machine to Meeting

LONG DISCUSSION

Meeting Told Waterworks Department Willing to Pay Bill

Ratepayers of this city, still strongly skeptical and unimpressed by recent public test in Belleville of a machine of the type suggested, need further proof of the actual need of a motorized fire pumper before any action is taken in connection with their sanction, it was unanimously decided at the first representative gathering of the Ratepayers and Property Owners' Association of the city held in the city hall last evening.

In spite of the determined efforts of Alderman W. R. McCreary, chairman of the local waterworks department to impress the need of purchase of a fire pumper at an estimated cost of $4500 and an approximate expenditure of $175,000 for the duplication of the present filter beds at the filtration plant and the erection of a reserve storage tank, as recommended by engineers, the meeting, representative of the plant, in order to keep the city's water supply "safe" against emergencies, ratepayers, who cross-questioned Alderman McCreary on this matter, could not see the waterworks department and the company remained frankly unconvinced as to its need. Alderman McCreary who bore the brunt of the questioning, was the only representative of city council present.

The whole question of protection of which I am chairman is willing to pay the accounts itself, warning it is a matter of economy and protection for the city," maintained Alderman McCreary in answer to the repeated questions regarding the necessity of such a step as the only alternative he pointed out.

Alderman McCreary was met by the Alderman in explaining the situation regarding the local organization and the alternative which now faces the city unless the pumper is purchased.

President in Chair

In opening the meeting, Mr. W. C. Springer, president of the association, explained that the meeting had been called to discuss, collect and put all who were present know why it had been called, "Simply to see if this fire pumper is really needed, and to have some good open discussion," he said in opening.

On the motion of ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett, seconded by Mr. Cooke, it was dispensed with owing to the fact that the meeting was of a special nature.

President Springer invited discussion.

WINDSOR ATHLETE KILLED IN CRASH

Hugh McLellan Pinned Under Car After Going in Ditch

McGregor, Ont., June 22 (CP)—Hugh McLellan, 22 year old Windsor athlete, was killed and a companion, Gordon Hamilton, 21, injured when their motor-car plunged into a ditch near here today.

J. L. Forsyth of Detroit, a passing motorist, discovered the car in the ditch with McLellan pinned beneath in a dazed condition. It is now said that he had been pinned under the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Windsor, that MacLan's body was found under the car door. The car was partly submerged in a pool of water.

Police said that the exact manner which of the young men were driving the car when it overturned is to leave the road. From tire marks it was evident the car swerved for some 300 feet along the shoulder of the road before striking a culvert and plunging into the ditch, police tially concerned. MacLellan is believed to have been killed outright.

PRINCE OF WALES WILL SPEND BIRTHDAY IN BERKSHIRE

London, June 22 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, still clinging to youth in industry and appearance, will spend his birthday tomorrow quietly at his country house, Fort Belvedere, Sunningdale, Berkshire, with personal friends.

Germany Spikes League Report

Berlin, June 22 (AP)—Reports that Germany would return to the League of Nations as a result of her naval pact with Great Britain were spiked today by a Foreign office spokesman who said "our return to Geneva is by no means imminent."

Although political circles viewed the naval accord as a tremendous success for the third Reich, the optimists prevailed there are still other things to be granted to Germany before her country into the League can be considered. An end to the war of the points in question.

Field Supervisor Explains Welfare Aim

Miss Mae Fleming, Field Supervisor, Department of Public Welfare, was in the city making her regular inspection of the office and work of the Children's Aid Society having come in from Picton, where she had addressed the County Council in respect to the new regulations.

Picton, June 22.—The County Council listened to an address by Miss Mae Fleming, Supervisor of the Children's Aid branch of the Department of Public Welfare, when Miss Fleming explained in detail the aims of the department and the method of providing shelter. She said the minister was anxious to have a city with a 10,000 population and laid emphasis on the advantage to the child of home life.

Miss Fleming stated that the Prince Edward district, consisting of the building itself was about the worst in Ontario. Her talk cleared up much misunderstanding in regards to the workings of the New Regulations.

CABINET STUDIES CAMP CONDITIONS

8 Western Men Want to Play Lone Hand

Ottawa, June 22 (CP)—Relief camp conditions in the Western Provinces and organized unemployment movements in Ontario and Quebec, occupied the attention of the Dominion Cabinet today.

Delegations from Toronto and Montreal representing the Relief Camp Workers' Union of Canada sought to join eight delegates from 4,000 British Columbia and Alberta relief camp strikers, now in Regina, in meeting the Cabinet. The Ottawa men waited to play a lone hand.

The Government accepted the proposal of the Ontario and Quebec groups. It was understood that immediately following the conference with the relief camp delegation, which began at 11.30 a.m.

The Western men put before the Cabinet demands for work and wages of 30 cents an hour minimum for unskilled labor and changes in management of the camps. Spokesmen for the Ontario and Quebec groups said they endorsed the Western demands and had several of their own to present.

Their proposals, but indicated they were not to be presented by the Government's Unemployment Commission.

Pamphlets published by the Toronto Branch of the Workers' Unity League and distributed at the Government Insurance Bill and advocating another measure in the stand were circulated in Ottawa yesterday and today.

BUCK HEADWINDS DELIBERATELY

Alameda, Calif., June 22.—(AP)—Deliberately striking headwinds, the Pan-American Airways clipper ship Hawaii made a record flight here today toward this city on her fourth trip between Honolulu and California.

At midnight (4 a.m. E.D.T.) she was 940 miles out from Honolulu.

The huge ship actually covered stormy weather.

She sought out favorable winds by changing altitude and navigation problems to be met by the 36 passengers and crew expecting to bridge the 2,410 mile water gap soon.

CADET TRAINING IN COLLEGIATE UPHELD 11 TO 8

Two And Half Hour Debate on Issue Faced by Board

BOTH SIDES FIRM

Proposals of Delay And Plebiscite Are Not Favored

Cadet training remains at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School. After a battle fought for hours about the council board of the Board of Education last night, the vote stood: eight—to discontinue training and substitute physical training and eleven—to continue cadet training.

Advocating the discontinuance were: W. J. Graham, M. J. Allin, E. D. Adams, R. L. Brown, G. H. Dawkins, David Harkness, George F. Lest, and S. B. Silver.

Supporting the retention of cadet training were: P. M. Reid, Mrs. Lewis, L. Ryde, Edward B. Lally, E. Moncrief, M. W. Reid, George F. Ostrom, Col. W. N. Ponton, Rev. W. H. Reid, R. C. Baker, C. R. Weaton and Col. E. A. Geen.

Practically every member present spoke on the issue, some backing their arguments with piles of data and some thumping from all sources and all parts of the province The only absentees were V. H. Rose and George Hepburn.

The motion over which the issue was taken was that of which notice was given at the last regular meeting by W. J. Harrison:

"That from September 1, 1935, the present system of cadet training in the Collegiate Institute in the R. C. I. and V. S., and all intermediate schools be discontinued and in connection with the physical training or pupils be centred in such extension of the present system of physical education as may be recommended by the Physical Director.

Post-Mistress At Springbrook Honored

Mrs. H. Mumbly, post-mistress, Springbrook, at a luncheon banquet on Wednesday at the Hotel Quinte was presented with a desk and table lamp for being the youngest post-mistress present at attending the convention. She also was the very youngest appointed by Mr. R. W. Mix District Director of Post Offices at Belleville. Mrs. Mumbly succeeds Mr. Gerald Trapsdale for Eastern Ontario District, for her very attentive work in the service.

The prize was donated by Mr. Mix. Mr. Trapsdale presided at the oldest postmaster attending the convention.

Mrs. Mumbly made a very suitable reply, thanking the association for the support they have given her. Mrs. Mumbly feels she derived a great deal of benefit from the Convention and will be more interested than ever in her work.

RED CROSS SOCIETY COMPLETES DRIVE

Yesterday Mr. N. R. Vinten, field secretary of the Ontario Red Cross, met the officers of the local branch to check over the results of the recent campaign. He congratulated the Belleville branch on completing the most successful campaign since 1929. A total of approximately $750 is on hand with several workers and follow-up calls yet to hear from, which ensures an amount very close to the objective.

It was found on checking over the records that there was a large increase in individual givers, at least one hundred more than last year, and while some large contributors found it necessary to curtail their donations somewhat, the increased number of subscribers brought the total up. The Red Cross society is grateful to the public generally as it is indebted in a good measure for successful activities of the year.

Mr. T. O. Hefkey, president of the local branch, stated that as soon as possible an effort to increase the activities will be made and the executive urged that all workers will do make returns or any citizens desiring to contribute to the appeal do so at once.

RECOVER BODY OF REGINALD MAPP

The body of Reginald Mapp, farm hand near Newburg, who met his life in the Moira River on Monday morning, was recovered yesterday by searchers, who had employed grapples and a seine net in search. It was recovered by the net in a twenty foot depth of water. Twenty-five men under the direction of Provincial Constable Ward were engaged in dragging operations.

Mapp said to have emigrated here from Australia had formerly been employed as a stone crusher, and a boat, which had been tied to the scene became loosened and drifted away. The young man attempting to recover it by swimming, but had gone just a short distance, when he sank. Efforts at resuscitation were fruitless. No inquest will be held.

MEASLE EPIDEMIC OF MILD TYPE

An epidemic of measles that has the past week was computed to have been in the neighborhood of 800,000 gallons of water received over the area of Belleville. For the mathematically minded, one gallon of water weighs ten pounds.

MASONIC BRETHREN TO ATTEND CHURCH

On Sunday, June 23rd, the Masonic brethren of this community will attend divine service, in a body at John Street United Church, where the special speaker of the day will be the newly appointed District Chaplain, Bt. Rev. Geo. Marshall. Special music for the occasion will be under the direction of Miss Leona Riggs, choir leader at John Street Church. The members of Trinity Lodge No. 11; Belleville Lodge No. 123; and the Hiram Lodge No. 383, A.F. and A.M. G.R.C., and members of surrounding sister lodges will leave the local Masonic Temple at precisely 10.30 a.m. on Sunday. Many notables of the order from the Prince Edward District are expected to attend including the present District Deputy Rt. Wor. Bro. W. C. Mikel and others.

MARKERS PLACED AROUND PIERS

Possibility that buoys or markers would be placed at the location of the piers on the piers at the west side of the bay bridge to warn boat owners instead of removal of the piers as originally intended, by the local Board of Harbor Commissioners was voiced today by Mr. James Le Roque, diver, following an underwater examination of the piers last week. So solidly are they imbedded that removal of the piers would be a heavy and expensive job, it was stated.

CELEBRATE FEAST CORPUS CHRISTI

Benediction Will be Given on Lawn at St. Michael's

Tomorrow the Catholic Church throughout the world will observe the feast of Corpus Christi. This festival honors the Real Presence in the Blessed Eucharist. In the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, tomorrow, First Holy Communion will be administered to a large number of children at eight thirty Mass. At ten o'clock the High Mass starts, there will be a procession in which the soldalites of the parish will participate, and the Most Holy and Blessed Sacrament will be given on the altars on the lawn.

The main altar which has been decorated during the last two weeks by Mr. and Mrs. Mario Petrucci Co. of Montreal, is now complete and will be unveiled this day. Artistic and magnificent specimen and is a real triumph of art.

PLEA OF GUILTY NOT ACCEPTED

Harmon Waley, However, is Sentenced to 45 Years

By LELAND HUNTSMAN
Copyright, 1935
By The Associated Press

Toronto, Wash., June 22—(AP)—Without the aid of her self-confident husband, 19-year-old Margaret Thulin Waley was faced a choice today between a fight for possible freedom or again pleading guilty to conspiracy in the $200,000 kidnaping of little George Weyerhaeuser.

Her lawyers will be given to-morrow's court today.

She thought it over through long, lonely hours last night and early today in the fortress-like county jail at Olympia where for 20 years-old ex-convict husband, Harmon, began serving a 45-year sentence in the McNeil Island federal penitentiary.

It was the first of what may be a lifetime of loneliness for the girl who had been held in separate cells but under the strictest guard since their arrest June 8 and 9 in Salt Lake City where Margaret's spending money with ransom money led to their capture.

Refused Plea

Waley was immediately sentenced and judge Ernest M. Ellis refused to accept the plea after her attorney, Stanley J. O'Brien, stalked from the grounds she had known nothing of the kidnapping until after the little boy had been stolen.

Judge Cushman asked her if she could read English. When she said "yes" in a whisper, but not very well, a clerk handed her a copy of the indictment and Judge Cushman admonished her to take it to jail with her, read it, and come back today to tell him whether she was guilty or not as charged.

In exchange for yesterday's guilty pleas, the U.S. Government dismissed an indictment charging Mrs. Waley with mailing the second of the ransom notes to George's father, J. P. Weyerhaeuser, Jr., and postponed until the first motion day in October an indictment charging Harmon Waley and Talmadge with assisting extortion letters to Weyerhaeuser.

TRUSTEES PRAISE WORK OF NURSE

Board of Education Takes Recess For Summer Months

The Board of Education met night at its regular meeting, the last until September gave hearty commendation of the services of the nurse, Miss Parshman, whose report was read. Col. Poston and others spoke highly of her work.

The Board authorized the secretary to send letters of thanks to the ladies who had helped in the work of interesting the girls of the schools in the musicales.

Miss Greta George School—Mrs. Mikel.
Queen Alexandra School—Mrs. Kenney.
Queen Victoria School—Mrs. Jas. McIntosh.
Queen Mary School—Mrs. R. C. Slaler.
Two others supplied during absence of above—Mrs. Sweet, Mrs. Flintoft.

When the Board dealt with the report of Principal MacLennan of Collegiate, he was requested to look with favor upon a twenty dollar expenditure for a cabinet as suggested by Miss Parshman in the Household Arts Department. The expenditure to be approved by the supply committee.

Re-organization of Form 2B for geography teaching requested by Miss Ellis Committee with instructions to report back.

It was in connection with that that Col. Poston suggested that "we should find the best economy in the Collegiate, so that good work done here by adding departments to contribute to the success of their school by doing some of the work."

S. D. Adams, who was in the chair said "That is why we study the ins to consideration."

The recommendation of reconditioning had been made by Mr. Ellis.

Mr. Hyde showed that the mechanical department had already done work of this very kind.

The attendance officer was commissioned on his report.

The school management report noted that the question of safety will be reconsidered in 1936 and that the Board thanked the officials for information to the staff.

Mr. C. O. Gerow's resignation—it is hoped that it will be found that that there will be no further notice.

Obituary

LATE RICHARD APPLEBEE

The funeral of Richard Appleby, formerly of Belleville, who passed away at his home in Toronto on June 20th, took place from Toronto on Friday and left there at 2 p.m. the funeral party and many old Belleville friends assembled in Christ Church to attend the service which was conducted by Rev. Canon Archer, the Rev. C. O. Wright.

Interment was made in the family plot in Belleville cemetery, the committal service being conducted by the Rev. C. O. Wright.

The bearers were Messrs. A. R. Bonnell, S. P. Hagerman, Gilbert Morgan, Norman Black, R. A. Hudson and J. B. Harbr.

Nurseries Established in 1893 Have Been Important Factor In City and District History

42 Year Old Firm Will Close Famous Gardens Shortly

HISTORY OF NURSERY

Visitors coming to Belleville are always impressed with the splendid appearance of the names both large and small and the large number of beautiful trees that line the city streets. Indeed, the city is famed as the "City of Trees" for viewed from a distance it has the appearance of a park with the spires of churches and the white tower indicating the presence of a large community.

Citizens have always taken pride in beautifying their home surroundings with shrubbery and flowers for a house or nursery has therefore can be made attractive with the artistic planting of growing things. Every individual is endowed with the talent for doing this to the best effect and the man who has had experienced folk for information and material and the assistance he, therefore, the logical choice.

42 Years in Nursery Business.

Thirty-two years ago the firm of Reid & Son was established by Mr. Reid, who has been, for forty-two years, supplying the people of Belleville with nursery stock and advising them how to plant and care for their shrubbery and that is the Belleville Nurseries established here in 1893 by Mr. Reid, who is still in the field. Owing to the fact that the 1893 nursery is now nearly over the city it was thought that a brief history of the nursery would prove interesting to many of the residents of this district.

An interview with Mr. Harold Reid, the present manager of the Belleville Nurseries, Limited successor of the Ontario Intelligencer learned that there are few homes in the district which do not possess a share of flowering shrubs, shade trees or evergreens from the nursery plants that had their origin at the nursery on Dundas street east. Mr. Reid had made a standing offer to the city council that he would supply free shrubbery to fill up the new cemetery on Dundas Street if they would make the start by levelling the ground but advantage was not taken of the offer and eventually the burial ground was made over into a tourist camp.

Decline to Cedar Nursery

Since the passing of W. C. Reid on April 27, 1933, the business has been carried on by his son Harold who, as has been stated, is a graduate of O.A.C. but left the nursery business to enter the ministry of the Presbyterian church and at the time of his father's death was following a course at the University of Toronto.

During the past three years, attempts have been made by people for the carrying on of the business in this city but by the end of the nursery between Bowmanville and Oshawa. Many general nurseries do work and is, as well, one of the oldest business houses in the city but no satisfactory arrangement could be made. Therefore very reluctantly it was decided to close the nursery entirely as Mr. W. Harold Reid wishes to be free to devote his entire time to his academic interests and ministerial work.

Establishment of Nursery.

At this location and also on land acquired outside the city, he began the propagation of fruit trees, apple, pear, plum, cherry and also ornamental trees and shrubs, climbing vines, roses and evergreens. At the beginning, in the part of the business was the propagation of the fruit trees, both by budding in summer and by grafting indoors in winter. The trees grown here were of sorts as high quality as that fruit growers of Eastern Ontario recognized their superiority over imported stock. Records kept for the year 1900 show nearly forty varieties of apples propagated in the nursery and the sales from the Ontario Department of Agriculture and March 31, 1900 stated that the nursery stock of Mr. W. C. Reid was free from San Jose Scale. This pest is the worst insect pest sage elsewhere but has never been in Belleville.

Experimental Work.

Considerable experimental work was done here to determine the varieties in each class of plants best suited to the climate and soil conditions in this part of Ontario. It was found that many varieties of trees which thrive in the Niagara district, would not live here or if they lived, they would be of very little or no value. In this connection, experimental work was carried out more than twenty-five years ago with hardy catalpa trees. These trees were budded and some of them reached maturity and produced fruit of large size and good quality but the trees eventually died out because of winter killing. It was seen that the growing of peaches was not a sound investment for this district.

Budding.

Mr. Reid explained that there are quite a few peach trees in the city but practically all of these peach trees were grown from seedling which are fairly hardy especially when grown in a sheltered spot. However, the fruit from these trees while usually of good size and color is not as fine flavored as the "budded" stock. It is probably is not realized by the general public that the budding of peach trees in orchards are "propagated". By this it is meant a seedling tree of any variety of apple is taken and if, for instance, a spy tree is wanted, a budding sprig from a producing tree is planted beneath the bark of the seedling by a special process. Eventually, this "bud" will sprout into a branch. The rest of the original seedling tree is now cut off and all the strength of the new tree goes into the alien branch which in due course becomes a spy tree. It is one of the curious facts of nature than an apple or a peach tree will not reproduce a tree that will yield fruit as desirable as the propagated original. This is the reason that fruit growers get their trees from nurseries.

Over 100 Apple Varieties

Many varieties of apples and other fruits were grown, tested in their fruiting qualities and in the early fall dozens of varieties of apples could be picked from trees grown in the nursery. Over thirty years ago Mr. Reid entered an exhibit at the Toronto Fair of over one hundred varieties of apples. As a result of Mr. Reid's keen interest in improving the fruit growing industry in Eastern Ontario and his wide knowledge of the subject, he was much in demand as a judge of fruit at the fall fairs. Some exhibitors would go to three or one class of apple as two different types were very often there was very little to distinguish them and when Mr. Reid would expose the deception, there would become very indignant but such was the judge's knowledge of his subject that there never was much of an argument. In recent years more attention has been paid to the growing of ornamental stock and at one time more than two hundred varieties of named plants were in stock.

W. C. Reid's Interest in City

Mr. C. Reid was always active in the general affairs of the city serving for many years on the Board of Education and was chairman of the Board for 1902. For some years he was President of the Belleville Horticultural Society and also a Director of the Belleville Park Board.

It might be added here that all the trees and shrubbery in the Victoria Park were supplied by the Belleville Nurseries. Included among them is a Golden Elm, probably the only one in the district of its kind in city and quite a rare specimen in Ontario. For many years, Mr. Reid had made a standing offer to the city council that he would supply free shrubbery to fill up the new cemetery on Dundas Street if they would make the start by levelling the ground but advantage was not taken of the offer and eventually the burial ground was made over into a tourist camp.

Decline to Cedar Nursery

Since the passing of W. C. Reid on April 27, 1933, the business has been carried on by his son Harold who, as has been stated, is a graduate of O.A.C. but left the nursery business to enter the ministry of the Presbyterian church and at the time of his father's death was following a course at the University of Toronto.

During the past three years, attempts have been made by people for the carrying on of the business in this city but by the end of the nursery between Bowmanville and Oshawa. Many general nurseries do work and is, as well, one of the oldest business houses in the city but no satisfactory arrangement could be made. Therefore very reluctantly it was decided to close the nursery entirely as Mr. W. Harold Reid wishes to be free to devote his entire time to his academic interests and ministerial work.

He is a member of the Athletic Committee of the Rotary Club of Toronto.

FARMERS EXPECT MOSQUITO SCOURGE

Look out for a mosquito scourge in the district this season, warns a well known rural resident.

Heavy rains recently have formed gardens of pools, ponds and swamps all through the north country making ideal breeding ground for hordes of mosquitos which may soon be buzzing around. It was pointed out by him.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:

Last Sunday night I had the great pleasure of listening to the Argyll Band concert in the Camp Park which was most enjoyable and greatly appreciated by the large crowd which was present and I think that everything should be done to encourage the band in their Sunday night concerts.

I should like to suggest that a band stand or raised platform be provided by the city, with proper lighting facilities and not left to the band to have the rising of the lights. I am sure that this would not be a very great expense and would add materially to the efforts of the bandsmen.

(Signed) A Lover of Music.

DISTRICT FORD DEALERS MEET

Hold Successful Convention at Queen's Hotel on Friday

Public acceptance of the 1935 Ford car this season has already caused last year's sales record to topple, according to J. J. Trudeau, local Ford dealer who attended an enthusiastic dealer and salesman meeting in the Queen's Hotel, where the Ford Motor Company staged Canada's sales, service and advertising program was reviewed.

R. M. Sale, Windsor, assistant general sales manager of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, told the dealers that "within the course of the next few days the Ford Motor Company's combined export and domestic business will exceed that for the whole of 1934." As there is a considerable portion of the 1935 season yet to be taken into consideration, indications point to an excellent sales record for the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

The meeting was attended by the following executives of the Canadian company: Mr. Sale; W. Murdoch, Toronto, branch manager; C. R. Eaton, Toronto branch service manager; C. C. Harvie, Toronto branch sales manager, and F. R. Millard, advertising manager, East Windsor.

The purpose of the gatherings, as explained by Mr. Millard, is to review the sales, service and advertising activities of the company to date this year, and to explain the program which will be carried out for the balance of the year. Dealers were also given a definite idea of the national sales picture.

In describing the company's business this year, Mr. Sale stated that as of May 20, more Ford cars had been disposed of in Canada than for the whole of 1934, Canadian Ford sales, according to the latest registeration figures, the latest available were 24 per cent. of all passenger and commercial jobs sold in the Dominion.

Mr. Murdoch added that the Toronto branch, of which he is the manager, and whose territory takes in the Province of Ontario, exceeded last year's total sales figures on May 21 of this year. Ontario accounts 50 per cent. of the total car sales of the Dominion, he also explained, when giving these figures.

Similar meetings are being held at various other points in the province.

Police News

...Local police were informed today that Mr. Russell Wotten's automobile, parked on Bridge street Thursday evening, had been recovered in Peterboro yesterday. The vehicle was found abandoned. An epidemic of automobile thefts has been quite prevalent in this part of the province during the past few days and police today issued warnings to local motorists in relationship to securely locking their motor cars when leaving them parked on the street, simply as a precautionary gesture.

No arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past twenty-four hours, leaving the cell block vacant to accommodate fifteen transients last night.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Great Defender"
Film of Intense Interest Starring Matheson Lang.

What promises to be an outstanding screen production and of especial interest to cinema devotees is the forthcoming engagement of "The Great Defender" starring the Canadian-born actor, Matheson Lang, starting Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

"The Great Defender" is a gripping story of the eminent King's Counsel whose forte was defense and whose attitude towards his client was chivalrous and quixotic, to an astonishing degree—providing he was first convinced of the innocence of the accused.

It is the story of an artist, who, married to a jealous wife, pays too much attention to the pretty models in his employ. The wife has her husband watched, and, when persisted visiting the apartment of his latest model vows to leave his wife for good.

That same evening the model is found murdered and the artist is immediately suspected. His begs his wife to establish an alibi by stating that he spent the night in his own home.

The ensuing trial is staged in Old England and for five days the noted King's Counsel struggles to defend his client from what seems like certain conviction.

Yet so sure is the noted attorney that his client is innocent, he battles against overwhelming odds to a finish and demonstrates that upholds the fair name of British Justice.

Mr. Lang, before this Montreal-born actor been seen in such a powerful dramatic story, nor seldom has such a capable cast been assembled in support. Outstanding in support is the name of Margaret Bannerman, long a favorite on the English speaking stage; Arthur Margetson, handsome leading juvenile of many musical successes; also Jeanne Stuart, charming blonde ingenue, Ellaline and Bird, Lawrence Henry and many others of prominence.

Besides the excellent feature the management has provided an attractive group of short subjects, including a colored reel that takes one on an amazing trip through the Canadian Rockies; Cyclonasts is an unusual reel that displays the skill and ingenuity of motorcycle police on their metal steeds; a musical comedy entitled, "Broadway Bevy" concludes the entertaining program.

Engagement for two days only, Monday and Tuesday:

A local citizen complained to the authorities this morning in regard to boys firing air rifles in the vicinity of the city park on Pinnacle street. The lead pellets reported to be ricocheting in the direction of the street and endangering life and property in that vicinity. The authorities promised immediate attention and boys found discharging air rifles inside of the city limits will be severely dealt with.

Matheson Lang, noted Canadi an born actor, in a scene from "The Great Defender," coming to the Capitol Monday and Tuesday.

AT THE REGENT

"Naughty Marietta"
The Singing Team of Eddie Nelson Come to the Screen

Haunting music of Victor Herbert, mated with thundering drama of the founding of a great city, and with a delicate love romance running through it; such is "Naughty Marietta", Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's spectacular translation to the screen of Victor Herbert's musical comic opera playing at the Belle Theatre.

Jeanette MacDonald, who never was more beautiful nor sang so divinely, and Nelson Eddy, young American operatic baritone, who makes his debut as a screen hero with a performance that indicates he is on the screen to stay, head an elaborate cast.

Songs You Can't Forget

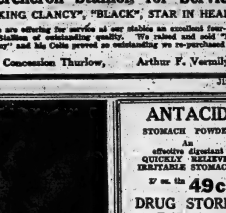
The story is staged on a spectacular scale. Huge settings, including a replica of old New Orleans of Creole days, gorgeous costumes and intense dramatic action embellishing such song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", "I'm Falling in Love with Someone", "Chansonette", "The Italian Street Song", and other immortal Herbert classics.

W. S. Van Dyke, directing incident many deft touches of artistry that the romance of the French princess who fled to New Orleans to escape a state marriage, and there found romance, in a young English naval officer.

Have Prominent Roles

A specially elaborate cast surrounds the two principals, including Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Charles Laughton), Frank Morgan, who plays the pleasure loving governor, Douglas Dumbrille as the stern French prince, and others.

Miss MacDonald wears several elaborate costumes throughout the action of the picture in Paris and Louisiana. Miss Lanchester in a whimsical role which she plays deftly. In the two absolutely opposite Comedy is provided by Edward Ellis, Cora and Harold Huber as Eddy's two servants and little Cora Sue Collins (baby Gerbo), cute, chanting blonde ingenue. Other notable players in the great cast are Joseph Cawthorne as Herr Schumann-Heink, Walter Meyer, Elsa Kinsford, Cecilia Parker and Walter Long.



A great thrill-picture of the ship bearing the Casquette Girls, the first shipload of "marriage ads" to New Orleans, the fight in the Everglades between Indians and pirates, the pursuance of the princess, are among the dramatic highlights of the production.

Orchids to Daniels

Gorgeous photography by William Daniels and masterful handling of the orchestra by Herbert Stothart do much to enhance to glowing perfection Victor Herbert's one of the five greatest operettas ever composed in this country.

Prepare the Ballot in "The Kind to Animals", and the Bills Latest World News Flashes precede the exhibition of the feature offering.

Ethel May Gerbo and James Gleason in "Murder on a Honeymoon" and Clive Brook and Madeline Carroll in "Lores of a Dictator" coms to the Belle, Tuesday.

Nelson Eddy, handsome newcomer to the screen and Jeanette MacDonald, who are co-star in "Naughty Marietta," at the Belle now.

SOCIETIES

TABERNACLE MISSION CIRCLE

The June meeting of the "Here Am I" Mission Circle was held at the home of Miss Edith Hurd on Wednesday evening.

The meeting opened with hymn 498, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes were read and approved. Roll call was responded to by thirteen members; eight visitors were also present. The Treasurer's report was read and adopted. Business matters were discussed. It was decided to not have a meeting in July.

The first three verses of hymn 386 were then sung and the Devotional topic was given by Miss Rachel Fox, then the last three verses of the hymn were sung. A reading, "Prince of Life" was given by Mrs. Myra Irvine, Miss Dorothea Newman sang a solo, Mrs. Ruby Moore gave an interesting paper about Dr. Grenfell. An instrumental was given by Miss Deacon. The chapter from the Study Book was taken by Miss Dorothea Newman. Hymn 523 was sung and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. Lunch was served and a social hall hour was enjoyed by all.

snow and why did English kingship fail in the person of its last possessor Hilaire Belloc answers these questions when he virtify reviews the life and times of the last reigning and governing king of England, in his book, "Charles the First; King of England." The book is a brilliant study of the illfated monarch, the day of his birth in Scotland till his death on the scaffold. All the great characters of this turning point in England's history are depicted in vigorous prose: Cromwell, Prince Rupert Hampton, Pym, Mr. Belloc finds in the king "what the foolish call obstinacy, but that in the wise have found no name; for no wise man has given Charles Stuart as yet his due praise. Men were led on to think him pliable, when they came unexpectedly on rigidity, they were infuriated." Whether the reader approves or disapproves of the opinions of the biographer he cannot fail to be impressed with his flashing wit and finished artistry.

"Pilgrims of the Wild" by Grey Owl is a record of two-fold achievement—a victorious struggle against odds in behalf of the wilderness and its inhabitants and the interpretation of that wilderness to those able to appreciate it. Of Scottish and Indian descent, Grey Owl was adopted in boyhood, by the Ojibway tribe with whom he gained knowledge of forest lore. Except for a brief experience abroad, during the World War, he has spent his life in the Candian frontier. He has been hunter, trapper, silver miner and forest ranger for the Canadian Government. He has now been officially appointed Protector of Wild Life and in his book describes his work in the founding of a colony for observation of beavers. "To me the rifle has ever been mightier than the pen. The feel of a canoe gunnell at the thigh, the splash of flying spray in the face, the rhythm of the snowshoe trail; the trust and confidence of small living creatures in the company of simple men: these have been my inspiration and my guide." "Pilgrims of the Wild" is a worthy sequel to "Men of the Last Frontier".

In spite of rumours of wars, the plea for peace are not suppressed. "Challenge to Death" and "Why Wars Must Cease" are two of the latest efforts to enlighten readers as to the dangers and futility of wars.

"Challenge to Death" is the English expose of the war menace. The challenge is presented by a group of distinguished writers including Vernon Bartlett, Joint-author of the novel "Journey's End." Julian Huxley, Vera Brittain, J. B. S. Haldane, Rebecca West, Vicounts Cecil says in his preface, "The writers are responsible only for what each of them has written. They belong to different parties in thought and approach the subject from various angles."

"Why Wars Must Cease" is one of as it really is made in "Why Wars Must Cease." Ten authors have tried to tear away the veil of sentimental patriotism through which many have looked at war. Among those who contributed to the volume are: Sir John Hosworth, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Jane Addams, Mary R. Woolley, "Why wars must cease" by Priestley, Rebecca West, Vicounts Cecil says in his preface, "The writers are responsible only for

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every day except Sunday and Monday at 224 Dundas Street, Belleville. Front Street, Belleville.

SWIMMING TO BE TAUGHT TO ALL

The appalling loss of life in Ontario through drowning has stirred the swimming authorities of this province to action with the result that swimming and life-saving information is to be brought to the attention of every man, woman and child in Ontario.

Few will believe it but the association is authority for the statement that drowning causes more deaths than motor car crashes throughout the entire year.

Spurred to action by this awful fact, the association has determined with the co-operation of the Premier of Ontario, the Department of Highways and all athletic societies to stem the tide of this loss of life. Drownings practically always come in the happiest moments and in this regard are different from every other accident. And yet though it is shocking how many lose their lives in this way the public has not been galvanized into some form of action which will lift this pall which is so heavy over the holiday and summer season.

In the city of Belleville it is quite probable there are very many who cannot swim though many of these have lived their entire lives beside the bay. In the country there are many who cannot swim. This is true of every part of the Province.

In Belleville much has been done by the Y.M.C.A. to spur up interest in swimming as an art and a protection as well as a form of pleasure and exercise. All the present annual plans are under way here to train those who cannot swim.

Every individual ought to co-operate in every way to bring swimming and life-saving knowledge and instructions to everyone. This seems like a very large order but it is not so impossible as may appear to some persons. Swimming is one of the most delightful of exercises and sports and to encourage people to swim is to ask them to have a good time in addition to providing themselves with protection against drowning and to make it possible for them probably to save other lives which have got into jeopardy.

That the association will be able to show very satisfactory results before the end of this season is expected. All the out-door organizations are standing staunchly behind the movement.

APPRECIATION OF COL. LAWRENCE

Men who fought in the desert with "Lawrence of Arabia" paid him the highest honor at a gathering in London, England, on Tuesday when Captain Liddell Hart said of Col. Lawrence's passing, "He died one with the spirit of the desert. His achievements were born of ambition founded on knowledge and achieved by personality. The artist and philosopher-crusader was driven by an almost religious urge to free the Arab race from bondage, and getting inside the Arab's skin first, he transcended it. He saw all things clearly, perhaps too clearly and understood others but never himself."

Lawrence, he thought, would live longest as a supreme letter writer. Sir Ronald Storrs, Military Governor of Jerusalem, referring to the fact that Lawrence never drank or smoked said he used a drug-spced, "Speed was his dope," he said, adding that, perhaps motor-cycle Lawrence built, but which was never delivered, had ten improvements, all Lawrence's own.

Knowing Lawrence though they did, none of the speakers came nearer to the solution of the Lawrence personality, which is like Hamlet's mystery—as mysterious as life.

CONSTRUCTION SITUATION

Upturn in construction in Canada during the past 20 months is noted by J. C. Reilly of Ottawa, secretary of the Canadian Construction Association.

He said building costs which today were lower than at any time since an index of costs was first computed in 1919. They are down twenty-five per cent. from the peak of 1930 and twenty per cent. from 1926 level.

Building last year in Canada totalled one hundred millions and this year it is expected that construction will touch $175,000,000. The high record in 1929 was close to $800,000,000.

How important to the life of the country is construction was shown by Mr. Reilly who said that 300,000 people in Canada look to it for their livelihood.

An increase in construction will have an immediate effect on the unemployment situation, he said.

Mr. Reilly broubht out one fact which ought to be a book to new construction—it is that the new materials are revolutionizing the industry as they add to the protection against fire.

Many a wretch has rid on a hurdle who has done much less mischief that uiterers of forged tales, coiners of scandal, and pilppers of reputation.—Sheridan.

Without the consent of the world a scandal doth not go deep; it is only a light stroke on the injured party, and returneth with the greater force upon those that gave it.—Seville.

FOUNTAINS

Water is always beautiful:
Quiet stream and placid pool,
Rain falling,
Brook brawling
Lake in the mountains, blue and cool!

Rivulets with merry call,
Roaring, mist-wreathed waterfall;
Then with gay,
Dancing spray
Fountains, loveliest of all!

Fountains of pearl-fringed expanse,
Through their haze the rainbows dance;
By their gleam
Lovers dream
In the gardens of romance.

WHEN "THE BAY OF QUINTE" is covered with white sails and topmasts are almost kissing the waves in a spanking breeze there is no finer or inspiring sight. This can be seen every Wednesday afternoon as the gallant young yachtsmen of Belleville try to outsail each other in craft mostly made by themselves. Stout craft, seaworthy and fast, and rigged in the most approved sailor manner. Upsets are many, due in part, to the eagerness of the young sailors, but an upset only adds to the fun of the sport for all the young sailors can swim like the proverbial ducks and have no fear of anything more serious than a wetting, and rather welcome that. Hundreds of people watch these races every week, and the interest in this clean and clever sport is growing. Admiral King Rogers and his staff of able seamen have dowsed much time in the sport since the inception of the races and are to be congratulated upon the success of the races and the smoothness of all details, everything being conducted shipshape and Bristol fashion.

BELLEVILLE KIWANIANS for the second year in succession have captured championships at the annual district picnic at Oshawa. This week President Cliff Barrager took the team of golf athletes to the motor city and trimmed all and sundry at horse-shoe pitching, the old army game, and softball—and so the B.K.'s came home laden with handsome prizes and considerable additional tan.

JIMMY BRADDOCK, plodding wearily the come-back trail, was strengthened by adversity—the iron apparently entered his soul and emerged in his muscles. Max Baer was weakened by Hollywood frivolities and went back instead of improving as any world champion should do. Many go down the Primrose Path but few return.

"ALABAMA" PITTS, what a name for the billboards, will have his chance in the sun. Judge Landis, Czar of professionalized baseball, and custodian of the morals of the game, but not the morals, has decided that "Alabama" can play with the Albany team. This man "Alabama" who has caused quite a furore in the sporting world, was the star baseball player of the 'Big House" at Ossining. He was doing time for a "hold-up" crime and was a model prisoner. Young, ambitious, bursting with energy, this lad from a good home, fell among thieves who took his character away, and his venture into crime was immediately disastrous, fortunately for him. He had plenty time in the "Big House" to study the best theories of life and realize that crime does not pay. Upon his release with a fine record as a baseball player, Johnny Evers, manager of the Albany baseball team, offered him a playing job. He was refused permission to play by a minor official of the governing baseball body, but a wave of indignation among sport fans resulted in the case being referred to the Chief Baseball Mogul, Judge Landis, who decided that "Alabama" should have his place in the sun this summer and be eligible to play professional ball if he could play good enough. He is being tried out by the Albany team and will make his first start Sunday.

REVOLT IN THE DESERT

by

T. E. LAWRENCE

Nasir, though usually merry, had a quick vein of suffering in him, and, to-night he was wondering why he, an Emir of Medina, rich and powerful and at rest in that garden-palace, had thrown up all to become the weak leader of desperate adventure in the desert. Two years ago he had been outcast, always fighting beyond the front line of Feisal's army, chosen for every particular hazard, the pioneer in each advance; and, meanwhile, the Turks were in his house, wasting his fruit trees and chopping down his palms. Even, he said, the great well, which had sounded with the creak of the bullock troughs for six hundred years had fallen silent; the garden crack'ed with heat, was becoming waste as the blind hills over which he rode.

After four hours' march we slept for two, and rose with the sun. The baggage camels, weak with the current study of Wejh, moved slowly, grazing all day as they went. We riders, light-mounted, might have passed them easily; but Auda, who was regulating our marches, forbade because of the difficulties in front, for which our animals would need all the fitness we could conserve in them. So we plodded sobberly on for six hours in great heat. The summer sun is this country of white sand behind Wejh could dazzle the eyes crudely, and the bare rocks each side our path threw off waves of heat which made our heads ache and swim. Consequently by eleven of the forenoon we were cautious against Abdulla's wish and told to hold on. So we halted and lay under trees till half-past ten, each of us trying to make a solid, though shifting shadow for himself by means of a dazbled blanket caught across the thorns of overhanging boughs.

We rode again, after this break, for three quick hours over level hot-pans, approaching at the wells of a great valley; and found the green garden of El Kurr lying just in front of us. White tents peeped from among the palms. While we dismounted, Nasir and Abdulla, Mahmud, the doctor, and even old Mustafa, the cavalryman, came out to welcome us. They told us that Sherif Sharraf, whom we wished to meet at Abu Raga, our next stopping place, was away raiding for a few days. This meant that there was no hurry, so we made holiday at El Kurr for the night.

The inhabitant of Kurr, the only one besides Sellouf, bcary Dhaifallah, labored day and night with his daughters in the little terraced look which he had created from the ancestors. It was built out of the solid edge of the valley in a bay defended against flood by a massive wall of unhewn stone. In its midst rose the well of clear, cold water, above which stood a balcony-platform of mud and palm logs. By this Dhaif-Allah, morning and evening when the sun was low, drew the great bowls of water and poured them into clay funnels contrived through his garden among the palm roots. He grew low palms, for their spreading leaves shaded his plants from the sun which otherwise might in that stark valley wither them and (a very good reason) his most profitable crop); with smaller plots of beans and onions, cucumbers and plants in due season.

The old man lived with his wife-man in a brushwood hut beside the well, and was scornful of our politic demanding that years to eat or drink these are efforts and bloody sacrifices would bring. We gently teased him with tackling liberty; with freedom of the Arab countries by the Arabs. "This Caravan, Dhaif-Allah, should it not be your very own?" However, he would not understand, but stood up to us, strike himself proudly on the chest, crying, "I—I am Kurr."

Still we were grateful to him, for, besides that he showed an example of contentment to us slaves of the necessary appetite, he sold vegetables; and on them, and on the bland bounty of Nasim and Abdulla and Mahmud, we lived richly. Much evening round the fires they had music, not the monotonous operatic beating of the Egyptians, but the exciting harmony of he Agayl, the plaintive quarter notes and trills of urban Syria, Mauluel had musicians in his unit; and bashful young men were brought up each evening to play guitars and sing cafe songs or Damascus or the love verses of their villages.

The soldier camp would grow dead quiet, and then, suddenly and then from every man would come a sighing, longing echo of the last note. Only old Dhaif-Allah went on splashing out his water, sure that no voice in us intermixable "no, ho, ho" song of the Howitzai; an epic chanted on three bass notes up and down, back and forward, in so round a tune that the words were indistinguishable. After a little we thanked him for the singing, since the pain went away to leave light, and our long line followed his turn by turn the whole way rolling about the torn black-cliffs in the moonlight.

We marched until the early sun, very trying to those who had ridden all night, began to be too hot to go off our own floor, thus lightening at last. After days of bewildering, narrow canals of low-lying Sharra' being not yet in Abu Raga, we made for the edge of the high inland cliffs compelled; and, after food, again to up our blanket roofs and lay till afternoon, restfully dodging after their unstable shadow, getting much relief from the constant pricking of flies.

FINALLY END BLOODY SOUTH AMERICAN WAR

Prisoner Gives Proof As He Kills Girl

Kalowitz, Poland, June 21—Frank Mak, unemployed, sentenced a year ago to 18 months in prison for the attempted murder of his sweetheart was released for a short "vacation" before completing his sentence.

Mak mailed to the home of his sweetheart, Elizabeth Rosenglyan, and suggested they take a walk, because "I have something important to tell you."

He took her to a railroad crossing and waited until a train was almost upon them. He hurried her on the tracks and jumped on top of the train by her own. Both were killed instantly.

THE RED TIGER

THE TERRIBLE SUSPICION
CHAPTER XIII

"Why do you say that?" Judith demanded. "Why is Mr. Spencer a crook?"

The old man's beady eyes drooped under their lashes. He fixed a nervous tattoo on his desk with a curious, knitter-looking paper knife that resembled a dagger.

"Never mind," he growled. "I shouldn't have said that."

"But you did say it," Judith persisted. "And I want to know what you mean. I'm tired of hearing nasty accusations against him without anything to back them up. Why do you say he is a crook? He is one of the clients of this firm, isn't he? Do we have crooks for clients?"

Judith stood over the old man very much like a young mamma armed with toothbrush and pencil. Mr. Hezekiah Stokes grinned to himself. My, what a transformation from the quiet, almost timid young girl whose accuracy in taking his dictation had quite won him appreciation. This girl had spirit as well as good looks and efficiency. There was unconcealed admiration in the look he turned upon her from those strangely young black eyes of his.

"There, there," he chuckled. "Don't take the old man too seriously. You've been working here over a year, Miss Bates. Haven't you learned yet that I'm not to be held responsible for everything I say?"

"But it's a serious thing to accuse a man of being a crook," said Judith, only slightly mollified.

"And I'm not the only one who's offended!" he said shrewdly. "Who else?"

Judith flushed.

"Nobody else has directly accused him," she said at last. "But—"

"But you've heard hints!" the old man pursued. "Well, that ought to be enough. You're too fine a girl, Miss Bates to throw yourself away on any man of doubtful reputation. I'm not saying anything definite against Randall Spencer. I can't. But I have certain suspicions. One of these days, though, I do know, and you ought to if you don't. He is engaged to marry a very responsible young woman of this city. He has no right to thrust his attentions on you while that engagement exists."

The old man's keen eyes seemed to bore into her, and Judith imagined she could see his hair bristling. He was rapidly approaching one of those almost apoplectic seizures of anger that he was subject to. Judith wanted to spare him that, for her own sake as well as his.

"He is nothing to me," she said. "I scarcely know him." It was hardly true, but she hoped it would be soothing.

The old man calmed down at once.

"I'm glad to hear you say that," he said gravely. "You think, of course, that it is none of my business, but I have taken a great interest in you. If I had a daughter I should want her to be like you." He was silent a moment and then continued: "That nephew of mine . . . I warn you against him, too. He has greatly disappointed me, and he'll regret it some day, if he ever seeks to annoy you again, tell me. I won't have it."

Judith wondered if the old man knew all the facts of the "Red Tiger" incident, and concluded that he did not. Perhaps if he did he would have a better opinion of Randall Spencer. She was almost tempted to tell him, but the opportunity seemed to pass, for he resumed the gruff manner of the hard-boiled old lawyer and said:

"Now to business. Take this letter to Burnside, Black and Stevens."

Judith took several letters and nothing more was said outside the realm of business. Back at her typewriter she tried to dismiss from her mind all thoughts of the adventures she had gone through at "The Red Tiger" and of Randall Spencer but there was no good. She had told old Mr. Stokes that Spencer was nothing to her, but that wasn't true. He was something to her, she had to admit to her inner self—something that filled her with confusion. She did not believe, he was a crook. She wouldn't believe it without the strongest proof—and maybe she wouldn't believe it then. These veiled hints and accusations were abominable. She would see Bob Harley and get at the bottom of this sordid mystery—he would know.

She had to telephone Bob without Sally's knowing, and that was rather difficult, but she managed it. Bob was at the Sun office and agreed to meet her at the corner of State and Seventeenth streets at four o'clock.

Judith was not a chronic clock watcher. Often when five o'clock came and the other girls had been spending the last five or ten minutes powdering their noses and cupid-bowing their lips in the washroom, so they would be all ready for a rush to the elevators when the hour struck, Judith would still be working, to the unconcealed disgust of her roommate Sally, whose philosophy of life obtaining work as a necessary evil to be avoided as much as possible and shirked whenever shirking could . . . be got away with.

But this afternoon Judith watched the slow progress of the clock hands with impatience. Finally at a quarter to four she went to Miss Seliger, the girl who sat as "Mother Superior" of the office force, as Sally dubbed her, and asked to get off.

Miss Seliger looked at Judith over her spectacles, severely.

"This is most unusual Miss Bates —for you," she commented. "Sick?"

"No," said Judith truthfully. "Some important personal business. I've cleaned up my work."

Miss Seliger cleared her throat.

"H-m. I believe you were off all day yesterday, and you were 15 minutes late this afternoon, Miss Bates. You know Mr. Stokes insists on regularity and punctuality."

"I'll ask Mr. Stokes to let me off if you don't want to take the responsibility," said Judith. "I'm sure it will be all right with him."

Miss Seliger knew, and resented, Mr. Stokes' paternal fondness for Judith, and hastened to say:

"That's entirely unnecessary. You can go, but please be punctual tomorrow, Miss Bates, and don't ask for time off again this week."

"Thanks," said Judith perfunctorily and prepared to leave.

"Gee!" whispered the curious Sally as Judith passed her desk: "What's the big idea, honey?"

"Date," said Judith inscrutably.

"What, again?" cooed Sally. "Gee you and Mr. Spencer are stepping on it, aren't you?"

Judith smiled cryptically and did not take the trouble to correct Sally's misapprehension by telling her the date was with Sally's boy friend, Bob.

Bob was standing at the corner of State and Seventeenth when Judith arrived at one minute past four, according to her wrist watch.

"Been waiting long?" she asked.

"Just got here," said Bob crisply. "What do you want?"

"I want a frank talk with you," said Judith. "The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Where can we go where we'll be undisturbed?"

Bob looked uncomfortable.

"Well," he growled, "this is going to be a pleasant interview. Let's get it over with."

He took Judith's arm and elicited her down Seventeenth Street to a small unprosperous looking restaurant.

"Nobody much likely to be here at this hour," he said.

At a small oilcloth covered table in the rear he gave a sleepy-looking waiter an order for sandwiches and mineral water.

"That pays our rent," he grinned. "The water won't hurt us, I guess and we don't have to eat the sandwiches. Now, can with it."

"I want you to tell me all about Randall Spencer," said Judith.

Bob poured the mineral water, lit a cigarette and offered his case to Judith. She declined with a shake of the head. He blinked nervously and blew smoke through his nose.

"That's a large order. I know very little about him."

"Then tell me what you do know and all of it. No evasions, no lying."

"You're putting me in a damned uncomfortable position, Judith," said Bob. "Really, he's something of a mystery."

"Well, go on."

"He came here about three years ago. He's leasing a swell apartment at the Marlborough, and got into all the best clubs. He's always had plenty of money; he's been what you call a good fellow; he's made the acquaintance and enjoyed the friendship of pretty nearly everybody of importance in town; he has the entree to the upper crust of our local society, and he's been sitting pretty."

"Bosh, you say. That means he isn't happy."

Bob shifted in his seat.

"It would be hardly fair to say that. Circumstances have arisen that have—clouded things, you might say."

"When did these circumstances arise?"

"That night of the shooting at 'The Red Tiger.'"

"You didn't know about them when you asked Mr. Spencer to take me home?"

"Of course not, Judith. What do you take me for?"

"You thought Mr. Spencer was all right until these circumstances as you call them arose?"

"Golly, Judith, are you studying for the law? You sound, just like the old man Stokes cross-examining a recalcitrant witness in his heyday as a trial lawyer."

"And you haven't answered my question, Bob. Quit squirming."

Bob grinned. Under his cigarette on the floor, there being no ashtray.

"You bet I did, Judith. I thought he was a prince."

"And you don't now?"

"Dammit, Judith, I don't know. I don't believe it. I don't know what to think."

"What is this terrible accusation against him?"

"There is no accusation—yet. It's just suspicion."

"What is it?"

Judith stamped her foot in her impatience. Bob clawed his hair and his face got red. Then he blurted out:

"They think he is the head of 'The Red Tiger' gang."

MANY FIELDS ARE UNDER WATER IN P. E. COUNTY

Land Has Had Little Chance to Dry Out After Recent Rains

Carrying Place, June 22—Deluged by downpours of rain almost unparalleled in the memory of old residents, the community is literally wading its way about its tasks. Monday's precipitation was perhaps the heaviest when a great amount fell in a few hours, wetting to the skin those unfortunate enough to be exposed to it.

Farmers are marking time with their work while they wait for a chance to get back to their regular tasks. Few can remember a year when at this season Corrigan's Point has been flooded as it now is, or when the land has been covered to such extent by ponds of water. Certainly the earlier dry spell has been more than compensated for.

Monday evening's ball game against the Trenton Canada Bud softball team was rained out when the locals found everything swimming in water. Thursday evening of this week they took on the Whitall Cans team at the local diamond. Few wheelers from the team arrived early this week, and are very bright and attractive. Vivid crimson in color, they have black nest with cuffs and vest, black shoes and socks. A crest with the letters "C-P" adorns the fronts of them, while various local names have been placed on the backs such as Westfall's Cartage, Quinte Hotel, Carrying Place Garage, Allard's Lunch, O'Keefe's, Westfall's Grocery and others.

Several weeks ago an account of a christening service at the United Church the names of baby Ronald Parker and baby Richard Black are mentioned but the name of Master Gerald Batchelor was inadvertently omitted.

A few weeks ago at the "pot luck" supper in the United Church hall a congregational get-together was held and in the later evening officers were elected.

List is as follows: Stewardsmen Wm. Black, W. E. Weese, J. A. Faison and Mrs. P. Green. Trustees Messrs. A. E. Weese, J. M. Hanthorn, Wm. Black, Harold Le Youn, and Mrs. Dunenby, Elders, Messrs. Wm. Black and A. D. Sine.

Mr. Fred Hennessey spent last week-end with his parents here. Mr. Hennessey has been employed near Deseronto since last year.

Mrs. M. Zimmerman and granddaughters, Misses Suzanne and Jacqueline Hazard of Los Angeles, arrived in the community a few days ago to spend the summer. Miss Jacqueline is attending the local public school after her day.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown of Campbellford and children spent Wednesday last with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Herrington and Barry.

The mosquito epidemic is beginning to wane and school attendance is creeping up. No serious effects are as yet been reported.

Last week's electrical storm which caused many dollars damage across eastern Ontario did not pass this community without leaving its mark. Early in the evening a close flash burned out the transformer fuse in front of St. John's Parish Hall laying the village in darkness until workmen arrived in the evening to repair it.

Two months ago the government land-buyer visited the community to purchase the strip of land necessary to run the new road from the Bridge to meet the Conacon road nearly a mile south of this community. Since then surveyors have worked carefully picking parallel lines of stakes to mark the course of the new road, and now workmen are actually engaged in clearing trees and building a roadbed through the swamp near the home of Mr. L. Brown at the south end of the stretch. When completed this will be a link in the long-proposed scenic highway to Kingston via Glenora ferry and Adolphustown.

Three pupils from this school will write high school entrance examinations this year, one going to Trenton and two to Brighton.

Miss Ora Reynolds spent a few days visiting friends in Belleville recently.

Miss Kathleen Hanthorn of Whitby with a party of friends has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hanthorn.

Summer visitors to nearby lakeside resorts are beginning to be seen frequently at the local store and postoffice, reminding us that the holiday season is nearly here again.

Mr. Elmer Green is holidaying at home for a few days, having leave of absence from his boat at Kingston.

Business seems to be picking up on the Ells service station at the canal; recently, its location at a busy corner where motorists must slow down may have something to do with the extent of its trade. At any rate it is the first local venture of its kind and we wish it well.

Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Hamilton, is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Alec Reynolds and family at Deseronto.

Mrs. Marsell Young visited Toronto friends over the week-end.

Sunday picnickers at Twelve O'Clock Point are pleased with the way the grounds and especially the beach have been put in shape for the summer. With such care crowds should grow.

The fence from in front of the United Church has been removed and the lawn mowed. A most remarkable improvement in appearance is evident, and if only the rest could be mowed as well, a very fine churchyard would be available for lawn socials.

NINETY CANDLES ADORN THE CAKE ON ANNIVERSARY

Roslin, June 22—At the anniversary supper of the Anglican Church on Monday evening a large birthday cake on which were placed ninety candles, adorned the centre of the table. Mr. William Wilkins won the quilt, the lucky ticket for which was drawn by little Miss Joyce Goodfellow.

Rev. F. C. Beazer and Mrs. Beazer and Rev. D. C. Hill and Mrs. Hill and family attended the Ministerial Association picnic which was held at Oak Lake on Tuesday.

Mrs. William Wier spent Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. Mastin, Consecon.

Mrs. Alexander of Moneymore spent several days recently with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Alexander.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ashley of Hallowayand Mr. J. Ketcheson spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Welt.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearsall spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Glen Ish.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coulter and family of Moneymore spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Sills.

Mr. and Mrs. Taulk and family of Point Anne were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hart on Sunday.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Beazer at the rectory were Rev. F. A. Smith, Mrs. Smith and Peter of Trenton, Rev. Canon Fisher of Ottawa and Archdeacon Coleman of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coulter spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Gillespie.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sills entertained in honor of their daughter from Thomasburg on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Alexander and Doris of Moneymore visited Mr. and Mrs. Norman Alexander on Sunday.

Mrs. William Wilson has returned home a patient in the Belleville Hospital for a time.

Mr. M. E. Pargey attended the Missionary Convention held in Belleville recently.

Mrs. J. Chisholm spent the dinner hour on Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Alec Crawford.

Misses Hazel and Alice Wilson spent Wednesday with Mrs. J. Wathrope of Ameliasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hart spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hart.

Popular Bride-to-be Honored By Friends

Moira, June 22—On Monday night June 17th the friends, and neighbours invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reid to do honour to their eldest daughter Eleanore, a bride-to-be. A social and hour was spent and following which Eleanore and Archie were given the seats of honour. Mr. Harry Emerson officiated as chairman, in his usual capable manner and called on Miss Verna Foster to read the address which was as follows:

Moira, Ont., June 17, 1935

Dear Eleanore:

Having learned of your intention to leave our neighborhood and to leave the shelter of this home for another, we your friends and neighbors have gathered in your home tonight to spend a social hour and to extend our best wishes.

You Eleanore have lived among us all your life. Your willingness in the help in our community and your sunny smile will undoubtedly be missed. We are glad that you are not going far away. We trust that you will not forget us and that you will be glad to return to spend a few happy hours in our midst. We wish to bring to your new home we sincerely hope that your new acquaintances will learn to love and admire you for your many good qualities and your jovial nature.

Archie you are to be a partner to one of us, we offer these few lines by Edgar A. Guest, as a bit of advice.

After the honeymoon, learn to say and do

This will keep trouble and grief away

"Yes my dear"

Don't insist that black is white

And night is day and day is night

This is the answer that's always right

"Yes my dear"

This is the slogan for married men

"Yes my dear"

So is a troublesome work to use

It's the battle cry of opposing views

But this is the pleasant phrase to use

"Yes my dear"

In moments of doubt it is safe to say

"Yes my dear"

Though you will have many an anxious day

"Yes my dear"

Though you will be tempted, as oft was of old

To rise in your wrath and her will defy

You will find this is always the best reply

"Yes my dear"

When she would go out and at home you'd stay

"Yes my dear"

Life will be happier when you've learned to say

"Yes my dear"

And you will discover as time goes by

And you have been married as long as I

Nine times out of ten here's the best reply

"Yes my dear".

And now as a small token of our good wishes we ask you to accept there gifts and we trust that God will bless you abundantly and that the sun of happiness may shine upon you always.

Signed on behalf of the community: Mrs. Wallace McInroy, Hilda Elliott, Ruth M. Emerson.

Miss Ruth Emerson and Miss Hilda Elliott presented Eleanore with the many beautiful gifts and at this time Eleanore and Archie thanked those present for their thoughtfulness. A few impromptu speeches were made and a programme consisting of the Mrs. Arthur Emerson and the Misses Dorothy and Revel Elliott, Mrs Verre Foster and Miss Myrtle Wannamaker furnished music for the evening. Master Glenn Morton also gave a couple of musical numbers.

Lunch was served which brought to a close a very enjoyable evening.

MOUNT PLEASANT W.M.S.

The ladies of Mount Pleasant held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Treverton. The meeting opened with hymn 318 with prayer by Miss Goodman. Roll call was answered by verse of Scripture with the word love. Eight present, one visitor. Minutes were read and adopted. Scripture lesson was read by Miss Collins. A reading was given by Mrs. Clarence Goodman and an instrumental solo by Miss Carman Gibson. Hymn 94 was sung. Mrs. Elliott gave a temperance reading, "Women Drinking". A reading Mrs. Charlie Treverton, "The Higher Level" followed. Mrs. Helen Goodman and Mrs. Clarence Goodman were appointed to prepare the June meeting. Hymn 114 was followed by prayer. Lunch was served.

EXCLUSIVE PHOTOS OF VANCOUVER RIOTS

One of the fiercest riots in the history of British Columbia took place where striking longshoremen clashed with city police . . . and finally broken up when the mounted R.C.M.P. officers.

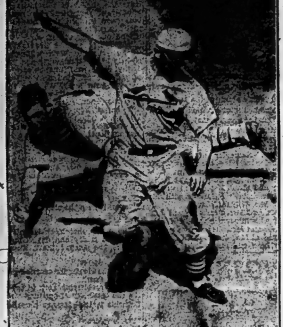
Analysing Stride That Carried Lovelock to Victory Over World's Best Milers

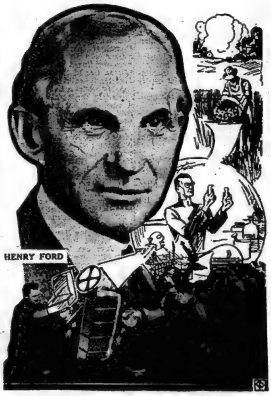


In all the world there are only three humans who have run the recorded mile in faster time than four minutes and nine seconds. At Palmer Stadium, Princeton, those three speedsters were brought together to race against themselves and time in an invitation one-mile contest. They are Glen Cunningham of Kansas, Bill Bonthron of Princeton and Jack Lovelock of Oxford and New Zealand. Lovelock won that chase, eased up, though the world record was not endangered. Here we see the closing strides of the invader as he dashed for the tape, finishing with plenty to spare, while Cunningham faded badly and Bonthron finished second. The sequence from LEFT to RIGHT shows the kick of Lovelock's step, the long powerful stride and perfect co-ordination of body and arms as he swings toward the mark.

KING TUT'S CURSE AGAIN?

Lady Carnarvon, the former Catherine Wendell, New York society beauty, has instituted divorce proceedings against the Earl of Carnarvon, causing many superstitious persons to believe that the curse of Egypt's King Tut-Ankh-Amen had reached down into the second generation to cause unhappiness. The first Earl of Carnarvon, father of the respondent, died in 1923 from an insect bite received when he violated the desert tomb for the first time. Before the matrimonial skies were clouded this picture was snapped, showing Lady Carnarvon, the Earl of Carnarvon and their daughter, Lady Penelope Herbert, one of their two children.

FRISCH SCORES DESPITE DANNING'S LUNGE



Harry Danning, young catcher of the New York Giants, literally goes "up in the air" in a futile attempt to tag out Frank Frisch, manager and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals. Frisch scored on the play and the Redbirds took the contest, 7 to 3. Danning can be seen making his frantic lunge as Frisch crosses the plate.

Louis Hits Too Hard—Mr. Carnera Please Note

It's not a gag, folks—it's just an idea that handlers of Joe Louis have devised to prevent his sparring partners from absorbing too much punishment as the Detroit negro trains for his June 25 bout against Primo Carnera. A mask over the face and midriff protectors save the precious boys from too much suffering facing Joe's lethal punch. He can hit as hard as he likes now. "General" Bourrows is the gentleman trying out the shock-absorbers.

FORD GOING INTO POLITICS?

Some suspicion is being voiced in the political circles in the United States that Henry Ford's move to create a committee to find new means of using farm products in industry is somehow linked up with the 1936 presidential elections and the Republican party. General policy, however, of the committee is to increase the purchasing power of the American farmer. Some of the things the committee will investigate are substitutes for gasoline; use of soy beans in making steering wheels, horn buttons, etc.; rubber from chemical compound; goat hair for upholstering. Henry Ford endorsed Herbert Hoover in last U.S. elections.

When highway workmen appeared in Woodstock, Va., to chop down the stately trees lining Main St., preparatory to widening the thoroughfare, prominent citizens went up in the air, literally. Long Motorcade When Highway Link Opened

Route of Winnipeg Motorcade to Canadian Road Celebration

One of the final links in the trans-Canada highway is to be opened on July 1 with an impressive motorcade which will leave the head of the lakes and traverse the new highway to Winnipeg.

Thousands of men have been working on the stretch of about 400 miles for several years, as it lies largely in uninhabited country where difficulties of road-building were encountered. The new stretch of road will form part of the all-Canada highway from coast to coast, complete now except for a small section in British Columbia on which work is progressing, and the section north of Lake Superior, the route of which has not yet been decided.

A motorcade is to leave Winnipeg June 28, according to present plans, and travel south across the international border, visiting cities in North Dakota and Minnesota to Duluth. Plans call for a motorcade from Port William and Port Arthur to meet the Winnipeg motorists, and escort them to the head of the lakes, from where, after appropriate ceremonies on Dominion Day, the caravans will move off to Winnipeg over the new road on July 2.

WHOLE FAMILY WIPED OUT

An entire family was wiped out when a motor car driven by Herman L. Porter of Hamilton plunged into the Welland canal at Thorold, Ontario, carrying with it Mr. Porter, his wife and their two children, Donald (2) and Barbara (3). Porter, age 34, turning the car around when it slipped off the canal bank, and turned over into the water. The bodies were recovered a few hours later. Layout shows Mr. and Mrs. Porter, Doris (BELOW LEFT) and Barbara. Porter was a native of Digby, N.S.

Gyroffy Wins 2 Main Bouts At Kiwanis Show, Beating George Richards, Jack Pearl

Boxers Fail to Appear And Will Be Reported

SMART WRESTLING

Kiwanis Club in No Way to Blame For Non Appearance

Johnnie Gyroffy, Hungarian adonis, covered the hero of the night, staged the iron-man stunt and won two main bouts at the Belleville Arena last night to save the Kiwanis wrestling show, when the highly advertised Toronto boxer, Frankie Genovese, failed to put in an appearance to mitigate somewhat the efforts of the local Kiwanians. Gyroffy met and defeated a classy wrestler in the main bout of the evening, when he beat George Richards, the Toronto Jewish grappler, and then with only a few moments rest returned to the ring to beat Jack Pearl, who had in turn beat on Johnnie Pavlos in the curtain-raiser. Gyroffy proved the master of the night's performance, when he won the main bout and then went on to beat Pearl in an extra added attraction scrap with Pearl. Incidentally the third or extra match proved a crowd pleaser as the wrestlers showed plenty of speed and action to give the 700 fans many thrills.

Just prior to the added wrestling bout the Kiwanis Club officials announced, that patrons not satisfied with the show could receive their money back at the end of the night's program, over three years of entertainment being afforded the fans by five wrestlers. Incidentally it was announced today, that Frankie Genovese, the highly touted Toronto boy who ran out on the Kiwanis promoters last night, arrived in Belleville at 1.30 a.m. and was all prepared to collect his pehcriaage of the gate. Genovese was fairly disturned down and advised to return to Toronto, where his car will call and accordingly he left before the Ontario Athletic Commission, stated the local promoters this morning.

Wrestling Excellent

The advertised main bout of the evening brought together a new face to local fans in George Richards, the Toronto Jewish lad who was finally defeated by Johnny Gyroffy after seven and one 30 minutes of wild and hectic preseason wrestling. Richards proved a crowd-pleaser from the out-set and was always the favorite with the fans. His clean-cut method of wrestling catching the eye of the referee, Richards received no alibis for the heavier Gyroffy, who showed his first class by gruesome wrestling in a local ring, which eventually won for him two of the three rounds. Gyroffy won the initial fall with a double leg-lock and a cradle hold and opened the second round by applying a surf-board hold, that seemed to have the agile Jewish lad all but beaten. Richards succeeded fully wigled out and as Gyroffy crossed a poorly directed drop-kick, Richards pounced on the prostrate Hungarian to win a surprise fall in 3g time. During the third round both lads gave a marvellous exhibition of speed and stamina and repeadedly had the fans in a frenzy with their continued exhibition of present day wrestling antics. Gyroffy became slightly winded and deciously attacked Richards and Referee Wells with a series of elbow smashes and a few well-placed flys to win the fall with a belated body slam and press. Gyroffy let the ring amid a series of boos and cat-calls, while even the defeat Richards was roundly applauded by the patrons who believed he had been fouled. Incidentally Richards is one of the best working wrestlers to appear in a local ring in some time and popular opinion stamps his return in the near future.

Pearl Wins Easily

In the opening bout Jack Pearl experienced little difficulty in trimming over Johnnie Pavlos. The Greek threat, with the lone wingding in the second fall with a full scissors to force Pearl's shoulders to the mat. Pearl won the initial fall and also the third fall following a series of body slams terminated with a body press in each incident.

The extra bout staged to replace the boxing bouts brought together two winners of the previous bouts, Johnnie Gyroffy and Jack Pearl, with the former's ring eventually proving too great for the Toronto youth. Gyroffy won the first and third fall with a body slam and a drop kick, while Pearl won the middle decision with an airplane spin combination by Jim Browning's famous scissors-across scissors. Gyroffy brought the wrath of the fans upon his head with his repeated pugnacious attacks upon the lighter Pearl and again left the ring amid unpopular comment at the hands of the fans, as the bouts were highly supported.

On the program together the bouts the Kiwanis Club officials announced that the person not satisfied with the show would be Genovese and his opponent, K. O. Kelly, not appearing could receive their money back at the box office. Thirteen patrons presented checks and received their cash in return, as sporting fans stood by and shouted words of disencouragement, in their general direction.

SUMMARY

Opening bout—Two falls, one hour limit—Jack Pearl, 197, Toronto, won over John Pavlos, 195, Greece, Pearl winning first fall in 9.41 min. Pavlos second fall in 8.12 min. and Pearl the final fall in 16.40 min.

Main Bout—Two falls, one hour limit—Johnnie Gyroffy, 209, Hungary, won over Geo. Richard, 201 Jewish Toronto champ, Gyroffy won first fall in 19.47 min. Richards the second fall in 4.00 min. and Gyroffy the third fall in 20.47 min.

Extra bout—Two falls out of three one hour limit— Johnnie Gyroffy, 209, Hungary, won over Jack Pearl 197, Toronto. Gyroffy won first fall in 16.51, Pearl, second in 1.51 and Gyroffy third in 3.55 min.

Referee—Bert Wells of Belleville. Announcer—Frank Domenico, of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

"Schoolboy" Rowe Back to Form of Last Year When Detroit Tigers Take Title

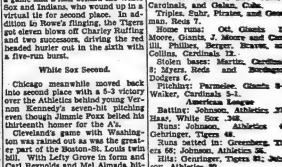
Stopped Yankees With Four Singles And Wins 7-0

CHICAGO SECOND

Cards Drop to Eight Games Behind The Giants

If Detroit Tigers should recapture the American League pennant this season it apparently wouldn't be amiss for them to vote a share of the world series proceeds to Lynwood Rowe Junior.

One of the difficulties that beset Manager Mickey Cochrane this spring was that Lynwood Rowe Senior—the famous "Schoolboy"—wasn't pitching according to last year's form and apparently didn't care much about his failure. He just couldn't be persuaded to take the business of throwing the ball over the plate seriously though when he "got down" his fast one still had the old zip and his curve its deceptive bend.



But since a son and heir appeared some ten days ago it seems to be a different Rowe out there on the hill, bearing down all the time and that was made a world of difference to the Tigers. He followed up a three-hit pitching performance against the Red Sox, which might have been dismayed as natural jubilance, by limiting the Yankees to six blows and yesterday by shutting out the league leading Yankees with four puny singles to gain a 7-0 triumph.

That victory, coupled with Cleveland's losses to the Yanks, put Detroit only a game and a half behind the White Sox and Indians, who rounded up in a virtual tie for second place. In addition to Rowe's flinging, the Tigers got eleven blows off Charley Ruffing and two successors, driving the redhaired hurler out in the sixth with a five-run burst.

White Sox Second.

Chicago meanwhile moved back into second place with a 5-3 decision over the Athletics behind young Vernon Kennedy's seven-hit pitching, even though Jimmie Foxx belted his thirteenth homer for the A's. Cleveland's game with Washington was rained out as was the greater part of the Boston-St. Louis twin bill. With Lefty Grove in form and Carl Reynolds and Mel Almada hitting homers, the Red Sox polished out a 3-0 decision in six innings that were played before the storm struck.

The Giants, having disposed of the St. Louis threat, continued to make hash of their rivals for the National League lead by thumping the Pirates for the second time, 11-4. They settled the game as early as the second inning when Mel Ott's thirteenth homer made with two aboard, climaxed a seven run rally off Red Lucas.

HIT IT!—A. H. Wilson, jr., of Army team, takes a swipe at the ball in polo battle with Yale on Governors Island.

The Cards took an 8-3 beating from the Phillies on the strength of Syl Johnson's six-hit shoving and a homer by Johnny Vergez with the bases full. As a result New York's lead was stretched to seven and a half games over the Bucs and eight over St. Louis, the league's two seasons. The Giants never were that far ahead last season although they led almost to the final minute.

The Cubs continued to improve their fourth position by beating the Braves 11-3 with an 18-hit attack that more than offset homers by Wally Berger and Frank Wagner off Tex Carleton's delivery. Brennan of the Reds, winning his first game of the season, made the Dodgers look more than ever like "hitless wonders" when he shut them out with seven hits to win 5-0 with the aid of Ernie Lombardi's circuit clout with two aboard.

DAY BY DAY

For the information of local boxing and wrestling fans, and also several communities of the Kiwanis Club, who were in bed, when this little incident occurred, we would like to say that a person attending last night's wrestling show at the Arena, claims, that we fortunately can bunk. As is known to the patrons of last night's show at the Arena, Frankie Genovese, Toronto's gift to the fight world, and one K. O. Kelly, failed to put in an appearance. Why? Well, that's a story of a different book. Much to the surprise of the Kiwanis Club promoters and also ourselves, we hereby publish the statement that Genovese and Kelly, plus five hangers-on, immediately settled into town about 1.00 am this morning and that the celebrity in ask where the "fights" were being held. Such about 1.30 the same person, who had no nobly saved last night's Kiwanis wrestling show, were promised bouts on Friday night and met the contingent of so-called boxers. What followed we will not relate, despite the fact we were an eye witness. George Richards, who won the hearts of many wrestling fans last night, put the wandering boxers to bed, and it was only when he became slightly angered at their officials, that Referee Richards, Jack Pearl and Johnnie Gyroffy stepped into the picture and we can honestly assure the public that they kept retreat hidden by the so-called fighters, and their supporters, was much more delightful than that of Mr. Kelly and co. We are sorry, that the cash customers were not present to witness the reception of the belated boxers at the Belleville Arena, as there were no amicable state of mind.

Getting back to last night's show at the Arena, it was most deplorable to keep their appointment! Instead of the boxers, the wrestlers worked in abbreviated bouts, and we were at the last hour the promoters telephoned the distance to Toronto and told the local sports writers, that the wrestlers had appeared on the scene and that the Kiwanis Club Convener and his competent staff were in charge of the box-office manager of the Arena, has a contract signed by Genovese in his hands for the fight and that if the Kiwanis officials today, who were responsible for the show, failed the matter to the Ontario Athletic Commission, he would have to local sport fans their good intentions. Unfortunately happened to be on the street, after last night's show was over, and personally saw Genovese and Kelly settle their fares, hour after midnight. If the O.A.C. is to be a real athletic organization and severely punish Genovese and Kelly, well and good, if!

Getting back to the actual local wrestle wrestling show last night, we wish to dish our chapeau to the exceptionally fine work of Referee Richards and would welcome the chance of refereeing a return bout between Richards and Pearl, as we think we can wrestle.

Merrivell finish the other night to down the Oshawa nine, we hear. 'Tis cold and most astonishing, that when other clubs in the C.O.B.L. are batting any club in the league, except the Stewart-Warners, plenty of errors are committed, but when they tangle with the Radios the opposing club, no matter, who they may be, always play their best raft-fare of ball against the Millscoached aggregation, down in Kingston the other eve, the two clubs committed eight errors between them, Oshawa kicking in with five and Kingston three. Queer as it may seem no other of these clubs would "kick the gong around" for a single error, when the Radios are their opposition. The same holds good for the Peries, who booted a few in Kingston recently. 'Tis seemly the other clubs in the league always play their best class of baseball, when they tangle with our club", repeated skipper Joe Daly when discussing the subject yesterday. Weather permitting the Radios will journey to Oshawa for an important tilt that sees the league leadership at stake today.

Coach Joe Daly of the Ponies has converted "Speedy" St. Louis, his versatile hard-hitting and fast-as-a-switchtier lately. Playing in his new role St. Louis collected three hits in four trips to the plate, versus the Oshawa crew and will doubtless see a lot of action when the Ponies come to Belleville on Tuesday evening. Incidentally the Ponies are scheduled to appear in Peterbow, when Jamieson will pitch Barrie's last stand against what means that Red Clancy, the Ponies' recently acquired Belleville recruit, a groundsman, will accord the hilltop boys the welcome of a hurler and the locals will have to be at their best to stop the tremendous

Today the B.A.B.A. Intermediates are scheduled to appear in Kingston today which will mean return to the home lot versus the Picton Club on Wednesday afternoon next. Incidentally Manager Panning informs us he has signed an ex-pro. hurler, who will make his debut here in intermediate ranks. The local intermediates are battling for a play-off berth in their league and can assure themselves of this position by a win over the fast Picton club on the home lot next Wednesday.

Owing to wet grounds the Stewart-Warner at Picton exhibition game on Thursday was postponed indefinite. If the Radios do not re-play their game here on the same in Kingston next week, they will undoubtedly play in Kingston on Thursday or Friday, but the Ponies' executive are hot-foot after the Radios to have the game on the May 23rd next week. As the Radios are idle from Saturday until Tuesday, naturally President Chas. Millen will ensure any game for his club next week.

Each Wednesday afternoon new sailing punts are putting in an appearance in the Kingston C.O.B.L. punt-racing events. No less than three new craft were launched last week which smouly make the competition even more keen and interesting in the future. Every cass from the speedy "A" craft rigat down the "Scow" class are being keen competition each week and these weekly sailing punt races are proving a attracting no end of attention and public approval. The Bay of Quinte as once world renown for its aquatic enterprises and today the S.E.A.C. is going much to rejuvenate this interest in it.

Both local boxers, Howard Wheeler and Bill Crawford, lost dec sions in Bowmanville during the Lion's Club show last night. Wheeler lost a narrow-margin decision to Mel Gilmanna in a hot contest while Crawford was somewhat handicapped, when he stepped in against a lad named Raven from Toronto, who out-weighed the local scrapper considerably. So impressed was Freddie Lee Miller with the showing of Crawford and Wheeler, that they were both offered chances to appear next autumn in the Maple Leaf Gardens.
